NEW COUNCIL NOW READY FOR BUSINESS.

Organization was Effected at Meeting Tuesday Night.

FRANK SMITH PRESIDENT.

A. T. MACMURRAY ELECTED A CITY CLERK TO SUCCEED HIMSELF.

President Smith Appointed the Committees as Printed in The Daily Press Tuesday — Meeting Night Changed to Second Monday in the Month—A New Method of Keeping the City Claims.

Plainfield's Common Council for 1900 convened last Tuesday for the first time to effect an organization. When City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the body together all the members were present except Messrs. VanHerwerden and Craig. They came in later. The members are seated in the following order: Frank H. Smith, president; J. B. Damont, B. Frank Coriell, Charles B. Clifton, J. VanHerwerden, George P. Mellick, H. I. Tolles, J. F. Buckle, William H. Gloak, Jr., and Lee, James Craig. A significant fact is that four of last year's councilmen are seated side by side and face the president, while on either side are the new members, with the exception of Mr. Coriell, who is between Mr. Dumont and Mr. Clifton.

The members assembled promptly at the appointed hour and at once took up the business of the evening. City Clerk MacMurray, whose term as clerk did not expire until his successor was appointed, called the meeting to order, and read the call. Then followed the first business, that of selecting a president. Frank H. Smith's name was the only one mentioned and he was elected by ballot, according to rule, there being nine cast for him, as he did not vote, and two members being absent at the time. Messrs Dumont and Buckle were appointed to escort him to the chair, where a handsome bouquet of flowers awaited him.

In accepting the honor, Mr. Smith thanked most sincerely his associates, and stated that he was not insensible of the duties, and would endeavor to fulfil them to the best of his ability. He hoped the relations this year would be as pleasant as those of last year, and he would do all in his power to render just decisions.

The next business was that of selecting a city clerk for the term of three years. James T. MacMurray was the only nominee and he was elected unanimously. Then came the election of W. V. Mundy as janitor to succeed himself for one year.

Mr. Dumont, at this time, moved that the rules of order for 1899 be adopted for 1900, with the following changes, that the time of meeting be changed from the first Monday in the month to the second Monday, and that the finance, streets and fire committees be composed of five members each, and the police, lights, alms, license and auditing committees be composed of three members each. This was adopted.

The bonds of Constables Peter B. Weaver, Amos Moffett and Frank Vanderhoof were received, approved and filed. Then followed the appointment of committees as follows by the president:

Finance—VanHerwerden, chairman; Lee, Mellick, Tolles and Coriell.

Streets—Tolles, chairman; Craig, Dumont, Coriell and Lee.

Police — Buckle, chairman; Gloak and Dumont.

Fire — Coriell, chairman; Mellick, Buckle, Craig and VanHerwerden.

Lights—Mellick, chairman; Clifton and Gloak.

Alms—Lee, chairman; Dumont and Tolles.

License—Gloak, chairman; Buckle and Clifton.

Auditing—Clifton, chairman; VanHerwerden and Craig.

Charles Hyde through J. B. Coward, attorney, communicated with the Council as regards the assessment of taxes for 1894, '95, '96 on property on Woodland avenue, between Ravine road and Park place, stating that the same had been paid. He asked that the taxes be remitted, cancelled. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

All the petitions left by the Council of 1899 were at this time referred to the proper committees who will consider them in due time. The annual report of City Treasurer William F. Arnold was received, and on a motion offered by Mr. Dumont was ordered advertised. This motion also included that the proper blank certificates be printed for this official.

Mr. Dumont gave notice that at the next meeting he would move that it be

GAVE MUCH TO CHARITY.

Runyon Walker's will has been filed with the Surrogate at New Brunswick. Walker died several weeks ago in New Market.

It was expected that his fortune amounted to nearly $200,000, but before he died he gave away much to charitable organizations, and left only a little to each of his children.

The bequests were: Mrs. John Rose, $3,000; Lewis D. Walker, $3,000; Mrs. Calvin Drake, $1,000; Mrs. S. R. Dayton, $2 S.0; F. R. Walker, $1,000; Mrs. Isaac Giles, $1,000, and Mrs. William J. Newton, $1,000. The real estate, valued at $30 000, will be divided so that each child receives an equal amount.

Edward Devine is Commander.

Plainfield Council, No. 28, Shepherds of Bethlehem, has elected for the ensuing year—Commander, Edward Devine; vice commander, Mrs. Howard; aid to commander, William Ford; marshal, Robert Goldesck; scribe, Mrs. Litthauser; account, Mrs. Rosie Mattle; treasurer, Mrs M. J. Nash; chaplain, Robt. Lovamour; inside guard, Geo. McComb; outside guard, F. Moore; master of ceremonies, Mrs. Denckles; trustee, M. Loivers.

BLOOD POISONING SET IN.

Serious Results That Come From Vaccination Ordered by Board of Education.

A sad case of poisoning is reported on West Front street, corner of Elmwood place. A boy named Stewart, aged about 12 years, was vaccinated recently according to the rule of the Board of Education, and soon afterward blood poisoning set in and since that time the boy has suffered intensely. The lad has been a sufferer from scrofula, and it is said that that may have something to do with the way the vaccine took hold. A few days ago a physician was called and expressed the opinion that he was in doubt as to what could be done for the boy. There appears to have been something in the blood that has caused the vaccine to act so contrary to general principles.

The boy's parents are heart-broken over the condition of their son and are doing all that is possible to effect a recovery. The parents claim that the Board of Education has no right to compel vaccination and it is possible that they may go to law over the matter. They say that the law gives the Board of Education the right to say that a child may be vaccinated, but that they cannot make it compulsory.

WHY HOME MISSIONS?

Continuation of Services in the New Sanctuary at Hope Chapel—Address by Dr. Dixon.

The dedication of the new sanctuary of Hope chapel was marked by the formal dedication services Sunday evening and special services every evening of the week following. Tuesday night was devoted to a review of the subject of home missions. Rev. Dr. John Dixon, assistant secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Mission, was present and spoke on "Why Home Missions?"

He was a pleasant and interesting speaker and sketched simply the field and the needs of the Board. He begged his hearers to remember that it was their duty to give the advantages of the beautiful new chapel to others beside themselves.

He told how the Board had expended a million dollars in the last year and now supported 1,300 missionaries and 323 teachers. He pointed out the various lines of work to be accomplished and showed how much there was still to do. He told how much greater and more effective work could be accomplished if every member of the Presbyterian denomination should just devote a cent a week to the Board's treasury. Such an offering was comparatively very small to the individual but, in the aggregate, it would greatly advance the cause of home missions.

Grand Lodge of Colored Masons.

Last week at the annual session of the Grand Lodge of colored Masons held at Camden the following officers were elected: Grand Master, J. H. Morgan, Bordentown, deputy grand master, Hiyard Oliver, Camden; senior grand warden, Abram W. Brown, Plainfield; junior grand warden, John Vance, Salem; grand treasurer, Walter Miller, Snow Hill; grand secretary, Charles N. Robinson, Camden.

Nursing a Sprained Wrist.

Chief T. O. Deane, of the fire department, is nursing a sprained right wrist as the result of an accident Monday morning. He was passing under the railroad bridge at Park avenue and stepped on some ice. He slipped and fell. In endeavoring to save some packages that he was carrying, his whole weight fell on his right wrist. A severe sprain was the result.

100 Mortgages Filed.

One hundred mortgages on land in New Orange, Union county, were placed on record in Elizabeth last Friday. The amounts range from $600 to $1,500, and they represent a total of about $80 000. All the short pages are given by Martin Olsen to the Baron De Hirsch Fund, which is the mortgagee.

Wedding Bells Ring Out.

Elizabeth, Jan. 3—Chief of Police Tenney has obtained from Laura Douglas, a young colored woman, living here, the revolver with which Fred Davis killed John Monks Christmas Eve. The young woman, it turns out, is the person who betrayed Davis' whereabouts to the police.

Letter Carriers Remembered.

Plainfield's letter carriers were handsomely remembered Monday when they made their rounds. Their many patrons did not forget them and they appreciated what they received.

Card of Thanks.

Having been appointed of the kindness of my many friends during my recent illness, I take this opportunity of thanking each one.

BOY'S LIFE CRUSHED OUT BY LAND SLIDE.

Sudden and Violent Death of David Hand at Dunellen.

TONS OF EARTH OVER HIM.

FATHER OF THE BOY NARROWLY ESCAPED BEING CAUGHT.

Hand and His Sons Were Working in Sand Pit Near Jackson Avenue, Where an Excavation Ten Feet Deep Had Been Made Into the Bank—The Boy was in Excavation When Earth Fell.

David, Jr., the 17-year-old son of David Hand, Netherwood, met with a sudden and violent death at Dunellen about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by being crushed beneath a land slide.

The accident occurred on Jackson avenue nearly in rear of the tin shop of T. C. Bodine. At that point Mr. Hand has been engaged all fall in getting out sand, which is being shipped by rail to out-of-town parties. Since the cold weather set in the upper surface of the sand pit had become frozen, necessitating the workmen digging further into the excavation, which is about 10 feet deep and describes a crescent shape circle.

It was shortly after the noon hour when David Hand and his sons, David and Irving, together with two workmen, resumed operations. Young David and his father were well in the centre of the pit, the younger Hand being the furtherest from the mouth or opening.

Suddenly, and without any intimation of the danger which lurked in the possibility of the overhanging frozen earth giving way, those who heard a cracking, grinding sound. The father heard the noise and real sing that the upper crust of the pit was about giving way, jumped into the open space. He was none too quick. Before he could warp his son of the terrible death that threatened him, the entire mass fell with a crash and buried young David Hand up to his neck beneath fully 15 tons of frozen earth and sand.

Both father and brother saw his son killed before his eyes. Some of the workmen say that the unfortunate boy was heard to utter a groan, followed by a gurgling sound as his life was crushed out.

Before the dazed father could come to his senses his oldest son Irving and the workmen sprang to the rescue and began to shovel away the sand. They worked rapidly and desperately and in less than three minutes had succeeded in extricating the young victim. It was at first hoped that the boy was only stunned and had become unconscious.

Messengers were dispatched for a physician and Dr. Whitford responded. Later Dr. Brakeley visited the scene of the accident and examined the body. Both physicians pronounced the boy dead, and gave it as their opinion that death must have been instantaneous.

In being impossible to reach the county physician Dr. Brakeley signed a certificate of death and the body was removed by A. M. Runyon & Son, the undertakers, to the home of his parents in Netherwood.

It is not probable that an inquest will be deemed necessary.

The funeral services will be held at the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, this afternoon at 2 30 o'clock.

Word of a Terrible Fight.

John Bowden, who is in the Philippines with the 14th Infantry, Co. G, has written to his brother, Charles Bowden, of this city, telling him of a terrible three days's fight held the first of November. He reports that half of his company was killed in the engagement with the enemy, but that Uncle Sam's men finally came off victorious. He says that the soldiers are kept on the go and there is more or less fighting every day.

Telephones.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has been working very hard under the direction of Manager Charles W Runyon, to reach the five hundredth mark in the subscription department, and they have succeeded. The company now has five hundred and two subscribers to this city. In another days seven teen 'phones were put in, and the men were kept busy day and night.

J. G. Gressolle's Tenth Celebration.

Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Gressolle, of Asbury Park, celebrated New Year's night the anniversary of their golden wedding, the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Mr. Gressolle to the Baptist ministry and Mr. Gressolle's seventy-ninth birthday. Mr. Gressolle was pastor of the Baptist church at New Market for a number of years.

TO SAVE HIM FROM PRISON.

Judge Vail to Allow an Examination to Determine the Sanity of Sigmund Blackford.

Elizabeth, Jan. 3.—Former Judge William A. Coddington, of Plainfield, who has been engaged by Mrs John Blackford, of Putnam avenue, that city, to save her husband from State prison on his plea of guilty to the charge of bigamy in having married Miss Alice Morgan, of Westfield, without a divorce, appeared before Judge Vail in the Union county court this morning and made application for the appointment of a commission of physicians to examine into the sanity of the prisoner.

Blackford was to have been sentenced this morning, but Judge Vail postponed disposition of the case for one week in order to grant the application. The examination will be made by Dr. Fred Bailey, the jail physician, and another doctor. Blackford did not appear in court when the case was brought up.

UNIVERSAL EDUCATION.

Prospect of Establishing a Center of the University Association and World's Congress Extension.

Professor C. Davis is in town working among professional men for the purpose of organizing a branch of the University Association and World's Congress Extension, which will make a special study of educational questions during the coming year.

The University Association is a federation of the teaching powers of the principal universities and colleges throughout the world. Incorporated with the association is the famous World's Congress Extension, an international organization, perfected to continue the benefits derived from the World's Congress held during the World's Columbian Exposition.

The work of the University Association and support of thousands of people, especially ministers of the gospel and educators. As education is not finished when we leave school, college, or university, such a means of continuous systematic and suggestive culture, as that provided by this association will be very helpful to all those who are anxious enough to pursue systematic study in the field of history, science, literature, economics, or art. Many of the prominent educators, who are are at present connected with the principal universities and colleges of the world are connected with this association, and it is endorsed by over fifty college and university presidents, and some of the greatest thinkers of the world.

Those who become members meet together in class once a week for a review of the week's class. Each class will have its own corps of officers, including a local instructor.

Mayor's Message Delivered.

It was expected that Mayor Brokaw's message would be presented to the new Common Council last Tuesday night at their first meeting for the year. It did not make an appearance. As the session was taken up chiefly with organization His Honor thought he would defer his message for a short time. It will probably be presented next Monday evening when the Council will meet again.

From Fourth Ward Friends.

The very handsome bouquet of flowers found on the table of the Council rooms Tuesday were presented to President Frank H. Smith by his Fourth ward friends. A card telling that fact was fastened thereto. A number of prominent politicians from that ward were present at the meeting and watched the opening session with a great deal of interest.

Rev. O'Donnell's Paper.

In commemoration of the third anniversary of the Monroe Avenue M E church, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, the pastor, has edited and published a special paper called "Forward." It contains a historical report of the church society, which includes a list of the members and many other interesting facts about the church.

City Treasurer on Time.

A commendable feature of Wm. F. Arnold's work as City Treasurer is that he has his annual report in the hands of the City Clerk at the first meeting of the new Council. This was true of Tuesday, and it facilitates matters very much, and gives the Council a sufficient amount of time to arrange for its publication.

Miss Elsie Martin, of Hillside avenue, gave a tea Monday afternoon to introduce her friend, Miss Hannum, of Chester, Pa.

Miss Mollie Noel, of West Second street, and Miss Josie Bermingham, of Sixth street, spent New Year's visiting Washington Valley friends.

Miss Mamie McKeon, of West End Park, is visiting friends in Jersey City for a week.

MUST REPORT SUSPICION

CHANCES OF CONTAGION REDUCED TO MINIMUM IN BOROUGH.

Ordinance Passed by Board of Health Compelling Physicians to Report Suspicious Contagious Cases in 24 Hours.

The Board of Health of North Plainfield, that has the reputation of having the most active set of health officials in the State, took another step at the meeting Tuesday to reduce to a minimum the chances of contagious diseases getting a foothold in the borough. This consisted in passing an ordinance compelling physicians to report to the Board all cases that are suspected to be contagious diseases within twenty-four hours after that suspicion becomes fixed in their minds. Under the present law the doctors are not compelled to report such cases until they are positive of the ailment. Under the new ordinance the Board hopes to act so that there will be no danger of contagion being carried before quarantine can be established.

Another important ordinance adopted is one which makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $25, for a person to enter a quarantined house without the permission of the Board of Health.

At the meeting last night the Board also examined milk that was bought of a local dealer, which was found to be very impure. Steps will be taken to punish the dealer.

DIED IN BED.

Wife was at His Side When Life was Found to be Extinct.

Cornelius Pennington, aged 65 years, of Arlington avenue, one of Plainfield's best known citizens, died Tuesday morning as an early hour. He was found in bed by his employer, and during the evening, after he retired, his wife noticed that he acted strangely and several times he twitched. At first she paid little attention to it, but soon afterward the twitching became more violent. She leaned over and placing her hand on his face discovered that it was cold. She then got out of bed, lit a lamp and learned that her husband was dead. The deceased was a brother of Nathan Pennington, of Liberty street. He is survived by a wife, two sons and daughter The latter is Mrs. Ell Odam.

The funeral services will be held from the late residence, 1088 Arlington avenue, Friday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Interment at Hillside cemetery.

CAUGHT CUTTING WIRE.

Three Discharged Men Tried to Steal From Elizabeth Trolley Company.

Elizabeth, Jan. 3—Colonel Edward Hine and Elisha S. Gaddis, of Newark, were complainants at police headquarters Monday against three recently discharged employes and a stranger. The men were charged with conspiracy to steal cables and supplies from the Elizabeth and Westfield Trolley Company.

The three former employes were arrested in the woods Sunday night between here and Roselle by Superintendent Chamberlain and Policeman Edward Merrill as they were in the act of cutting the feed cable.

Those held are Joseph Goodwin, George Schwer and Aaron Boylinski, all of Brooklyn. They were committed. The other man got away.

Says He was Slandered.

E. W. Chamberlin, superintendent of sewers and roads of Westfield, has commenced suit against James M. French, of Westfield, in the District Court at Elizabeth, for $300 damages. The damages are claimed because of stories concerning Chamberlin, which, it is alleged, French has circulated. It is also alleged he has asserted that Chamberlin has raised vegetables on the Westfield sewer farm at the expense of the township. The case is set down for today.

Miss Kirby to be Employed as Assistant.

A meeting of the board of directors of the library was Tuesday. There were present M. W. Tyler, J. Evarts Tracy, Howland Cox, Alexander Gilbert, W. H. Larrabee and Wm. M. Stillman. On motion the recommendation of the librarian that Miss Adele Kirby be employed as second assistant, was adopted. The report of the librarian for December was read.

Lawton Goes on Grandma Kenneth's Staff.

It is a fact not generally known that the late General Lawton, who died recently in the Philippines, was a member of the staff of Gen. Kenneth Rae's Park avenue, during the Civil War. The latter speaks in the highest terms of the late General as a fighter and as a man.

Trouble in Police Department.

There is trouble in the Police Department again, and Mayor Rockefellow, to whose attention it has been called, is investigating it fully.

BOROUGH FIREMEN AS ENTERTAINERS.

Warren Engine Company Gather About a Christmas Tree.

LOADED WITH NOVELTIES.

GIFTS THAT SUGGESTED BOY-HOOD DAYS.

Mayor Smalley, Ex-Mayor Reed and Councilman Clark Kindly Remembered by the Fire Laddies With Presents of an Unique and Astonishing Description—The Fun Was Fast and all Enjoyed the Evening.

The Warren Engine Company of the borough is composed of a jolly set of fellows who believe in enjoying themselves in an original manner. Each year during the holiday season they plan to have an entertainment at their handsome apartments. Last year the boys got up a Christmas tree, which proved such a success that it was decided to repeat the affair again this year. Last Tuesday was the date set for the function. A handsome Christmas tree had been provided for the occasion and upon it were hung numerous gifts for the members of the company and their friends. The gifts were not intended to exhibit the wealth of the members of the company as much as they were to serve as reminders of once happy days—

"For to them 'twas a rainbow bar—
Around the old home's sea
In all their youthful days."

Before the fruit was gathered from the tree brief speeches were made by Mayor Smalley, Senator Reed, Councilman Clark, Chief Fairchild and others. Then Santa Claus, personated by J. J. Stahl, secretary of the company, distributed the presents, which consisted of articles usually found in the nursery.

Knowing the mayor's passion for a good horse Santa had kept faith with him by bringing a miniature trotting horse attached to a two-wheeled rig.

Senator Reed was the recipient of a small broom to signify the clean sweep of his political opponent.

Councilman Clark drew a coal cart, while Chief Fairchild was presented with a push cart, with its trumpet fully five feet in length.

Foreman Bennett was awarded a tin fire hat of regulation size. Dave Allen's gift was a pipe of earthern ware which he hopes named is "Kazooka." Other gifts included monkeys on a stick, dolls, tops, horns, drums, and various nick-nacks too numerous to mention. The Daily Press reporter was not forgotten, his gift being a miniature solid tin watch and chain. The difference between this watch and one of the Waterbury make is the fact that the reporter's watch contains a "yellow kid" which persists in flying out when the case is sprung open.

After all the boys had been remembered the remainder of the evening was passed with music and story telling. The affair was most enjoyable and the event will pass into the history of the company as one of many pleasant affairs for which this well-known and popular organization is noted.

Special Meeting to be Held.

It has been arranged by the Mayor and Council of the borough to hold a special meeting next week when there will be a discussion concerning the widening of Somerset street. Some of the members cannot be present at the meeting Friday evening and it is the desire of the Mayor that all the membership shall be present when the matter comes up. At the meeting the property owners affected will be asked to express their view on the subject and in this way it is hoped that a full and free expression of opinion may be secured.

Mr. Woodhull's New Home.

An important residential sale has just taken place through the real estate agency of E. C. Mulford & Son, North avenue, who have sold to Floyd T. Woodhull, of the firm of Woodhull & Martin, William Moore's handsome residence on West End Park, known as the West Front street. Since coming to Plainfield Mr. Woodhull has been a resident of the borough, but this change makes him a Plainfielder, where his partner resides. Mr. Woodhull and his family will take possession of their new home early in the spring.

Goodale to Spread Out.

Owing to the steady increase in his business, A. M. Goodale, the East Front street hardware dealer, has found it necessary to increase the size of his establishment. He has therefore rented the store next to his present one, now occupied by Wesley R. Brokaw, the music dealer, and will take possession in about time. As soon way will be cut between the two stores, Mr. Brokaw will move to new quarters.

JEST AND JINGLE.

Polygamy and Locks.

"The Sultan of Sulu isn't such a bad looking fellow after all."

"Does that surprise you?"

"Yes. Think of all the wives he has!"

"It wouldn't do me any good to think of them. What of it?"

"Why, he's so young looking, so fresh, so debonair—and with all these wives! It's the contrast that gets me."

"What contrast?"

"Why, when I look at you with only one wife, and—"

"That'll do."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Suspicious Case.

"You," said the attorney for the defense, addressing the chief witness against the accused, "you are the man who found the body of the dead per son. I believe?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, tell the jury the circumstances."

"Well sir, I was going down the street and I heard shots fired. Then I saw a man running away, and then I found the body of Bill Jones. He was dead, with two bullet holes in his head, and I at once suspected something was wrong."—Town Topics.

WHY SHE SANG.

How She Escaped a Punishment for Drunkenness.

A funny old Irish woman by her presence of mind and the natural gifts of her race got off without a penalty from the police court magistrate. She courtesied deeply to His Worship as she entered the dock, charged with being intoxicated, and answer she said:

"Sure, Your Worship, I couldn't help it. I had a little drop, and, begorra, was singing—

"'When Enghish and Irish fall fighting together,
Their blood gets mixed up in one red red stream, oshone!
There is hope for this country when
English and Irish
Are fighting together away from their home.'

"Now, how could I help singing that? You can't prevent the Irish singing."

Limits to His Gratitude.

"I feel that I ought to make some acknowledgement to the people who were so kind to us during my wife's last sickness," said Mr. Phroogle, "and I would like to have you insert this card of thanks in a prominent place in this week's paper."

"We are obliged to make a charge for these notices," replied the editor of the Weekly Blizzard, looking over the manuscript, "and this will cost you $1."

"Then you needn't publish it," rejoined Mr. Phroogle. "I am not quite as grateful as all that comes to."—Chicago Tribune.

CHINESE ARMIES.

They Fall Owing to Their Physical and Moral Condition.

In the Journal of the United States Service Institution, Major A. E. J. Cavendish emphatically points out the vices of the Chinese military system. Much of the latter ineffectiveness of China's Army, he thinks, is explained by the native saying, "Do not use good steel to make a nail, but take a good man to make a soldier," which is not thoroughly acted up to. The absence of nerves and the animal ferocity of the Chinaman admirably adapted him for the deliberate extermination which characterizes the suppression of a revolt, but in real courage, the abnegation of self under danger, he is woefully deficient; he will do much for pay; he will fight when his rage is roused, but his passion, violent as a typhoon, as quickly passes away. Major Cavendish thinks it not wonder that the Chinese troops refused to stand up to the Japanese when of the hundreds of thousands who since 1862 had been "drilled" in modern weapons not one in 60,000 had been taught their proper infantry, musketry and artillery practice is limited generally to handling the weapons, and instruction in the use of rifles and field guns is not thought necessary; indeed, it is opposed.

It may be fairly doubted whether the Few Major has done much to put a good name against the Chinese as lacking [illegible] qualities. If the efforts of the Government have all been against the [illegible] if the warlike spirit, it is not unnatural that the Chinese should [illegible] soldiers. Soldiers who are [illegible] to go into battle carrying fans, as he [illegible] did in the Japanese war, cannot reasonably be counted on as lacking courage. Major Cavendish has two effective men the beneficial result of discipline on apparently worthless material if the British Army not to admit these is no telling to what a degree of military proficiency a generation or two of modern progressive government might not bring the Chinese. —From the Army and Navy Journal.

PRESSURE ON MILK.

It Keeps It Sweet and Provides a New Way of Shipment.

The destruction by the process of bacteria which cause milk to sour presents the revolutionize the shipment and handling of milk. Recently the Government has been applying enormous hydraulic pressure to samples of milk that have been collectable tubes, placed in strong hollow steel cylinders, the pressure ranging from 100 pounds to 100 tons per square inch.

It was found that at ordinary temperatures milk subjected to pressure of 10 to 15 tons for as many days was stored as the test, but when the lower pressures the souring was not delayed. Pressures of 20 tons applied for one hour delayed souring for up to 100 days, and completely interfered with check samples. Pressures of 70 to 85 tons for several minutes to one hour kept milk sweet from two to seven days. When the temperature of the milk was raised to 140 or 170 degrees Fahrenheit, low pressures gave better results than corresponding pressures at ordinary temperatures.

Up to the present time it has been impossible to completely destroy all the bacteria by any degree of pressure, germ life being particularly tenacious. Germs of typhoid fever, tuberculosis and other diseases added to the milk for experimental purposes were not killed by the application of 10 to 15 tons for eight days and upward.

The work, however, gives promise of important results, and enough has already been done to warrant the belief that the shipment of milk under pressure, to keep it sweet, is practicable.—Phil. Record.

MILKING MACHINE.

It Will Extract Lacteal Fluid From Forty Cows Per Hour.

Tests have been conducted on the large dairy farms around Sycamore, Ill., recently, of milking cows by machinery, which are pronounced a success. The machine consists of an air pump worked by foot power, two pieces of rubber hose and eight suction bulbs, which surround the nipple of each of the two cows to be milked. The eight bulbs greatly resemble telephone receivers. They are nearly hollow, but in one place a soft rubber band nearly closes the opening. When the test is placed in the opening and the pump starts the suction causes the rubber lining to closely surround the parts, and the milk is carried to the pail about four feet away. It requires but three minutes to milk two cows, or at the rate of 40 cows an hour. Speed is not the only advantage, as there is little danger of the teats becoming sore, as the rubber surrounding them is soft to the milk. Cleanliness is another great advantage. It is very superior to any milking machine ever before placed upon the market. The inventor, a man of the name of Nehring, is personally demonstrating its merits.

Queen Victoria as a Proofreader.

Some time ago the "Memoirs of Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck," were promised by a London publisher. They have been delayed, it now appears, because Queen Victoria insisted upon having the proofs read to her, and suggesting changes.

Then the Duchess of York, daughter of the deceased author, sharpened her blue pencil and had a whack at the unfortunate proofs. But the book is really coming out pretty soon.

Once Emperor William of Germany officiated as proofreader. His Majesty had written a book. It was submitted to him. He advised that it be not printed and it was not printed. The plates were destroyed.

Fourteenth Century Blanc-Mange.

A modern Italian reprint of selected recipes from old Italian cook-books contains a rule for "bramagere," a curious variety of the Spanish blanc-mange. Here is a dish for twelve persons:

Four fowls, or an equal amount of rabbits, veal, or pheasants, stew thoroughly ground in great quantity, spice to taste; pound all and stew in milk. If successful, the result should be as white as snow.

A FEW JINGLES.

Love a la Tandem.

Young sylvan George of sentiment
We billed and cooed;
Two years, sweetheart, marow'or content
To be thus wooed.
The fair one, with rapture hung
And blisses fore,
While birdlings sweetest songs they sung
Of love.
To gild the air.
We courted then—we're married now;
No more we string
Fair pearls upon horizon's brow—
I curse them.
All, all is changed; with rain we soak;
We're cast and down—
Our tandem's smashed and we are broke
Ten miles from town.

And Again.

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my boyhood,
When dreams of old days bring them once more to view!
The well old bucket (when some other boy would Take hold of the saw to show what he could do);
The dingy old smokehouse, the dirt floor within it,
The cracks in the weatherboards, frequent and wide,
Where work could be kept up, when once you begin it,
In smoking the slabs of fat bacon inside—
The tempting sides of bacon, the rich, juicy bacon,
The oily greasy bacon that hung up inside!

Two Songs.

"Sing me a song," quoth she!
So he sang how for years and for years and a day
He had waited for a maid that was deaf to the wind
Of his groaning and sighing! "Ah, sir, lack-a-day,"
Said the lady that listened as sad as could be!
"Ah, me, lack-a-day," answered he!

"Sing me a song," quoth he!
So she sang how for years and for years and a day
Her head had been full of a poor lover's sighs,
For and for nights with the love in his eyes!
Oh, well might she pause, for that gentleman guy
Kissed her quick on the lips most joyous to see!
"Ah, love, thou wert blind," answered she!

The Womanly Heart.

If they be not made for me,
What care I how smart they be?

Shall my foolish heart be pined
E'en if Worth their frocks designed?
'Cause their fortune seems too high,
Shall I break with jealousy?
Jealous of the jonesm! Oh!
Jealous of such persons! No
If they be too smart for me,
What care I how smart they be!

IN A WAGON.

How a Circus Man Slept During a Season's Traveling.

"I slept in a wagon all summer," said Dolph Gassley, the well-known ticket seller of the Robinson Circus, which has made the record-drive season of travel. "Yes, sir, in a wagon. The rest of the show people slept in regular sleeping cars. Now you would think they had the best of it, wouldn't you? But they didn't. My bed was made up in the wagon in which I sold tickets. I had a cot bed from which the legs were removed. The benches had lids, and inside were boxes where the dishes and other stuff necessary were kept. In one compartment I had the bedding, in another towels and other toilet essentials. After the show at night I pulled down the cot top, got out my sheets and blankets and made up my bed. Then I turned in, after folding up my clothes. The ticket wagon is a finely constructed affair, with platform springs, and rides like a fashionable carriage. The 'razorbacks' or canvas-backs, as they are known in the show, would, when the time came to entrain, run the wagon onto a flat car and chock the wheels securely. The car had a super-structure built over like a passenger coach. The cot top was laid across the slats, of which the benches formed the sides, so there were few places to take up the motion—the car springs, the wagon springs and the elastic cot webbing. I was as snug as a bug in a rug. By leaving the windows in the rear open I got a fine breeze, and in the hottest nights was cool and comfortable. Many a morning I woke to find the car being switched to take up the motion—the car springs, the wagon springs and the elastic cot webbing. I was as snug as a bug in a rug. By leaving the windows in the rear open I got a fine breeze, and in the hottest nights was cool and comfortable. Many a morning I woke to find the car being switched to take up the motion from the depot. I slept so soundly that I never felt the wagon being detrained or driven upon the show grounds. Men would bring up water and my toilet was a matter of only a moment or two. Bathing? Why a man with a circus didn't have to bother. Those dressing tent. The folks in the sleeping car had many discomforts. Anybody that has traveled in a crowded Pullman car appreciates the fact. All want to go to bed at the same time and get up together. The aisles are crowded with clothing and impedimenta, and there is no privacy for dressing and talking that is inevitable. Oh, I tell you, I was comfortable. Some of the razorbacks had fine outfits for bunking for the night. They slept in hammocks, which were slung under the wagons from axle to axle. I never tried it, but those who did tell me that it is exceedingly comfortable. Lots of fresh air, you know. Curiously enough, they didn't get wet, and the showers don't bother the hammocks. On dusty nights they got a little of loose Mother Hearth, but not so much as you would think. Nothing could be more comfortable than my Gassley palace sleeping car, as I called my wagon bed, for one of Pullman's make. I have privacy, room and comfort, and no sleeping car can boast of this triple advantage."—Exchange.

BATTLE AT THE AQUARIUM.

Mr. Crab Was Game, But, Like Fitzsimmons, Went Out of His Class.

There were placed recently in the lobster and crab tank at the Aquarium eleven lobster, a lively lot of medium and small sizes, that have proved a strong attraction. The lobster is an interesting creature anyway, and likely to be especially so to anybody not familiar with them as they are. There will be fights between lobsters, and crabs, too, for that matter, are inclined to be scrappy as well as lively, and whether the two be of the two lobsters meeting, put up their big claws to each other like boxing gloves; and sometimes crab and lobster meet and have a little set-to.

Here, for illustration, is a stout, sizable, vigorous blue crab walking along on the floor of the tank, as seen by the glass in front. A lobster comes along the same path from the other direction, and they meet at the centre, with a few moments each can the tank looking on. Neither gives way. The crab is the smaller, but not a bit afraid. He stands with right, but falls to land, the blow falling short. Lobster flops one big claw overhand and lands on top of crab shell, right in the centre of the tank,

HELPLESS PARALYTIC.

He Walks Around With Ease in His Sleep.

Awake, Parnardus Bennett, of No. 21 Pinaing avenue, Jamaica, is a helpless paralytic.

Asleep he has full control of his limbs although he has no consciousness of it.

There is not the slightest doubt about it. Even the coolest scientist, who first saw the phenomenon and ran screaming from the house at the strange apparition of Mr. Bennett sitting by the kitchen stove fully dressed in clothes he had not worn in years, now believes.

Mrs. Bennett knows that it is true and so does her daughter Helen, although they would not believe their eyes until they all saw Mr. Bennett at the same time.

Even then the uncanniness of it made them shiver. They cannot explain it any more than the doctors, and the doctors have devoted much attention to the problem.

The family says the miracle and that is as good an explanation as has been offered. Thousands of people about Jamaica who have known Mr. Bennett for years in his active days as a mason, live in Queens, L. I., and went to live in Jamaica 50 years ago.

The stroke of paralysis which came upon him one month 10 years ago was severe. It sent him to his bed, absolutely helpless. During all this time, he has been unable to stand on his feet. The physicians said that there was no chance for his recovery.

When a man spends 20 years on a "mattress grave," he expects to end his life there. Mr. Bennett has never given up hope. His clothing was always kept in a closet near his bed, although no one dreamed that he could ever wear it again.

A few mornings ago the colored servant saw Mr. Bennett, fully dressed, sitting beside the kitchen stove. She ifted her eyes, thinking she had seen a ghost. Mrs. Bennett and her daughter were summoned.

Mrs. Bennett spoke to her husband. He did not answer. After a half hour he walked upstairs and undressed himself without assistance.

When he woke he was belutely helpless again. He became angry when they told him what he had done, declaring that they were making fun of him. When they persuaded him to try and see his limbs he could not.

The paralytic had become a somnambulist. The doctors and family are wondering what will be the next manifestation.—N. Y. World.

A BOER SPY.

The Boer a Man of Cunning as Well as Bravery.

Here is the story of a Transvaal spy that well illustrates the shrewdness and pertinacity which have made the Boer such a tactful and able enemy in the present war. It was just before the creation of the Johannesburg fortifications that the spy was ordered to report on the defences of Chatham.

While employed in collecting materials he came upon a certain secret subterranean passage connecting Fort Pitt with—somewhere. He tried hard to find out where that "somewhere" might be, but without success. At last he said it was Fort Clarence. But Fort Clarence was then—and is now, for that matter—used as a provost prison, and access to its interior was strictly prohibited.

One way of getting within the walls there was, and the spy took it. He committed some petty serious offence against military discipline, for which he was reduced to the ranks and imprisoned. As he had foreseen, he was consigned to Fort Clarence.

The provost sergeant in charge kept rabbits, which were shut up at night in a sort of underground passage that opened into the main guard house, so the other prisoners affirmed. The spy ingratiated himself with the warders, and after a week or two he was taken off duty, and promoted to the post of rabbit keeper in ordinary to the provost sergeant aforesaid. He looked carefully and conscientiously after his four-footed charges. In fact, he spent the greater part of his time cleaning out and whitewashing their underground apartment, with the result that, on his release, he was able to forward full plans and details to Pretoria.

Where Honesty Exists.

People in the small towns in Connecticut," said the travelling man, "appear to be more honest than people in New York. Not one family in ten thinks of such a thing as burglar alarms, and half of them do not even lock their back door down where I live. Five minutes after a package was deposited in the box it would be safe to count each in as long the contents would be in the possession of somebody in second hand clothing. But up in Connecticut the scheme seems to work very well, and all I can say is that it is a tribute to the general honesty of the community."—N. Y. Herald.

It has been found that an apparatus for kissing analogous with chloroform in England would not work in India, because the high temperature prevented the concentration of the chloroform vapor. A similar difficulty was proved by the fact that by placing ice in the box the animals were readily killed.

BALES OF CORK.

They Come From Spain and Are Turned Into Stoppers.

On the sunny slopes of Catalonia, in Spain, there are groves of corcho, where the trees (a species of oak—Quercus Suber) are evergreen, bearing an acorn which is not unlike our chestnut. They live well into the second century, attaining a height of 40 feet.

During the first 50 years of the tree's life the outer bark forms its vitality, becoming an encumbrance which would naturally peel off, but which is most carefully stripped one year or so earlier by cutting with curved knives into squares of three feet, the bark varying in thickness from one to three inches. The cutting is done during July and August, and after a process of drying—boiling and pressing—and heavy weights for flattening—the pieces of cork are packed in square iron-bound bales for home manufacture and shipment.

The first cuttings of the trees is coarse and inferior, as is that grown in wet, low districts, but every eight or nine years of its later life the tree yields a finer cork, which is marvellously latent at maturity, under best conditions of soil and climate, being of most, fibrous grain.

The largest cork factories in the world are those of the Armstrong Company in Lancaster and Pittsburg. But at one of the smaller ones down on busy old Pear street may be observed the passing of the sheets of cork from the bales to the quaint foreign-looking machines filled with beautifully finished stoppers in various sizes.

The machines for cutting the strips, for punching the shape and then for smoothing and tapering (this last at the rate of 45 per minute) are a great advance on the old knife-and-file hand work, and it was only after many trials that machinery could be kept sharp, as the soft substance dulls it much more than many hard material, their color differing from the other teeth in the mouth and showing that the tooth is artificial.—Pearson's Weekly.

PAPER TEETH.

The Latest Thing in Dentistry is Cheap.

Paper teeth are the latest thing in dentistry. For years some substance has been sought for which could replace the composition commonly employed for making teeth, and a fortune awaited the man who should be lucky enough to hit upon the right material. Although paper has some disadvantages, they are small compared to its many excellences, and paper teeth are likely to be the favorite for the time, at least until more perfect material is found.

Up to this time china has been used almost exclusively, but it presents so many disadvantages that dentists have already been on the lookout for some other substance which could replace it. Not only does china not resist the action of saliva and turn black, but china affects the nerves of the jaws.

People who wear false teeth often complain of suborbital neuralgia, and this is put down to the china teeth being caused by the heat or cold acting on the china or porcelain. Porcelain or china teeth are extremely liable to chip or break, and for these reasons have never been satisfactory.

The paper teeth are made of papier mache. They are subjected to tremendous pressure until it is as hard as required. Their peculiar composition renders them cheap, and the price of a set of teeth will soon be considerably owing to the new invention.

The color of the papier mache can also be made to vary, which is an important point, as no two sets of teeth are identical in color, some teeth having a strong bluish cast, while others are bluish white. In order, therefore, to obtain the right tint the colorist should carefully mix the ingredient into the mixture before the tooth is cast in order to match the other teeth exactly. It is in this particular that china teeth often fail to appear natural, their color differing from the other teeth in the mouth and showing that the tooth is artificial.—Pearson's Weekly.

Expenses of Dreyfus Defence.

One feature of the Dreyfus case has not been lost sight of—the exceedingly large sum of money which the Dreyfus family has been forced to spend. The trial of 1894 cost a very fair sum, little, chiefly, however, to lawyers' fees. The large outlay was caused by the efforts of the family to discover the real culprit after the departure of the unfortunate prisoner for Devil's Island. M. Mathieu Dreyfus employed two sets of detectives, who, unknown to each other, were watched by a set of English detectives, and the family, of course, footed all the bills for everything. This work went on for two or three years, until the discovery of the famous petit bleu designating Esterhazy as the culprit. Then came the impressing leading to the revision of the case, the lawyers and the memoirs and other documents which have been published. But the deserved compensation given M. Mornard, M. Demange and M. Labori was not the only outlay which the Dreyfus family had to support at Rennes. As they lost their suit, they had to pay all the witnesses a round sum of nearly $10,000. Thus Dreyfus has placed in the curious position of paying the carfare and the board bills of his deadliest enemies. It is estimated that to prove the prisoner more than $200,000 has been employed in this brave fight.—Paris Letter in the Chicago Record.

Doubling a Stage Mob.

It is generally admitted that one of the most realistic stage effects of modern days is that of the music hall scene in "Hoots ye Trumps." The great (apparent) depth of the auditorium shown on the stage at Drury Lane is the result of a very ingenious device. The faces representing the music hall audience is only half human—that is to say, each of the supers is "doubled" by means of a mask on his head. The eyes of the masks are visible to the audience only when reflected on a mirror at the back of the stage, so that we have a decided improvement on the old-fashioned method of multiplying a crowd or an army by means of distressingly small figures placed on a bachelor.—London Chronicle.

Costly Wardrobes.

Elizabeth Petrovna, Empress of Russia, daughter of Peter the Great, had 15,000 dresses at the time of her death. She was generally styled the Semiramis of Russia, although a more remarkable enabling substance that will quiet the most nervous person. The strength of it inhaled for few moments will dull the sense of smell and weaken the nerves until sleep is produced from sheer exhaustion. It all causes the simplifying problem of the onion, and that is a form of opium.

New Rifles.

One thousand Krag-Jorgensen rifles have been supplied to the battalions of Kentucky and Kearsarge. Both branches of the service will soon have small arms of the same calibre, thus greatly simplifying the problem of interchangeable supplies of ammunition when the army and navy are required to carry on joint operations. The Lee rifle will gradually be discarded and replaced by the other small calibre rifle. The Army Ordnance Department has been experimenting with the Krag-Jorgensen rifle for the navy, but the ammunition will be manufactured by the Ordnance Department.

DISPENSING BEER.

Amount Allowed to Brewery Employes.

The amount of beer consumed by men who work in breweries is little short of appalling, a hundred glasses a day not being considered unusual. In one of the breweries up-town there is quite a system of dispensing drinks to the employes. Every man is graded according to his capacity, and tickets are issued to the men when they come to work in the morning. Each ticket represents a glass of beer. Some men get a hundred, others 80, some 60, and so on down to the novices, who are only allowed to until their capacity is accurately judged through the system of graduation. The brewers claim that no drunkenness results from this, as the men perspire freely in the hot atmosphere, and the liquid has little effect upon them. If the men indulged in spirits it should become incapacitated for work, he is demoted to the next lower class, and this is looked upon as a keen disgrace, and a source of derision. Of course, it ultimately leads to cirrhosis of the liver," said a prominent brewer recently, "but the men are bound to drink beer, and it is better to have a system. It saps their vitality to such an extent that they become easy victims of pneumonia. We lost two workmen last month from broken legs. To an ordinary man no importance would be attached to a fractured limb, but these fellows never rallied. They just kreeled over and died."—Phil. Record.

One Cause of Red Noses.

The development of abnormal redness of the nose is a consequence of those wearing of a veil in winter. The discoloration is most pronounced at those points where the veil is most intimately applied to the face. The effect is due partly to the mechanical action of the sharp and rough texture upon a sensitive skin, and to the influence of the watery vapor that collects within the meshes and prevents evaporation. Blood is thus driven from the tip of the nose to adjacent parts, whose blood vessels in consequence become enlarged and conspicuous. The condition is aggravated if the use of the veil is persisted in on passing from a cold to a warm atmosphere. The alterations tend to become permanent the longer the veil is worn without airing, the longer its injurious action be maintained by compression, the colder the season and the greater the exposure. Sometimes the cheeks are also affected similarly. When the use of a veil is necessary it should not extend below the nasal orifice, so as to permit the escape of watery vapor. Further, it should not be too heavy, nor should it be too tight.

A New Kind of Water Mark.

Two Englishmen who have recently secured a method of producing water marks by means of electrolysis thus describe the process:

"In producing a disappearing and repeatedly revivable translucent water mark in or on manufactured paper we produce on the paper, or between it and an insulating surface, we place a layer of absorbent material, such as blotting paper, which is then moistened with water. On each material we place the paper which is to receive the water mark, and the whole is then uniformly moistened through with water. We then press, face downward, on the paper a platinum design of the water mark, and this design forms the negative electrode. We keep this negative electrode in contact with the paper for one, two, or five seconds, according to the nature of the paper and the amount of electric current used. The result on removal of the electrode is a faint but distinct transient image of the design, which gradually fades as the paper dries, and finally becomes invisible. The mark, however, can be made to appear at a time as often as the paper is immersed in water or moistened in any other way."—The Paper Mill.

Farmer's Fruit Cake.

To make a farmer's fruit cake, chop fine half a pint of dried apples; cover with half a pint of cold water and let them soak over night. The next morning add a cupful of golden syrup; simmer gently for one hour. Stand aside to cool. Beat half a pound of butter to a cream; add one cupful of granulated sugar. Dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in two tablespoonfuls of water and add it to half a cupful of buttermilk or sour milk; add this to the batter; add two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of cloves and one egg well beaten. Sift two cupfuls of flour; add a little flour a little of the dried apples, and so on, a little more flour until you have the whole well mixed. The batter must be the thickness of ordinary cake batter. Pour into a well greased cake pan and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer, in the December Ladies Home Journal.

Among the Wise.

First Young Woman—Let's see, who wrote "Pickwick Papers?"

Second Young Woman—Why—

First—Of course, I couldn't for the moment think of his name.

Second—It was the author of "Pendrift" and "Under Two Flags," you know.

First—Oh, yes, I know that.—Boston Transcript.

About Auctioneers.

The ways of auctioneers in different parts of the world vary greatly. In England and America the seller bears the auctioneer's fee, which is usually 2½ per cent. In France the purchaser bears the cost, 5 per cent being added to his purchase. In Holland it is 4 per cent, the buyer being required to pay ten per cent additional for the expense of the sale.

The English Vocabulary.

There are over 250,000 words in the English language acknowledged by the best authorities, or about 70,000 more than in the German, French, Spanish and Italian combined.

AUTOMOBILE PALACE.

Magnificent Car for Long Trips Upon Pleasant Byways.

Railroad palace cars are a familiar sight to the public, but a car of like proportions, and something similar in appearance and design that will speed along the highways at the rate of 25 miles an hour is the latest creation of Yankee skill and Yankee ingenuity. Mr. S. G. Cowell, of Philadelphia, is the inventor in that line of automobiles.

The car has a four-wheeled truck under each end, and is mounted back from the ends, thereby bringing the weight of the car so near the engine as practicable to a car 64 feet long. The wheels are forty inches high, each truck is constructed with heavy springs and fifth wheel, like a heavy circus wagon. Each truck is fitted with the heaviest and best solid rubber tire that can be produced, which will relieve the wheel and axle from heavy jars when the car is moving. A four-wheel truck at each end gives the car great stability, because if one wheel drops in a hole or depression the compensating wheel on the same side will maintain the balance of the car and also distribute the weight over a larger surface. The springs are fitted to the car better footfeel, as it were, on soft roads or climbing hills.

Mr. Coombe's manner of communicating power from the engine to the motor is where his engineering qualities show themselves. The wheels all work independently of each other, the same as automobiles, yet they are all operated by means of two heavy cables direct from the motor. The car is operated by a motorman at each end—both ends of the car are alike. The car runs either way, and around short curves and in turns the rear wheels follow in the track made as the front wheels, and the car is guided either way by the same steering apparatus used by the chief pilot at each end. The car positively will not upset on any road.

There are two staterooms in the car, furnished with private baths. The bath tubs are let down in this space, and are even with the under side of the floor, a model of the floor being constructed in corner of the butler's pantry is fitted with every modern culinary device. Some of the space of the car is divided off with partitions like folding blinds, making it possible to throw two or three rooms into one. The car is pointed at either end to minimize atmosphere resistance. The car cannot upset, for it can be seen that material and baggage can be piled on the ground, like ballast in the bottom of a ship.

"I represented this undertaking to Mr. Roswell P. Flower 12 years ago," said Mr. Cowell, "when I called at Watertown, but the idea was too advanced then.—Cin. Enquirer.

USE OF DOGS IN WAR.

Result of the Experiments Made By the German Army.

The use of dogs in war dates back to the days of Napoleon, but the modern idea of training them for special military service has been in 1886 by Germans and Belgians. For 12 years each battalion of German jagers has had eight or ten dogs assigned to it for this training. The two or three dogs with each company are placed under the care of a noncommissioned officer and two men, and each regiment has an officer detailed to superintend their instruction.

The dog is to be used for various special duties, such as carrying information and security or scouting on marches and reconnoissances and in patrol, sentinel duty with the outposts, and in battle. For the latter duties, as carriers of supplies and ammunition on the battlefield, and to hunt up the wounded after battle.

To test the results thus far obtained a number of dogs belonging to various regiments were assembled at Oels, in Prussian Silesia, in last July for trial. There were sixteen dogs in all, six of them under two years old. They were tried on the following points: Conduct on a march during which they had to master, going from master to patrol, following master by scent alone, and lying down. Next they were tested as to finding the dog with his master at an outpost giving only a limited view and then causing two jagers (in disguise) to advance from behind cover from a point about 400 yards distant. The second and third points were tested by sending four dogs at once from the outpost (or patrol), back again to the outpost (or patrol), back to the outpost (or patrol), the latter having meanwhile changed its position.

The various points were given values, and one of the dogs received 96 out of a possible 100. The dogs were of different breeds and crosses. Four had been bull and shepherd dogs. The average rate of travel of the dogs as messengers was about 9½ miles an hour.—N. Y. Sun.

Our Several Postal Schedules.

It is pointed out that at the present time the United States and Territories and Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila are afflicted with five separate and different postal schedules. These are (1) the domestic American system, which is applied to the mainland of the Porto Rican system, which is the same as our own for letters, but with a higher rate for fourth-class matter; (3) the Hawaiian system, the Hawaiian rates within the islands and foreign rates with the United States; (4) the Cuban system, which is a modification of the old Spanish system in the interior and foreign rates between the island and the United States; (5) the Philippine system, which is the same as the Spanish left it, but with domestic letter, newspaper and parcel rates between Manila and the United States. There are a great many people, including not a few American business men, who would urgently demand Congress take some measures to unify and harmonize these various systems in some way.—The Manufacturer.

Immense Wooden Building.

The Parliament building in Wellington, New Zealand, is the largest wooden structure in the world. In Wellington and some other New Zealand towns almost every house is constructed of wood. Even churches and important business premises are built of the same material.

A FAMOUS REGIMENT.

The First Tennessee Has a Long and Glorious History.

Tennessee is naturally proud of itself for several things, but for nothing more than its fighting men. Given a cause that appeals to its heart, and the fighting strength rises almost as one man. In the time of the Mexican war the state raised, for 3,000 volunteers, and promptly offered 30,000. It was the same way in the civil war—more than one county sent more men to fight than it had to vote. Proportionately to population, it gave a larger contingent to both armies than any other state.

One Tennessee regiment—the 1st—has been making history this hundred years and more. It was organized and commanded by John Sevier, when the state was known as "Franklin County" of North Carolina. Sevier led it over the mountains, when Revolutionary fortunes were at the lowest ebb, to fall upon Tarleton at King's Mountain, and turn a wavering fight into victory. Thirty years later, as a later Andrew Jackson was to Colonel through the bloody Indian wars that broke the power of Choctaws, Creeks and Cherokees. A little later Gen. Andrew Jackson posted his old regiment in the front rank of the battle of New Orleans, where, side by side with the hunters of Kentucky its unerring rifles mowed down the red coats like grass.

Afterward the 1st Tennessee slept secure its laurels while its sons were grubbing of war in the Southwest. Many of its original members had gone to Texas, but they had left kinsmen in plenty to fill the ranks afresh. The renewed 1st Tennessee went to the help of "Old Rough and Ready," as Gen. Zachary Taylor was affectionately called, and soon showed that it meant to live up to its reputation. At Monterey, a walled and fortified town which Taylor was forced to carry by assault, the 1st and the few that which set the first American flag triumphantly in the breach—and what is very much more to the military purpose—kept it there until it was carried further forward.

All through Mexico it went, winning golden opinions from even the staunch and stately regular army men. When it came home, after the old fashion, it kept up a sort of skeleton organization. A skeleton the civil war found it. Into it companies quickly took on life and strength. A state of war supervened late in April; in May Tennessee seceded; in June the 1st Tennessee, oddly brigaded with the 7th and 14th Regiments of Virginia, was where the Tennessee brigade was assigned to Ive's corps, that operating in West Virginia.

The next winter Lee took command in front of Richmond and the Tennessee brigade found itself in Jackson's "foot cavalry." It stayed with him until his death, bearing itself soldierly through all his fighting, and more than once winning special mention for desperate and distinguished daring. At Gettysburg it was with Pickett's charging column, losing more than half its numbers in killed, wounded and prisoners.

"The canteen of a calm world and a long peace" even could not destroy the fighting edge in the famous old 1st Regiment. When the Spanish war came on, sons and grandsons, and great-grandsons of 1st Regiment men went joyously into its ranks. They almost pegged to be sent to Cuba. The powers that be sent it to Cuba, and them to the Philippines instead. But it was October, 1898, before they embarked, and they grumbled mightily that the fighting was all over.

Since events have proved that they can take their regiment has lived up to its traditions. The regimental historian has an autograph letter from Admiral Dewey, saying:

"I am too happy to have an opportunity of expressing my appreciation of this Tennessee regiment. Its splendid work in the Philippines in actual warfare, and of its late Colonel."

Gen. Otis adds:

"Nothing can be said of it the 1st Tennessee regiment which is not commendatory of it as a military organization. Next to its admirable fighting qualities, what has impressed me most forcibly is the universal good feeling and close comradeship which exists between officers and men, and the regard which the enlisted men have for their officers, who look carefully after their wants. As an admirable fighting machine, it has shown its excellence, both here and at Iloilo."

The Soldier and the Act Hill.

Only the other day the Kansas volunteers got under a fire so heavy that, for the protection of the rank and file, orders were given to lie down. One unfortunate soldier flopped squarely into an ant-hill. Thousands of the little pests swarmed angrily over him biting with the peculiar penetrating power of ants. For a second the soldier jumped up, swearing and almost screaming with the pain.

"Lie down," shouted the captain.

"Blankety-blank, captain, I can't!" protested the poor fellow.

"Lie down, I tell you," insis

The Inevitable Has Come.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company yesterday filed with the City Clerk of Elizabeth its acceptance of the ordinance enacted by the City Council as a result of the application for the right to extend the trolley line running from Plainfield into that city over Jersey avenue.

This formal action on the part of the Elizabeth trolley syndicate was inevitable—if the concern was to successfully consummate the plans that it has undertaken in providing transit between the various towns of Union county, and also by transfer to connecting lines to several other New Jersey communities. The negotiations leading up to this final action yesterday have been going on for several weeks. Throughout the consideration of the franchise matter the majority of the Elizabeth Council have been honest and firm in their purpose to protect the interests of the city, and at the same time exact benefits from the company which would be commensurate with the valuable rights petitioned for. In arriving at a fair idea of what was just and proper for the city—holding in view, too, the probable abilities of the company to comply with the terms decided upon—the Council exhibited an admirable grasp of the situation that confronted it. The result is that Elizabeth has secured terms from the trolley company that is eminently satisfactory in every detail.

On the other hand, however, the petitioning company has made a veritable ass of itself—in fact, written itself down as the biggest bluff on earth, in the truth of whose utterances in the future there can be no confidence. At the outset they secured the proposed terms determined by the Council, and declared with all the power and vehemence at their command that they would not, because they could not, accept the stipulations fixed in the ordinance. They proclaimed that it would bankrupt them to do so. Following these fallacious assertions, the company exercised all its known arts to turn public sentiment into their favor by evolving several schemes which it was alleged were such as would allow them to act independently of the city and therefore cut off all the benefits that might come from a public franchise such as they asked for. Such talk, events have proven, was all bosh, as the sensible members of the City Council realized at the outset.

Now that the trolley company has done the only thing it could do—if it was to succeed—it is a matter for congratulation on all sides that Elizabeth has a set of officials who have a lively appreciation of the value of public rights, and were insistent on safeguarding them.

Serious View of Scotch Plains Reform

Before the advent of Rev. Gideon M. Shott into Scotch Plains, that community was supposed to be quintessence of all that was quiet, prosaic and good. But no sooner had this aggressive parson become installed in his pastorate, than, figuratively speaking the "fur began to fly." His bent of action was to suppress the liquor traffic. At first the crusade of Rev. Mr. Shott was looked upon as merely a ministerial diversion by which the crusader was able to work off his surplus energy, but which, it was argued, would gradually lessen and finally end in nothing. This is where the opponents of Rev. Mr. Shott counted without their host; the more time that passes the more energetic he is becoming in his reform efforts. Thus it is that the upheaval that is taking place in the heretofore contented community has aroused more than passing interest, and all that is said and written about it now is in a more serious vein than was the case at the outset of the agitation. Along this line the Newark News says editorially:

A good many of the people of the pleasant little village of Scotch Plains in Union county have been disturbed of late by the fervor which has been materially damaged because of a prohibition of untrolled zeal on the part of one of its local pastors. Scotch Plains has two or three licensed saloons, and while it seems to have thought the case try, these have considerably and continuously lowered the Sunday list. It does not appear that there has ever been any extraordinary amount of disorder resulting from the Sunday sale of liquor, as may be inferred from the fact that the town has maintained a policeman now and then, but town has just woken up to give a preacher with a tendency toward sensationalism an excuse for a series of sermons full of virtuous zeal and rhetoric. His utterances were published far and wide, and created the impression that Scotch Plains was just a degree worse than the Outer Isles and Borneo. When it is remembered that reverend Shott is within the memory of all living persons the most unsophisticated class of residents, the jury that it may have sustained for the press by the influence exerted can well be imagined.

The transgression seems not never to be lived by such a course of procedure, which is marked by subtlety and all the earmarks of the harmlessness of the dove.

A Decided Change of Opinion.

When the Elizabeth Journal "goes back" on any corporation concern or movement which it has been friendly to, it can be accepted as an assured fact that there are good and sufficient reasons for its change of mind. Ever since the negotiations were commenced between the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company and the City Council of Elizabeth for the granting of a trolley franchise, up to the time the Company accepted the conditions determined by the Council, the Journal was the champion of the corporation in every move it made. It is very significant, therefore that the Journal should have reversed its position in this respect. The Journal can not now say anything too bitter of the double dealing and trickery of the trolley syndicate that has been playing fast and loose with such a good friend as that paper has been to it. In speaking of the indecency of the company in accepting the franchise, the Journal says:

So far as is known at this writing not a single member of the City Council expected the company to accept the franchise. But the announcement of the action of the City Council; his announcement that his company will draw its application; his abrupt leaving the City of Mexico with his associates; his subsequent pub lished statement that under no circumstances would his company accept the ordinance; the purchase of a private right of way, were all parts of a gigantic scheme to force the hands of the Council, perhaps, at least trolley interests. Our purpose may have been to compel the Council to buy the new line and make the franchise worth while for the company to accept.

The ordinance has been accepted, however, and if the road is built and put in operation the city is to be congratulated. But the methods of the company in which the matter of the franchise was manipulated will ever be held in our offices, in clubs and in every section of the city, perhaps, as at least trolley interests. Our purpose may have been to compel the Council to buy the new line and make the franchise worth while for the company to accept.

The ordinance has been accepted, however, and if the road is built and put in operation the city is to be congratulated. Our purpose may have been to compel the Council to buy the new line and make the franchise worth while for the company to accept.

The Journal's position now gives added force and truth to the opinion held throughout the negotiations by The Daily Press—that the trolley syndicate was conducting a fight based solely upon a stupendous bluff which would eventually result exactly as it has.

Publicity Will Do It.

That idea of Senator Reed to enact a law to compel the publication of real estate assessments in the newspapers of the various communities of the State, in order to secure more equitable taxation, is a good one. The time light of publicity will do more towards breaking up the pernicious partiality shown in assessing valuations than any other process that can be brought into play. Publicity has unearthed more scandals and caused more reforms than any other medium known to civilization.

As long assessors can do their work in the dark, the general public being kept in ignorance of their decisions, so long will inequitable and unfair assessments be made. No community is free from the ill effects of this condition today, but let the assessments be published in cold type in the localities of which they apply, and there will be such an equitable adjustment of assessments among the rich and the poor, the high and the low, that it will almost take away the breath of some people who will wonder how on the earth the old state of affairs ever existed so long.

In speaking of the proposed legislation in this direction, Senator Reed says:

"The bill will be brief and a very simple one. It will provide for the publication in the local newspapers of all the assessments on real estate made by the city and township assessors. This means that each property owner can see at what figure his neighbor is assessed, and if there should be any discrepancy or favoritism the fact will be at once apparent, and the solution of the vexed question of equal taxation will work itself out in its own and in a natural way through the medium of protest where the assessments have been unjust or unfair."

Pleasant Family Reunion.

Among the many happy family gatherings Christmas Day, none was probably more enjoyable than that of the reunion of the family of Mrs. Mary L. Force, who is nearing her 85th birthday, at her home, 203 Watchung avenue, generously tendered her by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Brownell, with whom Mrs. Force resides. The eldest and youngest living children, (Mrs. L. K. Prescott, of Brooklyn, and A. L. Force, of Plainfield), were present, as were also Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter and the two widowed daughters-in-law, Mrs. James H. Force and Mrs. Wm. L. Force. The day was made the more happy by the exchange of gifts, followed by a bountiful turkey dinner and all the accessories. The aged mother and all present thoroughly enjoyed the day and hospitable jolly home of Mr. and Mrs. Brownell, and were sorry to say "good night" late in the evening.

BACHELORS BEAR OFF THE BOWLING HONORS

Won Second Match From the Married Men.

ON PARK CLUB ALLEYS.

SINGLE MEN LED IN EVERY FRAME EXCEPT FIRST.

The first of the series of Bachelor-Benedict Matches on the Alleys of the Park Club was Rolled Saturday Night—Van Buren was High Man—The Bachelors Won by Twenty-six Pins.

The Bachelors are in power now. They are, at least, as far as the bowling alleys of the Park Club are concerned. Saturday night they demonstrated for the second time their superiority on the club alleys by winning the second of the famous Bachelor-Benedict matches by a majority of twenty-six pins. The Benedicts are heart-broken for it is the first time since the series of matches were inaugurated that such a thing happened. Think of it, two straight.

It was all right for the first frame. While neither side did anything phenomenal, it was an even thing, the Benedicts only leading by a single pin. In the second frame something happened. The pins seemed in league with the single men. They tumbled down at the slightest excuse and the result was a total of fifty-seven pins upon the frame was over. After that the Bachelors were never headed.

At the close of the fourth frame the leaders were at the front by a majority of 73 pins. Then the married men made a united effort to retrieve their lost honor. It was a brave attempt, but it didn't do any good. A slump was taken off the lead every frame until, in the eighth, there were only ten pins between the teams. It was no use. The Bachelors got together and made it 21 pins in the ninth and 30 on the winning, when the Benedicts failed entirely to do anything and lost the opportunity to win out at the finish.

There were eight men on each team instead of ten as at previous contests. Of the Benedicts, J. H. Howell failed to sustain the reputation he made in the first match. H. D. Hibbard, of the club team, was up against it. He had six splits, which did all sorts of things to his score.

In the Bachelor contingent Charles S. Cook forgot his usual fine line into consideration, and four fouls were called on him before he remembered it. A. L. C. Marsh described all sorts of fantastic curves, but the gutters received them rather than the head pin and his score suffered as well.

Lauren H. VanBuren was a steady anchor for his team and made high score for the evening.

The individual scores were as follows:

TO ASSESS BENEFITS.

Judge Vail Appoints Commissioners in Connection With Street Improvements.

In the Union County Court of Common Pleas in Elizabeth Saturday Judge Vail appointed Andrew J. Garrett, William M. Sandford and John T. Fritts, all of Plainfield, as commissioners to estimate and assess benefits for permanent street improvements in this city in pursuance of chapter 200 of the laws of 1899. The above commissioners will at once get to work assessing benefits for the macadamizing of Park street, North street, Franklin place, East Ninth street, West Fourth street and West Third street.

IN HONOR OF MISSES MITCHELL.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Maynard Entertained Friends in a Pleasant Way.

In honor of the Misses Maude E. and Minnie Mitchell, daughters of Rev. J. W. Mitchell, who are engaged in teaching school in Asbury Park, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Maynard, of North avenue, tendered a reception to a number of friends Monday. The house was very prettily decorated in green and pink. Besides the pleasant feature of sociability that such an entertainment brings about, there was a number of selections played on a phonograph that had been provided by the host. Refreshments were also served.

Those present included Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell, Mrs. Abbie Peters, Mrs. Pierson, Misses Nellie and Cora Pierson, Mrs. Henry Kingsley, Harry Kingsley, Isaac Fields, Miss Ida Mitchell, Franklin Kelso, Miss Belle Flanigan, Fred White and Rev. and Mrs. Cooper.

BOYS' CLUB NOT MISSED.

OLD SANTA PAID HIS VISIT THERE SATURDAY NIGHT.

A Clever Entertainment Was Arranged and Carried Out by the Lively Young Members of the Club—Well Attended.

One of the institutions of which the citizens of Plainfield should be proud is the Boys' Club, the headquarters of which are on Sycamore street. At this club, boys of all conditions in life are taught many useful things, notably those pertaining to the industries of life. The Boys' Club is a unique organization whose membership is composed of a class of boys who would be about the streets at night and consequently liable to fall into evil habits. The boys—about 85—take much interest in the club's affairs and are a wide awake set. Many of them are gathered from the ranks of the newsboys, messengers, bootblacks, etc.

That the boys take an interest in the club was shown Saturday evening when they gave a novel entertainment in the gymnasium at the club house, which had been handsomely and artistically decorated by their own efforts with a profusion of evergreen wreathes, stars, etc. The performance, which was under the management of Olaf Saugstad, the very efficient superintendent, was an impromptu vaudeville affair. Those who assisted in making the entertainment a success were Hugh Gray, who rendered a violin solo very cleverly; Clarence and Hugh Gray, musical sketch artists; Jack Varden in a character song.

One of the best things in the way of the gymnastic exercise was given by Bert Hansen, Daily Press carrier, whose acrobatic feats would do credit to a professional athlete. Clarence Pope and Thomas Kelly also showed some clever work on the trapezes.

An amusing monologue was given by Clarence Pope, who read several humorous items from the Daily Press that savored of originality and kept the audience, as well as the newsboys, in good humor.

During an intermission, W. B. Wadsworth, the president of the Boys' Club, made a brief address in which he told of the good work accomplished by the Club and admonished the boys to resolve to begin the New Year in the right path.

After the vaudeville performance, Santa Claus made his appearance in the person of Johnny Berry and distributed the boys' stockings, which contained peanuts, candy and pop corn. A basket of apples was also passed among the boys.

Among those who received gifts from Santa Claus was President Wadsworth, who was called forward and handed a long envelope which was found to contain 16 letters from as many boys, all of whom thanked him for his kindness to them and wishing him a Happy New Year. Mr. Wadsworth values the collection highly.

At the close of the entertainment three cheers were given by the boys for Supt. Saugstad.

The entertainment was attended by a number of ladies and gentlemen who appeared to enjoy it quite as much as did the boys.

GROCERY BUSINESS SOLD.

J. F. MacDonald Retires—He is Succeeded by J. F. Mattingly.

The old-established grocery business of J. Fred MacDonald, established 1856, was sold Monday to J. F. Mattingly, of Westfield, for several years in the grocery business on Second avenue, New York. He recently moved to Westfield on account of his health, and embarked in the business there. He recently sold his Westfield business to his brother. He will remove his family to Plainfield in a little while. The present manager of the store, Wilbur F. Henderson, will be retained, as will also Miss Nellie Colohan, bookkeeper. The present force of clerks will also be retained by Mr. Mattingly, namely Jerry Moore, Henry Wyman and James Bonnett. Mr. MacDonald will retire from business entirely and take a much needed rest which has been advised by his physician.

Christmas Present from the Philippines.

Mrs. John Lloyd, of 173 North avenue, received a Christmas present that she prizes very highly. It was from her brother, Harry S. Derringer, a private in Co. M., 14th U. S. Infantry, now doing active duty in the Philippines. It was in the form of a United States flag worked in colored silks on a background of black silk. The work was done by a native Filipino woman, and is a work of art. On the upper part of the black background is an inscription worked in red silk letters, "Merry Christmas to Sister Ethel from Harry S. Derringer, Co. M., 14th U. S. Infantry." The present was mailed from Manila November 14th, and reached Mrs. Lloyd December 27th.

Song Service at Hospital.

The Christian Endeavorers of this city held a song service at the Multnomah hospital Monday afternoon. It was much enjoyed by the patients. There were solos by Horace J. Martin and Miss Cornell. Miss Quick rendered a quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Miss Florence Hawkins and David Runyon sang several selections.

STOP SMOKING

THEIR SILVER WEDDING.

MR. AND MRS. G. Q. DOLLIVER MARRIED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

The Event Celebrated in a Fitting Manner Last Night by a Gathering of Friends at Their Home Last Evening.

One of the most pleasant affairs of the winter season was that of last Monday when Mr. and Mrs. Garret Q. Dolliver, of 82 Fairview avenue, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. Surrounded by a large number of relatives and friends, all of whom wished the bride and groom many happy returns of the day, the event was marked by sociability that was truly enjoyable. The home was prettily decorated with reposes of Christmas greens, and the best effect was secured through its artistic arrangement.

During the evening Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, where Mr. and Mrs. Dolliver are members, addressed a few words of congratulations to the happy couple, and then all present joined in singing heartily, "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

The silver gifts left by those in attendance were many and very beautiful, one being from Rev. Dodge Iowa, sent by Rev. James F. Dolliver, uncle of the groom and father of Congressman J. F. Dolliver. Unknown friends sent by express a small wooden house filled with fancy useful articles for housekeeping, which caused quite a little merriment. The joke is supposed to be the work of some of Mr Dolliver's numerous railroad friends.

One of the guests, who seemed almost as young as the average person present, was Mr. Dolliver's aunt, Mrs. Eliza Quick, of Somerville, who is nearly 86 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolliver were married at Boyceville, Somerset county, December 29 th, 1874, the bride being Miss Kate S. Van Zandt. Their only child is Charles M. Dolliver, a bright young law student. Mr. Dolliver is one of the Central Railroad Company's oldest employes, being in charge of their "store house" at Somerville. G. E. Hungerford, of Roselle, superintendent of stores, with an office in the Jersey City depot, accompanied by Mrs. Hungerford, was present.

While everyone was enjoying the genuine hospitality of the bride and groom, and exchanging greetings, refreshments were served about 10 30 o'clock, and it was nearly midnight when good nights were said and the guests departed, leaving their best wishes with the bride and groom.

COLLEGE BOYS HEARD.

Concert Given by Syracuse University Glee and Mandolin Clubs Last Night Was Successful.

The first of the college glee and instrumental clubs to visit the city were the Syracuse University Glee and Mandolin Clubs, who gave a concert in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last Friday. The affair was given under the auspices of the Young Men's Class and was well attended.

The Syracuse University boys are not strangers in Plainfield. Their concert last night was even above the average set at their previous entertainment.

The work of the glee club was excellent and showed careful training by Mr. Wells, the leader. Mr. Hockenberry, the bass soloist, was possessed of a particularly fine voice.

The singing of the quartette was not up to the standard set by the rest. The mandolin club did very well, the members playing in good time and with spirit.

Santa Claus Didn't Miss Them.

On Thursday evening the annual Christmas entertainment was held at the Church of the Heavenly Rest under the auspices of the Sunday school, and the attendance was the largest in the history of the church. The program was consisted of recitations and a play by members of the school, all of which were given in a creditable manner. Harry Fralegh impersonated Santa Claus and distributed handsome gifts to the scholars. Superintendent W. W. Moore was remembered handsomely and was presented with a silver mounted umbrella by the teach-rs, while the trustees gave him a valuable book.

Several Sunday-schools Were Visited Thursday.

ENTERTAINING PROGRAMS

ELABORATE EFFORTS AT TRINITY AND THE FIRST BAPTIST.

At the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church Hon. Roger F. Murray impersonated the Character of Santa Claus in a Jolly Manner—Presents Were Distributed to the Scholars.

The little folks that compose the membership of the primary department of the First Baptist church enjoyed their annual Christmas entertainment in the Sunday-school room Thursday. There was a large attendance and many friends were present to see the young folks have a good time. Mrs. Fowelson, superintendent of the department, was in charge and was assisted by the teachers. The room was very appropriately decorated for the event and everything possible was done for the enjoyment of those present.

The exercises opened with a song by the school entitled "Glory to the Father," after which Russell Miller, a bright little chap, gave a Scripture recitation. After the school recited the Lord's Prayer, Herbert Stokes recited "Gifts for Jesus." The school then sang "Christ Was Once a Little Baby." This was followed with a recitation entitled "The Christmas Tree," by Hazel Morrison, Corrine Tennyson, Bessie Carson, Jessie Clawson, Miriam Hall. Another recitation was given by Alice Drake, entitled "What the Stockings Said." Other recitations were given by Wallace Pearce, Alice Drake, Marguerite Lee, and "Gifts to Santa Claus," was recited by Della French. A feature was a selection, entitled "Nightgown Chorus," by Alice Drake, Della French, Bessie Carson, Corrine Tennyson and Miriam Hall.

After the above there was an invitation when Mrs. Santa Claus, in the person of Mrs. Miller, appeared with the children and entertained them for awhile. Gifts were then distributed among the children, after which the celebration came to a close.

The Sunday-school room of the First Baptist church was not able to accommodate all who desired to attend and witness the annual Christmas entertainment Thursday, and many were obliged to stand up during the entire performance. The affair was a very elaborate one and was in charge of a special committee, of which William O. Chapman was the chairman.

The programme consisted of Christmas songs of several nations, and each one was represented by a leader and a number of young people, who were costumed according to the country they represented. A stage was arranged in a tasteful manner and each scene was somewhat different. The programme was interesting from the fact that it gave those present an idea of the Christmas songs of other countries, and they were well rendered. The exercises opened with an appropriate recitation by Miss Etta Sewell, who followed the various songs. With each country there was a leader and several persons assisting to carry out the idea. The countries represented and the leaders were as follows: Germany, Miss Cairns; Russia, Miss French; Japan; Mrs. G. H. Batchelor; England, Mrs W. O. Chapman; American, Miss Shreve. The Negro race was represented by Mrs. Flanders and her assistants. During the evening the following selections were sung: Chorus, "Letter to Santa Claus;" "Night Gown Chorus;" "Christmas Morning" and "Good Night Chorus."

After the above was concluded there was the distribution of candy and other gifts to the teachers and scholars.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

The Christmas festival for Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school was held held Thursday afternoon and evening. The afternoon was given over to the primary department, which is under the able superintendency of Mrs. J. M. Tier, and the little folks were given a genuine Christmas party from 2:45 to 5 o'clock. The interesting party of the entertainment was the lunch and a fine show by W. H. Olmstead. Besides this there were several recitations. Little Elsie Tier recited sweetly "Christmas Eve Thoughts" Rowland Brighton told in a quaint way about a "Letter From Santa," while pretty Bessie Randall, dressed as a boy, recited Jim Reilly's "Jess for Christmas," in such a clever manner that she pleased the scholars as well as the large number of the parents and friends who were present. Then Miss Elma Bohan sang a song in good voice when the Punch and Judy show began. Before the refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were served, Mrs. Tier expressed her thanks to the teachers of the primary department for their unsworn kindness that had been displayed toward her and the interest shown in the Sunday school work. She also said a few kind words to the scholars. Before leaving for their homes the children were presented with boxes of candy. The affair was greatly enjoyed by the little folks, who were given full scope.

In the evening the older members gathered in the Sunday school room which was packed to the doors, where they were entertained by F O. Bristol, who gave humorous recitations and character sketches, and with "Automobile Wax Works," in which the following assumed the characters:

Flasher.....Chauncey F. Cobbey
Miss Flasher.....
Miss Sylvia Flasher.....
Mrs. Wilbur's Son.....
Old Beau.....
Lady.....
Gent.....
Wife.....
Rich Man.....
Poor Man.....
Sporting Gent.....
Soldier, Gent.....

Sup. E. E. Gump made a brief address and the scholars were then given boxes of candy. There was a large attendance and the affair was highly creditable to all who assisted in making it so.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

The Sunday-school of Holy Cross Episcopal church held its Christmas festival last Thursday in the parish house, where a large tree was decorated and exhibited to the delight of the children. The tree contained an abundance of fruit of choice quality in the shape of gifts for the children. Previous to the distribution of gifts, evening service was held in the church with full vested choir. The children occupied seats in the centre of the church, each class carrying banners and being accompanied by its teacher The effect was very pretty.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

The Christmas festival of the Sunday-school of the Grace P. E. church was held last Thursday. A service was held in the church, Rev E M Rodman, the rector, making an address. He told of a beautiful picture he discovered at Nazareth, Palestine, and had it photographed. The photograph was reproduced on the cover of the order of service.

After the service the Sunday-school marched into the parish house, where "Santa Claus," in the person of Van Wyck Brooks, made his appearance and distributed gifts among the members of the school.

WARREN CHAPEL.

The Sunday school of Warren chapel held its Christmas festival Wednesday afternoon and evening In the afternoon, there was an entertainment of songs and recitations for the little people. In the evening a vlatscope was the principal attraction. The chapel was crowded. Refreshments were served at the close of the entertainment.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Children's Festival in St. Stephen's church, which was held Thursday afternoon, proved a success. The service began at 4:15 o'clock, when the church was filled by the scholars of the Sunday-school and members of the parish. One grand feature was the singing of four carols, which, under the direction of Mrs. Buckley, the organist, were well and heartily rendered. Miss Pauline Buckley, the young daughter of the organist, acquitted herself most admirably at the organ accompanying the voices with a skill worthy of a much older performer. The Christmas tree was a pretty sight with its ornamentation and lighted candles, loaded with presents for one and all and every eye was bright and expectant that looked upon it. All were remembered with some token, and the little ones went away after the service, laden with gifts, and feeling that their church was indeed another loving home. The Rector, Rev. S. S. Simpson, gave a brief address, in which he alluded to the Advent meeting made by the Sunday-school for the Bishop's building fund, and the gifts presented by the children to the children of the Oneida Mission. He told them that this was carrying out the prophecy of the Blessed Lord, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethern, ye have done it unto me." To Mrs. S. S. Guion, the superintendent; Mrs. Hill, Mrs Beal and Miss Clark, Miss Florence Beal and C. B. Morgan, are due the distributed most of the success attending this incident in the history of St. Stephen's church. This festival is always held on the Feast of the Holy Innocents(unless that day occurs on a Friday, which is always a Fast,) which day is most appropriate for the little ones, innocent and pure.

CRESCENT AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN.

The moving pictures of the vlatoscope were the attraction at the Christmas entertainment at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. An entertainment was given yesterday afternoon for the members of the primary and intermediate departments. After the entertainment Santa Claus appeared and won the hearts of the young people. Had the lobbyists from the State capital been there they would have discovered a familiar face in Santa Claus, Former Assemblyman Roger F Murray. He made a very successful one. Gifts were distributed among the children.

In the evening the same entertainment was repeated for the benefit of the older members of the school. Refreshments and a social hour followed.

'99 COUNCIL IS BUT MUNICIPAL HISTORY.

Adjourned Sine Die After Meeting Held Thursday.

REPORT ON GAS COMPANY

RECOMMEND THAT FRANCHISE BE GRANTED BY NEXT COUNCIL.

To be Surrounded by Wire Cautions, One of which is that City Offices are to be Lighted Free—Final Action Referred to Next Common Council—No Progress on Municipal Ownership Water Supply.

The last meeting of the Common Council for 1899 held Thursday was attended by all the members except Messrs. Leirke and Homan, and was taken up with the transaction of business tending to close the affairs of the city up for the year, but that did not require a great deal of time.

The first business was that of receiving the bids for the $12 000 bonds for street improvements. The City National Bank was the only bidder. Its bid offer was 5 per cent and it was accepted. Then followed the receipt of the annual reports of Chief Grant, Chief Doane, City Judge Runyon, City Treasurer Arnold, City Collector Martin Inspector of Buildings Doane and Street Commissioner Gavett. They were simply received and filed. The reports have been given from time to time, hence there is no need of publishing them at this time.

Mr. Cornell reported on the petition from the Loyal Temperance Legion asking for a subscription for the public drinking fountain, and on his motion the matter was referred to the 1900 Council. Another matter of great importance, referred to next year's Council, is that regarding the application of the People's Gas Company for a franchise to locate a plant and sell gas in the city.

Regarding this matter Mr. Tolley reported for the lights and trees committee. The report was of special significance owing to the fact that it was accompanied by a number of recommendations, among which were that a franchise should be granted under favorable considerations and with clear and enforceable conditions as regards the opening of streets It is suggested that for a term of at least five years the company shall agree not to sell out or assign, and for the faithful performance of this a bond should be given so that the price of gas shall not be raised or made higher It is also suggested that not more than 200 yards of a street shall not be opened at one time, without special permission, and special provisions should be made regarding the relaying of macadam. In the third place it is suggested that the company shall lay pipes where they will be the most advantageous to the city, that is in the centre or side of a street, and that the company should give two weeks notice in opening a street, so that the city may have an opportunity to change the time if necessary. It is believed by the committee that a time should be fixed for the completion of the work, and that the city should have an option on the plant to buy it on equitable terms.

The report states that the question of charging a percentage on gross receipts was discussed, but no decision was reached and that is left open for further discussion. The last recommendation is that the company shall agree to furnish the city buildings with free gas. With these recommendations the report and whole matter is referred to next year's Council for consideration.

Another important matter brought up was that referring to the purchase of the plant of the Plainfield Water Supply Company. Mr. Hetfield reported on this matter and stated that the committee had been unable to secure from the water company any price for the plant, and it had referred the matter to the corporation counsel. They also suggested that the matter be turned over to next year's Council for further consideration.

Mr. Mellick reported on the request of John Morton for a $500 reduction from his taxes on the ground that he is an exempt fireman. It was decided that he should have appeared before the commissioners of appeal, and inasmuch as he did not the committee reported adversely in the matter.

Another matter was brought up by Mr. Mellick It was that of three causes referred to the committee by Lawyer W. S Angleman, representing Experience Moe, Frank Hasbrouck and Alex Jefferies, all of whom wanted an adjustment of their taxes under the Martin Act. The committee reported favorably on the request of Alex. Jefferies, of Sherman avenue, and moved that the tax of $116 be marked as "assessed by error." The other two cases were reported adversely. The committee moved that Elizabeth D. Vail, of La Grande avenue, be allowed an assessment of $114 23, as it was "assessed by error."

One very important matter was introduced by Mr. Van Ederwerden. It was in reference to the sale of property under the Martin Act, and he offered a resolution to the effect that inasmuch as six months had expired, that the collector is required by law to give four weeks notice to sell such property. The resolution provided that the sale take place on some date between January 25 h and February 15 h, 1900.

Mr. Hetfield took exception to this move and suggested that the matter be referred to next year's Council. Mr Barrows in opposition said that if we close up the affairs of the present Council and be vexed that the action be taken as the matter had already been delayed long enough.

The Council then took a recess for a half hour to allow the City Clerk to write the minutes of the meeting, after which they were approved by the members. The Council then adjourned sine die and the Common Council for 1899 passed into history.

MUSIC AND RECEPTION.

Pleasant Affair Given to the Members of the Congregational Church Thursday Night.

A chamber music concert and reception at the Congregational church last Thursday was one the delightful events of the holiday week. It was given under the auspices of the Women's Association and was very largely attended by the members of the congregation and a number of their friends.

The concert was given by a string quartette, composed of Leonard Waldo, Ph. D., cello; Isaac Fullerton Waldo, viola; his daughters, the Misses Edith and Dorothy Waldo, violins. The programme, as published in yesterday's Press, was followed with the addition of a viola solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Saidee Mae Howell.

Dr. Waldo was at one time a member of the faculty of Harvard College and afterwards of Yale University. He and his family have now moved to this city, and have taken up their residence on Stelle avenue. Rev. C. L. Goodrich met them in the White Mountains several summers and so, when they came here, they were persuaded to play at Rev Mr. Goodrich's church. Their playing was of the highest class.

At the close of the concert, a reception was held and refreshments were served. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, assisted by some of the young women of the church, was in charge.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

Nuptials at Cornelia C. Schenck and Horace Conover Celebrated Thursday by Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

Last Thursday at the home of the bride, corner of Jackson avenue and Watchung, occurred a very pretty wedding, when Miss Cornelia C. Schenck became the wife of Horace Conover, also of the borough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, in the presence of just the immediate relatives

The bride was attended by Miss Edith A Conover, while Walter Conover, brother of the groom, was best man. The couple are very popular among a large circle of friends and they received a number of beautiful gifts as tokens of esteem. After the wedding congratulations were offered and a wedding supper enjoyed. The bride and groom will reside in the borough.

A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying and exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. What is needed is that which is cleansing, soothing, protecting and healing. Such a remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. Price 50 cents at druggists or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. The Balm when placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. A cold in the head vanishes quickly.

Mischievous Boys Get Into Trouble.

Several young men, whose names are known, broke a window sash and entered the school house at South Plainfield Sunday evening just before midnight and rang in the new year on the school house bell. Albert Rapet, one of the trustees, dressed himself and walked over and into the building and found a number of several of the young men and will be up for master before the Board of Trustees at the next meeting.

Bought Old Cemetery.

The property of Milton Avenue Railway, until recently used as a burying ground for the Friends's Association, and which was owned by the Friends' Association, of this city, was sold Thursday to parties in Rahway, and it will be used for building purposes. The bodies were removed from the ground sometime ago. It is understood that the purchasing price was between $3 000 and $4 000.

THERE IS A CLASS OF PEOPLE
Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that tastes like the finest coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does the coffee drinker just as much good. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

NEED NOT BE READY FOR THREE MONTHS.

Better Understanding of Trolley Affairs in Elizabeth.

LEEWAY UNTIL NEXT APRIL.

THE ROSELLE FRANCHISE IS OPEN UNTIL THAT DATE.

But in the Meantime the Company May Try to Run Stages to Transfer Passengers From Roselle to Elizabeth—A New Elizabeth Company May Prove an Obstacle to Rival Syndicate.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company will not be obliged to set passengers into Elizabeth January 1st, in order to comply with the conditions of the Roselle ordinance. This was the belief among those interested, although Colonel Hine, the company's secretary, said his recollection of the ordinance was that it fixed the limit for beginning the operation of the road until July 1st.

But the colonel, as well as all others who were speculating on the matter, was wrong. The Roselle ordinance, as has been discovered later, requires the company to have its road in operation April 1st, and not May 1st, as was reported.

This being a fact, it is hard to explain Mr. Riker's anxiety to get a line of stages running immediately in Jersey avenue, excepting it be to secure the advantages of going into Elizabeth without being obliged to give transfers to different sections.

If the company could not be legally restrained from operating in this way, it could temporarily do considerable business, and, it is alleged, at a profit as the result of the savings in the matter of transfers.

Such a method of operation would not be popular, because of its inconvenience to the patrons, and would intensify the sentiment in this city against the company to an extent that it is not probable that it would be very successful in its purpose of holding the franchise while it seeks modifications

President Ryan said yesterday that he believed that it is the intention of the company to build its road as soon as the weather will permit. Under the city's ordinance the company has until August to build, equip and put the road in operation. Until that time expires the city can do nothing to compel the company to act, so its accept ance, but he believes the company is desirous of getting the road running speedily.

There is the probability of the company finding a rival in the field when it makes an application to the City Council for a franchise to extend its tracks through the city to the down town sections James MacMaster is engaged on a projected local trolley company, and has interested a number of gentlemen in the enterprise.

First Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Stack celebrated the first anniversary of their wedding Friday evening at their home on Park avenue. There were some forty guests present. Mr. and Mrs George W. Eckelow and Mr. and Mrs. George R Rockefellow assisted in receiving the guests. During the evening there was dancing by the young people. A collation was served.

rules of order be adopted as the by-laws of the Council. He then offered a resolution to the effect that the finance committee be authorized to purchase a suitable book in which all claims shall be entered against the city, and that the auditing committee keep in this book a record of all claims to be certified to by them, the same to be in lieu of and endorsement of such claims. The idea of this is that when the claims are audited an endorsement of their correctness can be made at the same time and thus a great deal of time can be saved. Usually this work is done after a Council meeting and a great deal of time is consumed. The idea was considered a good one and the book will be purchased. Thereafter a year's claims can be kept separately. They are to be easy of access and can be seen by any member when desired.

Another resolution offered by Mr. Duncan designated The Daily Press and The News as the official papers of the city. This resolution was followed by an inquiry from Mr. Duncan as to what condition the city ordinances are in. After being informed that they are all together, he moved that a special committee be appointed to codify them and get them in the proper shape. President Smith appointed on that committee Messrs. Duncan, Mellick and Cook.

After Mr. Tolley offered a motion that when the Council adjourned it be to meet Monday evening, January 8th, the Council adjourned.

OLD KRIS WAS ON HAND.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS STILL HAVE THE CALL.

A "Peace Convention" was Enjoyed at the Seventh Day Baptist Church—M. E. Olive Baptist Scholars Had a Good Time.

There was a "Peace Convention" at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Dec. 27 th, arranged by the Sunday-school in honor of the Christmas time. It was a pretty exercise in which the principal characters were "Columbia," Miss Ruth Maxson; "Britania," Miss Mildred Green; "Russia," Charles Titsworth. The other parts were taken by Charles Neagle, Lawrence Miller, Wendell Mosher, Grace Weeks Milton St. John, Eva Rogers, Dan Randolph, Boardman Mosher, Isabel Randolph, Marie Rogers and Walter Rogers.

There were also recitations by Miss Bessie Dunham and Miss Nellie Williams, and a vocal duet by Miss Cornelia Miller and Charles Titsworth D. D. Titsworth, the superintendent, presided.

At the close of the exercise, Santa Claus, impersonated by Sidney Rose Titsworth, appeared with a huge pack on his back and distributed gifts among the smaller children. Then all were invited into the church parlors where refreshments were served.

The committees in charge of the entertainment were as follows: Programme committee, Miss Ernestine Smith chairman; Mrs. J. T. Miller, Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Myra Clark, Asa Randolph, Jacob Bakker; refreshment committee, Mrs. F. A. Dunham, chairman, Mrs. Nathan Randolph and Mrs. J. P. Mosher; gift committee, Miss Ida Spicer, chairman, Mrs. G. E. Stillman and Miss Mabel Maxson; decoration committee, members of H. M. Maxson's class.

ST. OLIVE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Christmas entertainment at the Mt. Olive Baptist church Dec. 27 th under the auspices of the Sunday-school was largely attended and one of the best ever held. A large representation of an old fashioned fireplace was arranged on the platform. This was illuminated and when the electric lights were turned off the effect was pretty. Supt. M. O. Dobbins was in charge and the following programme was presented: Carols by the school; singing by a chorus; recitation, "Why Christmas Comes"; dialogue, "Our Christmas Tree," by seven girls; recitations, Nolan Henry, Charles Mitchell, Cynthia VanNess, Miss O Pierson; vocal duet, Maude and Mattie Green. A feature of the entertainment was a number entitled "A Christmas Calendar," which was given by twelve girls, representing the various months in the year.

After the entertainment Santa Claus appeared in the person of Augustus Bunyon, and made the hearts of the scholars and teachers happy by presenting them with appropriate gifts. The scholars received books, games, candy, etc., while every teacher received some token of esteem.

HOPE CHAPEL.

The Christmas entertainment of the Sunday-school of Hope chapel was held Dec. 27 th. A series of stereopticon views illustrating the life of Christ were shown and explained. There were several musical selections. At the close of the entertainment, boxes of candy were distributed among the members of the Sunday-school. There was a large attendance.

A Commercial Opportunity.

Instead of looking with apprehension to China as a possible competitor in the markets of the world, it should be the earnest and constant effort of our governmental people to stand for the open door to the equability of commercial opportunity which we possess under existing treaties with that Empire. We have our share to do in building the thousands of miles of railroads still wanting in China, of supplying her with all forms of machinery, with electric plants, and with all the appurtenances of productive industry and civilized progress for which China cries, and will continue to offer, for generations to come, the greatest market in the world. Never, surely, was the bogy of overproduction invoked with so little reason to frighten enterprise and to repress the growth of commerce, as with reference to an industrious race of 350 000,000, of a nation just awakening from the slumber of centuries.—"Commercial Possibilities of China," by James S. Pearce in the January Forum.

HIS PREFERENCE.

He Had Rather Give His Washing Out.

Miss Mary Simpkins is what an unfeeling world calls "an old maid." Nevertheless, nature has implanted indelibly in her heart tender sentiments and a desire to benefit the race, both of which ideas she puts into practice on philanthropic lines peculiarly her own, says Harper's Bazaar. Though of ripe years and not without that knowledge born of observation of this sinful world, and despite the fact that she herself has missed the feminine "prize of high calling," Miss Mary cherishes a belief that matrimony is a sort of ultimate and universal panacea, and is much given to advocating the wedded estate to her clientele of humble degree. A few days ago the good lady embarked on the guileful steps of a certain colored youth in whom she is interested, and depicted to him in glowing terms the charms of a little home and a loving, attentive wife. Pete listened respectfully, then, scratching his woolly head, and shifting from one foot to the other replied: "I 'lanks yer very much, Mis' May, an' I'd likes mighty well ter 'blige yer, but, if yer din't got no objections, I'd ruther jes' give ma washin' out."

A WONDERFUL EXPLOSIVE

Its Mysteries Confided to Few Persons Only.

OWNED BY UNCLE SAM

It is Called Thorite, and by Its Use the Heaviest of High-Power Guns Can at Last Be Fired With Safety—A War Terror.

The War Department's adoption of thorite is the military event of the year. Uncle Sam will see to it that no foreign power learns a jot as to its secret manufacture. Its mysteries have been confided to only a handful of high military officers pledged to solemn secrecy.

Thorite has solved vexed problems that have racked the brains of most skilful ordnance experts for five years or more. Uncle Sam during this time has been trying to find out a way how to furnish him a highly explosive shell capable of accomplishing two things:

Issuing from a high power gun without destroying the gun, and the shell in the breech of the weapon.

Striking its mark without exploding from the force of impact, but at any desired time after striking, thus barring admittance to government tests. A few weeks later the wizard of the West did wondrous things at Sandy Hook. The official adoption of thorite is the result.

That thorite could be fired with perfect safety and without possible danger to gun or gunners was fully demonstrated by numerous tests. It was fired from guns of various sizes by both black and smokeless powder. That fierce flame, that terrific heat, contact with it could not affect it in any way was proved by the inventor in a striking test. He heated a poker red hot and thrust it into a 5-pound can of the explosive without any perceptible result.

Other tests demonstrated that not even the pounding of the heaviest siege guns—42,000 pounds to the square inch could effect it. A 12-inch service shell with thirty-nine pounds of thorite was fired from a 12-inch service rifle. The fuse was fixed. The explosive shell withstood the enormous pressure caused by the explosion of 480 pounds of powder required to fire the weapon, shot out to sea without uttering a sound or suffering destruction.

That this new element of warfare would not explode from the shock of impact, but would reap its harvest of death at any moment desired by the gunner, was proved in a more fascinating series of tests. Two-inch shells filled with it were left without fuses, and were fired through huge plates of Harvey nickel armor plate. Regardless of the terrific shock and tremendous friction these shells did not explode.

In another trial an iron shell of 325 pounds weight and seven inches diameter was loaded with only four pounds of the new explosive and placed inside a square inclosure internally lined of steel. Connection was made by wire between the spell and an electric circuit. The purpose of the steel enclosure was to confine the force of the shell—in other words, to test its "fragmenting power." An electric button was touched, and after the explosion the workmen entered the inclosure to sweep up the scraps of iron within the enclosure. They counted 20,000 visible fragments.

To determine the destructive power, shells which had been fused were fired from a 2 1-2 inch Sims-Dudley gun at Sandy Hook. The only Hook, Grow "craters" left in the sand were sufficient proof that thorite is as powerful as the strongest blasting gelatine.

Thorite shells, it was proved, cannot explode save by aid of a certain time fuse or detonator devised by the inventor. In other words, it can be handled with safety, and stored during transportation and subjected to various temperatures loaded in either cans or shells. No accident can occur unless the detonator is attached and set. The new explosive, furthermore, needs no particular make of shell, but can be put in any. Another advantage is that its powder does not weaken during long storage.

The Ordnance Department has already made large contracts with Uncle Sam's subjects for raw material to manufacture several thousand pounds of the explosive within the next two months. The finished product will be used in the new 6-inch and 12-inch calibre for light artillery guns, to be sent to the Philippines.

The War Department has just purchased a number of smokeless powder guns of the same type as used by the British in their Khartoum, Omdurman and Transvaal campaigns. These will soon be forwarded to the Philippines. Thorite will also be supplied although the department has ordered 5,000 rounds of ammunition such as used with them in Europe. Should the thorite shells, following thorite shells, will dislodge the rebels from their ambush shelters in crevices and coast batteries.

Thorite will be adopted for our great coast defence howitzers, as soon as they are completed. Large shells will be manufactured for them. After the army shall have successfully tested the invention, the navy will adopt it. By its means each fighting ship can carry but little fire to destroy, and the path it will look for will be that of least better if put on in coal heaver.

The author needs much careful attention of all, because it is as easy to overload the fuse to accumulate there be especially careful to promptly remove decaying vegetables. Sweep, cook and clean carefully, and after the summer is gone give the walls a good coat of whitewash. You will be well repaid for all the trouble and the cost wholesome one of the place and the pleasant way in which fruits and vegetables keep their perfection in it.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

CLEANING THE HOUSE AND KEEPING IT CLEAN.

How to Get Rid of the Pestiferous Germs that Breed Disease—Why Women Wear Out So Fast—Ill Health and Ill Temper.

We don't clean house now because we are "finicky," but because we want to be rid of deadly bacteria, says a writer in the Ladies' Journal. Even the old time annual house cleaning is not sufficient nowadays, for as a sanitary measure we must chase pestiferous germs in the autumn as well as in the spring. The soil that proves most congenial for their culture is being manufactured day and night, and is made up of the dust that constantly accumulates in cracks and out of the way corners from clothing, carpets, bedding, the minute scales of epidermis, combings of the hair and dry skin, as well as from dust and ashes and the impalpable dust sifting in from doors and windows. The invisible cloud entering the house daily, lavishly, unstintingly and lungs, but becomes dangerous only when left undisturbed to foster by moisture its broods of disease.

The whole question resolves about the task quietly and methodically, choosing a convenient day when nobody will be greatly disturbed and clean and refine one room before attacking another. For we think it is important just what plan is carried out providing the rooms are made more attractive. Given several principles, each housekeeper must adapt them to her particular needs and environment. Personally, I like to attack the attic first, because it is easily put in order and does not need for the season, as fast as one comes to them in other parts of the house. That done, I go through the house taking down draperies, shades, etc., to go with those in the laundry, and have them all washed together and put away so wait their turn to be hung after the rooms are ready for them.

Choosing a bright day, when the heavy work of the week is over, I determine upon the room to be cleaned, and begin operations early in the morning. If it be a bedroom, remove the bedding out of doors, shaking and beating out the dust thoroughly, then leave it before wind and sun and air will have full sway for hours. Next clear out closets and drawers, shaking and dusting clothing and hanging it out of doors to the invigorating influence of moths and taking note of garments whether they are to be discarded, laid away, mended, or made over. Next take down pictures, dust and clean thoroughly, and put aside in another room, and also one by one each article of furniture. Have the carpet taken out and hung on the line in the yard, if possible in a good current of air, and beaten and brushed thoroughly at intervals of an hour or so till all the dust has been well beaten out and the sun and air till nightfall. The room being empty, sweep down cobwebs from ceiling and walls, and with a clean cloth wrung out of hot water and with the door and window casings, mouldings, and base boards, carefully cleaning out every crevice from with long. Wash the windows and mirrors, every bit of dust and dirt immediately. When the dust has settled, cover your broom with cotton flannel or flannelette and carefully wipe ceiling and walls.

Add a tablespoonful of ammonia to half a gallon of hot water and wash the paint with it, using no soap. If you see traces of wood lice or other vermin, give them a dose of strong hot lye applied with small brush or swab to the crevice so as to kill them. Wash or paler. With a woolen answer or the dull point of a wire pull clear out the lint, black pyramids in the corners of window sashes, and wash and wipe the wire the floor, and with windows wide open leave it for an hour or two to dry.

Now, if you are wise, while the floor is drying, you will go down and rest. Relax your mind as well as your body—think of something pleasant. Take care of your body, as if you find any pain, it tends to grow worse. The reason women wear out so fast is because they drive themselves beyond the limit, and instead of resting a few minutes as soon as any pervasive symptoms of fatigue, they drive themselves to finish the job before they quit, with the result, in time, of ill health and ill temper.

When the floor is dry, lay the carpet and put the furniture and pictures in place. Then, if dirty days follow, wash and windows, handle a pound of sulphur and leave it to burn for a half hour or so, being careful to tightly close the room and stop every crack and vent; the escape of the fumes into other parts of the house. The easiest thing for the purpose is a rubber candle, which is a tennis ball with a hole cut out one, burn sulphur in an old basin placed in a larger one, half filled with water. Afterwards lay the room ten or twelve hours, and then open the windows. Add to a pint of sweet oil, one-third pint of household ammonia, shake well together till the mixture looks like cream, and with a soft flannel rub this in a portion of it, and rub the polished surfaces of the furniture. This will remove every stain as if by magic of dirt and leave a soft, bright polish. Furniture, it is especially fine for oak furniture, and may be used for months in a well corked bottle.

In this way, without hurry, without worry, clean each room successively. If you are unfortunate enough to have a large house, plan to take up part of the work each year, as it will not rest in the spring. Autumn is the best season for painting and papering, as there are no flies then to annoy, and the path it will look for will be that of least better if put on in cool weather.

The author needs much careful attention of all, because it is as easy to overload the fuse to accumulate there be especially careful to promptly remove decaying vegetables. Sweep, cook and clean carefully, and after the summer is gone give the walls a good coat of whitewash. You will be well repaid for all the trouble and the cost wholesome one of the place and the pleasant way in which fruits and vegetables keep their perfection in it.

CAPTAIN SAMUEL REBER

A Prominent and Fortunate Army Officer.

ROMANCE OF MISS MILES.

Choice of the Daughter of the Commanding General of the Army—A West Point Graduate and an Electrical Expert—Gen. Miles at Home.

The announcement a short time ago of the engagement of the daughter of the major general commanding the army, Miss Cecilia Sherman Miles, to Captain Samuel Reber, caused a considerable stir in Army circles, where Miss Miles has long been a leading figure. The announcement was unexpected, and the story of the affair has more of a surprise, although there was really nothing surprising about it. Captain Reber, whose mother was a Sherman, has been a favorite of the family, and the two have almost grown up together. He is several years her senior, and they have been fast friends, so much that no one thought of the affair as a love affair. More than that, Miss Miles has been such a general favorite that her name has frequently been coupled with those of other Army officers who have said her name would be added to the list of her admirers, but confirmation of the marriage has been prophesied repeatedly, but until now she has remained fancy free.

She is an unusually intelligent, bright young woman. As a little girl, and while she was in her teens also, she lived much of the time with her parents at the treasury of the post, and that experience gave her a breadth of character which is not unusually found among girls of society. Later on the family lived at Governor's island, a fashionable boarding school for two or three years, but most of her education was obtained from tutors under her father's immediate supervision.

Only those who have the good fortune to know General Miles intimately are aware of the geniality of his disposition. In his home he is at his best; he is the ideal husband and father, and with his wife, daughter and son—a youth of about eighteen, who is now at West Point—he is a most delightful companion. He is never too busy to be interested in what interests them, and he always prefers an evening at his own fireside to any other place. Miss Miles's quick, receptive mind has always been a source of pleasure to him, and little should be delighted to guide her reading, and as she grew older she formed the habit of reading to him from the books he enjoyed. In this way she obtained a wide scope of general information, and has in consequence been of much help to him in his literary work.

Captain Reber is a young officer of promising and certainly one of the most fortunate, of the younger Army officers. He was born in Missouri thirty-five years ago, and was graduated from that State to West Point. He was graduated with the class of '91, and was appointed a second lieutenant of the 5th Cavalry in the following July, and in 1893 was made a first lieutenant of the 8th Cavalry. In January, 1894, he entered the Signal Corps, being appointed a captain in that corps in May, 1898, and in July of the same year was appointed lieutenant colonel. He commanded a chief signal officer with the Army Corps and of the Department of Matanzas and Santa Clara, and also acting superintendent of military telegraph lines in Cuba. From 1899 to 1900, in January, 1899, when he was made chief signal officer of the Department of the East, with headquarters at Governor's island, New York, where he is now stationed. Captain Reber is an electrical expert. He took a special course of instructions at Johns Hopkins in electricity, and was with the Interstate Commerce Railway Commission in 1892, of which he was a member. He was also on duty with the Board of Engineers on the survey for the location of the Great Falls from April to July, in 1894, and was one of the Government appointees for examining and reporting upon the electrical exhibits of the Atlanta Exposition. During the Spanish-American war he was on duty with the United States Army in Porto Rico, and accompanied Governor Allen in the campaign across the island. Miss Miles has been with her parents on the Pacific Coast. The wedding is to take place in Washington in January.

Feminine Financiering.

That women are the best financiers of the world we have often had occasion to acknowledge, but we must be independent. We have seen them at the auction sales when they made a bargain by buying an article they had no use for whatever, and we have seen them haggling over the price of cheap calico for a reduction in price of a penny per yard, and then triumphantly carrying their purchase to a fashionable dressmaker and paying her $20 for making a "morning" dress. This morning we could not help smiling while watching a lady credited with possessing good business sense buying "Chinese birds" on board a mail steamer, bargaining for a price per dozen, and beating down the seller of seven fine specimens by fifty cents of the original price. In the meantime, her back was waiting, and the driver, "cheering," She made her bargain, however, saved fifty cents on the birds and paid the herdsman one dollar for waiting. That is female financiering.—Rochester

SLAVE SYSTEM.

Rules Under Which English Chorus Girls Are Trained and Hired Out.

A suit just brought before Judge Cole in the United States Circuit Court, in Boston, and dismissed for want of jurisdiction, has all the elements of a sensational bearing if it ever comes to trial. It was in the nature of a bill in equity brought by John Tiller and Daughters, of London, under the firm name of Tiller & Co., praying that Tiller Brothers be declared indebted to the complainants in the sum of $1,750 for the use of certain secret information relative to the employment of eight girls known as "misses," who are appearing at the Columbia Theatre in this city, and who are in the employ of Rice Brothers.

The Tiller Company has an establishment in London for the letting of girls for the stage. They are trained in dancing and singing, and as soon as they are considered competent to perform the duties required of the chorus they receive engagements for them individually, or in groups, in theatres all over the world. Hundreds of theatres are said to be thus supplied. The girls are kept under the strictest discipline, subject to the will of their masters, and compelled to go wherever they send them. When employment is obtained for them in accordance with the contracts for the sale of their services.

L. S. Rice, of Rice Brothers, when seen at the New York Theatre, said that sometimes the girls were not mentioned and brought over to this country in numbers. "In England," he said, "there are schools for chorus and ballet girls, and they are subjected to the masters for certain periods. The masters give the girls enough to live on and get all of the money. They practically own the girls for that time. The girls get some advantages, as they are poor girls, and in this way are able to get an education. The system is common in England, and the buying of girls from these masters for the purpose of bringing them to the United States does not conflict with any contract between the girls and their artists' law. The Boston suit was dismissed, partly because the plaintiff did not properly represent the London firm, and partly because we did not owe the latter anything."

THE PRICE OF HEMP.

Soaring Skyward as the Result of War in the Philippines.

"There is one feature of your war in the Philippines which the American farmers are not taking into the overlooked," said Mr. Clarence Morris-Hughes, of London, at Chamberlain's, who has just returned from that country. "I mean the effect which the Philippine ports so that neither sugar nor hemp can be shipped. As regards sugar, this is not of so much importance because the United States don't use a small portion of the world's supply. It is different, however, with hemp, as since all Manila hemp comes from the Philippines it is now all cut off. Everywhere, the closing of the ports for so long has sent prices skyward, and to-day it is no less than 100 per cent above the normal figure. The supply is exhausted and very little can be had at any price, the bulk of what there is having fallen into the hands of speculators.

"The American farmer is the man upon whom this rise bears hardest, for he uses enormous quantities of binding twine in harvesting time. An expert has estimated that the grain-producing sections of the United States consume annually 20,000,000 pounds of this twine. To be sure, not much twine is made of Manila fiber. It is usually manufactured from sisal, but because of the increased demand for sisal has been enormous and the price of that product has consequently soared. This is about the time of year that the farmer begins the production of the twine for next summer's harvest is purchased. Unless relief comes immediately the farmers of your country will pay three times as much or more for their twine than in the past, which will mean an aggregate excess expense to them of the enormous sum of $40,000,000.—Washington Post.

The Fickleness of Public Favor.

Adm. C. Stewart, once President Arthur's Secretary of the Navy and Minister to China, and now Minister to Japan, is illustrating Dewey's state of mind.

"It was just after General Grant's return to the United States from his famous trip around the world. He was receiving a visit in New York from some old friends from the West. One of these friends warmly congratulated the General upon the enthusiastic reception given him in the country, and upon the general enthusiasm and love shown for him by all classes of people. I can never forget Grant's calm, serious, quiet, deliberate reply to these felicitations. He said:

"'I have been flattered more and praised more than any man alive, and I have been slandered and abused by the same people who did the praising and flattering. On one day I have been cheered with the wildest enthusiasm, I have been hissed, and by the same people. And all was undeserved, extravagant praise and extravagant blame. I have found out that such stuff as reality there is in popular favor.'

These words were said before the last supporting experiences at Gilbert Dennan—Dennan's garden. Grant's health, the worst storm came, in his days of poverty and sickness. Again he was reviled and hooted at by a volatile people, and again he said the same. Grant died—he was exalted to the heights of universal love and respect, and there death found him."

Otter and Eel in Deadly Fight.

An interesting spectacle was seen the other day on the banks of the River Lark, England. A large otter came and a huge eel were found in a deadly struggle. The otter had evidently caught the eel, which had retaliated by winding itself tightly around the otter's neck. The fight lasted several minutes, the otter eventually freeing itself and making off with part of the eel, which it had bitten in two.

PARKS WIN AT WHIST.

STILL HOLD THE STATE CHALLENGE WHIST TROPHY.

Defeated the Forest Hill Club Last Evening by a Score of 14 to 8—They Will Meet Last Year's Champions Next Week.

The State challenge trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association will remain here a little longer. Last night the Park Club four won its seventh victory for the cup by defeating the Forest Hill Whist Club. The trophy will therefore remain in Plainfield until some other challenging team is more successful.

The Forest Hill team was something of an unknown quantity in Jersey whistic circles. They have just entered the league and the Parks had not had an opportunity of meeting them in any of the contests. The new comers played good whist, but it was not up to the standard set by the Park Club four and the visitors departed leaving victory and the trophy behind.

The Parks had the regular team on hand to defend the trophy, Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Albert O. Weitmann and Ralph Willis. The challenging team consisted of Messrs. Sisserson, E. Halsey, Hunt and C. Halsey.

The local players had the best of the match in every round. The score by rounds was as follows:

	PARK CLUB.	FOREST HILL.
First round	3	1
Second round	4	0
Third round	7	7

The Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club has won nine matches for the trophy and the Park Club two loss. A match will be played next Wednesday, when the challengers will be the New Jersey Whist Club, of Newark, last year's champions.

NO MYTH TO THEM.

Santa Claus Appeared in Person at the Party of Children.

Among the many festivities of Christmas, none could have been more enjoyable than the Christmas tree party of Master E. Franklin Lowe, of 27 Fairview avenue, tendered to his neighborhood companions by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Lowe. The house was tastefully decorated with holly, mistletoe, Japanese lanterns and Old Glory, making a picture that even the little tots admired. The tree was ladened with lots of good things which Santa Claus distributed among the other gifts which he brought with him on his arrival.

During the evening the time was taken up with games. The little ones also enjoyed a magic lantern exhibition of foreign views. When Santa Claus arrived he was entertained with recitations by Maggie Bickert, Master and Miss VanZandt, Master Willie Heath and Master Franklin himself. Those present who thus enjoyed the day and are now convinced that Santa Claus is a reality were Bernice McClintock, Mary Laura and Marguerite Woolston, Maggie and Florence Bickert, May, Gertrue, Mellis and Florence Beckham, Mary and Dorothy Neal, Mabel Hamilton, Lavinia Hand, Emma Korff and Marjory Martin, the youngest guest of all. The boys were Masters Eddie Whidham, Artie and William Woodruff, Marshall Ward, Willie Burtis, Charles Cobb, Dulas Squire, Alfred Korff, Harral Hamilton. The comfort of all were looked after by "Grandma" Burtis, assisted by Murray Burtis, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff and Master Eric and Miss Elsie Burtis, of Brooklyn.

Mixed Civil-service Proposition.

Henry C. Mead will be the new postmaster of Caldwell, having received the votes of a majority of the members of the county committee in borough and township. The new postmaster was formerly a Democrat, but has been allied with the Republican party since 1896. Some of the stalwarts in the party are somewhat disappointed. The citizens now want free delivery.

Change for A. Kane.

A. McKeon, of 609 West Front street, has been engaged by A. Kane, of 426 East Third street, to take charge of his flour and feed store, and to act as manager for next year. Mr. McKeon is a thoroughly experienced man, and as Mr. Kane's business has increased he found it necessary to have assistance.

Receptions and Dances.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Mason Whiting Tyler, of 225 West Seventh street, for a reception to be given for Mr. and Mrs. William Seymour Tyler Friday, January 13th, from 4 until 8 o'clock. Dancing will follow from 9 until 12 o'clock.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The condition of Ettie Brien Rose, of Coddington avenue, remains unchanged.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Taylor, of Cape Cod, Mass., are visiting their son, H. S. Taylor, of Fairview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marrilng, of 16 Rockview avenue, have closed their house for the winterand will take up their residence in New York city for the winter.

GUS FRAZEE SURE OF A $15,000 BEQUEST.

He Loaned $4,000 To a Friend Forty Years Ago.

MONEY SOON FORTHCOMING

CITY NATIONAL BANK HAS BEEN APPOINTED DEPOSITORY.

Executor Writes to Frazee That The Estate Will Be Divided Up According to the Will in a Short Time—Original Loan Was Made in Newark in 1858, Where it was Lost in a Venture.

Henry Augustus Frazee, of South Second street, who was one of the pioneer pony express messengers along the Central Railroad of New Jersey, but who has been living quietly in this city since he lost one of his legs in a runaway accident four years ago, has received positive assurance that he will be paid $15,000 within a short time by the executors of the estate of the late W. P. Hedden, of Toledo, O. This bequest of money to Frazee comes in the nature of the return of "bread cast upon the waters" more than forty years ago.

In 1858 Frazee loaned Hedden $4,000 to invest in a business in Newark. The money was lost in the venture and discouraged and disheartened Hedden went west, and Frazee gave up all hope of ever having the loan returned. As years passed and Frazee lost sight of Hedden his conclusion became so firm that the loan only came to his mind once in a while when he became reminiscent.

Hedden, it appears, located in the far west and made money in a mining venture. After he became prosperous he moved to Toledo, where, when he died about a year ago, he left a large fortune. In reading his will it was found that he had bequeathed Frazee $15,000 in appreciation of his aid in 1858. After considerable trouble, Frazee was located by the executors, and since then the proper affidavits of identification, etc., have been made.

Christmas Day Frazee received a letter from H. H. Robinson, one of the executors, stating that the estate was almost ready to be divided among the heirs and beneficiaries, and he asked where Frazee would like to receive his share. Frazee has delegated the City National Bank, of this city, as the depository for the funds, and it is expected that sometime in January the $15 000 will be placed to Frazee's credit in that bank.

YULETIDE WITH THE FRIENDS.

Pleasant Time Enjoyed by the Sunday-school Dec. 27 th.

The members of the Friends' Sunday school met Dec. 27 th at the meeting-house on Watchung avenue and enjoyed their annual Christmas festivities. There was a good attendance and an excellent programme was presented for the instruction and edification of all. It opened with concert reading, "Christmastide," by the school, after which the following was given: Recitations, "Christmas," Edith Mattox; "The Magic of the Snow," Weston Gavett; "The Sunbeams," Hazel Morrison; "The Christmas Tree," Leslie Palmer; "A Terrible Fate," Margery Cooley; "Christmas Money," Olga Wier; "The Dearest Doll," Ruth Stryker; "The Men of Gionata," Robert Goldsmith; "The Gain of Giving," Anna Morrison; "The Best Tree," Horace Vail; "Where Do You Live," Ethel Lorton; "Gifts for Royal Children," Paul Whitall; "What Next?" Mabel Vail. Readings, "Playing Meeting," Fanny Stryker; "set's Christmas Stocking," Cornelia Gavett; "New Year's Hymn," school.

After the entertainment was fully enjoyed all adjourned to the upper part of the meeting-house where, under the direction of a committee, of which Mrs. Clara Rushmore was chairman, refreshments and gifts of candy and oranges were served to the members of the school. This brought the happy event to a close and those present left for their homes delighted with the entertainment.

Chosen Friends Elect Officers.

The following officers were selected at the meeting of the Order of Chosen Friends last week: Councilor, W. D. Williams; vice-councilor, Wm. Hobart; prelate, Frank Humbston; marshal, Wm. Patterson; warden, Louis Weise; guard, Lewis VanNest; sentry, J. Hope; secretary, W. H. Brewling; treasurer, N. H. Saxton; assistant secretary, W. Goldsmith. Wednesday evening, Feb. 28th, the anniversary of the order will be celebrated appropriately.

Honoring Memory of Josiah Browne.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the American Tobacco Company, New York, held Dec. 26 th, resolutions were adopted honoring the memory of Josiah Browne, their late secretary. Similar action was taken at the meeting of the board of directors of the Monopol Tobacco Works, with which Mr. Browne was also associated.

WHY HE DODGED WAR

ONCE WAS ENOUGH FOR THE TRAVELING MAN.

His Fourth of July Experience With Explosives in a Patriotic Pennsylvania Town Convinced Him That He Did Not Want to Go to War.

The travelingman who sells hardware remarked that he was afraid that he would die of heart disease if he was ever compelled to go to the front. His friends wanted to know what made him think so, and after lighting a fresh cigar he said:

"It was several years ago that I made up my mind never to go to war unless there was great need of man and my decision was not changed.

"Business took me to Pittsburg, and, landing in a certain Pennsylvania town one Fourth, I determined to take a day off and celebrate the day. The result was that I walked over half the place, attended a picnic in the afternoon, danced until my feet were sore and then went to the hotel for dinner pretty well tired. So far so good, but I did not know where to stop.

"After dinner a man of my acquaintance proposed that we go out to see the fireworks and off we went determined not to lose an hour of our holiday. The fireworks display was to be on top of a high hill, almost a mountain, on the edge of the town, and, as I remember it now, that hill went straight up and straight down. We followed the big crowd, though, and at last reached the top. About every one in the town was on the summit of that hill before 9 o'clock, when the display was scheduled to begin, and we were crowded and jostled on all sides.

"In due season some one put a big rocket in place and touched it off. It started with a rush, rose high in the air and exploded with a bang. Then there were falling all the women said, 'Ah!' long drawn out, and half the folk crowded around to get a better view. Then another rocket went with a bang, a hat right in front of me and I was side-stepping when there was a roar in the middle of the platform where the fireworks were being set before me one knew what was wrong a big skyrocket darted over the heads of a thousand or so spectators, so close that they could feel the rush of air following it.

"A moment later a flourpot began to spout unexpectedly and seeing the sparks falling all over the platform most of the spectators decided that it was time for them to go. Yours truly was one of them, and I started down the hill on a run and was soon making ten-foot jumps. Even then I was only behind my own with a big fat woman just in front of me and there were some in the crowd who should have been handicapped to make anything like an even race.

"We made a quick trip, that is my friend and myself, but the skyrockets were going much faster. We kept passing over our heads constantly and once a big wheel of some kind sailed by me going toward the bottom of the hill like a streak of lightning. About a dozen yards from the top of the hill there ran a stone wall perhaps four feet high and 18 inches thick. The last sprinters went bang into it. The men and women who did not lose consciousness groaned or screamed when they struck it. I was about 10 paces in front of me I slowed up a little and then making out the fence through the darkness vaulted over it with a bit of style.

"But my troubles were not ended. It happened that a husky ironworker had chosen shelter behind the fence at the same time and my feet came down fairly in the middle of his back when I landed. He started to swear like a trooper and half rose to give me a shove, swing when a skyrocket struck the top of the wall immediately in front of him and stuck there with a shower of sparks balled back up the hill in great shape.

"That settled the ironworker. He ducked down in a hurry and before I got to my feet he was on the ground and rolled ten feet away and was sticking to the leeward side of the wall trying to keep my head down. I managed to succeeded, but it was hard work, and it was really weeks before the effects of my run and the excitement had worn off.

"All the men and women who had passed me in the stampede were keeping as close to the wall as they could, but there stood a number of the early arrivals had troubles of their own. Somehow I escaped, but few of the others were so fortunate. The ironworker was a notable example. Less than ten seconds after the heels of my patent leathers had scraped along his back he started on a wild scamper. This time he had an encounter with a man of near his own weight who came over the fence dragging a small boy with him. They both landed on my would-be antagonist and he gave a yell that could be heard above the noise of the fireworks and created a panic in the crowd. Every one who could not see him concluded that a rocket had struck him and the women and girls screamed with renewed energy. No sooner had the man and his boy made their escape than two half-grown girls plunged over the top and they, too, struck the unlucky yelled. One had landed on his head and the other on his outstretched arm. The ironworker would have said more than his share of hard luck.

"The next morning I learned that one young woman had been killed by a skyrocket, while several other persons had been hurt. A one-legged tinhorn gambler was declared to be responsible for the accident, and he got out of the fireworks. After lighting a cigarette it was alleged he threw the burning match into a box of rockets on the platform. I knew nothing about the truth of this, but I decided that week to do a lot of dodging before going to war."—N. Y. Sun.

No Excuse for Thirst.

A YEAR AHEAD.

Men Employed in the Minnesota Pineries This Winter.

Contracts for the delivery of about 900,000,000 feet of pine logs to mills in this section by railroad have recently been closed. This is in addition to the enormous quantity that will be handled on logging railroads owned by the companies that also do the logging. Of these contracts the Minnesota division of the Northern Pacific Road has closed a total of about 300,000,000 feet, part of which will be delivered at this city and part at Ashland, Wis. Another line of Iron Range Road will haul 150,000,000 feet to this city, and the other iron range roads owned by distinctively logging corporations.

In Northern Minnesota alone a army of 15,000 men will attack the standing forests next winter, equipped with axes and oxen. These men will receive an aggregate monthly wages of about $400,000, and they will be employed till the snow melts sufficiently to permit of a continuation of the present era of activity and high prices for a long time, indeed they expect never to see the like again, but they say that for years. The supply is becoming more and more limited year by year, as the forests are being ruthlessly by a army of choppers, and the standing pine in the mainland uncut is rapidly becoming the property of manufacturing corporations, and will be held till they are ready to cut, while the demand is increasing at a rate faster than the capacity of mills. A very large share of the timber to be cut this winter is of the lower grades, goes into boxes and packing cases, and that the price of these grades should have advanced 80 per cent in the past year is a fair indication of how tremendous the demand for boxes has become.

The manufacturers of matches have never before made sales for the succeeding year before late in the winter, or until sawing began in the spring. But last week sales were made here for 30,000,000 feet of the lowest grades of the cut to be made after next April at top prices. Several mills sold their entire season's cut of these grades, receiving $19.50 for what was worth $8.50 last February. $13 for what then brought $6.50, and $6.50 for a grade that in past years has been considered worth almost nothing and that has been figured as about paying the cost of handling. Concerns who sell for the purpose of his product in advance is being importuned to do so, and 400,000,000 feet of Duluth lumber could be sold in a week to buyers from the Atlantic, England, Eastern Michigan and Chicago. This would be practically all next year's cut for the mills on deep water at the harbors.

Shipments by water to these Eastern points out of Lake Superior will exceed 1,000,000,000 feet, and while most of forwardings are more than to meet in a whole summer so lately as 1887. More than 125 ships have been engaged exclusively in the iron ore trade, and from this lake to the East this year, and at prices that have paid profits that would buy the ships at last season's prices. Many ship owners entered last spring for the season with an agreement that the lesser might buy later in the year at the then agreed figure, and the advance in freights has netted in a whole summer so lately as 1887. More than 125 ships have been engaged exclusively in the iron ore trade, and from this lake to the East this year, and at prices that have paid profits that would buy the ships at last season's prices. Many ship owners entered last spring for the season with an agreement that the lesser might buy later in the year at the then agreed figure, and the advance in freights has netted in addition out of its own net profits for the summer. Rates have been more than double those of last year, and the opening of the season there have been half a dozen cargoes for every available vessel.

For the first time railroads have involved in the traffic, and they will control scores of million of feet of timber from here to points as far East as Pittsburg and Central Pennsylvania, making a rather satisfactory thing themselves under those the ship interests would accept.

Timber lands have doubled and trebled in price the past season, and are still advancing, with sales amounting to millions of dollars monthly.—Minneapolis Times.

A Horseless Farmer.

For 20 years William Johnson, a farmer near Kokomo, Ind., has run a farm of six acres and never had a horse on the place, and is known all over that section as "the horseless farmer." He raises corn, potatoes, cabbage, celery, melons and all kinds of vegetables, all by hand, but there is no cultivation. Johnson does all the work himself by hand planters and hand harvesters. Every Saturday morning he loads up his vegetables in a hand wagon and trundles his crops to town in a wheelbarrow, making an average of three trips a day the year round. In the 20 years he has been in this business he must have travelled 168,000 miles—nearly seven times around the world. When a boy he was kicked by a horse, and dragging a leg he has since nothing to do with horses.—N. Y. Tribune.

Killarney Lakes Bring $225,000.

The large hall of the Ancient concert room in Dublin was filled to the rafters of the Muckross estate, which includes the Lakes of Killarney. The bidding started at £35,000, but the price was run up by the time the auctioneer's hammer was lifted, but crawled up slowly, by £500 at a time, till it reached £36,000. The vendor then bid £37,000, but the sale was not completed. Dublin solicitors were practically the only bidders. It is announced that private tenders for the estate will now be considered.—Dublin Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.

Policeman's Unique Excuse.

Officer Charles Kemble, of Long Island City, N. Y., was charged with being absent from his post. In court the accused threw himself on the ground flat he overslept while in a Turkish bath.

"It is a fact," said Officer Constable-counselor Abell, "that Turkish baths are very seductive. The next time you go into one insist upon the attendants' rousing you in time, though he perish in the attempt."

The Commissioner, after administering a gentle reprimand to the officer, dismissed the case.

It has been asserted that a captive balloon at Belmont should easily be able to make signals to the balloon at Lafayette, heliographing by day and flashing signals at night.

SOCIETY'S FIRST FORMAL FUNCTION.

First Assembly Was Held Dec. Evening in the Casino

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

SOCIETY FOLK TURNED OUT WELL FOR THEIR FIRST OFFICIAL DANCE.

Long List of Subscribers Most of Whom Were Present—The College Men and Out-of-town Guests Were Not Included in That List, But Came as Special Guests.—Casino Prettily Decorated

This winter of 1899-1900 has already proved itself an unusually lively one for Plainfield society folk. The result of the assemblies has been a cause for general satisfaction among those who found those formal society gatherings so pleasant in the past. Dec. 27 th the first of the assemblies was held in the Casino. The unqualified support given it by the elite of Plainfield society made it a decided success and made promise of similar results for the other two dances that are to follow this winter.

For two years the Assemblies have not been held, owing to lack of interest. This year the demand for these official social functions was so general that it was decided to hold them. The entire clubhouse of Casino was thrown open to the guests. The Casino itself was decorated with palms and potted plants that formed a screen to the balconies and to the stage, which was occupied by the orchestra. Easy chairs were arranged in the alcoves and sofa cushions covered the wall seats.

The dances were arranged under the charge of the following patronesses: Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, Mrs. Chas. J. Fisk, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. Wm. T. Kaufman, Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Henry M. Stockton and Mrs. H. P. Talmadge.

Charles E. Brooks consented to take charge of the details in which he has had much experience in the past. He was overwhelmed with requests for tickets at the last and was finally compelled to refuse to issue any more. As it was, the attendance at the dance was very large, fully 150 being present.

Most of the regular subscribers to the series were present last evening, and in addition, there were nearly fifty special guests, young people home from the colleges and others visiting here for the holidays.

The dancing began shortly after 9 o'clock and continued until early this with an interval before midnight for the serving of a supper.

The subscribers to the Assemblies this winter are, with few exceptions, residents of Plainfield. The young people home from the colleges were not included in that list but were considered special guests as were friends visiting at Plainfield homes for the holidays. The list of subscribers is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker, Frank Schoonmaker, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stockton, H. Reeve Stockton, Miss Edith Hyde, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, J. L. Cowgill, Miss H. E. Strong, Joseph L. Meyers, Harry B. Lovell, John Q. Lockman, New York, A. T. Compton, Jr., New York, Boardman Wright, Mrs. H. P. RAPID TRANSIT!

Track Once Home for Passengers to Get From Worthing Avenue to Monroe Avenue M. E. Church.

The painful efforts which the Plainfield Street Railway Company is putting forth to accommodate the public was illustrated again D e 27 th. One of the new cars (No. 4) conductor Martin, on the Somerset-Fourth street line burst out a fuse when near the corner of West Front street and Watchung avenue. The car came to a stop in consequence. After fifteen minutes' delay the passengers were compelled to transfer to another car, while the motormen and conductors gathered about and offered suggestions to car starter Lister as to the proper course to pursue. It was all over the failure to find in any of the cars a draw bar to use in running the crippled car to the car house. Finally after another half hours' wait the belated passengers were hauled as far as the terminal at Watchung and North avenues, only to be told that they must again change cars.

With considerable grumbling and the application of anything but pleasant remarks about the trolley cars in general and the Plainfield Street Railway Company in particular, the passengers reluctantly left the second car and entered the third.

At this point another conductor appeared and demanded fares. This demand made the passengers hot and there was a vigorous protest. "We've paid once," said the passengers in unison, "and we don't propose to pay a second time." The conductor at first declined to carry the crowd unless they settled with him, but when given to understand by the passengers that they would sit there until midnight that functionary decided to submit to the inevitable. With a jerk the bell was sounded and the car started. Nearly all the passengers were bound for the Monroe Avenue church, which was reached at 8:30—just one hour after most of them had boarded the first trolley car.

THIS TAKES THE BUN.

A Story to the Effect That a Gold Dollar was Found in the Entrails of a Christmas Turkey.

One of the best stories of the season is related by a boroughite whose reputation for truthfulness cannot be gainsaid. It happened this way. Edward Sebring, the Somerset street marble cutter, and his wife and Mrs. John H. Carney, of Craig place, bought a fine big Jersey turkey the day before Christmas from Sylvester Sharkey, of the East End. The turkey was delivered to Mr. Sebring's place of residence and thoroughly enjoyed Christmas Day. Here is where the surprise appeared. When the turkey was being operated upon preparatory for its entrance into the oven, and while the entrails were being removed according to custom, a gold dollar was found imbedded therein. One side was almost smooth and could not be deciphered, but the other side was all right and showed the denomination of the coin. It is now being carried by Mr. Sebring in the hopes that it may bring him good luck in the future. He has since placed an order for another turkey for next year, and he thinks he may find some more gold.

MRS. KINSMAN'S FUNERAL.

Services Held From the First Baptist Church Dec. 27 th.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. F. E. Kinsman, of the Oakmont, were held Dec. 27 th at 1:30 o'clock from the First Baptist church, where a large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to the departed. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the church, officiated, and he spoke in the highest terms of the life of Mrs. Kinsman, and of her descendants, as great and faithful workers in the Baptist denomination. He spoke of the patience of Mrs. Kinsman during her long illness and of fight for life, and of her complete submission to the will of God.

The casket, a steel gray color, was completely covered with beautiful flowers, including wreaths of roses and greens. After the remarks of Dr. Yerkes an opportunity was given those present to view the remains, after which they were taken to Lecominster, Mass., where interment will take place in the family plot of that place.

Petit Jurors.

The following persons from North Plainfield have been selected as petit jurors for the present term of court as Secretary: Charles Sebring, Lewis B. Bird, Gurney Winckler, Daniel Acker and William H. Morris. The following constables have also been selected to serve from the borough: George N. Steward and J. W. Valliere.

A GIRL SEES JAPAN

AND TELLS WHAT SHE THINKS ABOUT IT.

Etiquette is an Important Part of a Japanese Maiden's Education, and a Deal of Care is Given to the Arrangement of the Girdle.

Miss Ethel Maud Soper, a student at the Woman's College, was born in Japan and lived there a long time. She is the daughter of the Rev. Julius Soper, D. D., who for many years has been a missionary in Japan. Miss Soper speaks as follows of the difference between a Japanese girl and an American girl:

"The first remark made after an introduction is, 'And what might be your honorable age?' And you must be sure that if the answerer is a Japanese she will give her full age—and even be tempted to add a year or two. That is the Indirectness in question of polite society. There is even a special costume which only women over 40 may wear. The long, full-colored gar ments, the wide sleeves and the lining of the sleeves and neckpieces are made of the most brilliant scarlet. The fashion is a relic of the past, and many a mother's or grandmothers frock without a thought of fit or fashion. That is the Indirectness of dress. Dresses for different classes of society. A Japanese can tell at a glance, but a European will get hopelessly bewildered as to the distinctions. This is indicated by a tiny thread of color in the sleeve or slight variation in the way of wearing the hair.

"The fashionable Japanese girl usually has a loose garment of some dull color lined with brighter tint. Our fashion of lining skirts and trimming in our coats came from Japan. A ball dress might be of a dove-colored crepe with a pink lining; the skirt trimmed with this same pink and the painted most elaborately. The neckpiece showing above the loose outer garment is often of variegated silks beautifully guaranteed.

"But the most interesting article of a Japanese girl's toilet is herself is her hair. Much of crepy and frizzy wound around the waist to hold the dress in right position; over this comes the belt proper. It is often as full as a dress in made of any substance, but always lined with some heavy material like canton flannel. Instead of these wide belts, the Japanese girls dispenses with pillows and sleep with a wooden rest under the back of the neck and the head quite unsupported.

"Very comfortable it must be, but a Japanese girl like an American girl will do a great deal for the sake of appearance.

"Etiquette is an important part of a Japanese girl's education. There are text-books on etiquette in Japanese schools, just as there are professors in languages, and a girl must know how to enter a room, how to bow and how to sit in the various rules of precedence. All men, of course, take precedence of all women, unless they have been introduced, and then they assume our ways with womankind.

"One specimen of this exaggerated politeness I'll tell you illustration. Where we would say, 'I am glad to see you,' they would say, 'I hang upon you honorable eyelids.'

"The Japanese girl is apt to be indolent. Knitting was a great occupation with them, and now that the fashion has come in they knit all kinds of work they go will with delight over crochet stitches and different kinds of embroidery. Almost the first thing I remember is how to fasten clothes and shoes—hook. They do this after the stepped of a Japanese fan.

"It was always very hard for the missionaries to get hold of the women. They were afraid that they called only the men and the children would appear, and when the wife was asked for, 'Oh, she is just a stupid thing,' the husband would say of her.

"A woman has little control over her life. She marries at the will of her father, and if he dies, she goes without seeing her future husband till she is led to the altar. The man, too, is governed by his father, who often finds a wife for his son before he knows the name of the girl. Divorces are the same everywhere, and there are some genuine love matches, even in Japan.

"There is no furniture in a Japanese house, only cushions. A table for meals is so small that it looks like a child's toy. I remember in the house of a poor man and the residence of a millionaire consists in the timber of which the house is built. You can tell what kind of wood of a beautifully-built house. Then the matting on the floor will be of the finest and the sliding doors, probably, beautifully hand-painted. The kitchens, too, have no furniture except the stove; there is not even a table, all the work is done on the floor. The Japanese bath is beautifully done. There is just one peculiarity in this bathing—that is the kitchen of meals must be washed with cold water only. It is never exactly washed, however, but rubbed over with clothes wrung from cold water. And it does beautifully, like the finest mahogany table."—Baltimore News.

TROLLEY SYNDICATE BOWS TO INEVITABLE.

The Rikers Yield to the Demands of Elizabeth.

A COMPLETE SURRENDER.

ACCEPT THE ORDINANCE WITH ALL ITS CONDITIONS

Branch Was Just as The Daily Press Has Predicted All Along—Formal Acceptance Filed With the Elizabeth City Clerk Yesterday, to Stand the Test They Wished in Courts Formerly be Done.

As had been predicted all along by The Daily Press, the Riker-Hine trolley syndicate, incorporated as the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company, has accepted the terms made by the Elizabeth City Council in consideration of the granting of a franchise for the right to enter that city over Jersey avenue and thereby complete the system that has been building in Union county during the past year. It is an unconditional surrender that the trolley syndicate to they have been putting up the biggest kind of a bluff ever since the negotiations were started with the Elizabeth Council, but, as pointed out by The Daily Press, there was no other alternative for them if they were to couple their line between this city and Elizabeth.

The company had until Dec. 27th, to make its reply to the city, and City Clerk Manning received in his morning mail a letter from Colonel E. W. Hine, the secretary of the company with the formal acceptance of the ordinance inclosed.

The acceptance of the ordinance has come as a surprise to many. It has been the opinion of some of the city authorities who were contending for the ordinance that yesterday, the termination of the 30-day limitation, would witness its death, and compromise measures were subjects of discussion as the ground-work for a new ordinance.

The terms of the ordinance which makes this grant the most favorable to Elizabeth's interests are in the concessions which the company has agreed to.

The route for entrance to the business part of the city is the most desirable of any suggested. Jersey avenue will be paved from curb to curb, and property in that section of the city will be enhanced in value because of the improvement and the commutation fare to Jersey City will be a decided boon. The taxable valuations of the city will be increased. The rate of fares is low to all points reached by the company's line. The privileges of transfers is covered by the ordinance. The fare between Roselle and Elizabeth, with transfers to any section, will be five cents; the fare between Cranford and Elizabeth for the first five years, with transfers to all sections, will be eight cents, and after five years, five cents.

The company also offers half fares to the children and special rates to school children.

Col. E. W. Hine, secretary of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company, was interviewed in reference to the acceptance of the ordinance by the company.

He said the acceptance is formal and legal, and it was the judgment of Mr. Riker that it was the better way to dispose of the matter, for the reason that it gives to the company nine months in which it will have the opportunity to apply to the City Council for a modification of the objectionable conditions. To let the ordinance die time would be wasted in making a new application, and in the time necessary to have a new ordinance prepared and adopted. The company hopes and expects that the Cranford condition of five cent fare after five years, which is prohibitory, will be changed.

DEATH OF ARTHUR D. PEARSON.

Has Been Ill for Several Months—Member of the Royal Arcanum.

Arthur D. Pearson, who has been ill for several months with paralysis, died early Thursday at his home on Sherman avenue, aged 47 years. Some time ago Mr. Pearson suffered from a paralytic stroke and has since been confined to his home. He was a member of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, and a man with 4 large circle of acquaintances and friends. For many years Mr. Pearson had been engaged in the bulk business. He is survived by a wife and one brother, W. W. Pearson, of this city. The funeral was held from the late home of the deceased Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Interment at Hillside.

New Hall Invited.

The thirty-second annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association will be held in the Church of Our Father, corner of Thirteenth and L streets, Washington, D. C., Feb. 5th to 12th, inclusive, 1900. Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, has been invited and will probably attend the convention.

THE HOPE MEMORIAL CHAPEL DEDICATED.

Auspicious Event for the Presbyterians of the West End.

THE EDIFICE IS A FINE ONE.

DEDICATION WORDS SPOKEN BY THOSE MOST INTERESTED.

Principal Sermon Was Preached by Rev. W. H. Richards—Growth of the Society During the Past Twelve Years Has Been Remarkable—Chapel Furnishings Complete and Paid For.

It was with feelings of regret that the faithful worshippers gave up their old place of worship last Sunday morning after twelve years of association with it, but there was also feelings of pride and joy upon being able to enter a handsome new place of worship in the evening, and thus it was not like forsaking the old altogether for the new, for the two places are connected in such a way that they are inseperable.

Hope Memorial chapel, as this new place of worship will be known, was dedicated Sunday evening under auspices that were pleasing and prospective of success. The handsome church edifice was filled to overflowing, and appropriate exercises were held commemorative of the auspicious event in the history of this people. While there was a feeling of joy and happiness, there was also a pronounced reverence that pervaded the chapel, and the services were of the highest interest. The chapel, brilliantly lighted, could not have possibly shown to better advantage.

The exercises opened with the singing of the hymn, "Sun of My Soul," invocation and Lord's Prayer, led by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor; responsive reading, Rev. F. D Tildon pastor of Bethel chapel; "Gloria," by the congregation; reading of Scriptures, Rev. G. S. Newell, of New York; prayer, Rev. J. O McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel; offertory hymn, "O Lord of Heaven;" offertory prayer, Rev. G. Kennedy Newell.

At this time the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev Dr. W. R Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, who took his text from st John, second chapter and seventeenth verse: "And His Disciples Remembered that it Was written, The Zeal of Thine House Has Eaten Me Up."

Dr. Richards spoke in part as follows: "This place must be one where the poorest sinner can enter the door and receive that Spiritual refreshment, and the sinner's soul is of more value than this temple. We are dedicating God's house this night. Be careful that you do nothing that shall make it harder for people to come here and meet God and receive the blessing He has for them. This place is for all conditions of men, and it should not turn our hearts from God. It must be a house of prayer, and it must unite all conditions of men, and the name of Christ must always remain on this house where God's word shall be preached. It must be a house of praise, a place to sing the Redeemer's praise and reverence Him. Twelve years ago this house was established, and ever since it has been a house of prayer. The chapel has ministered to many needs, and it all belongs to the Lord Jesus Christ. The new house is the "Holy of Holies," where we can come reverently with tender memories to "Our Father's House."

After the sermon the hymn "The Church's One Foundation," was sung, and then followed three short addresses. Henry C. Squires, the superintendent of the Sunday-school, spoke from the words "We Dedicate This House to the Study of the Word of God." In part he said: "I love the Word of God, and we dedicate this house to the teaching of the Word. There is nothing more appropriate than that. We dedicate these pews in the name of God to all who will come here and hear His Word. May many gather to listen to the Word of Life and receive the blessings, and may many be brought to Christ. May God's Word be magnified here, and be studied more, and may the time never come when God's Word shall be lost in this house. We learned to love the old chapel, with its square pews, and its angular rooms, but the new chapel adds inspiration to our work and labor. I am glad we are not to desert the old one, but we welcome the new and hold fondly to the old."

Frederick H. Andrews was the next speaker and he talked from the words: "We dedicate this House as a House of Praise to God." He said it gave him great pleasure to assist in dedicating the beautiful house to God, such a handsome gift, and he hoped that God would grant that many voices would be heard singing His praises there, and that many would join in his praises. He praised God for the old and the new house, and for the many that have found Christ, and he hoped that as God's people gathered they would find that sweet rest, refuge and strength which God alone can give.

The last speaker was Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor, who spoke from the words: "We dedicate this House as a House of Prayer to God." A portion of his remarks follow: "God loves the prayers of his people. We have burdens, sorrows and we need prayer. May we make this a house of prayer. May it be constantly a house of prayer, and may it be consecrated as such. Christ has said 'My House Shall be a House of Prayer,' and tonight we dedicate this house as one of prayer."

Following the above addresses the prayer of dedication was given by Dr. Richards. Then the dedication hymn, "Those Whose Unconcerned Temple Stands," was sung. The services were then closed with silent prayer, and the closing prayer and benediction by Pastor Newell.

After the services many remained to inspect the new building and all commented favorably upon it. Mr Squires came in for much credit for the great amount of work performed by him at the chapel and in securing the new edifice.

Upon the completion of twelve years of loyal service, Sunday evening, the worshippers entered their new house of worship which will be known hereafter as Hope Memorial chapel of the Crescent Avenue church. The remarkable growth and the great amount of good accomplished at this mission, has been a source of wonderment to Christian workers in this city, as well as metropolitanites. From time to time the chapel has of necessity been enlarged until now it can truly be said that the attendants have a church home where they secure all the benefits that come with such an institution. It has been no easy task to maintain this mission and make it the success it has been. It has meant a great amount of labor, accompanied by earnest prayer, that makes it possible for such a celebration as occurred Sunday.

It was twelve years ago Sunday that Hope chapel started in a small but determined way with a handful of people and today a fine substantial edifice has been erected complete in every detail and making a place of worship for the people of the West End that will always stand for that which is good and uplifting. The erection of Hope Memorial chapel was made possible by a legacy of $5 000 left by the late Mrs. Cornelia Van Deventer, whose interests were identified with that body of worshippers. It required $7,000 to complete the edifice, and the Crescent Avenue church loaned a mortgage of $3,000 on the property, and the members of the chapel very kindly raised a sufficient amount of money to pay the interest on that amount for the next two years. The furnishings of the new church home are all paid for. The handsome carpet that covers the floor was a gift from the Ladies' Aid Society of the chapel, while the beautiful memorial window that has been placed directly back of the pulpit platform, was the gift of the Sunday-school class taught by Silas Yerkes. The pulpit furniture, which is of a dark green wood, and very handsome, came from John Doul Miller's Sunday-school class. Mr. Travell's class gave the communion table which is of wood that matches the other furniture, and the beautiful Bible was a gift from Mrs. Hall's class of young men. The contribution plates were presented by Mr. and Mrs. Silas Yerkes The other furnishings for the pastor's study, and the class rooms will come a little later on.

The building is a very substantial one, and the architect, A. L. G. Mareh, has well arranged every part. The acoustic properties are fine, a most essential thing. The main part of the chapel is provided with comfortable pews, arranged in a semi circle fashion, so that a person can sit anywhere and yet obtain a good view of the platform without any obstruction. An alove is provided on the platform, and in front there is an altar. The whole interior is attractively frescoed and painted in rich colors. The pews are of heavy solid wood, a dark green color, and the carpet is of a pretty shade of red. The chapel is so built that the old part can be opened into the new, and thus more room is secured. A cosy vestibule is provided for at the entrance, and there is also provided several rooms that can be used for Bible study. In front there is the pastor's study, convenient to the platform.

From an exterior point of view the chapel is imposing. It is frame, of a dark stained shingle style. A large cupola is located midway between the old and new, thus giving the whole a more attractive appearance. A smaller cupola is placed on the other end of the new building which effects the larger one. At the main entrance a pretty electric light arrangement has been made. The whole building is as complete as possible, and too much credit cannot be given the architect for his endeavors. The chapel is lighted by electricity, in the center being a large chandelier. The ceilings are high, giving plenty of room for ventilation and the sound of the voice.

LATE JOSIAH BROWNE PRAISED.

Resolutions of Condolence Passed by Business Men He was Associated With.

At a meeting of the board of directors of The American Tobacco Company, held on the twenty-sixth day of December 1899 it was unanimously

Resolved. That we are profoundly grieved at the sudden passing away of Josiah Browne, for many years a director and the secretary of this company. By the death of Mr. Browne this company has lost one of its most highly esteemed and efficient officers. His were combined rare qualities of mind and character which not only made him preeminent as a business associate, but also endeared him personally to all with whom he came in contact.

We, the directors, feel and deeply deplore the loss of one of our number, whom it was ever a pleasure to meet.

Resolved. That these resolutions be published in the daily newspapers and a copy, suitably engrossed, be sent to his sorrowing family.

J. B. Duke, President.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of Monopol Tobacco Works, held on the twenty-second day of December, 1899, it was unanimously

Resolved, That in the sudden removal, by death, of Josiah Browne, a director and the vice-president of this company, we have sustained an irreparable loss.

That his genial nature, combining as it did the rare attributes of an accomplished gentleman with those of a gentle nature, will leave a void in the memory in the hearts of all who enjoyed the friendship of his many friends.

We, the directors, deeply mourn the departure of an associate whose advice we all especially sought and the absence of which we shall sadly miss.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the daily newspapers, and a copy, suitably engrossed, be sent to his sorrowing family. Joseph Von Hoppenstedt,

Carl P. Dietz, President.
Secretary.

WEDDED AS YEAR WANED

MISS EDMIE CORLIES THE WIFE OF JOHN UPDEGRAFF HUSSEY.

Nuptials Performed at the House of the Bride's Mother—Home Was Prettily Decorated — To Travel in Japan.

A very pretty wedding of the mid winter season was that of last Saturday, when Miss Edmie Corlies, daughter of Mrs. J. Edgar Corlies, of Road Ending was united in marriage to John Updegraff Hussey, of Pittsburg, Pa. Owing to the fact that the bride's brother died about a year ago the affair was a quiet one and only the relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony.

Rev. J. C White, of Pittsburg, Pa., performed the ceremony, assisted by Dr. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church. The house decorations consisted of greens and holly and American beauty roses. In the service, choir boys assisted and they formed an aisle for the bridal party through the use of broad white satin ribbons, which extended to the improvised altar.

The bride's mother escorted by her brother, J. Dunbar Wright, of New York, entered the parlor first. Then followed the bride accompanied by her grandfather, J. Howard Wright, of New York, who gave her away in marriage. Those who attended the bride as maids were Miss Louise Fiek, Miss Emma Schoonmaker, Miss Fanny Cox, of this city, and Miss Marguerite Wood, of Bridgeport, Conn. Miss Hussey, of Pittsburg, Pa., sister of the groom, was the maid-of-honor, and Curtis Hussey, of the same place, brother of the groom, was the best man. The bridesmaids and maid-of-honor were gowned in white silk muslin trimmed with lace and they carried American beauty roses. The bride's gown was white satin and Duchesse lace. She wore diamond swallows and a diamond star, gifts of the groom.

The bridemaids received from the bride white card cases lined with pieces of the latter's gown, and the groom gave his ushers, Victor King, S. H. Moore, Frederick Hussey and Frank Kennedy, of Pittsburg, Pa., rings.

Those who witnessed the ceremony were Mr and Mrs. J. Howard Wright, William Harold Brown and J. Dunbar Wright, of New York; Mrs. C. C Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Clement C. Moore, Mrs. William Burden, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kingsland, of Pittsburg; Mrs. J. Parker Mason and son, Mr. and Mrs. C J. Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. Bowland Cox, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker, of this city.

After the ceremony the couple left for the south and will then go to California. They will return to Plainfield next May, and will then soon leave for Europe, where they will travel for two years.

JUNIORS CHOOSE OFFICERS.

Annual Election of Franklin Council Held Thursday Evening—Butterfield is Councillor.

Franklin Council, No. 44, Jr. O. U. A. M., met last Thursday in regular session and it was one of the largest meetings ever held, there being nearly one hundred and twenty-five members present. The first business was that of election and the result was as follows: Councillor, Geo. Butterfield; past councillor, Forrester Hartpence; vice councillor, J. P. D. Kirch; conductor, Henry Kilner; warden, John Beakman; inside sentinel, Charles Wilson; outside sentinel, Theodore Martin; assistant recording secretary, David Bodine; representative to State Council, Harvey B. Thorn; trustee, eighteen months, Willard V. Sutton.

After the election the usual Christmas celebration was enjoyed by the members. There was a large tree brilliantly illuminated, and containing a present for everyone. The best feature of this was that everyone received a useful present from the benefit fund left in the treasury, and each member opened his package containing the present it was an occasion of much merriment and it was long into the small hours when the happy event came to a close.

The Last Chapter.

The last chapter in the history of the now defunct Union County Country Club will be the sale of the property of the club. Robert A. Meeker, the receiver of the club, has announced that he will sell the furniture and equipments of the clubhouse, the only assets remaining, at public auction Monday, January 8 h at 10 o'clock.

Services at the Hospital.

Monday afternoon about twenty members of the Local Union Christian Endeavor visited Muhlenberg Hospital and held a very interesting New Year's Day service, which consisted of singing, etc. Most everyone took a little gift along to make the patients at the institution happy.

Informal Dancing Party.

An informal New Year's Day dance was held in the hall of the Park Club house last Monday. It was arranged by the house committee of which Laurens H. Van Buskirk is chairman. The patronesses were Mrs. F. H. Ball, Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Clapp.

VERBAL BOUQUETS TO MR BARROWS.

The Council Resolves Itself Into Mutual Admiration Society.

HONEYED WORDS WERE SAID

MR. BARROWS RECORD HIGHLY PRAISED BY ASSOCIATES.

All the Retiring Councilmen Came in for Complimentary Reference On-To-It Departure as Members of the Body—Mr. Barrows Thought Excellent Work Had Been Accomplished.

As the Common Council is now practically out of power and a thing of the past there were many pleasant features introduced at the final meeting held Thursday. It was to be regretted that Messrs Leifke and Homan were absent, thus leaving vacancies at the last meeting, but the other members could not help express themselves upon their departure.

Mr. Barrows, one of the retiring members was the first to speak. He expressed his appreciation and pleasure in serving the city and of the honors bestowed him, and considered that during the past year two important things have been accomplished. One was that both Democrats and Republicans could set in the Council and to the outside world it was known as the "Common Council." There was no distinction, and no axes to grind. He believed that the time had come when business men and committee were considered the same, all as citizens working for the best interests of the city. He said it was a pleasure for him to serve in the Council with such men.

Mr. Corteil followed with a small verbal bouquet. He expressed his appreciation of the service given to the city by Mr. Barrows, and the great amount of work accomplished by the street committee. He considered good lights, streets and police essential to Plainfield, and in these three departments he felt that great improvements have been made, due in a great measure to Mr. Barrows.

Mr. Buckie stated that he had a small bouquet to add to the bunch. He expressed his confidence in the members of the Council, and when he entered as a member he said he had heard more criticism concerning Mr. Barrows than of any other member. He had learned, however, during his service of two years, that his confidence of Mr. Barrows had improved. He paid a compliment to Mr. Hetfield and said that in any needed improvement the Council always stood by him and supported him, and that there had been no ill feelings, as everyone had a desire to do that which was for the best interest of the city.

Mr. Hetfield followed Mr. Buckie and made a few pleasant remarks relative to the service he had put in at the City Hall. He said that it afforded him great pleasure to serve the city in the Council for 1899. He stated that he had been placed in a position that was not envious. He might have done better for the city had he been placed on certain committees, but that was not his fortune.

Mr. Smith added his little to the bouquet of flowers. He said that being a young member and the only Republican representing the Fourth ward, he thought he would have to fight hard for anything he wanted for the Fourth ward. He was surprised, however, when he learned that anything needful was readily granted. He believed that Mr. Barrows is stronger and more popular today in the Fourth ward than ever.

President Andrews, another retiring member, made a few remarks in which he thanked all the members for the courtesy shown him. He spoke of the harmony existing throughout the year and how well everyone got along.

Mr. Mellick in a few words expressed his feelings of appreciation and pleasure for those with whom he had been associated. Mr. VanHerwerden followed with kindly expressions. He spoke of the work accomplished by the street committee and of the excellent service given by Mr. Barrows, whom all are sorry to lose.

In conclusion Mr. Corteil offered a motion that a vote of thanks be extended to Mr. Barrows and that it be placed on the minutes.

Want a City Hall.

A petition is being circulated among the business men of this city, asking the Common Council to build a city hall and jail. The petition was prepared by C. H. Hand.

A Promise not Physician.
A prominent New York physician in consulting the merits of Ripans Tabules said to a friend of Mr. B. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one wished to become a philanthropist, and do a benefit to humanity, and do a benefit to humanity, and do a benefit to the human race—nothing could be better than to prostrate the Roosevelt Hospital prescription, which is the best of my knowledge, and then to have it put up in the form of a nickel and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.
The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there found that new Ripans Tabules were selling bought a five-cent carton, and asked:
"Do you have much call for these?"
He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department. He said:
"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing. One apparently liberal advertiser of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of these, through the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is because of their intrinsic merit, which proves the long life character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.
An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so in the last occasion I had for one, but found no benefit from the doctor's results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and am saving of $3 a call.
A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar. At the time of this interview there were several ladies who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should publish to the world her name, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending Ripans Tabules to one afflicted as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person to get rid of this terrible disease, I shall be greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The daughter, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXIII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY, 11, 1900. NO. 2.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities."—Madison.

LEGISLATIVE WHEELS NOW ON THE TURN

Part That Union County Men Will Play in It.

REED GETS GOOD PLACES.

CHAIRMAN OF SEVERAL IMPORTANT COMMITTEES.

Senator Cross Will Have Great Influence—In the Appointment of Places Faithful G. O. P. Followers in Somerset and Union Are Rewarded—A Short Session Is Expected Now.

Trenton, January 10.—There are some new faces, but it is mostly the same old crowd that are to be met again about the State House now that the Legislature has convened for the winter session. The opening session yesterday afternoon of both Senate and Assembly passed off without a hitch and the officers were chosen according to the programme laid out at the Republican caucus. It was altogether an auspicious opening with the prospect of a fairly short session for the state legislators hope to complete their labors before the first of March.

Union and Somerset counties have been well remembered in the distribution of patronage but the largest slice has gone to Essex. Aside from its solitary Assemblyman in the State House, Plainfield has no representative here as yet. Senator Charles A. Reed is a prominent figure in the Senate but otherwise North Plainfield is now without any official positions at present.

Senator Johnson, of Bergen, was made president of the Senate, the position held last year by Senator Reed. Senator Pitney, of Morris, will be the leader of the majority on the Senate floor. Senator Reed may be expected to play a prominent part. His brother, Louis T. Reed, of Somerville, is bill clerk of the upper house while John W. Clift, of Summit, is assistant journal clerk.

In the appointment of the Senate committee the Senators from both Union and Somerset counties fared particularly well One term has served to acquaint Senator Cross with the methods of the higher branch of the State Legislature, and he is now prepared to be quite an important factor. He is one of the brightest men in the Senate and will keep Union county in the foreground this session. So it is not surprising that he and Senator Reed have been well treated.

Senator Cross is chairman of two regular committees and one joint committee. He heads the committee on public health and the one on the revision of laws, quite an important one. The chairmanship of the joint committee on the Industrial School for Girls was also given to him. While ordinarily that joint committee has little to do, it may become quite important as a result of the recent investigation there.

Senator Cross is a member of the appropriations committee, one of the most important of all, and also of the committee on elections. His name was also included in the joint committee on the Reform School for Boys.

Senator Reed is chairman of the committee on townships and boroughs, always a prominent one, and the committee on the State militia, who will attain unusual prominence this year owing to the recent reorganization of the military arm of the State. He is the chairman of the joint committee on the State library. He is also a member of the committee on corporations, the committee on the revision of the laws, and the joint committee on the treasurer's accounts.

According to the decision of the Republican caucus, Benjamin F. Jones, of Essex, was chosen Speaker of the Assembly. Among the officers of the Assembly elected were John C. Cooper, of Somerville, as one of the assistant sergeants-at-arms and Noah F. Morrison, of Elizabeth, for journal clerk.

As all of the Union county Assemblymen are new, it is not surprising that no very important positions on committees were allotted to them. The greatest was for Charles S. Foote, of Plainfield, who was made chairman of the committee on ways and means. That committee in the Jersey legislature does not assume the importance, however, that is given it in Congress at Washington. Edward E. Cooper, Somerset's representative, stands at the head of the committee on claims and Revolutionary pensions.

The representation of the Union and Somerset county Assemblymen on the various committees is as follows: Charles S. Foote, of Plainfield, chairman of ways and means, elections

HOW TO CURB TRUSTS

THE REMEDY THAT CONGRESSMAN DALY PROPOSES.

Introduces a Bill in Congress to Have Articles Made or Dealt in by Combines Placed on the Free List.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Congressman William D. Daly, of New Jersey, has introduced in the House his bill to restrict the influences of trusts. Mr. Daly said, after presenting the measure, that he had already received many promises of substantial support in the attempt he will make to have it become a law.

The bill is as follows:

"A bill for the protection of the public against the operation of trusts, combinations, associations and agreements to unduly enhance or diminish the value of articles of commerce.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whenever ten or more persons, being citizens of the United States shall present a petition signed by them, and verified by the oath of at least five of said signers, to the Judge of any Circuit Court or District Court of the United States for the district in which said petitioners reside, alleging that within said district there exists any trust, combination, association or agreement of any kind among manufacturers of articles of public necessity, or dealers therein, to unduly enhance the value of said article, or to prevent the sale thereof, by any person not interested in said trust, combination, association or agreement aforesaid, or to in any other way wrongfully promote the advantage of the manufacturer at the expense of the consumer, the said Judge shall in a summary way inquire into and report to the President of the United States his opinion as to whether said trust, combination, association or agreement exists.

"2. The Judge may compel the attendance of witnesses and examine them under oath, and require the production of books and papers, and shall have such other necessary powers as are now conferred upon him by law for the trial of any cause over which said court or courts have jurisdiction.

"3. If said Judge reports that such trust, combination, association or agreement exists, then the President of these United States shall issue his proclamation to the several collectors of customs directing them to place such article or articles on the free list in order to give the public the benefit of reasonable competition on such articles."

MISSING LINK TO A FORTUNE.

Case Helps New Hope to Secure the Estate in Cleveland.

Flemington, Jan. 10.—The one hundred or more heirs of the estate of Leonard Case, Sr., valued at $25,000,000, now feel confident of proving their right to the property in dispute. They say the missing link has been discovered, and next month the case will be taken into the Ohio courts.

The land in dispute lies in the heart of the city of Cleveland. The grandfather of Leonard Case came to this country from England about 1740 and settled near Flemington. Joseph Leonard Case's father, settled at Vienna, Warren county, where Leonard was born. When about twenty years old Leonard journeyed to Cleveland and took up many acres of Government land. He had two sons, but they having left no heirs, his wife's relatives, the Gaylords, several years ago, brought suit against the estate and received as their share $400 000. The balance of the estate, $25,000 000, is now claimed by the heirs of the second wife of Joseph Case, Leonard's father.

The Case School of Applied Sciences valued at $2,000,000, is included in the estate.

A More Modest Name.

The recent experiences of the members of the Millionaire's Club have led them to prefer a more modest name for their organization and they have therefore decided to change it to the Columbia Social Club. Incidentally, they have added twelve new members on the strength of the change, making a total of thirty-two in all. An election of officers was held with the following result: President, William Dowd; vice president, Harry Batten; treasurer, George Apgar; secretary, Walter Higgins.

Fell From a Scaffold.

Andrew Hoff, of Prospect avenue, fell from a scaffold Monday last while at work on Frank Vail's house on Park avenue near the Baptist church, and fractured his leg. The break is a bad one and he will be laid up for sometime.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul, of Central avenue, are visiting friends in Philadelphia.

SPARK THE CAUSE.

W. T. Newman Places His Loss at $2,500—Today's Fire at $200—$400 Insurance.

The lively little blaze that threatened the property 439 West Second street with destruction early Tuesday afternoon, was caused by a spark from a passing locomotive instead of from an overheated stove as was first supposed. The shingle roof was old and dry and burned readily. The house was owned by William T. Newman, a member of the fire department, who lives next door.

The loss is placed by Mr. Newman at $200, and is covered by $400 insurance. The loss to the contents of the house, the property of Mrs. M. J. Scalle, will amount to $25. There was no insurance. The fire was extinguished with the two streams from the chemical engine.

NEW UNIFORMS HERE

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL CADETS ARE NOW EQUIPPED.

Uniforms Arrived Yesterday—Three Fourths of the School Will Be in Full Uniform—Bought of New York Firm.

The sudden appearance of cadet uniforms on the street Tuesday afternoon and today was occasioned by the arrival of the new uniforms for the members of the cadet batallion of the Plainfield High School. The uniforms were made by a New York firm and reached here yesterday in charge of a representative of the firm. They were distributed at once.

Considering that there were so many to be made, they fitted very well. What few alterations necessary will be made by a Plainfield tailor at the expense of the makers. Regarding the officers' uniforms there was some misunderstanding regarding the style and some change may be necessary.

As the State laws do not permit the use of shoulder straps by any organization outside of the State militia, the officers will be designated by the cheverons on the sleeve. It has not yet been decided what color the chevrons will be.

Three-fourths of the boys of the High School have purchased complete uniforms. Most of the others will get uniform caps and coats. The low price at which the uniforms can be procured make them advantageous purchases. Most of the boys will wear them everyday as well as at the times for drill.

MORE TROLLEY TALK.

Biker to Ask for Modification of Ordinance—Two Routes for Reaching Elizabethport.

Elizabeth, Jan. 10.—Since accepting the city's ordinance the Westfield & Elizabeth Street Railway Company has strongly made no move toward taking possession of the right of way over Jersey avenue.

President Ryan said that he understood the company is waiting for favorable weather, and will begin very early in the spring to lay the tracks. He expected to learn before this that the company was engaged in getting consent for a belt line, or route to the lower part of the city. One route is to be as outlined recently through East Broad street, Magnolia avenue, Division street and Court street, to Front street.

The other route is to be to the sound front by way of Bayway. Mr. Ryan said the company would make application for these franchises, he believed, in a short time.

The Council will be asked to remove the section providing for a five-cent fare to Cranford after five years, and, it is alleged, the amendment to be proposed is to extend the time for 15 years before the low fare shall go into effect.

A COMPLETE SURPRISE.

A Jolly Party Invade the Home of Mr. and Mrs. MacPherson.

Mr. MacPherson, assistant manager at Crosby & Hill's, and wife, were surprised Tuesday by a number of their friends at their home, 421 East Fifth street. The evening was spent in playing games, singing and recitations, at the end of which refreshments were served. The surprise was complete in every particular, and after Mr. and Mrs. MacPherson had recovered they proved to be an entertaining host and hostess.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Martin, the Misses Kathryn Daly, Mamie Casey, Anna Searing, Daisy Snyder, Sadie Searing, Josie Murphy, and Messrs. John Gaffney, J. O'Keefe and Elmer Cutting. Mrs. Coolbaugh, of Paterson, assisted her sister, Mrs. MacPherson, in entertaining the guests.

To Fill Place of Late Charles Potter.

The election of J. A. Smith as a director of the First National Bank, at the meeting held Tuesday, was to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles Potter, Jr.

SWELL RESORT WHERE POKER IS THE GAME.

High-Toned People are Sponsors for the Gambling.

ONE YOUNG MAN LOST $180.

ONLY THE SELECT ARE ABLE TO OBTAIN ENTRANCE.

The Game is Politely Called "Whist," but It Is Real Draw Poker Played for as High a Limit as $5—As an Extra Attraction an Elaborate Lunch is Served Those Who "Break the Tiger."

A startling disclosure has just been made in high life in this city, which has caused quite a sensation in certain circles. The people interested are among Plainfield's best known, and are highly connected in society and church. They have been faithful in their attendance at church Sunday morning, but the afternoons have been spent in going up against the seductive game of poker, but in this case politely called "whist." In fact those who have been invited to the secret place were given to understand that a quiet game of whist was to be played.

From time to time various young men have spent their time and money at the place in question, and for some time things were kept very quiet. How the thing happened to leak out was through the fact that several of those participating in the game lost a great deal of money. These facts reached the ears of their parents. One young man lost $180 according to his own admission; another lost $43, another $37.50 and still another his week's wages. These are only a few of those known, but it is said that there are many others who have lost smaller and greater amounts.

Those who have been conducting the resort are few in number, but of very pleasant manner and ability. It is said that out of their number selections are made as to who shall invite certain ones to the parlor of the "spider and the fly," and it is even said that the church is visited for the purpose of meeting certain people who are to be asked to have a quiet game of "whist."

After the unlisted have been playing for some time someone suggests that they try a little poker, just for fun. This lasts a little while, and then they begin to play for money. Of course, each man has a certain amount of confidence in his hand, and he is soon betting anywhere from $1 to $5 The joke is that none of the outsiders have been known to come out ahead. They are allowed to win for a few times and then they begin to lose until everything they have is gone.

An extra attraction at the place of meeting is the most excellent "lunch" provided, which is served gratuitously and which is a great inducement to the young men. It is understood that while the game is in progress a man is kept on duty at the door and no one is allowed to enter unless he is "all right." For some little time past the police have been on to the place, and it is understood that investigations are being made.

V. L. FRAZEE WAS HOST.

A Number of Friends Entertained in Hospitable Manner Last Tuesday Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Frazee entertained a number of friends at their residence in West End Park Tuesday There were twenty-five present and a delightful evening was spent. Progressive euchre occupied the attention of the guests for a time. Miss Anna Vedin, of New York, and Francis J. Biers won the first prizes. The second prize went to Miss May E. McLaughlin and John G. McLoughlin. Miss Sheppard and John Powers carried off the booby prizes. A collation and dancing occupied the remainder of the evening.

Fireman Not Guilty to Murder.

Elizabeth, Jan. 10—A special session of the Union County Court was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of arraigning Fred, alias Philip Davis, the negro who is charged with the murder of John Monks, and who was brought out from New York at noon by Chief of Police Toomey on a requisition. Judges Vanderpool and Vail were on the bench. A plea of not guilty was entered for the prisoner, who was then remanded for trial, which will take place at this term of court.

Mr. Vail's Old Partner Dead.

Mr and Mrs. A. C. Vail, of West Eighth street, were called to White Plains, N. Y., this week on account of the death of Mr. Vail's former partner, Mr. Gardiner, which occurred a few days ago.

WELL RECOMMENDED.

Important Non-Youth for High Standard of Senor Lala's Lectures—As Music Hall Tonight.

Plainfield is offered an unusual opportunity in the illustrated lecture that Ramon Reyes Lala will deliver in Music Hall Tuesday evening. Senor Lala has had great opportunities to study the land of his nativity, the Philippines, and he is particularly well qualified to speak with authority on the subjects that are now of great interest to all Americans, however they may view the expansion policy of the present administration.

Senor Lala, whose book on the history of the Philippines has attracted much general attention, has received letters of commendation from Governor Theo. Roosevelt, Admiral Dewey and many of the other prominent men of the country.

BIG JOB FOR THE CHIEF.

HE MUST SEE 200 TAX DELINQUENTS IN THE BOROUGH.

Warrants Turned Over to Chief Campbell by Justice Smalley for Those Who Have Not Paid Their Poll Tax.

There is a small war on in the borough. It started today and from now on there will be trouble for the two hundred or more persons who have failed to pay their delinquent poll or personal tax. Justice Smalley has just made his return of the warrant to Chief Marshall Campbell, and that official started in this morning to hunt up the delinquents. It will be a case of pay up or go to Jail, and most all of them would rather settle than be locked up.

There are about 200 delinquents on the list and it will require considerable time to get around, but Chief Campbell is doing very well. Prior to 10 o'clock this morning he collected over $10 and thus far he has met with no reverses, but he is looking for trouble and will be ready for it when it comes. In placing the warrant in Chief Campbell's hands it relieves Collector George F. Brown of a great deal of work, which, with his present amount of work, would be too much for one man to attend to. Several persons who have heard of the new procedure have called at the collector's office and quickly settled their several accounts, and others are expected to do the same thing.

DELAYED AN HOUR.

Broken Eccentric Rod Detained a Blue Line Flyer Yesterday Afternoon.

The Royal Blue Line flyer, that usually passes through Plainfield at a rate of sixty miles an hour shortly after 2 o'clock, was delayed in Plainfield Tuesday afternoon for over an hour. The delay was occasioned by the breaking of the eccentric rod on one side of the locomotive. It was necessary to remove the rod and the train then continued its way, the locomotive using only one side. Drill engine, No. 67, pushed the train over the Fanwood hill and then it continued its way to Jersey City without further aid.

GRIGGS AND VICE-PRESIDENCY.

Would Not Decline the Nomination, But Does Not Expect It.

Washington, Jan. 10—Attorney General Griggs yesterday intimated that he would not in the least be displeased if the nomination for Vice-President should be tendered him at the Republican National convention, but he said he thought that such a possibility was very remote.

The Attorney General said that he thought he ought not express any personal views in respect to the matter, and more than that he declined to say.

It is learned from an official, whose relations with Mr. Griggs are close, that the Attorney General has but little faith in the boom that is being made in his behalf by friends in New Jersey. He believes firmly in the sincerity of the friends who are pushing his name to the front, but he knows that New Jersey alone cannot nominate him, and he has not yet learned that his name is being boomed by any other State.

Westfield Bank Directors.

Westfield, Jan. 10—The stockholders of the First National Bank here held their annual meeting yesterday, and elected directors as follows: A. D. Cook, J. R. Connolly, C. G. Radicott, H. L. Finck, Dr. J. B. Barrisce. The officers are: A. D. Cook, president; C. G. Radicott, vice-president; and J. R. Connolly, cashier.

Reception to Newly Married Couple.

Col. and Mrs. Mason W. Tyler will give a reception to their son and his bride Friday afternoon and evening at Col. Tyler's home on West Seventh street. It will be followed by a dance for the younger set.

GOVERNOR NAMES THEM

APPOINTMENTS THAT MR. VOORHEES WILL HAVE TO MAKE.

List of Retiring Officials Suggests the Gradual Disappearance of Democratic Officials That Have Ruled Jersey.

Governor Voorhees will have quite a bit of patronage at his disposal during the present year. The list of retiring officials suggests the gradual disappearance of Democratic officeholders throughout the State. A few years ago every county judge and every prosecutor of the pleas was a Democrat. It seems now as if the day is rapidly approaching when not a Democratic head will be left in the 21 counties. The only Democratic judges are Woodruff in Mercer, Conover in Monmouth and Barrise in Somerset, and the only Democratic prosecutors are Stagg in Bergen, Budd in Burlington, Acton in Salem and Dungan in in Somerset. These retire this year, and their successors will be Republicans. Following is a list of the appointments which the governor will make this winter, subject to the approval of the senate.

Circuit Court Judge—Francis Child and Richard T. Miller; terms expire March 11th. The report is that Judge Child will be reappointed and that ex-Governor Werts Dem.) stands a chance of the other place.

Supervisor of State Prison—E. J. Anderson (Rep.); term expires June 11th. Likely to be reappointed.

Commissioner of Banking and Insurance—William Bettle (Rep.); April 1st. Will be reappointed.

State Board of Assessors—Robert S. Green; term expires March 31. Stephen J. Meeker; term expires March 1901.

Commissioners of Pilotage—Henry W. Miller, John B. DeWar, Henry G. Gulick, Mark Townsend, Daniel C. Cease, John C. Weaver, all May 11th.

Reform School For Boys—Nathaniel S. Roe, Horace L. Dunhash. May 25th.

Girls' Industrial School—This board has undergone a complete shake up during the year. Four vacancies occur in May.

Managers of the New Jersey Home for Feeble Minded Women—Benjamin F. Lee, E. K. Pangborn, Barton F. Thorne, all May 17.

County Judges—Somerset, Robert S. Woodruff, April 1; Monmouth, J. Clarence Conover, April 1; Somerset, John D. Bartine, April 4; Essex, J. Franklin Fort, April 1.

Prosecutors of the Pleas—Bergen, Peter W. Stagg, March 18; Burlington, Eckard P. Budd, April 4; Camden, Wilson H. Jenkins, deceased, vacancy being now filled ad interim, March 22; Salem, Jonathan W. Acton, April 22; Somerset, Nelson Y. Dungan, Feb. 19.

State Board Medical Examiners—Aaron K. Baldwin, George F. Wilbur, Edwin De Baun, July 5.

The governor also has several appointments independent of the senate, including a police justice for West Orange and members on the state boards of pharmacy, dentistry and health.

FOWLER HOLDS THE KEY.

New Jersey Congressmen Seeks to Enjoin Rapid Transit Scheme.

Elizabeth, Jan. 10—Next Monday the Rapid Transit Commissioners of New York city are to open bids for the construction of the road, but a legal battle will yet remain to be fought before any contract can be awarded.

Congressman Charles N. Fowler, of this city, has filed a bill of complaint against the city of New York and the Rapid Transit Commissioners in the office of the clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the southern district of New York.

Mr. Fowler, through his attorneys, Gifford, Sterns & Hobbs, of 18 Pine street, alleges that the adoption by the Rapid Transit Commissioners of the plans for a four track road on which bids are asked constitutes a violation of devious and rights covered by letters patent held by him.

In the bill he prays that the respondents may be required to make answer, and that during the pendency of the suit and perpetually they may be enjoined from infringing on the letters patent.

Washington County Officers.

The following officers have been elected by Washington Camp, No. 30, P. O. S. of A.: President, Harry Lock; vice-president, Robert Bowden; master of forms, Fred Rose; recording secretary, Mc Martin; financial secretary, George Alley; treasurer, H. R. Barton; conductor, D. J. Smith; inspector, J. Ayres; outside guard, Walter Stewart; trustee, Frank Bailey.

A Chance of Ice Stored.

The property owners on Somerset street interested in the widening will meet this evening at the Council rooms and discuss the subject. It is to be hoped that everyone will be present.

OFFICERS TAKE THEIR CHAIRS FOR THE YEAR.

Joint Installation at G. A. R. Hall Tuesday.

MANY PERSONS PRESENT.

DR. BERG INSTALLED AS COMMANDER OF WINFIELD SCOTT POST.

Installation Ceremonies Were Conducted by Past Department Commander Smith—W. R. C. and S. of V. Officers Assume Their Duties—An Interesting Programme Carried Out After Business.

A large number of people assembled Tuesday in G. A. R. Hall to witness the joint installation of the officers-elect of Post No. 71, Women's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans, and also to enjoy a pleasing programme of music and recitation. Past Commander E. C. Morse was master-of-ceremonies.

The officers of the G. A. R. were installed first by Past Department Commander W. C. Smith, as follows: Commander, Dr. Joseph F. Berg; senior vice-commander, Francis Whiteley; junior vice-commander, Augustus Runyon; surgeon, Israel Compton; officer of the day, I. L. McVey; chaplain, John Gordon; officer of the guard, John Finley; adjutant, E. C. Morse; quartermaster, John Naylor; quartermaster-sergeant, W. Townley; delegates to department encampment, Francis Whiteley, Israel Compton; alternates, V. W. Nash, William Alspaugh; trustees, W. C. Smith, William Hand, M. C. Dobbins.

Then followed the installation of the officers of the Women's Relief Corps, by Past President, Mrs. W. C. Smith. The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Caspar Bodstedt; senior vice-president, Mrs. W. B Mattox; junior vice-president, Mrs. Charles Stephens; chaplain, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; conductor, Mrs. E. C. Morse; assistant conductor, Mrs. Isaac Beukes; guard, Mrs. Alex. Sergeant; color bearers, Mrs. Devine and Mrs. Huntington.

Last came the installation of the Sons of Veterans by Past Captain H. C. McVoy, as follows: Captain, R. F. T. Smith; first lieutenant, George Bedford; second lieutenant, Frank Perry; chaplain, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell; first sergeant, Willard V. Sutton; quartermaster, H. C. McVoy; color sergeant, Clifford Compton; sergeant of the guard, Raymond McVoy; corporal of the guard, Edward Devine; picket guard, W. Perrine; camp council, Raymond McVoy, Frank Perry and Clifford Compton. Two or three of the above officers were absent and they will be installed at the next meeting.

In addition to the installation exercises which were of a very satisfactory order, an interesting programme of music and recitation was given which included instrumental selections by Miss Berg, cornet; Mrs. Pfender, piano; G. T. Dunham, trombone; Martin Korff, violin, and there were patriotic songs by Dr. Berg, accompanied by Mrs. Pfender, piano, and Miss Berg, cornet. There were recitations by Miss Martin Bedford, and a pleasing vocal solo by Miss Etta Bedford, accompanied by Miss Emma Nelson on the piano. A fine piano selection was given by Miss Symons, and a thrilling recitation was given by John Becker which brought down the house. Among the vocal soloists that won applause was Mrs. John Manley, who gave some of her best selections. The artists were all remembered and received handsome bouquets. After the rendition of the above there were short patriotic addresses by members of the Post, Corps and Sons of Veterans in the good of the order. There were a number of out-of-town veterans present who spoke, including James Atwood, of Trenton. The affair throughout was very enjoyable, and closed with the singing of "My Country 'tis of Thee."

SLATER'S ASSAILANT GOES FREE.

Railway Young Man Does Not Appear to Press the Complaint.

New York, Jan. 10.—Walter Rosser, the medical student, who shot Frederick Slater, of Rahway, at Madison Square Garden a month ago last night, in the presence of five thousand people, was yesterday discharged by Magistrate Pool in the Jefferson Market Police Court.

The Magistrate said because Slater did not appear to prosecute the prisoner there was nothing to do but dismiss Rosser from custody. The young man, who had been in the Tombs, walked out of the court room a free man.

QUEER FISH.

Have this Like an Eel, Identified as a "Shark Sucker."

Mr. James H. Gale, of Talchester Beds, Md., recently submitted a queer looking fish for identification. It was caught near Talchester.

The specimen was about 16 inches long and had a ok is like an egg's, seemingly entirely devoid of scales. The body was elongated, tapering behind; the lower jaw projected beyond the upper, with the head decidedly flattened. Above the head was quite a long, oval disk, presenting from the middle of both sides elongated somewhat carefully-arranged plates, arranged like the slats of a Venetian blind.

On the middle of the outer surface were spine-like projections connected by short bands with the skull and vertebrae, partly sectorial and partly prehensile by the hooks, these fan attach themselves to rocks, ships and the bodies of other fishes, especially to sharks. They are thus when fastened to ships or fishes transported where food is to be found, often from the tropics to temperate regions. They do not feed on the fish to which they attach themselves, but on small fish and floating animalcules.

Mr. George M. Bowers, United States Fish Commissioner, says of the specimen, "It is the species known as the 'shark sucker,' 'sucking fish,' and 'remora.' (Echeneis naucrates). It ranges from the Cape Cod southward in the tropics, and is not uncommon on our coast and in the Chesapeake Bay. The peculiar structure on the upper side of its head, suggesting the slats of a rubber shoe, is a modification of the dorsal fin, by means of which the sucker attaches itself to sharks or other large fishes, apparently causing them no inconvenience, and feeding on the remnants of the shark's meals. There are a number of other species found on our coast, but this is by far the commonest and best known."—Baltimore Sun.

LETTERS TO THE POPE.

How to Address Them So That He Will Open the Missives.

I met a prelate employed in the Vatican the other day, and in the course of conversation began to deplore my hard lot in having to stay in Rome during the heat of the summer and autumn months. "You are not the only one worse off than we in the Vatican. Now that most of the employes are away, we who are left have to work hard."

"Oh, you poor things!"

"Yes, walk in the Vatican gardens and count the grapes of the Pope's vineyard?"

"Do you know that every evening the mail brings to the bronze doors of the Vatican an average of 20,000 letters and newspapers, to say nothing of telegrams? All the letters have to be open-d, sorted, and classified, while the newspapers are read, and select one cut or extracts made during the night to be ready for perusal by the officers of State early the next morning?"

"And where does the Pope come in?"

I interrupted. "They say he also works on hard?"

"Much of this work is submitted to him, and he should read all the letters addressed Sanctitoti Sono Leoni Papae XIII, Bellegio, Italia, for instance, as the whole 24 hours of the day would not be sufficient for the Pontiff to even glance over them, he only sees that Cardinal Ramolla thinks necessary for his inspection."

"In other words, he knows only what they choose?"

"No, there are communications which really go direct to the Holy Father, namely, those through the diplomatists accredited to the Vatican. His Holiness has a way of having a slot in a rubber shoe, is a modification of the dorsal fin, by means of which the sucker attaches itself to sharks or other large fishes, apparently causing them no inconvenience, and feeding on the remnants of the shark's meals. There are a number of other species found on our coast, but this is by far the commonest and best known."—Baltimore Sun.

"Guinea Nigger" Fortune Teller.

She was a small, stout, very black darky, one of the kind that are called "Guinea niggers" down in southern Georgia, and she was charged with being a fortune teller. A striped kerchief was worn into a crown above her sable brow, and when she laughed a low, chuckling laugh she showed rows of great white teeth, which matched the white of her eyes when she squinted them at the witnesses who swore against her. That was Georgia Prescott as she stood in the dock in the police court. Three damsels, with many a blush and simper, told how the woman had told their fortunes for 25 cents. A negro girl started to say she had told Georgia to tell her fortune for 10 cents.

All the while Georgia kept up her chuckle as she looked from face to face of the court and eyes. Finally she exclaimed:

"Fer de lawd's sake, let dis ole nigger hab er chance ter say er few words. Jedge, I no pert ter tell de truf, an' I run de cyards fed dese folks, but dey mostly made me done it. Yes see, I hab de power ob de second sight, and kin see how de matter is under de cyards and when dey comes ter me and axes me ter run de cyards, I axes 'em nuff money ter make it horrible."

"Georgia," said Alderman Mitchell, who was wearing the ermine of the Recorder, "can you tell what's going to happen?"

"Sure kin, Jedge," replied the old woman. "Yer jest try me and see whedder I kin or no."

"Then tell me how much I am going to fine you."

"Yer is gwine ter make bit mouty tight, fer yer face an' yer judgment wid de right hind ob a heart."

The Alderman blushed and let the old woman go on payment of court costs—only 75 cents.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Cockatoo's Nut-Cracker Bill.

There is a wonderful cockatoo in one of the islands of the Indian Ocean, near New Guinea. It is as large as a full-grown pheasant, and it is of a jet black color. The bird is remarkable for its immensely strong bill and the clever manner in which it is used. The bill is as hard as steel, and the upper part has a hook at the end.

Now, the favorite food of the cockatoo is the canary nut; but there is a wonderful ingenuity required to get at it, for the nut is something like a Brazil nut, but it is ten times as hard. In fact, it requires the blow of a heavy hammer to break it. The kernel is small and somewhat triangular in shape. Nature appears to have given the possessor of the wonderful bill some intelligence to discover the secret of the kernel, which takes one of the nuts edgewise in its bill, and by a curving motion of its sharp lower beak makes a small notch on each side of the nut. It takes hold of the nut with its claws, and, lifting off a piece of beak, retains it in the deep notch in the upper part of the bill. Then the nut is wedged between the upper and lower parts of the bill, and is prevented slipping by the peculiar texture of the beak. Then the bird breaks off a tiny piece of the shell of the nut. The bird then seizes the nut in its claws and pokes the long, sharp point of its bill into the hole and picks out the kernel bit by bit.—Savannah News.

Forgot to Weigh His Head.

The advance in the price of meat probably works more hardships than the public is aware of among those who have little to live on. Here is an incident which occurred in a butcher shop on Hickory street recently. A small negro girl entered the shop and asked the butcher for five cents worth of "dog" meat. She added:

"Mamma said to ask you to please give me better meat than what you did yesterday because the other dog meat made papa sick."

That was too much for the butcher, and he gave her a good piece of "choice steak." After the weight had been taken on the scales with the meat, so much was he engrossed thinking of her papa's appetite for meat.—St. Louis Republic.

While manufacturers and others throughout the United Kingdom are protesting against flooding their home market with goods marked "made in Germany," the Berlin Kosmische Zeitung appeals to the Germans to show their patriotism and assist home industries by buying German-made cloth in place of the English material.

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Some of the Events and Customs Connected With This Anniversary.

January 1 was made the beginning of the legal year in England in 752.

On New Year's Day in ancient Egypt there were processions in every temple.

The legislative union of Great Britain and Ireland took place on January 1, 1801.

The emancipation proclamation of Abraham Lincoln was issued January 1, 1863.

The American Indians had a sort of New Year festival, celebrated with feasting and dancing.

In Siberia the state prisoners of the Czar have allowed to rest and holiday on New Year's Day.

In Athens a new statue, either to a god or a hero, was erected and consecrated on the first day of every year.

In south of France it is customary for families of means to give their servants new suits on New Year's Day.

In Norway there is a superstition that the kind of fish caught on New Year's day will determine the character of the fishing during the year.

The custom of watching out the old year and waiting for the new to begin, is observed by many, if not, if not in most of the civilized world.

Suetonius and Tacitus allude to the custom common in their time among the Romans of exchanging good wishes and presents on New Year's Day.

In Covington, England, God cakes are made for New Year's Day. They are round, flat cakes, made of yeast, inclosing a portion of mince meat.

In Wales there is a superstition money should not be paid out on New Year's day, for, if it is, the payer will have bad financial luck all through the year.

The old missals the month of January was pictorially represented by a white-haired man clad in furs, bent with the cold and blowing on his fingers. In the background a fire is blazing almost knee deep in the snow, and a billet of wood and sometimes an axe are by his side.

After the fall of the empire and the restoration of the Bourbons in Paris a fashion arose of giving bonbons as a New Year's present. The confection was prepared for the New Year's trade, and it was estimated that on the two days before New Year's of 1822 a thousand tons of candies were sold in the confectioners' street in Paris.

The ancient Jewish year began on March 25, and owing to the fact that many of the early Christians were of Jewish origin, and thus gave tone to early Christianity, the Jewish year was long retained among Christians. The beginning of the year in writings of the early fathers were dated according to the Jewish division of time.

Janus, the Roman deity, whose name was given to the first month, was the god of all gates, doors and entrances. He presided over the beginning of new enterprises. His image was placed above doors and gates, and he was always presented with two faces one looking outward and the other inward. Special sacrifices were offered to Janus on the first day of the year and a feast was held in his honor during the month.

IN JAPAN.

A Great Bear Feast the New Year's Ceremony.

For a thousand known years the Ainos have stood still in their civilization, following all their primitive customs and ceremonies generation after generation century after century, practically without change. New Year with them is the day of their greatest feasting and merry-making, consisting principally, but happily, of an extravagant use of an intoxicating beverage known as saki, or rice wine, which puts the whole population in a helpless condition long before the day is done.

The principal ceremony is the great bear feast, called the iyomante. In which a huge bear is slain and sacrificed as a special offering to the god Kamui, who is the guardian and protector of their homes throughout the year. It is necessary to conciliate this god by the special donation of bear's meat and skin, that he may be free from the persecution of the unseen, intangible spirit demons who seek to do them harm.

It is said that the bear for this feast is raised from a cub, suckled by an Ainu woman who, because its foster mother, and in her heart feels toward it all the tenderness and love she would for her own offspring. As the end of the year draws nigh her cruel lover grows more and more elated with joy, helps nurture and fatten the feast bear for the coming celebration with carefully prepared foods.

Alas, it is a fearful day for the foster mother when her entire family drags her bear son from her arms to the scene of sacrifice! She tears her hair and wails, while the children and grandparent, with joyous cries, dances in front of the party who drags the beast by a rope to the place of slaughter.

The killing of the bear is done in a most horrible and brutal manner. Two fair sized logs are lashed, one above the other, in a standing frame, and extend horizontally resting upon the ground. The entire clan takes part at the death, which is accomplished by opening the ends of the logs sufficient from the tree like a huge jaw, and dragging the head and neck of the struggling beast between the opening, and then squeezing and strangling with mighty pressure the life out of the poor bear.

A Sultan's New Year Gift.

A courteous exchange of presents was frequent between sovereigns of various nations. One of the most fascinating historical types of this custom and customs of the day is apparent in the offerings sent in 1859 by Sultans Mahmoud to Queen Victoria. It consisted of a costly robe and girdle and five handkerchiefs two wrought in gold and three in oriental silks, the girdle was studded with pearls and rubies and a wreath of diamonds.

A Dash of Cold Water.

Turning over new leaves, a harmless New Year's custom, but there is no probability that the world will ever be materially bettered by it. The man who waits until the year comes round to make a resolution rarely fails to break it while it is young and tender.

BILLIARD BEGINNERS

JACOB SCHAEFFER, EX-CHAMPION, ON THE GAME.

Holding the Cue, Striking and Banking —Things the Beginner Should Learn —The Value of Confidence—Little Things to Remember.

The great thing about billiards that the beginner needs is confidence in himself, says Jacob Schaefer, the well-known player. Every young man who wants to be a good player must make up his mind that he is going to be the very finest in the world. With-out confidence he won't amount to shucks.

Now, some billiard players, who call themselves great, believe in holding back balls and advise from those who show signs of being real things. I take the opposite view. In fact, any man who wants advice or counsel from me gets none to me. If I see he has great talent I'll help him all I can. I like to see folks take an interest in the game, which I consider the greatest on earth. The more good players there are, the more the public takes an interest in the game, I find.

Although I have been told that the atmosphere of billiards is immoral because you see tobacco smoke about the table and maybe a glass of beer on a table near by, for, if it is, the player will have bad financial luck all through the year.

We will suppose that you two young chaps are about to bank for position. Now the four ball is a little old fashioned. It has come to stay on the table, so I'll dwell on the up-to-date three-ball game. When you try for lead have a cue that fits your hand and is heavy enough. Mine that weighs 18½ ounces. I'm not a big man. I've used a 20-pound cue. He wasn't bigger than I am, but he was built like a Sandow. Size of man don't tire you. One that you won't have to rest on the ground while you are waiting for a shot.

Keep it chalked, not only the tip, but the wood part for nearly a foot back of the leather. Don't look around to see if your friends are sitting about watch your chalk efforts and make rude remarks. Go right ahead.

When you get a chance at a table alone practice banks. That will give you the value of force. Keep at it for hours until you can drive the ball from in front of you to the cushion far away and back to the spot where it started, within an inch of the cushion under your elbow. A good banker may depend on the first shot and start in on a good string, but the young fellow who didn't practice bank shots is like to lose the game.

When you are satisfied with making long shots try from side to side of the table.

It is simple enough, this counting so I have been told, but it isn't. All you've got to do is to hit one ball with a cue and make it strike another one afterwards. Every one knows the difficulties of this game, however, and with the elasticity of the ivory balls the height of life is inanimate things is reached. The cushions seem full of life and the floor must be bewitched.

You think there are only four corners to a billiard table. You are mistaken, young man. As a beginner you will think there is only one place to hit the ball with your cue. I suppose, really, there are hundreds of them. They are big and undemonstrable. Each punch in a different spot means a difference in results. Then, too, the ball hit does different things, according to the way it is struck by the cue ball, which is whirling to the right or left, as the case may be when it encounters the ball it is sent after.

The wooden bridge which is always in the way under the table, and which young players use, is a clumsy thing and one to be avoided. When one use it is operated, as you may know, as a rest for the cue. It is absolutely rigid, and so is a bad thing. Never use one. Learn to play with both hands, and make your disengaged hand a bridge. It will be sensitive, where the wooden one is not. Another thing you must learn is to never have your cue less further than ten inches from the hand on which the cue rests nor less than four inches off. It is funny and bad billiards. I always control the balls at one or the other end of the table. By so doing I avoid the lengthy rail, as the side cushion is called. This system has been to keep the three balls, if possible, between the string or the spot and the lower end of the table. The striking of the balls from 8x10 feet to 2½x5 feet. The reason is obvious—the working balls are cut in two. Striking the ball with the cue in the middle or left side instead of the centre diverts its course when it hits the cushion, as well as when it hits the ball, so called Hibbish; why not Irish or Prussian, I do not know.

Hitting the ball underneath makes it jump, some balk at this, but after it has hit the ball it was aimed at. Striking the ball from overhead with the cue one side made of the sphere performs little circumvolutions and go around the corners. The follow shot, consisting of striking of the cue ball on top, makes it run alide but ball it hits instead of coming back to you like the draw shot.

gets rattled will never arrive at the championship class. With this good quality, goes the firm eye and the rigid hand.

CYCLING CONDITIONS.

An English Cyclist Who Claims We Are On the Wrong Track.

Henry Sturmey, the secretary of the International Cyclist's Union, made a visit to this country last summer and was greatly shocked at the cycling conditions existing in America. Abroad Mr. Sturmy is accepted as a power in cycling, and his long connection with the sport has given him a very strong following. Since returning to England he has reviewed his experiences in this country with some candor. He says: "Abroad, as a rule, racing matters the sporting feeling is largely non-existent, especially in so far as professionalism is concerned, and not to the extent that it is here, that is to say, one hears only 'dollars' as the aim and end of every action. It is this which has been largely responsible for the present position of cycle racing in America, when racing men and officials who have 'worked the sport and their positions in the U. S. A.' to their own ends and have been 'disciplined' accordingly, are able to openly defy the recognized authority, and to attend meetings and run their own show in the built of more dollars than the other fellows can provide. In so far as the pastime is concerned, it may be said that where it has the spirit which actuated the riders of the 'ordinary' days is largely non-existent, and as, I am told, the same holds good the safety has introduced to cycling an entirely new class of rider, to whom the idea has never appealed of either the pleasure of the ride or race for the amusement, health and recreation to be obtained thereby. To him the bicycle is nothing more than a means to an end, and that end is low cost—a means to an end. In his consideration of the almighty dollar, he has recognized that the bicycle as a fine machine is practically impossible. This recognition of the economic uses of the bicycle has, of course, had an enormous influence on the American people and the enormous 'boom' period of a few years back, whilst the fact of the perception of the people not extending beyond the point has been largely responsible for the disaster which has attended many firms and the present unsatisfactory position of the trade in general. So far as the American wheelman is concerned, looking upon his wheel as a mere means of locomotion, of its fine points and delights he has little or no idea, as can only deplore that the dominance of the dollar should have reduced the American bicycle to the level of the sewing machine, a highly developed and promising industry, and deprived the American people of much of the value of their wheels."

WHIST GOSSIP.

Discussion of the Matter of Discard in Doubtful Cases.

It is possible sometimes in whist to make a double play, as it were, a discard showing your weak suit and at the same time declaring four trumps. The old masters used to state it as a general rule that when "calling for trumps" you showed your most plentiful suit. It took some time for the authorities to define "strength in trumps" but they finally agreed that it was four honors or more. They do not think it necessary to pass doubtful tricks with five or more trumps, because with so many they are usually strong enough to win. There are exceptions are hands in which the fifth trump looks as if it might be useful as a card of reentry.

Discarding when you cannot win the trick, or it is already your partner's, and discarding second hand on doubtful tricks, are two different things. In the first case you have a good deal of judgment to be used as to the suit which you shall select to discard from, but in the second there is really nothing to be considered whether to ruff the trick or pass it. There are times when it would doubtless be good policy to win such tricks, as if you had four good trumps, but there are others when it would be very foolish to trump in, even with three small ones. This is also a very puzzling question for those who have to play against skillful players, as just because you have less than four trumps, should he make a false discard-tic. Many a fine hand has been spoiled and countless tricks have been lost by sticking in a little trump second hand on doubtful tricks when the player had no desirable continuation after taking the ruff and getting the lead.

There are also times when it pays better to get rid of the last card in a plain suit than to trump it, especially if you see that by so doing you can overtrump next time, or can get into the lead to advantage, or perhaps sting a crowd. There are also many occasions in which it is very necessary to discard a certain losing card instead of trumping, especially if it is clear that you will be in the lead with that card after all your partner's trumps are gone.

The discard, when you can trump, can be made only when a plain suit is led. It therefore presupposes that you have in your hand some trumps and at least one plain suit and that the card thrown away is the one you can best spare. It is very seldom that such a discard will be misleading, because if you could trump it you will have to discard from his best suit in order to keep a singleton ace or an honor guarded, if such is the case, and the player is not averse to having trumps come out, it is better to discard some interior card, perhaps as high as a nine, so as to give him all the appearance of strength, and so invite a trump lead. The same tactics must be followed if you have only one plain suit in your hand.

AN EFFECTUAL EFFORT.

Three-Finger Sam's Eloquence Was Not to Be Withstood.

"Talkin' about oratory," said Bronco Bob, "you ought to have been out to Crimson Gulch the last fall, so as to get some of the real thing."

"We have some pretty handsome spechifyers in Congress," ventured the man who had been quiet on him so as to show a little local pride.

"Not a circumstance. I've read some of them kind o' speeches. I've heard 'em from the floor of the House in the East and started in to tell Crimson Gulch what it orter do. Some of the boys allowed things was gettin' rather slack, so they says anithin' for a change, so they took his advice an' blowed away an' organized a city council."

"I see. You held an election!"

"Nary. We didn't want any blood shed. We just passed the word around that the city council was going to be elected by the votes of the whole body, was there except Nevada Bill, an' he didn't dare show up, because he was under suspicion of sittin' in a game of draw poker at the back of a blue chips which he had bought unbeknowst from a store in San Antonio. It wasn't long until, under the instruction of Three-Finger Sam, the importance of any poker chips except the duly recognized authority for said importance. Rattlesnake Pete was the only way to deal the last y'hadn't was to pervide that anybody breakin' it should be shot at least once. The tenderfoot got riled in a minute. He wanted to know if Sam drawed the most long-winded talk about constitutionality an' the rights of citizenship an' things that I never knowed I ever heard. He talked hard, and showed he had read books. But you orter have heard Three-Finger Sam's historic reply. It jes' shook the whole camp. A man who has the gift of genuine eloquence kin end an argument. Crimson Gulch has not got through talkin' about it yet. Three-Finger Sam drawed himself up to his full hight and pinted his finger at the tenderfoot. 'I don't desire to use no harsher words than is necessary,' says he, 'but I'd like to know what you mean, you low-down, lop-eared jack rabbit, by comin' into this town an' tryin' to tell us whether we kin play poker or not? If you've got to wait fur some lantern-jawed coyote to come wanderin' in off the prairie an' tell us what's good fur us? I'll perceed to show you right now,' an' he p'intin' his finger an' growin' more eloquent every minute, 'Beware, you low-legged burro. Don't you think you kin fool with the boys of Crimson Gulch, you wear specs. Have a care, or the first thing you know you'll be travelin' on to whole totes with a mob of patriotic citizens on your trail, every one of whom is dead anxious to shoot a freckle off'n the back of your neck!' The orator paused to take another word to say, an' he left town the next mornin'."—Washington Star.

Docking Horses.

Docking horses took its rise in the dark days when bull and bear baiting were honored by a place in the category of sport rightly now relegated by the more civilized ages to the stage. The custom of docking was once generally applied to English roisterers hunters and harness horses. The only useful purpose it ever served was to let the Peninsula war when English dragoons could be most easily distinguished from French by their cockatails. It fell into disuse with the disuse of round coaches, and we owe its unwelcome revival to their partial foundation. It is often difficult to distinguish upon broad mares and horses turned out to grass, depriving them of their natural defense against flies, besides the severe pain and inflammation the operation itself. It should be discouraged in every possible way by influential persons, by those who lead the fashion, and by those who judge. Agricultural societies should be moved to refuse prizes to exhibits which have undergone this mutilation.

A Fish Wheel.

A curious fish wheel is used on the Columbia River, near Portland. The wheel is placed in the bed of the river, a place being selected where the river is most rapid. The wheel consists of three receivers. These are enclosed in wire netting, like coops, and, as the wheel revolves by means of the current, each receiver is submerged beneath the water, and scoops up the salmon as they jump in the rapids.

Costly Canals.

Canals, and particularly ship canals are costly undertakings. The Suez Canal cost $100,000,000, the Manchester ship canal $90,000,000, the North Sea canal $27,500,000, the north Holland canal $25,000,000, the Kiel canal $20,000,000, while the partly completed Panama canal has swallowed up over $250,000,000.

Unique Mine.

The iron mine at Bell Island, Newfoundland, which is the principal property of the company, is said to be one of the most unique in the world. It is an open deposit of ore, 500 feet wide, and three miles long, and all the labor necessary to get it is to bore holes and shovel it into cars.

Siamese Superstition.

The Siamese have no strong a superstition against twins as the Chinese, but they will have none of them. The number of rooms in a house, of windows or doors in a room, even of the steps on a ladder, must always be odd.

Bull Fights in Paris.

Paris is to have its bull fights to add to the entertainments of the exposition. The arena, however, will not be within the city walls, but at Enghien, which is some 13 minutes' journey by train.

Artificial Paving Blocks.

The newest artificial paving blocks to be adopted in Germany are made of bituminous coal tar, sulphur and chlorate of lime.

STRANGE DEATH.

Young Wonnee's Parrot Turns on Her and Asphyxiates Her.

There were things uncanny and unparalleled about the sad death from asphyxiation recently of Miss Alice Knott, the wonnee of Mrs. Alice Knott, a widow, who was killed in her room by a parrot, a little, evil-eyed, green thing, that cannot speak a word or fly a yard, but had designs on the life and the trick of living on the air. Hence the rest of the world with a spite that makes its eyes gleam and its sharp beak grow dull unceasingly at the approach of all living things, except the parrot followed Miss Knott from floor to floor and from room to room with a constancy and affection remarkable in a bird of its species.

This parrot turned on the gas in Miss Knott's room early in the morning while she lay sleeping and the young woman was smothered to death. She was dead about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the bird that had brought her mistress to an untimely end lay half suffocated at the foot of the bed, but effectively seeking the fresh air that mocked the death-laden room through that open window.

It seemed incredible that a parrot could have acquired a drug habit, but this parrot actually did so. The housebuild that he has is sadly lacking in testitude to it. He had become a chronic victim of illuminating gas. How long he became informed with whatever charms the vice appeared to possess to one can say. He was destructive by nature and learned to pull the latex tips from gas fixtures as he sat upon them. Then he would sit and suck in the gas with his strong beak to turn on the gas. This the bird has done scores of times and filled the rooms of the Knott house with the noxious fluid, but when he was always serene. He would turn on the gas, pull out the lava tip, which hits hill on the brass sides of the apparatus, sit down on the floor to suck it in and soon fall into a sleep, which is seemed to find delightful, for he repeated the trick whenever he had the chance.

TINY WIDOWS.

The Fate That Comes to Many Fair Indian Girls.

Marriage for the East Indian girl can hardly be said to exist. Indeed, very few such girl regards it as her proper fate, as do girls in other countries. How can a girl who has been petted in a dozen by an indulgent father welcome the fate which comes to her when she steps into a tightly closed palanquin and is conveyed to her husband's house? Once in the bosom of the family to his mother, and look eagerly forward to old age, which gives her the privilege of ruling over her husband in the same manner. Perhaps that is the one country on earth where old age is not a bugaboo.

To her husband a bride is just about as important as his dog or the family tabby. From him she receives the portion of food she eats at each meal, the remainder of which is given to the dog, conveyed by a slave. He eats what he wants and then sends the rest on a platter to her and the children.

Little girls are married to young men three years of age, and if the little boys to whom they are bound by the marriage die fill and die, these babies become widows, different creatures, who never know a moment of comfort. They can never marry again, and can never witness a marriage ceremony. They are only the scum and drink of food and fast for one whole day every two weeks. They cannot even eat with their own mothers, must dress their hair, wear jewelry or ever sleep upon a bed. A piece of matting on the hard floor is considered good enough for the unfortunate child, and they are even denied the covering, no matter how cold the weather. If a woman forgets herself so far as to show the least bit of happiness in her widow, she is instantly placed among their castes, for her whole future has been sacrificed by her yielding to an impulse of the heart.

Indian Blood.

The recent double tragedy in New Mexico, where an Indian murdered a woman because of unrequited love, and then literally hacked himself to pieces, recalls the story of Sergeant Tahakpow, a half-breed Indian of South Amherst, Mass. Because his fiance and child's wooing of an unmarried young man, the Indian went to the woods and killed himself with a knife. Had he been reverted to a more hideous ancestry than his own untamed blood would have done. Because the Indian could not marry Edith Morell he murdered her. Edith Morell he murdered her, turned his home and shot himself.

The Indian threatened to kill the girl if she did not marry him, and he subsequently did carry out his threat.

But now that Edith Morell's funeral hymns have been sung and she has been laid to rest, now that their lacie and ribbons and heap of charred bones in the ruins of the Morell home the cramped mind of an Indian, the good people of Amherst think, will be content to let us or other that an Indian's word is good. Let no Indian ever show himself to that town again.

THE LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Immortality Will Soon Be An Assured Fact.

REV DR. SAVAGE'S BOOK.

A Frank Discussion of an Important Subject—He Says There Is No Sort of Question That There Are Such Things as Ghosts.

In his book called "Life Beyond Death" Dr. Minot J. Savage announces that he does not believe in spiritualism.

This is something of a surprise, considering the fact that Dr. Savage has for many years—since 1874, he says—been lecturing upon and investigating the subject and making constant reference in his lectures to its phenomena. He treats spiritualism at length in this present volume.

The book reviews the beliefs held in the past concerning "life beyond death." He considers primitive ideas, ethnic beliefs and middle-age belief in the devil world, compares them with that of Paul and Jesus, and takes up the present conditions of the same belief. He treats the fervor of belief in the other world and that apparent reaction which followed it, and the present spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism.

In his discussion of the Old Testament idea as to immortality, he says:

"We see, then, as the summed-up result of the brief outline, that although there was no teaching against it, and emphasized on the surface of the Old Testament in these other worlds, there really was a common belief underneath the surface, growing up in the hearts and imagination of the common people and we see also what we commonly misunderstand, that these other worlds take the shape which they had to take.

He sums up thus the teachings of Jesus on the other world:

"We know these. I think, that the eternal life, being a quality of character, exists to-day. It is not something to be waited for. Our friends, for example, if they are alive at all, are now alive at all, are alive this minute. We are immortal this moment."

Dr. Savage's study of spiritualism has influenced the treatment of immortality, as in the paragraph after the preceding, in which he says:

"This every-day, commonplace world of hopes and fears, meetings and partings, joys and sorrows, this world, according to the Gospel story, is encased in a world of spirit, immersed in it, surrounded by it as by atmosphere, I am not saying that you believe it.

Dr. Savage points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon people. He treats the agnostic with tender consideration.

His chapter on the spiritualistic negation is filled with bits like this:

"If the world is to be saved by spiritualism, without any reference to its truth or its falsity, is that it does not ask your blind belief. It says, 'Come and see, and do not believe a word hecause of what you can see or hear or feel of reality that carries with it this great conviction.'

"I have had what purports to be long letters of messages from the other side, and I have never had one that was soundly orthodox."

He says that Dr. Lyman Abbott and Dr. Hillis are believers in what is essential in spiritualism, but are anxious to guard themselves against the belief in such vulgar things as a rap on a table. Dr. Savage says:

"Frankly, I can never understand what there is so foolish or degrading in a rap. I tap on the door to announce myself to you in a letter. Suppose I have a friend in the unseen, close by me, who wishes to communicate something to me, and finds he can call my attention by a rap. Is there anything so very silly about it? If there is I am to dull to discover it."

Dr. Savage is frank about wishing to believe in immortality himself.

"If it were possible to prove that beyond this life is another, if we could just know that, would not it be worth while for the sake of the comfort and happiness it would bring? I do not say it is possible yet to know it. If so, would it not be worth while?"

The probabilities and hopes for future life, he says, fall short of demonstration, but he adds:

"As an evolutist first, last and all the time an evolutionist, I believe with my whole soul that it will not be long before immortality will be as much discovered as America was discovered by Columbus."

A chapter is devoted to the studies of the Society for Psychical Research, of which Dr. Savage is a member. The appendix is devoted entirely to a discussion of spiritualism. In the course of the chapter he says:

"I think there is no sort of question that there are such things as ghosts."

His own position in regard to spiritualism is thus stated:

"I have said little published a number of times that I am not a Spiritualist. I take the trouble of emphasizing it once more, because I am constantly represented as being one. I say I am not a Spiritualist. At the same time I am perfectly willing to say that I believe there is great truth at the heart of the spiritualistic movement."

A REMINISCENCE.

New Year's Day and the Doctor at Blue Ridge.

"Speaking of New Year's," said the Nevadan, "I always call to mind this time o' year the blow-off we boys gave a young doctor chap who came up to Blue Ridge just at the time that camp was the liveliest. Which I might add that though the days of the Ridge was few in the days of the Bonanza, while it did last there was no camp on the Pacific Slope from Puget Sound to the Rio Grande that could furnish so much dust. The camp was inspired in Blue Ridge every twenty-four hours. But the sport did'nt need any medicine. It was not, as you might say, a sickly neighborhood, which it seems peculiar to remark, seeing as how we had the most likely looking graveyard, considering age and population, as you could find in all the Sierras. But the gents as populated the graveyard was mostly a lively and hard lookin' lot, and right inclusive of the moment of their demises.

"That's what the boys were speaking of when the doctor came into camp.

"Long Bill remarked to me that the boys who was hurt ought to make an effort to last until the doctor could arrive, which Bill claimed as a legal claim on any dust they might leave. He was just the kind of chap for the camp, if so it had been that there was any trade for him, for he was quiet, nervy, had more book learning than the editor and was cheerful and obliging, especially obliging, for he preached a Sunday sermon over the late dealer at the faro bank, though the said dealer had died of his wounds before the doctor arrived.

"Some said as how we ought to send down in the valley, where they was all shaking eternally with malaria and inspect a burying ground for the Doc to practice on, and pay him as much for the clean-up. He laughed when we proposed this and said it would be unprofessional, and that he was glad the party as had the practice in the valley.

"Then we proposed that hereafter any party dying of his wounds before the Doc could arrive was held to Doc's effects should be levied upon for a fee to be paid to Doc. All the boys agreed to that, and we got so worked up over the proposal that a disagreement resulted, which ended in a sudden death, but we cheerfully sent for the Doc just the same.

"Well, he came, and when he saw the state of the case he said as he wasn't an undertaker he couldn't be of any service.

"Then we told him of the new rule, and offered him the pile of the deceased, which was in a canvas sack behind the bar. He, the boy, take it, not even a sample for essay, and the disappointment of the boys was sad to see, especially the shotgun messenger, whose intentions had done honor to his heart and aim.

"It was a few days before New Year's that the Doc sent down to a piece in a San Francisco paper, which was a kind of location notice, stating that our Doc was going to be married to a lady in the city. We all got to thinking, and we thought harder than ever when the Doc tells us that he was going to leave us on New Year's Day to take up his practice in San Francisco. We held a meeting and discussed the state of affairs, having a pretty good idea of how the land lay financially with the Doc, because his money was on deposit with the express agent, and he was chairman of our meeting.

"Well, at that meeting we laid out a plan that worked as slick as a diamond drill. On the day before New Year's day that was sent for by Long Bill, who held the old Monumental was working again like a forty stamp quartz mill. Doc prescribed and when Bill asked him what was the note, Doc said it would be $5. Bill said he'd hand it to him when he bid him goodbye at the stage office next day. Then I sent for Doc and said that old bullet wound in my leg was on strike again, took my prescription and promised to pay next day.

"I don't suppose any doctor in the world ever had as busy a day as ours did that day. It seemed like every man in camp was sick. There was trouble about bones and the Doc's ma out of names of diseases, but I went up to the doctor's office and copied out a lot of names from one of his medical books, and the legs booming. Some of the younger boys got stuck on the names of sicknesses I dealt out to them to make it look like from one to the other the whole deck, which seemed to puzzle the Doc somewhat.

"Well, the next day we met and marched around to the stage about starting time, and there was Doc, looking a bit worried, but he looked a lot more surprised when he saw all his patients so callish.

"We gave him a send-off and an envelope.

"Did you remember what was in the envelope? I disremember the odd dollars, but it was enough over five thousand to leave him that clear after he had paid the expenses down to the Bay."—Edward W. Townsend.

SAVING SYSTEM.

That of France Tends to Form Habits of Thrift.

The Government report on the operations of the savings banks of France in 1897 shows that the thrifty habits of the French people are such that many small savings are well maintained. The aggregate amount due depositors at the end of the year was 3,811,3.5,3.5, an increase of about $4,000,000 over the preceding year. The number of the books in use was 6,772,562, representing one depositor for every five and a half persons in the country. Under the ... of 1895 the maximum deposit is now 1,500 francs, or $289.50, and the average deposit less than $59.

In the number of depositors and in the amount of savings France is, however, in proportion to population, far behind these states in this country in which the savings system is established. New York, with 1,985,538 accounts and $748,684,916 of deposits, and Massachusetts, with 1,284,782 accounts and $472,919,016 of deposits, lead the list, but in all the New England States and in New Jersey, Maryland and California the per capita deposits are far beyond those of any country of Europe.

Comparisons based on these figures, however, would be unfair, as the limit of individual deposit is much higher in this country. In France the savings bank is strictly what the name implies—not a bank of deposit for capitalists, but a reminder for the accumulation of petty savings too small to be taken care of in any other way. Accounts are opened for sums as small as one cent per week, and although the deposits are encouraged. Of the total depositors in 1897 the number of minors was 95,518 boys and 91,890 girls.

It is the care of the savings bank and of those of the wage workers which is the special function of the French savings bank system, and the habit to form the habit of prudence and thrift in the young—an excellent thing too much neglected in this land of the free and the happy-go-lucky.—N. Y. World.

BOY'S HEROISM.

Made Him Heir to a Fortune of One Million Dollars.

Cornelius McCarthy, the proprietor of a little cigar store at Sixteenth and Jackson streets, Philadelphia, has fallen heir to a fortune estimated at no less than $1,000,000. His old friend John McCarthy, with whom he passed many days as a boy, died a few days ago at his home in Ireland and left it to him. His benefactor had been postmaster, Peace Commissioner and a man of much influence in the County of Cork.

If he bore any relationship at all to Cornelius McCarthy it was very distant. But the old man had never married, and when he died, when he returned to Ireland, after a rough but successful experience in the Australian gold fields, a warm attachment grew between him and the young Cornelius, then a post boy employed at the office of which the rich man had been placed at the head.

One day the old man tried to ford the river Lee on horseback, and his horse floundered in the swift current and pitched the rider into the river, where he struck his head on a rock and was stunned. Cornelius, riding by his side, jumped in and pulled him out.

That act was never forgotten. When the boy made a resolve to start out himself in search of fortune the old man placed $10 in his hand, and he was the only man from Coppinstown since the latter came to Philadelphia. The newly made millionaire is about twenty-two years old, and has not fifth 70 in all, and the photographer said grade. The letter which told of his good luck was from James Hickey, a lawyer in Cork.

McCarthy says he will continue to live in Philadelphia.—Exchange.

Russian Alcohol Monopoly.

The monopoly of the sale of alcohol in Russia, says the Chicago Tribune, is to be established on January 1, 1899, in four eastern provinces; on July 1, 1899, in nine others in the south and southwest and in 1901 to all the empire. The chief result has been more satisfactory. The receipts from taxes were 31,000,000 rubles, while under the new system the Government received 56,000,000 rubles. Le Mouvement Economique, in a discussion of the monopoly, asserts that from a hygienic point of view the monopoly system is a decided gain. In four-fifths *of spirits is sold, the number of dram-*shops has been reduced. The sale of liquor on credit has been suppressed, and those who are employed by the Government savings banks show that a smaller proportion of the earnings of the peasants is spent for liquor. Finally, there has been a noticeable diminution in drunkenness and in those crimes and misdemeanors which are caused by intoxication.

Schoolgirl's Good Fortune.

Miss Hattie Smith, the eighteen-year old daughter of a retired farmer, Thomas Smith, is now heir to $1,-500,000. Her grandaunte, Richard W. Smith, of Glasgow, Scotland, has signed a contract to settle $1,000,000 on her when she arrives of the age of 21 in consideration of her going to Glasgow to live with him and brighten his last years. The will graduate from the high school this week, and will go to Glasgow in August next. Her uncle is 82 years old. He is now visiting in Chicago, Ill., and Elroy, Wis.—Stevens Point, Wis., Cor. Huge Panther Shot.

For 15 years a huge wild animal has made its home in the dense undergrowth of the big hills 12 miles south of this place. It has been seen many times prowling around farm buildings at night, and always escaped. A few days ago James R. Woodward, while hunting in the hills, saw the animal in the bushes and succeeded in killing it. It proved to be a big panther. Farmers in the neighborhood breathe easier, as the animal was a continual menace to live stock.—St. Joseph, Mich., Cor. Chicago Chronicle.

Awkward Substitution.

"Father is it a crime to kill an editor?"

"Not before a jury of delinquent subscribers."

"Well, I'll take the chances. Here the Journal has gone and published a portrait of that awfully homely Miss Scaggs and put my name under it."

"Poor Miss Scaggs."—Cleveland Leader.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

The Flattering Fox.

A tasty, silly lamb met a gay young fox,
He bowed with a "How do do?"
She made sheep's eyes at the swell young chap,
Which is just what a lamb would do.

He asked her to drive in his fine new cart,
Of course she could not say nay
For the rig was neat, and he looked so smart,
And her own new hat came that day.

As they rode along through the cool green woods,
Such fine things he said,
Till the poor lamb's head was completely turned,
And she blushed a rosy red.

"You're really most charming," the fox remarked,
"Ah you are, and yet I'd prefer"—
He paused to consider; the lamb cried out,
"And how would you like me, sir?"

The villainous fox smacked his smiling lips,
As he said, with a wicked wink,
"I'd like you boiled for dinner, my dear,
"Next day—lamb stew, I think!"

The lamb turned pale and tried to flee,
She couldn't escape, of course;
And old Mother Fox had her nicely served,
With gravy and fine saint sauce.

The moral is plain as the nose on your face,
Tho flattery lend no ear;
A flatterer always a dangerous chap,
Even though he won't bolt you, my dear!

ROYALTY AT PLAY.

Kings and Queens Enjoy Themselves Very Much Like Other People.

Somehow or other we never seem to think of royalty as really human in the way of playing practical jokes or having like common, ordinary folks. A daring photographer at Copenhagen has snapped his camera on royalty at play and obtained some pictures that are not only amusing, but which show the extremely human side of those destined to sit on high places.

King Christian, of Denmark, as the juniors all probably know, is grandfather to the Czar of Russia and the children of the latter. Every New Year's year at least there is a joyous family gathering at Copenhagen, to which all look forward with the greatest pleasure. In the picture represented as Grand Duke Michael of Russia leaning over the shoulder of his aunt, the Princess of Wales, to tickle the ear of his sister, the Grand Duchess Xenia. Several merry others of the same sort, about 70 in all, and the photographer said nothing about them until he placed these exhibitions in his album. Royalty heard of it, of course, and two of those most interested, Princess Victoria of Wales and Grand Duke Michael, went down to investigate.

Instead of being angry, they were highly amused, and insisted that the photographer bring the pictures to the palace to show to the rest. Everybody enjoyed them, and before he left the photographer received orders for several sets of the pictures, which have since been distributed among the various royal relatives. It is a pleasure to learn that modern rulers are not only as human as the rest of the world, but that they can enjoy a practical joke, even when they are the victims and the whole world knows it.

MEDAL OF HONOR.

Few People Would Know the Rare Decoration If They Saw It.

The medal of honor granted by Congress for valor in the service of the military is so rare that hundreds of officers have never even seen it.

The bow knot worn in the buttonhole is that of the medal given unreserved, except by the very few. The medal is of black bronze, and is often mistaken for the Grand Army insignia, the latter having been patterned after it to a certain degree. It is much larger than the latter, and on the reverse side is engraved the name, rank, date and place of battle in which the service was rendered, and the specific act of heroism for which it was given. The medal is only worn on state occasions, but the bow knot is worn always. It is a military affair, with its specific ribbon. It is of silk, white stripe in center, bordered by two blue stripes. It is much like, and is often mistaken for the Congressional medal of honor worn by civilians, but the latter is suspended by the broad official ribbon of the order around the neck.

Had to Talk.

A very little fellow has a very lively tongue, and talks so much at meals that on a recent occasion, when there were to be guests at the table, his elder brother bribed him with a quarter to be quiet still. After 16 minutes of silence the little boy whispered anxiously to his brother: "Arthur, Arthur, mayn't I talk a nickel's worth?"

SAMOAN GIRLS.

They Are Athletes and Born Coquettes.

The Samoan girl is not only an athlete, she is a born coquette. From the time she is ten years old, she begins to make eyes from behind a beautifully carved fan. She is without modesty, but romantic to the extreme. It requires all her romantic nature the Samoan girl when engaged is a match for any Samoan warrior in activity and strength. It has been said that the Samoan women and girls are even harder to deal with than the men. They are absolutely without feeling, and are cruel to their captives.

If a Samoan is fortunate she will wear a necklace of shark's teeth and carvings made of some metal. That is her emblem of office. The shark's teeth are the present of the favored suitor, and it often is the case that a girl hardly in her teens will have many necklaces. The poor shark's teeth remain before the more admirers she has, and, therefore, the more is envied by her less fortunate sisters. The Samoans are a great people for dancing, and during holiday season dancing is in order day and night. The girls take to dancing as naturally as they do to swimming. They are born to it, and seem before she is taught to walk. They are graceful, and readily learn any dance.

The Samoan girl has no choice of husbands. The marriage is always arranged by her parents, and she accepts the inevitable. However, marriage does not prevent a woman from having admirers.—Woman's Life.

That Unlucky 13.

"How do you think I have been absorbing my summer vacation?" asked the girl. "No, I am in earnest. Of course I don't mean riding in the open cars. Don't you know you always hear of interesting things on railroad trips? They have to have it. They go abroad, not so much to study as to get atmosphere, and I thought perhaps it might be a good thing to supply that needful and get a little for the different things I am doing. I first commenced to do my hair up on the leaves of a German calendar, but it occurred to me after I had begun that it was a practical way of getting this atmosphere, and I am not sure but I did get quite a little better with my German. But I finally came to grief, and you would never guess how. No, not with my German, but with my hair. One day I was particularly anxious to have my hair look well, but in the morning when I took out one of my curl papers the lock of hair that was wound in it was perfectly straight. I couldn't see how it was, because I had done my hair up all alike and this was the only one that went wrong. Now, I am not superstitious, although of course I wouldn't do anything when there was a very bad omen. But what do you think? The piece of paper to which the curl was fixed by the tract. You'll see me fall when I come to a place where there's room."

"Certainly. Let me have it again."

HIS STORY.

A Queer Lad and His Old Old Story.

He was a little bit of a darkey and much bigger than a lump of coal and not much whiter, and when I called him up to do an errand for me across the street his eyes snapped as if they were electrified.

"What is your name?" I inquired.

"Tusk, boss," he answered, with a bow and a grin.

"That's a queer kind of a name. Your people aren't temperance folks, are they?"

"Deed, boss, I dunno. Dey calls me Tusk, but my name's Pasquotank Pocustinkus."

"Oh," I laughed, "that's enough name for two kids like you are. Where do you come from?"

"Tse fum Nort Ca'liny, boss."

"What are you doing so far from home?"

"Doin' de best I kin, boss."

"How much have you made to-day?"

He stopped a moment to study.

"When I gets de ten cents you's gwinster gib me," he said with a wry shrewd little smile, "I had not agreed to no price. But I'll tell you. I gits ten cents mo', I'm de nex' gemman. It'll make twenty cents, boss."

"But I say, Tusk, can't five or twenty cents a day, can you?"

A shadow, if a shadow could show there came into the little black face, and with it a hard line as of determination.

"Tse gotter 'ten mo', boss," he said. "I can't die, for dey ain't nobody but me ter take keer ob mammy, an' she's mighty po'ly mos' of de time."

Possibly Pasquotank Pocustinkus was not aware of the originality and his story may have been told many times before, but I think not, and I know that his revenge is that day was more than twenty cents.—Washington Star.

Would Come Around All Right.

They were seated side by side on their sofa, and there wasn't room enough between them for an argument.

"George," murmured the maid, after a blissful silence, extending over a period of several minutes, "I'm afraid you're not very practical."

"Why, do you think so, dearest?" he asked.

"Because," she coyly replied, "it seems to be out of place."

"Oh, well, never mind," said George. "It will come around all right."—New York World.

NOTHING GOES TO WASTE

Refuse Matter Turned Into Handsome Products.

THERE ARE MILLIONS IN IT

Rags and Tops of Beggars Into Dainty Billet Doux.—A Great Industry in New York and Its Profits.—Seen in Basements.

"Nothing in New York goes to waste," said a William street dealer in old metals and old magazines, to a Press reporter.

"Old rubber use to be thrown away. At present it is remelted and revulcanized, and a good deal of the old rubber of your boots and shoes is made into fresh rubber soles. Your overshoes may be made of old rubber soles, so you may be certain that your rubber soles go back and rubber coats on your feet.

"The rags and tatters of the town are turned into handsome products. A fine, soft paper is made from cotton rags of beautiful tint, with a monogram on it. It may have been a beggar's shirt, but—anonymously into a billet-doux. The cheapest stationery is made from rags. Another bachelor writes his letter may have been an old woman's night-gown. The million of bits, with a fine, fleecy paper, is made of the rags of a thousand alleys. It is the cheap paper on which the newspapers are printed that has an irrepressible tendency to turn brown within three days of the forest trees. But the fine grades of paper are the tattered raiment of tramps and wanderers, cleaned by the hands of artists, and mechanistry into a beautiful product.

"The basement shop of the dealer in printed rolls of commercial ledgers, over which bookkeepers wore out their eyes, and with old newspapers which discuss the politics and news sensations of a week ago. He watches with old copper teapots, old brass saucepans and battered britannia ice pitchers. He says money is a heap of old copper that glistens in Klondyke gold. Here and there rise mountains of old magazines.

The copper teapots and brass saucepans retain, by their fallen circumstances, an air of cheerfulness. But the situation of the old Century and Harper's magazines that stand in the corner is almost pathetic. Though printed eight or ten years ago, many of them are not even cut, but new, for their leaves are still uncut.

Compare their prices with that of old copper and old pewter, which they resemble. An old pewter pint measure or an antiquated ice pitcher brings thirty times as much, values for ounce, as do these literary treasures.

"We pay a penny and a half for copper pots and old pewter spoons, and magazines and old newspapers from seeing to weeds," said the dealer. "Just browse in the basement. Those bundles of years ago only ten or fifteen firms in the city were engaged in it. Now it keeps busy a hundred firms. Then the material was worth $10 a ton. Collecting tribes was a few hundred then and dollars a year. Now it is about $30,000,000.

"Some of these firms, which occupy dark little basements, have a capital of from $2,000 to $20,000. They handle from 10 to 100 tons of paper a day. Sometimes twenty tons of paper go out of a place in twenty-four hours. I have received in one day a single bale of half-a-million sheets, weighing 1,500 pounds to the bale. That is fifteen tons of old accounts. The owner of trade handles thousands of tons of old metals and old paper every year."

"What are old metals worth?"

"New sheet copper brings from 28 to 30 cents a pound for large quantity. Old copper, 15 cents. You see old copper brings almost as much as brass. We pay 15 cents a pound for britannia ware worth to give the dealer a profit of about 1 per cent, copper and 1 per cent, silver. It is durable and will last a hundred years. Britannia is almost the same as silver, and is made of white, likewise pay 15 cents a pound. Pewter lasts well, and we often get quality English pewter pitchers that are fifty years old. Old zinc is worth a penny a pound. Old tea lead, from china, 2 1-2 cents; old type, 3 cents; old sinks, 2 1-2 cents; old theatrical, 4 cents; old electrotypes and stereotypes, from three to 3 to 4 cents. All these old metals are melted down and used over again.

"Old account books, diaries and old letters are bought by the quarter of a pound, and are made over into writing paper.

"Old newspapers bring $1 a ton, or one-quarter of a cent a pound. They are sold to the paper mills by the pound, and go through the press to be born again as newspapers. Perhaps the newspaper which originally was Emperor Napoleon's address at its second birth Republican.

"When people move, about the first of May, we get many curious articles in our line. Old books, old papers, many old books, pamphlets and newspapers. Most of our metals come from factories; most of our magazines from families.

"The second-hand book dealers sell now and then our stock. They carry away any rare old book or pamphlet and pay us a profit for the chance to find. They get them for a song, and as we get them by the pound, they sell them for what they will bring."

The King's English at Home.

"I have not been able as yet to pass for an Englishman, for my speech betrays me. The other day I inquired of a boy in the street where a certain store was. He looked at me in amazement. I then explained that I wanted to buy a penknife. 'Oh,' said he 'you mean a pocket knife.' Yesterday I asked the ticket peddler at an underground railway station: 'Do I take this train for ——?' 'Why, of course you do,' he said. 'But if I were you I should let the train take me there instead.' The other day I entered a bicycle store and inquired of the proprietor if he had wheels to rent. I repeated my question several times, but he did not understand me, and finally I asked: 'Have you wheels for hire?' when a red face took charge of a bargain."—London Letter in Baltimore Sun.

Preserving the Palisades.

With the convening of the annual session of the law-makers the preserving of the Palisades from the vandals who are rapidly defacing the historical and rugged scenery of the west line of the Hudson river, is again brought prominently to the public and the official mind. The agitation for the preservation of this beautiful stretch of imposing rocky formation originated principally in New Jersey, but the interest manifested in the cause by the citizens of this State has been echoed by those of our sister commonwealth, and New Yorkers are now evidencing as much appreciation of the Palisades in their natural state, and a desire to keep them from further demolition, as Jerseymen. This is shown in Governor Roosevelt's message, in which he devotes considerable attention to the problem of saving the Palisades. He says:

The State should assiduously preserve for its people on the park lands within its limits. So far great good has been done by the Niagara Falls Reservation and its interests should be advanced in every way. I call the attention of the Legislature to the report of the Palisades commission, which has my hearty approval. The Palisades should be preserved. They form one of the most striking and beautiful features of nature in the entire country, and their marring and ruin should be a source not merely of regret, but of shame. New Jersey in its reality has interested in their preservation than we are, although they are in their territory, for their beauty can best be observed from ours.

There are two miles of the Palisades in the State of New York and ten in the State of New Jersey. No further riparian rights along their base should be granted, and I suggest that a commission to represent the State of New York be appointed, and that the Governor be empowered to request the State of New Jersey to appoint a similar commission to serve with such commission, and to confer for joint action by the two States to secure the permanence of this splendid natural monument.

New Jersey's position is reference to preservation of the Palisades is unquestionably favorable to the project, and if the officials of the two States will co operate in a determined effort to suppress the conversion of the rugged ledges that rise up majestically from the Hudson river, into commercial purposes, then something successful can be accomplished. In this respect the recommendation of the Palisades Commission, appointed by Governor Voorhees last spring, is opportune. It says: "The first action to be taken would be the passage o an act by the Legislature constituting a permanent Palisades Park Commission, with power to acquire and hold for the State so much of the land between the edge of the cliffs and low-water mark as may be deemed necessary to prevent the further destruction of the Palisades. The land so acquired would constitute a park."

What Advertising Does for Business.

No business place, no matter how pleasing its environment nor how gaudy its decorations, can survive without patronage, says the Philadelphia Record. There can be no supporting income where there are few sales, and there can be little selling where advertising is not invoked to bring customers. By advertising liberally the shrewd merchant secures patronage, sells freely, and not only maintains his business but is enabled to enlarge it.

Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, one of the most brilliant ministers in New York, made a true observation, at the same time offering a gentle rebuke to a certain class of the brethern of the cloth, when he said: "From the echoes I hear from other places, and from scores of my own in this place of which I have been a component part, I feel that the energy, moved by the stirring interest of the times, have a tendency to lay down the law to their people on secular matters. They are inclined to instruct the lawyer about his cases, the financier about the policy of his bank, to enter the labor unions where men are struggling with the problems of bettering their own condition and say to them and to them," to pass sweeping judgments on the Philippine question and the Boer War. If I err in this way pay no attention to me. God knows I pray to be delivered from it." The power of the pulpit is very great, indeed, and much wisdom comes therefrom, but, as Dr. Rainsford points out, there is altogether too much secular advice expounded from Biblical text.

Paterson is promised a cheaper and better water supply by the action of the Council and that city in granting a franchise to a new company of which William Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is the head. A competitor will make the East Jersey Water Company, an old-time monopoly, grind its teeth and reduce rates, all of which will be going for the people's mill. It would have been better for the Paterson officials to have established a municipal water plant, if possible, but as it was not thought that this could be brought about the next best thing was done in allowing a new company of local capitalists to become lively competitors in the field.

The instructions that the State Teachers' Association has "become the simple tool and stool-pigeon of the Hudson county element," thereby losing all its educational characteristics, causes Miss Elizabeth Allen to rise and explain to the contrary. She declares that the Association "will be a field for controversy and the discussion of all questions and matters calculated to be helpful to the teachers and will tend to secure those objects for the realization of which the Association was primarily designated." This sounds as though Miss Allen might be heard from in the lobby of the State House whenever the interests of the pedagogues are at stake.

Rahway Bank Failure.

The failure of the Union County Bank of Rahway is a hard blow to the material interests of that city, and especially so when the circumstances of the collapse of the institution are considered. The closing up of the bank is an echo of crash following the peculations of Valentine in Perth Amboy, and is indirectly traceable to that wrecker with whom the law has thus far dealt leniently with. The failure of the Rahway institution tends to add fuel to the fire of indignation against the worthless fellow who played fast and loose with the confidence and trust of the Perth Amboy bank, and will add to the chances of just punishment being meted out to him before he escapes from the criminal predicament into which he became involved when the crash came.

There is but trifling consolation, however, for the depositors of the Rahway bank in the hope that at sometime Valentine may be made to feel more severely the gravity of the crime he committed. The Rahway depositors' funds are at stake, and until their financial depression is remedied there will be no quietude among them. The run on the bank was caused, of course, by the involved state of affairs which followed the Valentine embezzlement, depositors becoming wary of the safety of an institution when the custodians of their funds were linked in a business way with the wrecked institution of the neighboring town. Such a condition of affairs leads the Newark Call to moralize thusly:

The Rahway bank run appears to be due to a distrust of men connected with the institution, who have been mixed up in transactions which have shaken the confidence of the depositors in trust, to say the least. There may be no good ground whatever for the uneasiness, but of all emplovments, except the ministry, perhaps the most delicate is that of the banker, and men who have become, in any way, however unjustly, objects of doubt, not to say suspicion, should get out of the management and give place to those who have full confidence. This can be said at times, but it is a fact which is a sufficient reply to protests from the interested parties.

Trolley Company's Tax.

No improvement contemplated for North Plainfield in several years will be more advantageous when consummated than the plan to widen Somerset street from forty to fifty feet through the most important part of plans. The street is too congested at present, but with five feet added to its width on each side there will be relief and will be a decided increase in the convenience and accommodation of the traffic that is imposed upon the thoroughfare.

We do not know what share of the expense of the improvement will be assessed against the Plainfield Street Railway Company, but in appreciation of the extent to which the trolley company has contributed to necessitate the work of widening the thoroughfare there ought to be a big share of the burden paid by the company. The laying of the tracks and the operation of the cars in the street has caused the congestion that is complained of, and in consideration of this fact the trolley company should be compelled to pay a share of the tax in proportion to the manner in which it has made the condition that can only be relieved by the widening of the street.

Judge J. Franklin Fort,

one of the big guns of the Essex county G. O. P., is laying his plans to be nominated for Governor as the successor of Foster Voorhees. Mr. Fort's name has been linked with Gubernatorial ambitions before this, but he never seemed able to gather quite enough influence to become a formidable candidate for a nomination. This time he has better hopes.

The Russian manufacturers of lead pencils have formed themselves into a trust to compete with the German product. The Russians ought to find it easy to make their mark in the undertaking.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their system. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the finest coffee but costs about 1/4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Need of a City Hall.

That portion of Mayor Bostfellow's message communicated to the Common Council Monday, which refers to the city hall project, deserves consideration from the Councilmen. The recommendation of the Mayor has already been heeded, and no time should be lost in taking definite steps to provide Plainfield with a fit building for her municipal offices.

The need of such a structure in the face of the fact that at the present time the city is paying more in rents than the interest on the money necessary to provide a city hall would amount to—with the additional drawback that the city officials are scattered about in various office buildings with none of the conveniences that they should have—is too patent to require much argument.

As pointed out by the Mayor, the plea of economy cannot be brought into play to stifle the project, because it is easily demonstrated that it would be money gained for the city to have a building of its own. Even though there would be no pecuniary advantage in the possession of a suitable building for the quartering of the city offices permanently, the civic pride that is so evident in Plainfield at nearly all times ought to be sufficient to create a favorable sentiment that would approve of the construction of the building.

We cannot too strongly approve of the Mayor's recommendation of a city hall, and we trust that the Council will take up the subject in a thorough manner before much time has passed.

Mayor Howe has asked The News to ascertain why the Plainfield Council refused to grant a franchise to ex-Mayor McLean and Dr. Chisholm for 80-cent gas, and chartered a local company which agrees to give $1 gas. He thinks it must indicate that Plainfield had some inside facts about the SanFrancisco experiment.—Passaic News.

The query of the Passaic Mayor is answered very easily. Messrs. McLean and Chisholm have never applied for a franchise from the Plainfield Council to furnish gas for fifty cents or for any other price. Officially, the Common Council is in entire ignorance of Messrs. McLean and Chisholm.

ENGINE STARTED QUICKLY.

Charles Hack Thrown Violently and His Life was in Serious Danger.

Charles Hack, of Dunellen, had a narrow escape from being killed Saturday morning in the yard of the Central Railroad in this city. Hack is employed on the shifting engine, which runs between Plainfield and Dunellen, and it is his duty to couple and uncouple freight cars that are shunted about.

Saturday morning Hack stood on the pilot of No. 68 engine and was in the act of uncoupling a car when his foot slipped off and his right leg came between the pilot and rail. The engineer, thinking he had finished uncoupling, started the locomotive. In consequence young Hack was thrown violently his head coming in contact with the framework of the locomotive with sufficient force to cut a severe gash in the forehead over the right eye. He was otherwise injured about the body and legs.

The injured man was at once placed on the shifting engine and taken to the office of Dr. Brakeley at Dunellen, where his injuries were dressed. He was then removed to his home on Washington avenue, where he will be confined for several days.

DIED IN FLORIDA.

M. F. Webb, Formerly a Resident of This City, Passed to His Maker.

The many friends of M. F. Webb, aged 68 years, will be pained to learn of his death which occurred Monday in Florida, where he has been in the habit for many years of spending the winter months. Mr. Webb resided in this city at the City Hotel for fourteen years, and he had a host of friends who admired him for his many excellent qualities. Many years ago Mr. Webb lived in New Brunswick, where he was associated with one of the banks. The only surviving relative is a son who is president of a bank in Texas. The body will be sent to Jersey City on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and it is believed that the funeral services will be held at New Brunswick. Word of Mr. Webb's death was received Tuesday by J. E. Beerbower, proprietor of the City Hotel.

Trinity's Turkey Supper.

An event always looked forward to with a great deal of interest is the annual turkey supper at Trinity Reformed church. It will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society in the lecture room of the church Thursday and Friday evening, January 25th and 26th. Supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock.

Making Proper Insulation.

Employes of the Plainfield Electric Light Company have been making the proper insulation between the underground system and the trolley rails, so that no damage will result to either when the currents come in contact.

GO TO THE PENITENTIARY

THE PLAINFIELD SHOPLIFTERS SENTENCED BY JUDGE FORT.

Bowers and Garretson Women Each Given Six Months—Made a Scene in Court—Mrs. Bowers Fell in a Faint.

In the Court of Special Sessions in Newark Monday the case against Mrs. Annie Bowers, Mrs. Ida Carroll and Eliza Garretson, of Plainfield, who had pleaded guilty to shoplifting in stealing from some of the large stores in Newark, was disposed of. Judge Fort sentenced the Bowers and Garretson women to six months in the penitentiary. Mrs. Carroll's sentence was postponed owing to her physical condition, and she was given her freedom.

When the Bowers and Garretson women received their sentences they made a scene. Mrs. Bowers uttered a scream and fell to the court room floor in a dead faint. Mrs Garretson also screamed and became hysterical. Both women were taken in charge by the court attendants and carried into a side room, where they were brought around by the aid of restoratives.

When the women were brought into court they were accompanied by some well-dressed people, among them being Mrs. Bowers' father. Judge Fort said that he had been appealed to by certain people more or less prominent in Newark, who had implored him to be lenient in passing sentence. He had decided, however, to show no favors and would impose a like sentence upon both women, as they had confessed their crimes and he had no other alternative but to carry out the law.

TARGETS OF TRAINMEN.

Lives of Baltimore and Ohio Employes in Cranford in Peril From Shot Guns in Hands of Lunatic.

Trainmen in the Baltimore & Ohio freight yard, at Cranford, are up in arms against the action of an apparent lunatic, who has chosen to make targets of them. He carries a double-barrelled shot gun, and shoots at them nightly while they are making up their trains.

The man lives in a hovel in the rear of the Lehigh Valley tracks at Cranford. He is sixty years old. He always succeeds in getting away after he has fired in the dark. He is apparently never at home.

On New Year's night he opened fire on the trainmen, and several narrowly escaped being shot. Standing on the track and approached him. He stood his ground, and commanded the man to keep off or he would kill the first who laid hands on him. They retreated. Trainmen now work in the yards with their lights out. The old man has terrorized the township for several years. The officials have decided to hire men to search for and arrest him.

JERSEY CENTRAL DIVIDENDS

Directors Surprise Wall Street by Advancing the Annual Rate to Five Per Cent.

Jersey Central directors surprised Wall street Monday by declaring a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on the stock, thereby advancing the dividend rate from 4 to 5 per cent. The advance was unexpected, for although rumors of it have been in circulation for several days, the failure of the Delaware and Hudson directors to advance their rate was regarded as indicating the improbability of any such action on the part of Jersey Central.

Announcement of the increase in the company's dividend figure was well received and attracted much attention to the stock trade and the coal stocks This revival of interest, however, did not lead to any new activity in the group. Strangely enough, there was not a single transaction in Jersey Central during the day. Its quotations advanced, and from 114 the bid rose to 118. This, however, brought out no stock, although offerings were made at the close at 118½.

HE KNOWS.

Ramon Reyes Lala, of Manila, will Speak in Music Hall Tuesday Night—An Illustrated Lecture.

There is so much to say about the United States' new possessions in the east, and so comparatively few who are qualified to speak with authority on the situation there that all are glad of the opportunity to listen to one thoroughly acquainted with life in the Philippines and who can speak from the standpoint of a native of that country. Ramon Reyes Lala, of Manila, will lecture at the Stillman Music Hall Tuesday evening. His talk will be illustrated with a series of views taken especially for him.

Signor Lala was educated in Europe, but has spent many years in his own home and is perfectly qualified to deal with the subjects that are now so particularly interesting to all Americans. Wherever he has spoken he is highly commended by the newspapers.

HEADED FOR STORE.

Hot an Electric Light Pole Stopped the Vehicle Just in Time—Lively Runaway Saturday.

A runaway occurred Saturday on Park avenue, when Herman Kliesman's horse, attached to his baker wagon filled with bread, etc., ran down the street at a lively rate. Although the street was filled with wagons only one team was damaged.

Mr. Kliesman was about to get in his wagon when the horse became frightened at something and started. In a short time the horse broke loose from the wagon, wrecking the shafts. The wagon was thrown up against an electric light pole in front of A. Willett & Son's shoe store, preventing the wagon from going right into the store.

The horse continued his journey toward Front street and would have crashed into a passing trolley car had not Lawyer W. H. McClure stopped him. Mr. Kliesman soon came up and took charge. The rig in its flight collided with a coach owned by Mr. Sprague, of this city, which was standing in front of Ecell's store, and a spoke was knocked out of a rear wheel. That was the only damage, and Mr. Kliesman sent the vehicle to Homan's to have it repaired.

THEY'LL GET BUT LITTLE.

Creditors of the Country Club Will Get But Small Percentage of Their Claims.

It will be a very small percentage that the creditors of the Union County Country Club will receive when there comes a division of the assets. The liabilities of the club amount to nearly $17 000. The only assets were the furniture and fixtures of the club house, which were disposed of Monday morning at public auction. The results of the sale amounted to $600 City Judge William S. Runyon, who purchased the bulk of the club property, paid in $167 90 for his share. This will eventually pass into the hands of the new club that is to be organized shortly.

COLLECTED $1,051.

Annual Christmas Contributions Announced at St. Mary's Church Yesterday Morning.

Two weeks ago the annual Christmas collection was taken at St. Mary's church for the benefit of the church, and it was the largest in the history of the church. At the morning service Sunday Rev. Father Smyth, the pastor, announced the result, which was $1 051. There is yet $127 to be received. This was very gratifying to Father Smyth and all connected with the church, showing the great devotion of all for the church and its interests.

Interesting Reports Expected.

The annual reports of the borough officials will not be presented before spring, but it is said that they will be marvels of revelation. Chief Campbell says that his report will show a most satisfactory condition of affairs, and how few have been sent to Somerville to be kept at the expense of the county. From what can be learned the reports will be the most interesting yet presented.

Republicans Elect Officers.

The Middlesex Republican county committee met Monday, and, after being organized, it was duly noted as very encouraging, elected a committee for 1900. The officers are—C. A. Prickett, of Metuchen, president; A. H. Sellover, South Amboy, vice-president; Wm. Richardson, New Brunswick, secretary; Chas. W. Russell, New Brunswick, treasurer.

Young Militia Men.

A number of boys living in the vicinity of Grant avenue have organized a military company. These young Americans may be seen almost any afternoon going through the evolutions of the drill. They have supplied themselves with wooden guns with bayonets. They show considerable skill in manipulating the arms.

Paul T. Norton Coming to Home.

The Paul T. Norton Company, flour and feed dealers, have secured control of the property formerly occupied by O. H. Rogg on Madison avenue as coal yards, and the firm will remove their business to that place from East Front street in the course of time, probably around April 1st.

A New Home.

D. N. Force, the builder, has secured the contract to build a new house for Joseph F. T. Fuller on Union street. The plans have been made by Charles L. Force, of the borough. The house when completed will be one of the most convenient and attractive in this vicinity.

Fifteen-Year-Old May Wed.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Henry K. Wilcox, aged 15 years, son of Eschariah and Josephine Wilcox, formerly residents of the borough, but now of Roselle. Death was due to spasms.

COUNCIL TAKES UP THE CITY HALL IDEA.

Mr. Buckle Acts on the Recommendation of the Mayor.

TO LOOK INTO THE SUBJECT.

POLICE AND FIRE COMMITTEES TO ACT JOINTLY IN THE WORK.

Commissioners Appointed by Judge Vail to Assess Benefits and Damages for Certain Street Improvements, Decline to Serve—Judge Vail Will Oppoint New Ones—Other Business Was Transacted.

The Common Council met Monday with all the members present. The bonds of Constables S. R. Hope, Amos M. Sutt, W. R. Mattox and Peter Weaver were reported as approved by the corporation counsel, and they were filed. Constable Gjertissen's bond was received, referred to the finance committee and then referred to the corporation counsel for his approval. Three petitions were received from taxpayers begging the Council to take proper steps toward the erection of a city hall and suitable city jail. The petitions were signed by a large number of people and the first was started by Andrew Mc. Cardell, Charles L. Moffatt and Elston M. French.

The annual message of Mayor Rockfellow was received at the time and read, after which on motion of Mr. VanHerwerden a copy was ordered sent to each member. The message will be found in another part of the paper.

A communication was presented by Mr. Tolles to the effect that Wm. M Sandford, A. J. Gavett and J. T. Fritts, who were appointed by the Court of Common Pleas to assess benefits and damages in the case of a certain street which had been macad amized during the past few months, had declined to serve as they are interested parties. A resolution was then offered by Mr. Tolles that application be made to the Court that January 24th next they appoint other commissioners to serve in place of those who declined.

Mayor Rockfellow appointed Isaac E. Houston as a special policeman and the appointment was confirmed.

Mr. Buckle offered a resolution that the fire and building committee, together with the police committee, be authorized to select a site and the probable cost for a city hall and jail, and that they report to the Council.

Mr. Dumont thought it would be wise to place an advertisement in the city papers asking for proposals for site etc., but to this proposition Mr. Buckle took exception on the ground that the work of the committee might be hampered in selecting a place. This committee will go to work at once and report as soon as possible. It was evident from what was said at the meeting that it is the intention if possible to secure a city hall this year.

Mr. Dumont wanted to move that the rules of the 1899 Council be made forty-laws of the present one, but there was a little misunderstanding as to whether it was a regular or adjourned meeting and whether such action could be taken. There was no particular hurry about the matter, however, and it was allowed to go over to the regular meeting in February The meeting then adjourned to February 12th.

IN STAR CHAMBER AGAIN.

NEW BOARD OF EDUCATION COMMENCES EXECUTIVE SESSIONS.

Dr. Professor Chosen President Again and Fred C. Lounsbury Secretary—Report of Tax Collector Received.

The Plainfield Board of Education followed the example of its predecessors at its first meeting last Monday by dispatching the regular business of the Board in fifteen minutes and then going into executive session. The Board succeeded, however, in getting together at 7:30 o'clock, the first time for several years. At the open session of the Board the only business of importance was the re-election of the old officers.

When the meeting was called to order Mr. Lovell was made temporary chairman. Then Dr. J. B. Probasco was unanimously re-elected president and Fred C. Lounsbury secretary.

After the usual batch of bills, the report of the tax collector was read. It showed a total collection of $2 368.49 which included $35 64 interest. A communication was read from the city treasurer telling of the receipt of the city's share of the State school appropriation amounting to $1,492 13.

Superintendent Maxson had nothing to bring before the Board. Neither had any of the members. So they went into executive session at 8:10 o'clock.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, satisfying drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O has the snap of pure grain, aids digestion and nourishes the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15 cts. per package. Ask Your grocer for Grain-O.

OWNED BY GOVERNMENT

THE GREAT QUESTION DEBATED BY Y. M. C. A. YOUNG MEN.

Two on Each Side of the Question—Many Strong Points Made by Both, but Judges Are in Favor of Negative.

The public debate at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening did not attract a very large attendance. The debate, however, proved interesting. The question debated was: "Resolved, That the United States should own all public railroads and telegraph lines within its dominion."

O. S. Rogers and T. A. Cuming had the affirmative and J. H. Crane and George S. Clay the negative. The judges were Jra W. Travell, Clarence Davis, Ph D., and O. W. Dunham. A. B. Meredith was the critic.

Mr. Rogers for the affirmative opened the debate by advancing the argument that it would be of great benefit to the public for the Government to own all the railroads and telegraphs, because it would have a tendency to develop the country much faster than under the present private ownership. Rates of fare on the railroads and telegraph lines would be much cheaper, and the advantages to the poorer classes would be manifold.

George S. Clay for the negative claimed that the Government had not the right under the constitution to operate either the railroads or the telegraph lines. Two-thirds of the population, he said, was engaged in farming and but comparatively few farmers had occasion to use the telegraph lines As regards the railroads statistics showed that the railroads paid a large proportion of the taxes, while there was shown to be a large deficit last year in the postal system

T. A. Cuming, the second man for the negative, advanced the best argument of the debate. He said it would be necessary for the Government to buy the railroads and telegraph lines before it could own them and that would cost something like eight hundred millions of dollars, which with the immense war debt now on the hands of the Government would plunge the country into a debt from which it would never recover. He also expressed the opinion that with the Government owning the ra lroads and telegraph lines there would be a great liability of political corruption and Congress would have its hands more than full in efforts to regulate lines of business of which it knew nothing about.

The leaders in the debate were then given five minutes to sum up when the question was submitted to the judges who decided in favor of the negative, though they expressed the opinion that the gentlemen of the affirmative had advanced some clever arguments.

DEATH OF MRS. A. L. TITSWORTH.

It Occurred Suddenly in a Brooklyn Sanatorium Tuesday Morning.

Mrs. A. L. Titsworth, of 415 West Seventh street who has been seriously ill for some time, and who has been a patient at the private sanitarium of Dr. Munsey in Brooklyn for the past six weeks, died at an early hour Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Titsworth underwent an operation some time ago, and it was thought to have been successful. A turn for the worse occurred during the night, however, and the end came suddenly.

Mrs. Titsworth was a woman of lovely character and was highly esteemed among her circle of acquaintance, who will be shocked to hear of her death. Their sympathy goes out to the bereaved relatives in a most sincere manner.

Mrs. Titsworth was Miss Frances VanHoesen, and formerly resided in Syracuse, N. Y. She was married to Mr. Titsworth twelve years ago. The remains were brought to Plainfield for the funeral and interment.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Frances S., wife of Arthur L. Titsworth, will be held from her home, 415 West Seventh street, next Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Park Club Whisters in the Lead.

The intercity whist tournament was continued in the clubrooms of the Brooklyn Whist Club at Brooklyn, Saturday night, the team from the Park Club of this city now stands in the lead with 15 matches won and 23 tricks plus. There are 23 teams in the tournament. The Park Club was represented by Peter B. Matthew, Albert Woltmann, Fred H. Freeman and Arthur A. Freeman.

PLENTY OF WORK AHEAD

DR. LEWIS TALKS ON THE TOPIC OF "PUSHING FORWARD."

Uplifting Sermon Delivered to the Members of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Last Night by the Religious Editor.

Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, delivered a sermon to the congregation of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last night on the subject "Pushing Forward." He took his text from Phil. 3:13-14. In part he said:

"I had chosen my text and theme before I saw your program with its singing watchword—Foreward. That is a clear-eyed and brave word. It calls for strength, action, wisdom and persistence. It is a word to be obeyed, not questioned. It implies great deeds to be done, great victories to be won. It is an imperative word. Love and obedience delight in such words.

"In moral reforms, and in work directly religious, issues are at hand, complex with difficulties, and surpassing estimation as to importance. Temperance reform, which includes the use of narcotics such as alcohol, tobacco, opium and the like, is a problem of world-wide reach and of untold power as to the physical and moral welfare of the race. Social purity reform hitherto much ignored, but a supremely important question, must be advanced if our civilization be saved from the suicide which brought Rome and Babylon to their burial.

"In matters religious, the years are throbbing with momentous influences and issues. Prominent among these is the relation of the Bible to religion. The high-land of religious life lies along the history of Judaism and Christianity. The source and standards of both these religions are found in the Bible. The ethical code of that book is the basis and source of our civilization, in all things which are good. The Higher Critic is not the worst enemy of the Bible, but rather he who holds it lightly, and talks of it as a "Jewish" book and of little account to our time. He who breaks away from the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, courts ruin for himself and all things good.

"I commend your motto for the new year. But that you may go forward as you ought, each must seek deep abiding life with Christ. Obedience is the only road to that life. Go forward led by the highest motives. Listen for God's command. Go, or wait on the shore of the Red Sea until the waters part. Go obediently, or wait trustfully. Go forward."

SCRAPED HIS SHIN.

A Bill Board Was the Victor in a Tussle with James Kane.

James Kane, the well-known blacksmith, had an unpleasant and somewhat painful experience Friday evening. Mr. Kane was hurrying down Liberty street to meet a friend, when he ran foul of an obstruction lying in his path near the railroad bridge. Before Mr. Kane could check his speed his toe had caught and he at once became entangled and went down with a thud that shook his anatomy and badly brushed his face and body. On picking himself up slowly Mr. Kane examined his injuries. The inventory developed a badly torn ear, a lacerated face, barked shins and a $3 derby hat broken and smashed in a manner that will prove highly discreditable to a man of his good taste. The cause of the accident was one of the bill boards of the Plainfield Funding Company that had become loose from its fastenings and lay directly across the sidewalk. In consequence of the casualty Mr. Kane is as sore as a defeated pugilist.

Think It a Stage.

Some of Councilman VanHeswerden's friends thing it rather strange that he should be taken off of the Councilmanic street committee. They think he is a most excellent member for that committee on account of the time he devoted to that work last year. They say that he evidenced ability in in that department, and it would have been a wise plan to keep him on the committee.

PARK CLUB FELL DOWN

WESTFIELD CLUB NOW SECOND IN DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE.

Three Games Rolled Friday on Park Club Alleys and Westfield Won Two of Them—The Last Game Was Close.

The tie for second place in The Daily Press Bowling League has been settled. As a result of three games rolled in the league on the alleys of the Park Club, this city, last evening, the Park Club has dropped back to third place and Westfield stands alone at second. Of the three games, Westfield won two.

After the first frame of the first game, the Parks took the lead and held it until the fifth. Then Westfield began to roll and there was no stopping them. The Parks failed entirely to hold the pace set and were defeated by 81 pins.

The second game showed a determined attempt on the part of the local bowlers to retrieve their lost honors. There was good steady rolling by everybody and the Parks went way ahead from the start winning by 119 pins. VanBuren was substituted for Townsend who rolled his first game in the league.

The Parks opened the third game with a clean frame, scoring 106, but the pace was too hot and Westfield went in front to stay there until the finish. On the windup, Bibbard only made four on his spare and Dr. Thiers missed a spare, thereby losing the Parks' last chance of winning.

The scores were as follows:

PARK CLUB.

	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
F. O. Ball	157	159	170
W. T. Townsend	136	108

CITIZENS WROUGHT UP.

New Market People Do Not Like the Way Piscataway Township Officials are Acting.

The citizens' meeting at Casterline's Hotel in New Market last Saturday night to obtain an expression of the people regarding the proposed movement to secure the establishment of the iron plant of Colby & Co., of Jersey City, was largely attended. It is the desire of the citizens to pay the taxes of the above company, but as the law will not allow an exemption the citizens interested in securing the removal of the plant to New Market, wish to have the township committee authorize its payment from surplus funds in the hands of the township committee. There was a very stormy meeting and various opinions were expressed. It is understood that the township committee expressed an opinion adverse to the feeling of the citizens and refused to allow town funds to be used for this purpose. In consequence nothing was done in the matter. The feeling against the township committee is quite bitter and much indignation was expressed by the citizens, who believe that the committee is standing in the way of the growth and prosperity of the town. Another meeting is to be held in the near future.

LIVED IN JERSEY 70 YEARS.

Mrs. Mary A. Wilson Passed Away Saturday at the Age of 94 Years.

Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, aged 94 years, widow of James Wilson, died Saturday at her home 447 West Seventh street. Death was due chiefly to old age. Mrs. Wilson was born in New York state, and has lived in New Jersey about seventy years. For thirty years she resided in this city with her grandsons, Louis and Harry McIntosh, since the death of her daughter, Mrs. McIntosh. Prior to her coming to Plainfield she lived at Paterson. The funeral services were held from the late residence Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment took place in Cedar Lawn cemetery, Paterson.

W. C. T. U. May Change Quarters

In the near future the W. C. T. U. will make a change. They have practically decided to move from their present quarters on East Front street to the Babcock building on the Madison avenue side, where their accommodations will be somewhat better. They will have steam heat and other improvements which will make the new quarters more desirable. It is believed that the location will be just as good, and people desiring to attend the meetings can reach the place just as handily.

Mr. Barrows Elected a Director.

Former Councilman E. T. Barrows has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club in place of the late Josiah Browne, and it is quite probable that he may be elected to fill the office held by Mr. Browne when the annual meeting of the club is held next month.

SOME CONSOLATION FOR THE BENEDICTS.

Won Third of Bowling Matches With Bachelors.

BACHELORS WON TWICE.

EXCITING GAMES ROLLED ON PARK CLUB ALLEYS SATURDAY NIGHT.

Bachelors Took the Lead for the First Few Frames, but Fell Behind—After Once Getting the Lead the Benedicts Were Never Headed—A Close Finish—C. L. Murphy Was Star.

The Benedicts declared that it could not be, but the Bachelors were hopeful. When Saturday night's match of married men of the Park Club arose in their wrath and saved their reputation on the club alleys by winning out in the third of the series of bowling matches between the Bachelors and Benedicts. For the first time on record the Bachelors won two straight, and Saturday night's victory for the Benedicts was all that saved them from an unprecedented result.

It has been the custom in years past only to roll the third game in case the two teams should each win a victory, which was, however, rarely the case. This year the bowling committee decided that the third game would be rolled despite the fact that the Bachelors won the first two. There was not as large an attendance at the club alleys, as most of the bowlers supposed the series was over. The teams were lined up six on a side and those who attended witnessed a match full of life and excitement.

The Benedicts opened the first frame four pins to the good. That lead was increased nine pins the next frame. Then the Benedicts began to do better and were only seven behind. There was no change in the fourth and then the Bachelors lost their gait. Some wonderful strikes sent the Benedicts ahead in the fifth, and there they stayed despite the efforts of the single men to get in front again.

Mr. Peck hit the head pin all right but there were many splits as a result. Dr. Thiers was rolling in great shape. Captain F. O. Ball missed several easy spares and lost thereby an opportunity for a two hundred score.

Among the Bachelors, Clarence L. Murphy was a bright and shining light All the guying of his opponents simply gave strength to his arm and clearness to his vision. Ralph Willis developed into a marvelous bowler. B. C. Ball, who captained the Bachelors, and of whom so much was expected, failed to distinguish himself at all. The Benedicts cheerfully explained the reason of his downfall.

The individual scores were as follows:

BENEDICTS.		BACHELORS.
F. O. Ball	168	C. Murphy	178

SILK COMPANY OFFICERS.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders Held Monday Night.

There was a meeting of the Watchung Silk Company last Monday when the following persons were elected as directors: W. H. Codrington, J. F. MacDonald, W. R. Hubbard, Willis T. Vail, H. C. Runyon, E. M. Laing and F. S. Runyon. From the above number the officers were selected as follows: President, J. Fred MacDonald; vice-president, E. M. Laing; secretary, H. C. Runyon; treasurer, W. R. Codrington. The officers report the condition of the company to be first-class and a large amount of business on hand.

SPANISH ARCHITECTURE.

Lecture Delivered Before Monday Afternoon Club by A. T. Van Laer.

A lecture of unusual interest was given Monday afternoon before the Monday Afternoon Club at All Souls church by A. T. Van Laer, on Spanish architecture. The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon, the pictures from the slides being of rare excellence and beauty, taken this past summer during the lecturer's travels in Spain. Beginning with the early Roman architecture, Mr. Van Laer gave some fine specimens of Moorish architecture from the Alhambra and Mosque at Cordova, followed by gothic views and styles borrowed from the Italian Renaissance. The speaker held the undivided attention of a large audience, who were enthusiastic in their admiration of the views and the accompanying description of them.

NEW YEAR BUSINESS FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL

First Session Found Two of the Members Absent.

SENATOR REED'S REPORT

CONCERNS THE LOCATION OF CULVERTS IN THE BORDUGH.

Board of Freeholders Will Aid the Borough Officials in Making the Improvements—Dr. D. G. Adams Reappointed to the Board of Health — Report of Collector Brown — Other Business.

The Mayor and Borough Council did not make a good beginning last evening when they held their first meeting for the new year, for not all the members were present. Messrs. Swackhamer and Codington being among the missing. Another thing that urged against a good beginning was the fact that it was nearly 8:30 o'clock when the Mayor called the meeting to order. But inasmuch as that body has made no New Year resolutions they have broken none, and on that basis they are perhaps excused.

The report of Collector Brown, which includes that of Clerk Frank Bowley was presented as follows: Taxes and Interest, $19 582 44; special school, $7,871 77; Board of Health, $245.89; Watchung avenue, $46 97; rent of property sold for taxes, $13; received from fines for November, $8 75; received from street railway, stone and labor, $31 85; balance, December 1st, $6,085 30; disbursements, $13,080 01; balance January 1st, $4,1,187 79; borough, $10 885 61; Watchung, $253 19.

Borough Council Charles A. Reed made a report concerning the Watchung avenue matter in dispute. He stated that the court had set aside five cases of assessments, but had reassessed them at the same figures, the only difference being that they had extended the line of limitation across the entire property instead of part way. He said that the property-owners reserve the right to carry their cases to the Court of Errors and Appeals if they desire to.

Mayor Smalley stated that January 18th the term of Dr. D. G. Adams, as a member of the Board of Health, would expire. He therefore re-appointed him for a term of four years and the Council confirmed the appointment.

A lengthy report was received from Counsel Reed regarding the location of culverts in the borough, according to a request of the Council at a previous meeting. He reported that the county is liable for them where they are necessary to carry off water on the highway. He stated that the county is using iron pipes, and that they will furnish them to the borough. When the borough desires to lay culverts and crosswalks combined the county will furnish the culverts, dig the trenches and put up the side pieces, but the borough will have to pay for the flagging on top. It is for the Board of Freeholders to decide what shall be used for culverts. This proposition was considered a reasonable one and no doubt will be accepted. To save further trouble on the subject Mr. Reed's report will be placed on the minutes of the Council.

Clerk Bowley informally reported at this time that Recorder Long had reported to him the collection of $41 from fines for December. This was followed by the report of Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee. This report showed that during the past month there was expended $74 21. With the receipt of $33 65 from the street railway company the total balance Dec. 1st was $118 50, and the balance Jan. 1st was $57.4 74.

A resolution offered by Mr. Rogers was to the effect that Collector Brown be authorized to accept $170 45 1-99 tax on the property owned by J. J. Henderson. Mr. Clark introduced a resolution granting a crosswalk on Sycamore avenue at its intersection with Myrtle and Willow avenues. The matter was discussed at some length and finally deferred until a sidewalk is laid at a section in that vicinity known as "Tobe's Point." Mr. Valiant offered a resolution that Collector Brown be authorized to deduct such sums as have been collected from rent on the property at 106 Duer street. In connection with this Street Commissioner Dond remarked that there was a standing notice against that property for a sidewalk that has been ordered laid. This remark made some of the members feel sorry that they had said anything, but it is quite likely that the borough will lay the walk and pay for it, as the property is in their hands.

In connection with the above it was suggested the collector be allowed something for his trouble in taking care of the property now held by the borough for taxes.

Mayor Smalley inquired of Mr. Reed as to whether the borough could be held liable where they had placed electric lights on an accepted street, and as to what jurisdiction accompanied it. Mr. Reed replied that the borough would not be expected to do any more than it is doing. The residents of Belmont avenue want an additional light on their street, and the Mayor felt as though they should have it, yet the street had never been accepted. The light was granted.

This concluded the regular business of the evening, after which the Mayor and Council discussed at great length the question of widening Somerset street. As this is special business an account of the conference appears in another column of the paper.

OVERHEAD BRIDGE CRUSHED HIS SKULL.

C. E. Chesterfield, Brakeman, Killed at Terrill Road.

IT HAPPENED LAST FRIDAY.

STOOD UP ON CAR JUST IN TIME TO MEET DEATH.

Was Brakeman on Local West Bound Freight—Had Only Been in Company's Employ a Few Weeks—Body Brought to Plainfield on Top of Car—County Physician Granted Burial Permit.

As the local freight train, bound from Jersey City to Bound Brook, passed under the overhead bridge at Terrill road, two miles east of the Plainfield station on the Jersey Central Railroad, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Brakeman C. E. Chesterfield met death suddenly and without warning.

He was climbing from the rear of the tender to the first of the freight cars. The warning ropes that tell of the approach of the bridge had passed over his head when he stepped on the top of the car. The firemen in the cab of engine No. 414, which was pulling the train, saw the edge of the bridge strike the brakeman on the side of the head and then saw him topple over on the top of the freight car.

The side of the skull was crushed in and he must have died instantly. When the crew saw that he was dead, they allowed the body to remain on the car until they reached Plainfield, when it was taken into the baggage room. The blood from the gapping wound flowed down the side of the car and frozo, forming a grewsome sight. The body was afterwards taken to Cole's undertaking establishment. County Physician Westcott was summoned and he granted a burial permit.

Chesterfield lived in Bayonne with his wife and four children. He was thirty years old. He had only been in the employ of the company for a few weeks. The efforts of the railroad officials to find his family last evening were unavailing, but they were notified this morning. The remains were taken to Bayonne Saturday for the funeral and interment.

PREPARING FOR SNOW.

WHAT THE LOCAL TROLLEY COMPANY IS DOING.

Most of the Cars Have Scrapers—Two Open Cars Are Equipped With Large Plows at the Ends—Other Preparations.

The trolley system composed of the Plainfield Street Railway and the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway, is making quite extensive preparations to meet any snowstorm that may sweep across this section. When the Plainfield line was the only field of operation it was not so difficult, for only when a young blizzard swept down, to keep the tracks clean. With the long line to Cranford to be looked after the advent of the snow promises some lively work.

Most of the cars are now equipped with the iron scrapers in front of the wheels, which may be lowered at will. These scrapers are expected to take care of a small fall of snow, provided it does not drift.

Two of the open cars have been equipped with large wooden plows on either end. These plows are set low so as to almost touch the rails. A moderate fall of snow up to a foot in depth can be removed by them unless the snow drifts.

In case of drifts, it will be necessary to shovel out the worst of them while the regular horse plows, such as were used by the trolley company last year, will be put into service to clear the smaller ones. In case of a big storm, an attempt will be made to keep the cars running as long as the storm lasts to keep the track open.

The experiences of the Brunswick Traction Company, last year, makes it possible that the local company will have plenty of work to do in keeping its tracks open in case of a heavy snow storm accompanied by high winds.

Trolley Company Has Downtown Office.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company has established a downtown office on the second floor of the building at the corner of North and Watchung avenues. Inspector Charles O. Lozier makes his headquarters there now. The system of signals regulating the movement of the cars on the Scotch Plains line will be established there.

Captain George D. Morrison, of Plainfield avenue, has been enjoying a visit from a friend from the west.

STAIR CLIMBING

How to Do It and Avoid Being Fatigued.

If one would avoid fatigue in climbing stairs, a necessary act in a city like Chicago, where elevators have their limitations, he must learn how to do it properly. A physician of repute tells how this should be done.

"Usually," he says, "a person will tread on the ball of the foot in taking each step. This is very tiresome and wearing on the muscles of the legs and feet. You should in walking or climbing stairs seek for the most equal distribution of the body's weight possible. In walking upstairs your feet should be placed squarely down on the step, heel and all, and then the work should be performed slowly and deliberately. In this way there is no strain upon any particular muscle, and every action in doing its duty in a natural manner. The woman who goes upstairs with a spring is no philosopher, or, at least, she is not a philosopher when she is discussing a flight of stairs, for excessively rapid climbing after any exertion of this kind, when the heart is naturally excited to a more rapid action, it is desirable that the lungs should have full play. Anything which interferes with their action, the blood is imperfectly aerated, and there is trouble at once. Give the lungs a chance to do their work where and at all times."—Chicago Record.

No Place for a Poor Man.

"Cuba is no place for poor people who want to make a start," said an officer recently returned from there. "Everything on the island is in an unsettled state, and it will be some time before it is. Cuba is a field for money hunters. But the climate is ideal, and I cannot imagine a more delightful objective point for rich people who are looking for a winter's entertainment. The hotels, of course, leave much to be desired, but they are greatly improved over what they were just after the war, and later on will be equal to our best hotels in this country. Apropos of the lack of comfort to be had in Havana, some of my friends who settled there last spring complained bitterly of the primitive style in which they were forced to live. There were no locks on the doors of their rooms, the interiors were broken, marks of bullets disfigured the walls, and the table was not pleasant to a palate unaccustomed to Cuban cooking. Imagine their surprise, therefore, to receive a bill when they were about to leave calling for $5 a day for each person in the party and containing charges for many extras.

"'But I could live for that at one of the best hotels in New York,' exports, and I want to know if you have every comfort. You know the condition everything has been in here. We have no bolts on our doors, no beds, not so much as a furniture is smashed up. I tell you your bill is perfectly exorbitant.'

"'What would you have?' asked the proprietor; 'of se bolts was on se door, se locks on se windairs, I would charge you $10 a day.'"

Dr. Tanner on Diet.

Dr. H. S. Tanner, who nineteen years ago went forty days and nights without food, is still in the flesh and chipper at the age of sixty-seven. He says: "My stomach, which Dr. Hammond said would never digest food again, is working regular time, and I wouldn't trade it for any similar digestive organ in the world. I keep pretty well track of my age and am lively on my feet." The doctor is as devoted as ever to his peculiar ideas on the subject of diet, by eliminating the use of meat he would reduce the cost of food to the limit fixed by Dr Dio Lewis at 12½ cents a day. He attributes ill-health largely to the use of pork and badly-cooked food. "We do not," he says, "eat the right kind of food, and we do not masticate it properly, and stomachs suffer. Why, look at the hotels. I find traveling agrees with me all right, except as to the hotel cooking, and that is terrible. Why, absolutely worse. They think they have got to be up-to-date, and they have so many queer ways of fixed operation I can not so difficult, and the fault, if there is any, lies rather with the guests of the hotels than they managers, since the former never ask, or seem to care, about the purity of their food. The true idea of cooking is to retain the natural flavor of the foods, but the aim of the modern cuisine is to disguise it.—Rochester Post-Express.

King Solomon's Failings.

And yet this King (Solomon) with his magnificence and unrivaled power, this shrewd judge, this skilled statesman, this scholar with his wide collection of books, this poet, and friends forth one of the saddest figures in all the history of melancholy. But if we analyze his misery we find that he was a weakling, not because men and life disciplined by conflict and trouble, but because he was a confirmed egotist. Had he been naturally braver in things far-off days the first letter to be exhausted in setting up Solomon's copy would have been the capital letter "I." Solomon, "I" wrote proverbs, "I" had soldiers, "I" had men servants, "I" had maid servants. Through insatiable egotism Solomon lived and died a colossal monument to self, and asked all creation to stand around and admire him. But simplicity is to a great man what sweetness is to a flower, and the self-engrossed egotism makes happiness impossible.—Ladies' Home Journal.

ALL WANT TO WIDEN SOMERSET STREET.

But There Were Lively Times When Discussion Started.

AFTER COUNCIL MEETING.

MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL EXCHANGED FRANK OPINIONS.

After Much Talking and Many Complaints, a Motion Was Made and Carried That the Improvement be Made—Question is Regarding How Expense is to be Met—Another Meeting to be Held.

The proposition to widen Somerset street is now as a patient received for treatment by the Mayor and Borough Council and after the regular business was considered at last Friday's session of the Council, the Mayor and Councilmen took up the case and after a lengthy and somewhat excited discussion, reached that point where they are now ready to diagnose it. This will be done at a meeting in the near future.

It required considerable time for the officials to determine when they wanted to discuss the subject. After a waste of much time someone suggested that the subject be taken up at once and thus secure an idea as to what could be done and how. Everyone favored the widening of the street, Mayor Smalley stated that the work of widening, installing a storm sewer, fixing the gutters, placing wires underground, would cost about $5,000, and he thought this amount should come out of the general fund. No doubt there would be some objection to this plan, but that was to be expected. He said it was the intention to widen the street five feet on each side. One advantage in doing the work, he said, was that there was established a building line which gives the borough certain rights. At present, the trolley controls the street, and he thought something should be done to relieve the congested state of affairs. In his mind there was no doubt but that the trolley injures the pavement of the macadam on Somerset street. In explaining the cost of the improvement he said the bulk of it would be for the storm sewer, which would be one of the greatest improvements. He suggested that the work be done this year, and the expense be put in next year's budget.

Borough Counsel Reed informed the Council that the proceedings would have to be according to law and that the work would have to be the same as that in opening a new street. He told the Council that they could not make debts in the future.

Then came a discussion as to whether he people of the borough would be willing to stand such a high pressure next year, if $5,000 was added to the budget together with the $10,000 on account of Watchung avenue. It was determined that it would increase the tax about 63 per cent, but that there would be no trouble in having the time extended on the Watchung avenue bonds.

Mr. Rogers criticised Mr. Reed's opinion. Mayor Smalley took occasion to inform the Council that if last year's Council had not left them a legacy in the form of a $6,000 note to pay, the present administration would be better off. To this Mr. Rogers took exception and said that it would be impossible for the present administration to escape leaving a legacy, that it wasn't in the wood. His Honor said it was in the wood and the people would see it when the annual report was presented.

Mr. Valiant entered the discussion and strongly objected to the aspersions cast on last year's Council by His Honor. He said that the people received value for every dollar spent by last year's Council.

The Mayor thought some of the returns of last year's Council were poor, and pointed out that up to the present time last year the Council had borrowed $26 000, while this year's Council had borrowed about $20,000 less. To this Mr. Valiant replied that if the Mayor had not persisted in reducing the tax rate this year the Council would have had more money to meet such expenses.

As things were becoming warm with the end of the meeting no where in sight, Mr. Reed suggested a motion to abolish the rule against smoking, but the Councilmen didn't see the joke.

Mr. Clark suggested that it would be a good idea to have a motion before the Council so that the members would have something definite to talk about. Mr. Valiant thought Rixwien and expressed the opinion that the Council was out of order.

Then followed a widely exciting time in getting the proper motion before the Council. Mr. Clark moved that it was the sense of the Council that the project of widening Somerset street at an expense of $5,000 be carried out. Mr. Valiant objected to the amount and offered a substitute to the effect that the street be widened. Mr. Clark amended it so as to read approximating a cost of $4,000. After this motion was finally adopted, another one was offered by Mr. Clark to the effect that it was the sense of the Council that the street be widened, trees cut down, wires removed and placed in conduits, a storm sewer built and that the widening be five feet on each side.

Then followed a discussion as to the width of the street from curb plate to the brook. It was stated that the greatest difficulty would be experienced there as the Thorn building was over the established line. Mr French would no doubt object to giving too much ground without damages as he had already moved his fence line twice, while no change had been made on the opposite side. Thus the discussion went on and no definite conclusion was reached. Another meeting will be held at an early date when the property-owners will be present to discuss the matter.

MORE HOSE IS NEEDED.

PRESENT CIRCUMSTANCES OF PLAINFIELD FIRE DEPARTMENT.

There is Enough Hose for Ordinary Purposes, But Special Emergency Would Find Department in Difficult Position.

One of the items that the fire committee of the new Common Council will try to place on its part of the city budget will be an appropriation for the purchase of a supply of new hose for the fire department. While the present supply is large enough for the ordinary run of affairs, a special emergency would find the city ill prepared to meet it.

According to the last report of Chief Doane, presented to the Council last December, the present stock of hose was reported to be 3,200 feet in fair condition and 1,800 feet in poor condition, 4,700 feet in all. The newest hose is now three years old and the rest has been in service five years or more.

The usual life of fire hose is five or six years. After that time it is not reliable and is apt to burst or split at any time. There is really only a little over 3 000 feet of hose that is in any condition for active service without the immediate danger of bursting. Each of the three hose wagons in use holds 1 000 feet of hose so most of the available hose is used in supplying the wagons.

An ordinary fire would not utilize all the 3 000 feet so there would be no trouble, but if Plainfield should have a serious conflagration these might be serious results from the lack of an extra supply in good condition. The old hose could be used, of course, but it is doubtful whether much of it could stand the strain for any length of time.

After being used it is now the custom to hang the hose up in the hose tower to dry while the hose wagons are loaded with dry hose. Especially in the winter when the hose freezes the moment the water is turned off and becomes very difficult to handle it is proper to have an extra supply of dry hose available that can be used to replace the hose on the wagons. At present this cannot be done. A rapid succession of fires, especially if they were at all serious, would find the department badly handicapped.

Last year the committee tried to get the necessary funds with which to purchase new hose, but failed. Another attempt will be made this year. It is believed that it will be a more economical plan to purchase a small amount of new hose each year rather than have to wait some time and then lay in a large supply.

No Trolley Before Springtime.

It is hardly possible for the Westfield and Elizabeth Railway Company to construct its tracks on Jersey avenue, from the Elizabeth line to West Jersey street, before spring sets in. The company has not as yet time under the provisions of the ordinances adopted by Roselle and the city council to complete its road, and set cars to running. It will be several months before the company can make connections with Aldene, where it crosses a branch of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and at Cranford, where it will have to build an overhead bridge in order to cross the tracks of the B. & O. road.

Mrs. Pettit's Helpful Address.

Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, of Elizabeth, president of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of New Jersey, gave an interesting address Friday afternoon before the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church. With the fundamental principle that truth should be the basis of all learning and teaching, she argued that all who tell this truth should strive to make an impression on the mind that would result in expression in right words, obedient character and helpful life. This expression in telling, giving and service was applied to missionary work.

VETERAN MILKMAN GONE

DROPPED DEAD AT A NEIGHBOR'S HOME FRIDAY EVENING.

James Soper, Who Has Conducted a Milk Route in This City for Forty Years, Passed Away Suddenly—Was 66 Years Old.

Isaac Soper, the veteran milkman who was born and bred on a farm just outside of South Plainfield, dropped dead at the home of Henry Teeple, a neighbor, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Soper was apparently in good health yesterday morning when he covered his milk route in this city as usual.

Passing by the home of Henry Teeple, he was asked to leave some milk. When he reached the Teeple home, complained of feeling faint and sat down. He asked for water and it was given it. His son, Albert, with whom he lives, was summoned, as was also Dr. Buchanan. He did not appear to grow any better and died almost immediately. He had suffered from similar fainting spells before. Heart trouble was the cause.

Mr. Soper was well known throughout Middlesex county and in this city as well. He ran a milk route in this city for forty years. He was born in South Plainfield 66 years ago. He was a professing Christian and belonged to the South Plainfield Baptist church. He leaves two sons, both married. He lived with Albert, who ran the farm. Charles is a section boss on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. His wife died a number of years ago.

It was his habit to tie his horse every morning on West Second street in front of Trinity Reformed church and eat his breakfast there. There were many in this city who knew him and exchanged a pleasant word with him as they passed.

NEW MARKET WAKES UP.

Citizens Rally Themselves in an Effort to Secure an Industry—Employing 200 Men.

A meeting was held last Friday at Casteline's Hotel to secure an expression of the citizens of New Market with regard to raising a sufficient amount of money to secure the location of the E. E. Colby & Co.'s plant at that place.

At a recent meeting of the Township Committee of Piscataway township, it was decided that the law prohibited the township from exempting a manufacture from taxation. To obviate this difficulty it is thought possible that a sufficient sum of money can be raised to guarantee the Colby Company.

The Colby Company manufactures iron and employes about 200 hands. Much interest is taken in the matter and it is believed that the company can be induced to move its plant to New Market if it can be assured of fair treatment.

AT HOPE CHAPEL.

Rev. Dr. Erdman Delivered a Scholarly Address Last Night.

The interesting and scholarly address delivered by Rev. Dr. Erdman, of Morristown, at Hope Memorial chapel last Friday, was listened to by a fair sized audience. Before beginning his discourse Dr. Erdman said he wished to extend his hearty congratulations to the members of the congregation for their successful efforts in beautifying and making attractive their new edifice.

Dr. Erdman's theme was "The Christian's Use of the Bible," and his text was taken from Ephesians, 6:17, "The Sword of the Spirit is the Word of God."

Dr. Erdman expressed the opinion that the Bible was a finished revelation for a guidance to His people—to make them understand His purpose and the spiritual knowledge which He wished to convey to all mankind.

VANWINKLES GATHERED.

Surprise Party Given to Miss S. E. Van-Winkle at Her Home Thursday Night.

A surprise party of unusual interest and pleasure was that tendered Thursday evening to Miss S. E. VanWinkle, sister of Lawyer John H. VanWinkle, at her home, corner of Mercer avenue and Duer street. It was arranged by members of the VanWinkle family, and was largely attended by relatives and several intimate friends. The affair was very complete, the surprised not having so much as an intimation of it. During the evening there were several social features, including the serving of refreshments. All extended to the hostess their hearty congratulations and wished her many happy returns of the day.

Death of William Neill.

William Neill, who for over twenty-seven years conducted one of the most extensive meat establishments in Elizabeth, died Friday at his home in Roselle, where for two years he had been leading a retired life. He was born and raised in New York city, where for many years prior to his removal to Elizabeth he conducted a meat business in Washington Market. He was seventy-five years old and is survived by a widow and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Hoagland, of Roselle, with whom he lived.

MISS ACKERMAN'S DEBUT IN SOCIETY.

Formal Reception Given by Mrs. E. R. Ackerman.

IMPORTANT SOCIETY EVENT.

RESIDENCE ON WEST EIGHTH STREET WAS HANDSOMELY DECORATED.

Formal "Coming Out" Reception Was Held Tuesday Afternoon and Evening—Society Was Present in Force—Honor to Young Women of Receiving Party Afterwards—The Decorations.

The formal introduction into Plainfield society of Miss Lydia P. Ackerman, daughter of Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman, of West Seventh street, was marked Thursday afternoon and evening by an elaborate reception, given in her honor by Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, at her handsome residence on West Eighth street. Invitations to the number of five hundred were issued and a representative assemblage of the elite of local society with guests from New York and other cities was present. It was a charming affair throughout and added to the list of important social events that make this season an unusually lively one for local society circles.

The reception was held from 4 until 7 o'clock and during those hours the parlors were thronged. The decorations were particularly elaborate and the effect was brought with very handsome effect. Red and green were the prevailing colors. Southern smilax was used in profusion and garlands of the green leaves were hung from the panels of the ceiling by large bows of red ribbon. Holly berries were also used to give just the touch of color needed to the green of the smilax. The stairway was hidden beneath a mass of floral decorations.

The guests were received by Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman, Miss Ackerman and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman. They were assisted by Mrs. Robert Redmore, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. Wm. B. Wadsworth, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Miss Florence Waring, Miss Cox, Miss Schoonmaker, Miss Shepard, and Miss Richards, of Bloomfield, this State.

An orchestra was half hidden in a floral bower at one end of the large hall and there rendered a number of selections during the progress of the reception. The table in the dining room was handsomely decorated. Refreshments were there served to the guests.

After the reception a dinner was given to the young women of the receiving party by Mrs. Ackerman. Covers were laid for twelve. The decorations were of pink.

After the dinner, an informal dance was held in which the young people participated.

COMPETITION NOW ASSURED.

Mayor Smalley Says, Will Ask Franchise for New Water Company.

The entry of the People's Water Company in the field in Paterson as a rival to the Passaic Water Company, a branch of the East Jersey Water Company, has aroused the old corporation, which has had a monopoly of the water business in Paterson.

It is said that the old company will begin proceedings in the Supreme Court to have the new franchise tested.

William B. Gourly, head of the new concern, is not alarmed over the declaration of war. He declared recently that the new company is a permanent institution. Mayor Hinchcliffe praises the Board of Aldermen for establishing the competition. He will sign the ordinances.

WORKMEN INSTALLED

Public Installation at Meeting of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., Friday Evening.

The public installation of the officers of Columbia lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., last Friday proved a pleasant event. There was a large attendance including some of the members of Central lodge. The officers were installed by Deputy Grand Master Workman A. Y. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, assisted by Grand Guide Nash and other grand officers. After the installation speech-making was indulged in, while the members and visitors enjoyed a smoker. F. C. Lounsbury presented the lodge with a hundred calendars to be distributed among the members.

TELEPHONE WAR.

Stockholder in Chief Electrician of New York's New Company.

New York has the prospect of a telephone war before it. The Knickerbocker Telephone Company has entered the field there with a big capital behind it. Its rates have just been announced and they promise to give the New York Telephone Company a lively competition. Willard M. Miner, of East Sixth street, this city, is the chief electrician of the Knickerbocker Company.

Miss Randolph, of West Eighth street, has been entertaining company from Bound Brook.

MINISTERS EXTEND CONGRATULATIONS.

A Happy Assembling of Members of the Cloth.

AT HOPE MEMORIAL CHAPEL

HANDSOME NEW EDIFICE CAUSE FOR AUSPICIOUS AFFAIR.

Pleasant Utterances for the Welfare of the Chapel Were Heard From Those Who Occupy the Pulpits in Other Churches—All Praise the Work Being Done by West End Society.

Last Thursday at Hope Memorial chapel there was a continuation of the dedicatory exercises, when the pastors gathered and offered their congratulations to Pastor Newell and his congregation upon securing such a handsome edifice and upon the grand work accomplished at that place in the past. Letters of regret were received from Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, Rev. E. M. Dwight, Rev. Charles E. Herring, Rev. Floyd Appleton, but who sent congratulations, however.

Pastor Newell was in charge and introduced the speakers, the first being Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church. Dr. Yerkes said that he was interested in the services because a house was being dedicated to God. He had stood in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome, seen the grandeur of it, heard the grand music, but his feelings were more hallowed in a chapel such as is being dedicated than in such a grand edifice.

Dr. Rodman said that some people think that it makes little difference how common or mean a thing is it will be good enough in the service of God. He then related a circumstance when he was rector of a church. A woman entered the church one day prior to a service and was horrified to detect the smell of fumes therein, and she exclaimed, "What next?" He then told a story related by Dr. Dix, of New York, concerning a woman who had sent a floral cross to Trinity church at Easter time. The officials would not receive it and it was sent away. The speaker was thankful that in this day people had passed beyond that sort of thing.

Dr. Lewis dwelt upon the architecture of the building and compared it to the religious life. He thought it a beautiful idea that the name of the chapel was "Hope," as it expresses so much, and represents better things beyond.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich was glad to bring congratulations. He said that he inferred from the remarks of Dr. Yerkes that the Baptists might have loaned a chapel there if the Presbyterians had not done so at such a time.

Dr. Schenck said that after due consideration he had decided that he was a grandfather to the chapel, as the original building was used by the Dutch at the other end of the city years ago, and in that relation he congratulated all on the courage evidenced in establishing such a place of worship.

Dr. Main congratulated pastor and people on general principles of Christian fellowship and unity. He thought it no trifling matter to see the city pastors together on such an occasion, for it represented a strong feeling of unity. Rev. Mr. Love spoke concerning Christian unity. Rev. J. O. McKelvey said he was especially interested in the chapel, for, he said, "This is where I ran my trial heat, and I am now running a little further."

Dr. Richards closed the addresses by accepting on behalf of Pastor Newell and people the kind words spoken, and thanking the pastors for what they had said. He closed his remarks with prayer. After Pastor Newell had made touching reference to the late Dr. Lowry, the congregation sang "Shall We Gather at the River," after which the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Yerkes.

Three New Endeavor Members.

At the monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church, held last Thursday at the home of Miss Elizabeth Runyon, on East Sixth street, three new members, Mr. Lloyd and the Misses Louise and Ernest Whitney, were received. Various reports were also submitted from the different committees regarding the work accomplished during the past month. The reports were highly satisfactory to all concerned. The next meeting will be held on February 21—Christian Endeavor Day. After the meeting a collation was served to the members and the evening passed in social intercourse.

Will Make Short Cut.

At the suggestion of the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital the Common Council will no doubt have a crosswalk laid from the hospital property across the street to connect with the walk that runs from West Third street to West Fourth street. This makes a short cut to the trolley cars, and will be an improvement as in wet weather it is very disagreeable walking.

LITTLE JOHNNIE'S TRIP

HE IS A FOUR-YEAR-OLD, BUT HE GOT HOME ALL RIGHT.

Traveled Along Railroad Tracks to North Avenue Station Where He Was Found by Roundsman Flynn.

Little Johnnie Usher, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Usher, of 215 Spooner avenue, has a passion for seeing the cars. This great desire caused much anxiety to his parents and gave the police department and neighbors any amount of trouble. It all happened Thursday afternoon. Shortly after dinner Johnnie conceived the idea of taking a trip down the railroad track. He wandered as far as the North Avenue station, where he appeared to be delighted with the scenes presented to his childish mind. It was about 4:30 o'clock that Roundsman Flynn came across the little chap at the station.

"Where are you?" he said, when asked his name, "and mamma's home's down dere," indicating by his stubby finger the direction of North avenue. The roundsman started with the child to find its parents. All the newsboys were appealed to, but none could tell who owned the child or where it lived. From North avenue Roundsman Flynn escorted the little fellow up Park avenue to Front, all the way making inquiries of passers by if they had heard of a lost child. No one had. Strolling up West Front street as far as Liberty the officer and his charge continued their search. To the surprise of the roundsman, when it was nearly dark, the infant turned over that street, telling the bluecoat that "his mamma lives over dis way." To humor the child the officer allowed it to lead him along. Inquiries about a lost child were frequently made, but no information was elicited. It was not until nearing the home of the child's parents that the roundsman learned that the neighbors were looking for a lost child.

When Johnny was turned over to his mother safe and sound the poor woman, who had been nearly distracted by the sudden disappearance of her little one, was profuse in her thanks to the officer for his persistent endeavors to restore her child.

Many in the neighborhood thought the child had been kidnapped and a general alarm had been sent throughout the vicinity, but no notification had reached the police, although Mrs Usher said she had sent a message to police headquarters, but that the station house was locked and no officer could be found there.

FRANCHISE TAX IS DUE.

WESTFIELD ALREADY SEES PROFIT FROM TROLLEY COMPANY.

Township Has Rendered Bill to Rikers for $155—Report That Mountainside Borough Will Not Get the Trolley.

The first sum of money is now due the township of Westfield from the Rikers for mileage under the terms of the ordinance granted the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, which gave the company the franchise to operate the trolley through the township.

Township Clerk Charles D. Reese, by order of the Township Committee, has sent the Rikers a bill, the amount of which is $155, which is at the rate of $100 a mile per annum for every mile of street railway operated in the township. The first bill is for that portion of the road from Cranford to the corner of Broad and Elm streets in Westfield. The franchise for the balance of the line running to Scotch Plains was granted at a later date, the payment for which begins with the first day of this month.

It is now understood that the borough of Mountainside will be left out in the cold as far as the cross country trolley line is concerned. It is now stated that the Rikers will build from Mountain avenue over private right of way south of Echo Lake at Branch Mills, and thence through Branch Mills to Springfield and connect with the Essex county lines at that place. This cross country line will connect Springfield with Rahway and Boynton Beach, and branches off the main line of the road at the corner of Broad and Elm streets in Westfield.

AGAINST STAMP TAX.

Retail Druggists Ask Congressman Daly to Secure a Reduction.

Representative William D. Daly, of the Seventh New Jersey Congressional District, has been asked by the Jersey City Druggists' Association to secure the passage by Congress of a law amending the stamp act on proprietary medicines, so that the burden may not fall so heavily upon the druggist as it does at present.

Under the present stamp act, they say, they are obliged to pay the Government one-quarter of their profits on more than one-half of their sales.

The manufacturers have in most cases increased the price more than enough to reimburse themselves for the cost of the stamps, and the druggists are unable to add any part of this increase to the selling price.

THE LOON'S WAYS.

Bird With a Demon's Voice That Can Dodge a Bullet.

Of the feathered inhabitants of the northern lakes the most interesting and impressive beyond question is the loon. In comparison with him the wild goose is tame and prosaic, and even the wild swan in all his graceful beauty makes an impression on the beholder less vivid and enduring. There is a reserve and mystery about the loon, a wonder in his strange journeys beneath the waves, his vanishings and reappearances, that set him apart from the other birds of the air and waters and invest him with a weird interest. He has none of the gregariousness of the other waterfowls, but swims by himself or with his mate, and often the only token of his presence to the campers by the forest lake is a doleful, unearthly shriek from the darkness, a sound that has been compared to the cry of a soul in hell-fire. Seen afoot upon the water, the loon is a rapid-looking bird, with color scarcely matched by those of any other fowl in the checkerboard distribution of simplest but striking effects. The imperial purples sheen crowns the deep bluish-green hue of head and neck, with silver bands about the throat, the splendid body markings in black and white, the fierce red eye, with iris vivid red, the proud, alert carriage of the head, are unique and fitting features in this lonely hunter of the northern lakes.

Whether or not the loon is able to dodge a rifle bullet, as many sportsmen affirm, is a certainly hard mark for him to hit in all the category of water fowl. From his size and the beauty of his plumage he naturally is sought for by the gunner, and find it, he will, but it a difficult matter to secure, after long effort, so much as a single bird. One amateur in the mist in Maine owned the startled loon in his collection. The discovery of some winter hunters of the bird frozen in the ice of a mountain pond. The loon had evidently been attacted by the bright sun in the ice, and either had paused to rest on the ice covering the pond or the ice had formed about him, holding him captive as he floated on the water. A loon can rise in flight only from the water, being unable to use his wings or spring aloft from a solid surface; hence from the moment pond is to escape. Loons have been captured on land while resting after long flights, a happening that occurs most frequently on the arid plains of the West, where water sheets are few and far apart. A loon taken this way on the arid plains of Mexico, six years ago, was kept on exhibition in that city for many days before being liberated to continue his flight to the South. Rarely a hunter secures the loon in the water with a rifle ball or charge of heavy shot.—Cor. N. Y. Sun.

Intensity of the Sense of Taste.

That the intensity of one sense is increased by the absence of the other senses is a fact which is well illustrated by the sense of taste. A cold cup feels heavier than one that has been slightly warmed by being carried in the pocket, and what is true here of touch is just as true of taste. Warm vinegar, warm sugar, warm solutions of salt, and so forth, are more effective when cold. If you put a slight solution of salt or quinine into a sugar solution of a certain sweetness, the sweetness will appear much greater. Cooks and confectioners are well aware of this fact, for they always add to sweet confections some bitter substance, just as the perfumer puts into perfumes of all kinds at least a little musk.

The cook tries to "lift" or "lift" the taste, as they say, just as the perfumer tries to do with the sense of smell, and as in acoustics the base drum or bass reed forms the right kind of support for the tone of coloring. On the other hand, if a mixture is made to sweet, without any contrasting elements, the quality of sweetness is lost, something like Milton's "darkness from excess of light." More than one man has been struck blind by a flash of lightning, and in the same way the sense of taste may be obscured by excess of sweetness. The effect of cold in reducing the intensity of sweetness is well known to anyone who has eaten ices, or even ice cream at home. If you don't make the cream a little too sweet before freezing, it will be sweet enough after the freezing process.

Hairs on the Head.

It has been stated that if the hairs on the head of a fair-haired person could be twisted together they would make a rope strong enough to support a weight of something like eighty tons, or of 800 people. This sounds rather a big statement, but the strength of one of a single hair is indeed quite surprising when its fineness is considered, as anyone can test for herself by noting the force that must be expended in breaking it.

Town of Exiles.

Manilton, Col., boasts of the fact that 75 per cent. of the population are exiles from their homes, who have found in Manilton health and strength. Its high altitude, its ozone, its persistent sunshine and its mineral waters are its prouder possessions. Among its adopted children are people from almost every state and territory and from nearly every civilized country in the world.

The Gaelic Tongue.

A Gaelic writer of the seventeenth century predicted that the Gaelic language would be more used by its great esteem in Ireland, and an Irish paper says the prediction seems in a fair way of being fulfilled. Under the new constitution of the Dublin Councils, under the new local government bill are changing the English names of roads and streets into their Irish equivalents.

There is an animated controversy in San Francisco over the fact that the new city hall, planned to cost $1,500,000, represents up to date a municipal investment of over $5,000,000, but is not completed.

The controversy in London over the bones and coaches has brought to light the fact that four descendants of Shalliwer, who founded the coach in London seventy years ago, are now living in San Francisco.

CHURCH CANNOT GET 30 YEAR OLD LEGACY.

Remarkable Case Just Decided in Court of Chancery.

VALUABLE LAND INVOLVED.

OUTCOME OF PURCHASE OF LINCOLN SCHOOL HOUSE SITE.

After Nearly Thirty Years a New Hampshire Church Tried to Collect a Legacy of $1,000 Which Had Been Willed to It by the Late Edward W. Marsh—Owners Protested.

Vice-Chancellor Stevens in the Court of Chancery has rendered an opinion in a case that involved one of the most remarkable contests for the ownership of real estate yet recorded in New Jersey. Three years ago Robert D. Benedict, a lawyer in New York, sold to the Board of Education, of this city, the site for the Lincoln School building at the corner of East Second and Berkman streets. At the time of the delivery of the conveyance it was accepted by the Board of Education only on the condition that Mr. Benedict execute and deliver to the Board of Education his bond in the sum of $2,000 conditioned for the payment of any sum which certain legatees under the will of a former owner of the property might claim.

It was found that among the legacies was a conditional one bequeathing $1,000 to the Congregational church in White River Village, Vt. As the will of the testator, Edward W. Marsh, had been proved in 1869 and his estate long ago wound up and settled and the executors and residuary legatees dead, Mr. Benedict presumed that the legacies had been paid and that the executors had neglected to file the proper releases. Acting on this assumption he wrote to the minister of the Congregational church in White River Village requesting him to have the proper release executed, as there could be no doubt but that the legacy had since been paid.

Much to the surprise of Mr. Benedict, he received a reply from the minister to the effect that the church had never heard of the legacy but would at once take steps to recover the amount of legacy left them nearly thirty years before. Counsel was at once retained and the case taken into the Court of Chancery, the church claiming its right to the legacy bequeathed it by the late Mr. Marsh. Mr. Benedict and three of the other persons were made the defendants, all being owners of the land bounded by East Front and Berkman streets and Midway Avenue in this city.

The principal claim of the plaintiffs was that they had never heard of the execution of the legacy to them, and having no knowledge of the fact the statute of limitations could not apply and prevent their recovery of the amount willed to them. The matter was argued with great force by Mr. Carey, William Keasbey, McGregor & McCarter, for the plaintiffs, and by J. P. Powers, of Elizabeth, for the defendants.

In rendering his opinion dismissing the claim of the church, Vice Chancellor Stevens said that even if ignorance of the legacy had been clearly proven he would doubt whether it should avail, as against the previous standing of the defendants, who were neither trustees or volunteers, but purchasers of real value. He said that if ignorance of the church formed an equitable ground for the claiming of the property, then ignorance of the purchasers of the land ought, at this distance of time, to be regarded as an equitable ground for maintaining it.

AFTER DR. RICHARDS.

A Baltimore Church Wants Him, But There Is No Likelihood of His Leaving Plainfield.

A dispatch to the New York Sun from Baltimore is to the effect that the committee of the Brown Memorial Presbyterian church, appointed to secure a successor to Rev. Dr Maltbie D. Babcock, has been considering Rev. Dr. W. E. Richards, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Plainfield, N. J. Members of the committee have just visited Plainfield to learn what the chances of securing Mr. Richards are. John B Ramsey, one of those who went to Plainfield, said yesterday afternoon said that the party had not yet reached a decision.

The facts contained in the dispatch are true, although the members of the committee did not personally confer with Dr. Richards.

Whatever their decision may be, it is not believed by the friends of Dr. Richards that he could be persuaded to leave his present field.

BURGLARS WERE AROUND.

An Exciting Time at the Home of Morris Pollan—Police Were Notified.

There was an exciting time at the home of Morris Pollan at 809 North avenue about 11 o'clock Friday night. Mr. Pollan is employed as a fireman at the electric light station and works nights. His family is therefore alone until morning. It was shortly after 10:30 o'clock that Mrs. Pollan heard a noise as if some one was forcing a window. The sounds could not be mistaken. Mrs. Pollan became very much frightened and to make things more secure she placed an unused stove against the parlor door while she went to alarm the neighbors.

The police were notified by telephone and Patrolman McCarty went up to investigate. When the officer reached the house there were no burglars about. There was evidence, however, that the house had been entered.

Bureau drawers found opened and there was other signs apparent that the interior of the house had been searched for valuables. The only thing missed were $3 50 in cash which had been left in the top of a bureau. The police believe the burglary was the work of tramps, as some hoboes had been seen in the vicinity late in the afternoon.

Miss Gilmore, of West Second street, has returned from a visit with relatives in New York.

Miss L. D. Snyder and Miss Mamie Carey have resigned their positions in Crosby & Hill's big store.

RED MEN LOST THE SUIT.

UNABLE TO COLLECT FROM LOAN ASSOCIATION AMOUNT CLAIMED.

The Case Tried in the Circuit Court Yesterday and the Jury Rendered a Verdict Favorable to the Defendants.

The attempt of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 116, Improved Order of Red Men, of Plainfield to recover the full amount paid into the Hospitality Savings and Loan Association, of Newark, through action brought in the Union County Circuit Court did not result in a complete victory for the Red Men. The case was tried before Judge Vail and a jury Thursday morning.

In April, 1896, Miantonomo Tribe, wishing to invest a portion of its money, purchased 20 shares in the loan association. These shares were kept up until April of last year, when the order decided to withdraw.

The money the company had received from the association for dues, etc., during the time of its membership amounted to $370, which amount, together with interest, would have been returned to the retiring Red Men had it not been for the fact that about two years ago the constitution and bylaws of the loan association were so amended that a certain amount is taken from each claims in order to meet the expenses, etc., of the association.

On withdrawing the Red Men demanded the payment of $370, plus a dividend not exceeding 6 per cent., whereas the loan association offered to pay but $300.31; whereupon the Red Men, through William Newcorn, brought suit to recover the amount it was entitled to under the constitution of the association as it existed when it became shareholder.

The loan association was represented by B. V. Lindabury.

The case was called earlier in the day than was expected and none of the plaintiff's witnesses were present. Lawyer Newcorn finally succeeded in proving his case with the aid of the testimony of Luther Gadd, president and general manager of the loan association.

The judge decided that under the present rules of the association, that organization had the right to deduct a certain percentage from the amount withdrawn for expenses. The jury therefore brought in a verdict for $300 31, for the Red Men.

DANCE FOLLOWED EUCHRE.

Misses Reynolds and Freeman Entertained Club Members Pleasantly.

Miss Reynolds, of Madison avenue, and Miss Freeman, of LaGrande avenue, entertained the euchre club of which they are members, in the room of the Plainfield Camera Club, Babcock building, Thursday. A portion of the evening was devoted to euchre, Mrs. F. H. Smith and Herbert Buxton winning the prizes. Then followed an informal dance.

The club will next be entertained Thursday evening, Jan. 18, by Miss Filmer, of Madison avenue.

Change in Arrangements.

To obviate some difficulties, a change has been made in the arrangement of the speaker's desk and seats of the First Baptist church. The speaker's desk has been placed in the corner of the main room and in front of the intermediate department, has been removed to the north east side of the main room, commanding a view of the whole school, including the primary and intermediate departments. The chairs and circular seats face the platform. It is thought the change will be an improvement.

Interesting Periodicals.

Two new scientific periodicals have been added to the number taken at the Plainfield Public Library through the Babcock fund. One is the International edition of "The American Architect," which contains many very fine plates; the other is "The Trained Nurse."

MORE FIRE ALARMS WITH LESS LOSSES.

Records of Plainfield Fire Department for 1899.

IS COMPARED WITH 1898.

TOTAL LOSSES WERE GREATLY REDUCED LAST YEAR.

People Are Learning That the Department Can Extinguish Fires Without Flooding the Premises and the Value of Quick and Telephone Alarms Has Been Demonstrated—Only Two Serious Fires Last Year.

The last year has shown an increase in the number of fires to which the Plainfield fire department has been summoned to render assistance and a decrease in the amount of losses resulting from these fires. Since the department has reached its present state of excellence and, with the adoption of the call system, succeeding it from a volunteer to a paid department, the records of the department show that 1899 has been asked for at a far greater number of small fires than heretofore. The people have begun to realize that the calling out of the department does not necessarily mean the flooding of their homes as in the old days of the volunteer companies.

During the year of 1898, there were 86 fires that were recorded at department headquarters as against 61 in 1899. Of the 86 fires, there were 30 box alarms, 19 still alarms and 37 telephone alarms. There were only two really large fires, the one that partially gutted the Fruden building on West Front street, and the one that destroyed the ice house near Grant avenue.

No exact record has been kept of the number of fires in which the chemical engine has proved its effectiveness but a large proportion of the fires has been that apparatus in use and with good effect. The substitution of the stream from the chemical engine for the regular stream from the hydrant has undoubtedly saved thousands of dollars' worth of property that would have been ruined by the flood.

Last January saw the greatest proportion of fires of any one month during the year. They came right after the extreme cold weather that marked the beginning of last year. Most of them were due to overheated stove or defective flues.

The opening of the new engine house in the west end and the establishment of part of the apparatus there has proved a boon to residents. Heretofore it was some time before the apparatus from the centre of the city could reach the scene of the fire and the flames were enabled to get under good headway.

The greatest difference to be noticed in the records of 1899 and 1898, is the remarkable reduction in the fire losses last year, the amount being reduced to nearly a third of the losses of 1898. In 1898 the total loss to buildings amounted to $36,000 00, while last year, it was only $11,677 01. The loss on the contents of the buildings amounted in 1899 to $17,661 76. In 1899, it was $10,406.98. The total losses in 1898 were $46,645.76; in 1899, $22,373.47.

FUNERAL OF LITTLE HELEN.

Last Sad Rites Over the Remains of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rose' Child.

The last sad rites over the remains of Helen Marie Rose, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Rose, of 11 Coolidge avenue, were held January 3rd at 4 o'clock at the home, which was crowded with relatives and young friends of the little one who had passed away. The service, which was conducted by Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church, where Helen was an attendant, was particularly affecting.

An affecting incident in connection with the services was the vocal rendition of a favorite hymn of the departed, "Jesus Loves Me." This was sung by Elmer E Runyon. There was a beautiful display of flowers from relatives and friends. From the church and Sunday-school there were taken, and from the people in New York where Mr. Rose is employed there was a very large floral heart of roses.

After the services an opportunity was given all to view the remains. The interment took place this morning at Hillside cemetery.

Mayor Fish Had a Stand.

The credit for the changes in the committees of the Common Council for 1900 is due to President Frank E. Smith and Former Mayor C. J. Fish, who conferred in the matter. The suggestion was referred to the Council and was heartily agreed to. As regards the police committee there are five members of it. The three members together with the Mayor and President of the Council compose it, making the police board.

LOVERS ELOPING FELL INTO HANDS OF POLICE

Dubious End to Courtship of a Country Couple.

WILD RIDE TO GET AWAY.

CHASED BY HORSE AND BICYCLE WITHOUT SUCCESS.

After Eluding the Hired Man at Bound Brook, the Latter Resorted to the Telegraph and Succeeded in Heading Off the Elopers in This City—Girl Detained Till Mother Arrives.

After a wild and rather romantic ride over hill and through dale of Somerset county, in the hope of outwitting parental opposition, a young pair of lovers were captured in this city last Sunday by the police at the solicitation of the eloping mother's emissary just before they reached the goal that they were seeking—an asylum where their love might be plighted for life. The eloping couple were Miss Mabel Frost, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Wilhelmina Frost, living near Liberty Corner, Somerset county, and Edward Howell, also a resident of that neighborhood.

The prospective husband is twenty years of age. The couple have been lovers for some time, and have been meeting clandestinely owing to the opposition of the girl's mother. The girl lives part of the time with her grandmother, Mrs. John Laire, on a neighboring farm. In the absence of the grandmother at Sunday-school Sunday afternoon young Howell met Miss Frost, and the latter complained of the treatment she received at home. Howell told the girl to wait a little while and he would away. Shortly after George Howell, the suitor's brother, appeared and suggested that Miss Frost go to Plainfield and there be married. The girl quickly agreed to the plan and hastily putting on her wraps was taken to Howell's home, where she met her lover.

Then the Howell boys and Miss Frost started for Plainfield, the latter resolving a kiss and well wishes for her future happiness from her prospective mother-in law. In the meantime, however, Joseph Hindershot, an employe of the eloping girl's mother, suspected what was going on. He hurried to Mrs. Frost and told her that Mabel was going away with Howell. Mrs. Frost told Hindershot to hitch up his horse and overtake the elopers and bring back the runaway daughter. Hindershot who soon hot on the trail of the elopers. When the latter saw that they were being chased they whipped their horse into a dead run, and for the two miles to Pluckamin it was a nip and tuck race between the two rigs. The elopers had the best horse, however, and were gaining ground when Hindershot's horse began to give out under the hot pace.

Then Hindershot met a man with a bicycle and hauling up his steed he borrowed the bicycle to continue the chase, leaving his rig as a security for the return of the wheel. This delay allowed the elopers to get a good lead, and Hindershot lost sight of them. He thought they were going to Somerville, but after following the road to that place for a mile he saw that the rig occupied by the elopers wending its way along the "hill" road to Bound Brook. He retraced his course at a fast gait and finally got on the right trail again. The elopers found it out, too, and again the horse was whipped into a run. The road was up and down hill and very rocky in places, and Hindershot's course was a hard one.

The Howell boys were not quite sure of their course, however, and they made a mistake and drove into a farm lane, believing it to be a public highway. They soon discovered the mistake and turned around and started back. By the time they got to the highway again, Hindershot was on hand. He jumped off the bicyle and rushed ahead of the rig in the hope of stopping the elopers then and there. Howell saw through the trick and whipped his horse vigorously and drove past Hindershot with a rush, almost knocking the man down. By the time Hindershot resumed the chase the elopers had got a good start on him, and when he reached Bound Brook he lost sight of the rig.

Thinking they might have gone on to Plainfield he telegraphed to Chief Grant, giving a description of the rig, and asked to have the occupants detained until he could arrive here. Roundsman Flynn approached the rig on Front street shortly after 6 o'clock.

The Howell boys were indignant at being stopped in this manner, claiming they had done nothing wrong.

"Why, I'm on my way to see my sister, Mrs. Phoebus, of East Front street," exclaimed George Howell, "and it's a great note that a man can't do that without being held up by the police."

The two young men and the girl were taken to the police station, and Hindershot notified at Bound Brook. He arrived in town at 7 o'clock, finishing his journey on a Central train. After the night detail of the police had gone out the girl was turned over to Sergeant Kiely, who questioned her severely and finally obtained a confession that she would not be sixteen years old till March 4th next. She said that she ran away from home to be married because her mother scolded her too much. In the meantime efforts were made to locate her mother, but after vain attempts up till 9 o'clock Senator Reed was consulted.

He said that there was no charge on which the police could hold the Howell boys. They were then allowed to depart.

Miss Frost was taken to McVey's hotel and there locked up in a room To prevent escape, her hat and shoes were taken away from her. Up till that time she had been very composed, but when locked up in the room alone she broke down and wept. Monday she refused to eat any breakfast. She was taken to Chief Grant's office to await the arrival of her mother.

Mrs. Frost arrived in town Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. There was a weeping time between the mother and daughter when they met in the Mayor's office, but the daughter's tears were caused principally by her regret that she had been prevented from marrying her lover. She consented to return home with her mother, and they will go back this afternoon.

CITY HALL IS NEEDED.

Important Recommendation in Mayor's Message.

WILL SAVE CITY MONEY.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS DISCUSSED AT LENGTH.

Compliments Fire and Police Departments—Council Should Oversee All Taxation Matters—Mayor Always Willing to Aid Other City Officials.

The following is the annual message of Mayor Rockfellow communicated to the Common Council Monday night:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—Reference to the full and detailed reports of officers and committees, filed as late as December 27th last, will fully inform the newly-elected members of your honorable body, and refresh the recollections of the other members, as to the business transacted during the year 1899, the present condition of the several departments and the recommendations of officers and committees therein made for the ensuing year. These reports practically brought down to date and prepared by those, who, by reason of their experience during the year, were most thoroughly conversant with the subjects dealt with, are of great value to the city, and render it unnecessary for me to do more at this time than call attention to such special matters as I desire to submit for your early consideration.

CITY HALL A NECESSITY.

In my judgment, the time has arrived when we can no longer defer the erection of a City Hall without sacrificing vital public interests and endangering the reputation of the city. The pressing needs for such a building have been pointed out in prior messages, are referred to in the official reports on file, and need not be recapitulated. It is enough to say that it seems to be conceded by all that a City Hall is now a matter of imperative necessity. We have not even the ordinary decency left as justification for further delay, for it is easily demonstrateable that the present expenditure for rentals exceeds the annual interest charges on the money that would suffice for the purchase of land and the erection of the building, and it is manifest that the longer the purchase of the necessary land is put off, the greater will be its cost. I recommend that among the first measures to be taken up, be the appointment of a special committee with power to propose and submit plans and specifications, to solicit a suitable lot and to advise the Council under what statute the city should take final action in the premises.

STREETS.

The matter of laying down a pavement on Park avenue from Front street to the railroad, on Front street from Watchung avenue to Central avenue, and on Somerset street from Front stret to the city line, has long been under discussion, and was deferred last year, partly because of the other more pressing needs and the desire to keep down the tax levy, and partly to enable underground sewer, gas, electric light and telephone conduits to be first laid, and to procure legislation to prevent the pavement from being torn up for any purpose without special permission first obtained from the Common Council or its duly appointed agents. Most of the permanent conduits have been laid through the streets referred to and the city has secured the enactment of chapter 189 of the session laws of 1899, under which the city is authorized to pass an ordinance to require all persons and corporations to complete the laying and repairing of wires, pipes, or other conduits beneath the said streets within ninety days from the date of approval, or final adoption of said ordinance, and to provide that the pavement shall in no manner be disturbed for the space of at least five years without express permission. The same statute requires all property owners along the lines of such streets to connect leaders with pipes under the sidewalks so as to conduct water from the roofs of buildings into the storm sewer.

The importance of this legislation, and it value to the city will be apparent when it is remembered that prior to its enactment, the city possessed little power to prevent arbitrary interference with permanent pavements by corporations possessing easements in the public streets.

The streets in question, having been once paved at great expense to the adjoining property owners, it would be inequitable to or ler a second assessment to be made upon them for the proposed re-paving, especially, in view of the fact that the streets in question form the principal business streets of the city, and are called upon to bear a greater share of public traffic than other city streets. The Legislature has recognized this principle, and has provided in Chapter 94 of the Session Laws of 1898, and supplement in 1899, for the proper method of meeting the expense of such re-paving, and I recommend that proceedings be taken under that act of the Legislature to cause the portions of streets above described to be repaved as follows, viz., for the space of three feet on each side next to the curb, with vitrified brick laid in cement, and the rest of the roadways with best quality of macadam.

When the macadamizing, now in process of construction, shall have been completed, I recommend that no new streets shall be macadamized during the present year, unless the adjoining property owners shall first deposit with the City Treasurer their fair proportion of the estimated expense so that the city may be spared the expense of commissioners to assess benefits, court expenses, extra advertising and proceedings to collect assessments.

It is more important to keep in repair the many miles of streets already macadamized than it is to do more macadamizing, and to this end, I recommend that a competent man be employed, to be furnished with a horse and wagon, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the Street Commissioner, to devote his whole time to the task of cleaning and repairing streets, and particularly the task of discovering and promptly repairing defects in the road-beds of macadamized streets.

Another thing essential to the durability of the macadam already laid is that it should be thoroughly sprinkled once each day, except during the winter season, and where such sprinkling is not done by the abutting property owners, the City should, in some way, cause it to be done as a matter of self protection.

FIRE AND POLICE.

The fire and police departments of the City have reached an admirable degree of efficiency, and while not abating one jot of the established discipline, we will do well to rest content with their present advanced state of development without changing the systems established or enlarging the personal, so as to incur increased expense in the maintenance of either department during the current year.

TAXES.

Complaints have been made by prominent citizens that the assessments of property and school-bond taxes have been heavier in this City than in other similar cities, and that apparently the Common Council has had no supervision or control over the amount ordered assessed. While it is true that the Board of Education has the power within well-defined limits to determine the amount to be assessed for such purposes, and if the amounts ordered do not in fact exceed the percentage allowed by law, the Common Council would be powerless to order a reduction, yet it is a matter that before the assessment act upon the requisition for the assessment of such taxes, the requisition, or a copy thereof, should be submitted to the Common Council as the governing and fiscal body of the City, to the end that if that body should be of opinion that the amount ordered is in excess of the statutory limit, appropriate action may be taken to make correction, or to promptly call attention to, and determine the duty of the Assessors to levy before the Common Council at the first opportunity, copies of all requisitions that may hereafter be delivered to or served upon them, or any of them, respecting the assessment of such taxes.

The Common Council having on December 28th last directed the Collector to proceed to advertise and sell the fee of all real estate on which taxes assessed by the Martin Act Commissioners remain unpaid, a most important duty devolves upon the Common Council and the Collector to see to it that every step is taken in strict accordance with the law. It is likely that, as in other cities, this city will become the purchaser in many cases. In every such case, the city is required to ascertain what liens or encumbrances are upon the property and to serve notices to redeem upon holders of mortgages, etc. If these steps are properly taken, the property so acquired by the city is sure to make the city good for at least every dollar of tax interest and costs, since before the deed is delivered, the city may assign its bid, or after delivery of the deed and expiration of notice to redeem, the city may sell the property and convey good title in fee and give actual possession to the purchaser. This is the most important year under the Martin Act proceedings, and the city should realize therefrom handsome returns.

The first year's experience under the ordinance providing that taxes shall become finally due a month earlier than formerly has abundantly justified the course of the city in obtaining the necessary legislation and adopting the ordinance. I recommend that the ordinance be now followed up by a resolution or ordinance allowing a discount under chapter 305 of the session laws of 1899, which statute was adopted at the instance of this city, to such persons as make payment of their taxes prior to the date of taxes becoming delinquent.

Under the laws governing second-class cities and now applicable to Plainfield, there is more necessity than was formerly the case for joint and concurrent action by Council and Mayor. In the spirit of these laws I invite the freest drafts upon my time and attention by the members of your honorable body, collectively and individually. We are equally interested in the successful conduct of the city government, and I take it that we are equally in favor of economy in all departments; not that false economy which, by indiscriminate reductions and omissions drives away the best men, makes it impossible to secure the best work, and, by neglect, causes impairment of public property and improvements; but that economy which, while employing the best means and the wisest methods, insure no unnecessary expense, no extravagance, no superfluous labor, allows no work to be slighted, and gets for the city for every dollar expended full value received.

NEW CLUB WILL RISE FROM WRECK OF OLD.

Successor for the Union County Country Club.

RECEIVER'S SALE MONDAY.

MOST OF THE PROPERTY BOUGHT IN BY JUDGE RUNYON.

He Will Keep Property Together and It Will Eventually Be Turned Over to the New Club—Low Prices Prevailed—A Few Other Purchasers—Sale of Pool and Bowling Outfits Adjourned.

The Union County Country Club now exists only in name. The clubhouse equipment, the last of its property, was disposed of Monday at public auction. For several months the club has been in the hands of a receiver, Robert A. Meeker, who has arranged the affairs so that what little remained of the assets might be realized upon for the benefit of the creditors.

There is every prospect that a new club will rise up out of the wreck of the old organization. The men who stood by the club to the last favor a new organization. No formal action has yet been taken, but it is understood that an agreement has been made to start the new club as soon as the affairs of the old are entirely wound up.

It is probable that the corporate name of the Union County Country Club will be purchased by the new organization and changed to the Union County Club. The club house, which is now owned by those who are interested in the new club, will undoubtedly become the home of the Union County Club while the bulk of the furniture and fixtures of the old club will be retained.

The receiver's sale was held at the clubhouse this morning. W. N. Pangborn acted as auctioneer. The contents of the rooms were sold in groups as was most of the china, glassware and cooking utensils. All the furniture except a few stray pieces, the equipment of the Casino, and most of the crockery and glassware were purchased by City Judge William N. Runyon. It is understood that this property will be kept together and ultimately pass into the hands of the new organization.

With few exceptions, the prices were very low. In some cases, Mayor Smalley, Prosecutor Andrew Lutkins and George J. Tobin took a hand in the bidding and made it lively for the Judge. They made several purchases. There were some other purchasers when the kitchen and dining wares was put on sale.

When the auctioneer adjourned to the basement, a protest was made by Craig A. Marsh at the selling of one pool table and most of the bowling balls and pins. The protest was made in the name of John B. Dumont claiming that those articles had been purchased by private subscription and did not belong to the club. Their sale was adjourned to allow the receiver to investigate the claim. The other two pool tables, with complete outfit, were sold at $65 and $45 respectively to Judge Runyon.

The total proceeds from the sale will amount to from $300 to $700. The exact figures are not attainable. The purchasers were given until Tuesday night to remove their goods. It is understood that the articles purchased by Judge Runyon will be allowed to remain in the club house.

Officers of Gossing and Turn Verein.

The following officers have been elected by the members of the Gossing and Turn Verein: President, Herman Klinsman; vice-president, Jacob Grant; corresponding secretary, Jos. Haurand; financial secretary, F. Borgas; treasurer, Charles Fulver.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in charge of the Insane Asylum on Blackwell's Island, writes to a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I asserted that if one would be known a physician, and do a large practice, the only one thing would help the whole human race—nothing could be better than to procure the Ripans Tabules. I have since added to the Specific Medicine of the Ripans Tabules, and cause it to be put up in the form of a lozenge and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The largest retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Seventh Avenue, New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how Ripans Tabules were sold, bought a five-cent carton and asked: "Do you have much call for them?" He was referred to a gentleman who had charge of the Specific Medicine department. He said:

"The sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing, due especially to the influential character of the testimonials in the daily press, and growing out of the fact that the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are begun I notice that a regular customer for them is made. This, I believe, is through their intrinsic merit, which proves the best falsifier of the many so-called patent medicines that specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known by me as a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules in cases of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the peculiarities of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no benefit or results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald concluded to give them a trial, and found they were just what my case required. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $5 a call. A 5-cent's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview the lady was prominent among those who specially objected to clothes giving a testimonial which should speak for means in the newspaper, but to do this the elder lady argued: "There are lots of people who know me, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one I meet at the store. If the taking about my case in this way may enable some other person similarly afflicted to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." The druggist knew how generally she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

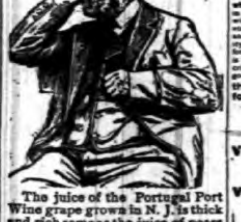
ALFRED SPEER,
THE ORIGINAL
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich sameas the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while these grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

TRANSFERS CUT OFF FROM SCOTCH PLAINS

New Order Issued by Street Railway Company.

TOWNSHIP MAY RETALIATE.

FIVE CENTS ONLY PAYS FOR RIDE TO WATCHUNG AVENUE SWITCH.

Heretofore Transfers Were Given to the Other Line, But the New Order Prevents That—Scotch Plains People Up in Arms Over the Matter, and Officials Are to Take a Hand Now.

The residents of Scotch Plains are up in arms against the new order of the Westfield and Elizabeth street Railway, which went into effect Sunday. The cause of the disturbance is that the trolley company is not satisfied with rubbing it into the patrons of the road by the poor service given, but have issued a new order that no transfers will be given over other branches of the Plainfield Street Railway.

The company's franchise reads from any point in Fanwood township to Watchung avenue, Plainfield, for one fare of 5 cents. But when the franchise was granted the public was given to understand that transfers would be given over any of the branches of the Plainfield line and even to Dunellen for the one fare.

The company lived up to this mutual understanding during the time the extension was first opened as far as Scotch Plains and even after the line was thrown open as far as Cranford, and those who are working in Plainfield factories found the trolley very convenient and a cheap mode of travel. During the past week the trolley magnates have met and made the change and it was sprung as a surprise Sunday. Owing to the stormy day very little traveling was done, but Monday and Tuesday the residents of the village began to feel the imposition—as they call it—which had thrust upon them, and their wrath has slowly risen to the boiling point.

The Township committee will probably be appealed to for some sort of redress and then the company will find that things are not all one sided. When the franchise was guaranteed a clause was inserted which reads that the trolley company shall pay to Fanwood township the sum of $100 per annum per every mile of track laid in the township, payment to commence in 1899. There is nearly 2½ miles of track laid which means a tax of $243 per annum.

The township committe were lenien with the company and overlooked the collection of this tax when it was due on Jan. 1st. The township committee did not insist on immediate payment. The committee will probably press all claims against a company who seems to be in business to take all advantages offered. The outcome of the clash will be watched with interest by the whole village.

WEDDING IN DUNELLEN.

Zeisenbach-Cooper Nuptials Celebrated in St. John's M. C. Church Yesterday Afternoon.

Yesterday at 3 o'clock occurred the marriage of William Zeisenbach, of New York, and Mary Agnes Cooper, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, of Dunellen. The ceremony was performed at St. John's Roman Catholic church by the pastor, Rev. Father Bogaard.

The tiny little church was filled to its limit by the many friends of the bride who is held in the high esteem by a large number of people.

Miss Margaret Roache, a cousin of the bride, of Bound Brook, was the bridesmaid and George Zeisenbach, brother of the groom, of Schenectady, was best man. James Roache, of Bound Brook, and Martin Boyle, of Dunellen, filled the important part of ushers.

The bride looked pretty in a white silk over taffeta with veil. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Roache, the bridesmaid, wore a costume of white organdie over blue silk and carried carnations. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 304 Madison avenue, where a wedding dinner was served. There were many guests from nearby towns present to offer congratulations. The bride received many handsome presents. Mr. and Mrs. Zeisenbach left on a short wedding tour. They will reside for the present at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Zeisenbach holds a lucrative position with the Pennsylvania Railroad. For some months he has made his home at the Park Hotel, where he is a general favorite.

Miss Tillie Schenck, of Elmwood place, has been entertaining relatives from Metuchen.

HONEST HELP OF POOR.

METHODS AND AIMS OF ORGANIZED CHARITY.

The Subject Discussed Before Branch Alliance of Unitarian Women by Those Who Have Given It Careful Consideration.

The Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and other Liberal Christian Women held its first meeting Tuesday afternoon for the year in All Souls church, Park avenue, when the subject "Methods and Aims of Organized Charity," was taken up and discussed at some length. There was a good sized audience present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, the vice-president, Mrs. A. D. Conklin, presided. Previous to the public meeting a short business session was held, and at 3:30 o'clock the meeting was opened to the public.

The subject under discussion was opened by Mrs. Henry Opdyke, of this city, who for many years has been identified with charitable enterprises. She spoke of helping the poor through the Organized Aid Association so that they would soon learn to do for themselves, but not in any sense that would make these people feel as though they were paupers. She brought out the point that one ought to love their neighbor as themselves and do all that is possible to help them and make better people of them. She dwelt on the point of these people being assisted to that degree of having supporting ability. She then introduced a scheme that has been uppermost in her mind for years, that of establishing on the outskirts a farm, where poor people could raise various fruits, vegetables, etc., and exchange them in the city for clothing, hats, shoes, etc., things that they could not otherwise buy through lack of money. She spoke of this plan at some length and said that she hoped some day to see such a scheme in working order.

Mrs. Opdyke was followed by Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the church, who followed up the line of thought brought out by the preceding speaker. He said that he wished the Organized Aid could be instrumental in persuading people to desist in giving alms at the door, and thus continue the idea of so prevalent, that of pauperizing poor people. He desired that people might be induced to put their kindly emotions in this respect in the right channel through the Aid Association, and this would make the poor people feel less dependent, and give them more respect for themselves. In this way they could do something for that which they receive. He said that he wished the people of the city would conspire together and contribute to the Aid Association and then better results would be securred. He said that if the people of Plainfield would give ten cents twenty times a year to the association it would give that body ample funds with which to work and care for the needy. Each person would then pay an annual membership fee. A person often gives more than that every year and thinks nothing of it. He spoke of the great good that is being accomplished by the Aid through people of means. If it were not for this support the project would fail no doubt.

After the addresses a general discussion followed which was of a great benefit to all and brought out many points of interest. Then followed a tea which was presided over by Miss Caroline Hall and Miss Kelly. Many remained and enjoyed the tea and a social chat.

AGAINST BARD COMPANY.

Eastman Kodak Company Given a Judgement of $400 by Judge Yanbyckel.

The Bard Company's affairs were again the subject of judicial attention Tuesday when Judge Van Syckel in the Supreme Court at Elizabeth heard the case of the Eastman Kodak Company against the Bard Company. A motion was made that the defendant be required to furnish a bond for the costs according to the statute.

Counsellor Angleman appeared for the Eastman Kodak Company, and resisted the motion on the ground that the defendant was not entitled to a bond and that even if the defendant was so entitled counsel had waived it. Judge Van Syckel denied the motion, and at once proceeded to hear the case.

On the conclusion of the testimony, he gave judgement for the Eastman Kodak Company and against the Bard Company for $400.08, the full amount asked. Murphy & Blatz appeared for the defendant.

Mrs. Cadmus, of Somerset street, has been visiting Cranford relatives for a short time.

Mrs. Winfield Coddington, of Newark, is visiting relatives in Plainfield for a short time.

TRANSVAAL WAR IS THE GREATEST TOPIC.

Impressions Secured Abroad by Former Mayor Saunders.

SYMPATHY WITH THE BOERS

BTITISH PEOPLE DO NOT EVIDENCE GREAT ENTHUSIASM.

In Every Continental Country, Mr. Saunders Says, the People Seem to be Hoping for the Success of the Dutch Republic—He Finds High Regard for the Opinion of the United States.

After an absence of five months abroad, former Mayor William L. Saunders, of Washington Park, returned to his home Monday, having arrived in New York Sunday on the steamer Eutruia, of the Cunard Line. He says that he feels better than ever, having fully recovered from his illness of a few months ago.

The trip that Mr. Saunders took was chiefly one for pleasure, although he went partially in the interest of his company, the Sergeant-Ingersoll Drill Company, which has large interests in almost every foreign country. He was accompanied by Mrs. Saunders a portion of the trip, but she returned after a few months of travel.

When questioned as to his trip, Mr. Saunders began talking about the South African war, this being the chief topic of interest to foreigners, and of special interest to Americans. Mr. Saunders was in this country when the Spanish-American war broke out and he knew of the great display of enthusiasm on every hand. He was also in England when the South African war was commenced.

In speaking of the latter war he said that he was astounded at the display of confidence on the part of the English people that the war would be completed by January 1st of this year. He heard various ones say that when Gen. Buller arrived on the scene with his army it would only be a question of a short time when the Boers would be defeated. All of this seemed like idle talk to Mr. Saunders, for his company has representatives in South Africa, and from what he could learn he knew the proposition was a tough one.

Soon after the war broke out Mr. Saunders commenced traveling on the continent, and visited all of the principal countries, Germany, Russia, etc. In everyone he quickly learned that the sympathy of the people were with the Boers. In an interview that he related to the reporter an incident that occurred in one of the interior towns in Russia. Some of the people were arranging for an entertainment, and Mr. Saunders, always interested in charitable enterprises, made inquiries about it. He soon learned that the entertainment was to be given for the purpose of raising money to help the Boers. In the high and lowly walks of life he was told that the people were for the Boers.

In speaking of the lack of British enthusiasm, Mr Saunders said that in the theatres, where every attempt is being made to cause enthusiasm, there is a woeful lack of it. On one occasion he saw Mrs. James Brown Potter on the stage, and witnessed her tie the American and English flags together. There was applause, but no great enthusiasm such as was witnessed in the theatres in this country when the Spanish War was on. The English take everything in a matter-of-fact way, and believe that all stories to the only country that is friendly to her.

Mr. Saunders was asked if the war had had any effect on the business of England, and he replied that he could not say it had; in fact business seems to be booming in every country abroad, with Germany in the lead. He was pleased to say that American influence was a great factor abroad and was admired by everyone.

So far as business is concerned Mr. Saunders' trip was a success and he accomplished fully the purpose for went from the point of view, and his health being so much better, he feels as though the journey was one of great success from every standpoint, but still is glad to be back in New Jersey among his old friends once again.

His Eye Removed.

Christopher Staggard, the young man who received a severe injury to h a right eye some time ago, and who has been at the hospital under treatment, had the eye removed Tuesday by Dr. Ard. The operation was very successful, and in a short time the boy will be able to go home.

The Nurses Very Busy.

The nurses at the hospital are again very busy as there are a number of patients in the institution. One additional one admitted Tuesday increases the number to twenty.

DEATH STRUCK HIM DOWN AT FUNERAL

Sad and Sudden Ending of Joseph W. Sandford, Sr.

HAPPENED AT CRANFORD.

MR. SANDFORD HAD BEEN IN FEEBLE HEALTH FOR SOME TIME.

Had Been Stopping in New York With Son-in-Law, But Went to Cranford Yesterday to Attend Funeral of Relatives Child—Fatal Illness Overcame Him Soon After His Arrival There.

Joseph W. Sandford, Sr., a well-known citizen of this city, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon at Cranford where he had gone to attend the funeral of an infant child of Fredric Martin, Jr., who is a son of Mrs Sandford's sister.

Since the family closed their house at 330 West Seventh street in this city Mr. and Mrs. Sandford have been making their home in New York with their son in-law, Henry D. Brewster, at 41 West Seventy first street. Mr. Sandford left New York early Tuesday afternoon for Cranford. Mrs. Sandford decided not to accompany him.

When Mr. Sandford reached Cranford he walked from the station to the home of Mr. Martin. Shortly afterward he complained of not feeling well. The family knowing that his health had not been satisfactory of late, became somewhat alarmed. Later, however, Mr. Sandford appeared to feel somewhat better and started to go up stairs. He had ascended but a few steps when he said he felt faint and experienced a fluttering of the heart. He was at once assisted to the hall where pillows were placed under his head. Two physicians were quickly summoned and administered to his wants, but Mr. Sandford sank rapidly and soon became unconscious, in which condition he remained until death resulted at about 4 o'clock.

The family and relatives in New York were immediately notified of his death, and his son, Joseph W. Sandford, Jr., had the body removed last night to his home, 306 West Seventh street, this city.

Joseph Webster Sandford was born in New York city May 16th, 1821. His early life was devoted to mercantile pursuits and for several years he conducted very successfully a house furnishing business at Broadway and Twenty sixth street, the site in after years occupied by Delmonico. Soon after retiring from business Mr. Sandford moved to Plainfield, where he has resided for nearly 25 years in a handsome residence at 330 West Seventh street. In late years Mr. Sandford has suffered from illness, his health having been greatly impaired by an attack of the grip experienced a few years ago. His death is believed to be without doubt the result of heart failure.

Mr. Sandford was of a domestic disposition and very fond of his home and devoted to his family. He never took active interest in politics or public affairs and is believed not to have held office. He was an attendant, though not a member of the Crescent Avenue church.

The deceased is survived by a wife, one son and two daughters. The daughters are Mrs. Henry D. Brewster and Mrs. William J. Rooms, of New York. The son, Joseph W. Sandford, lives at 306 West Seventh street this city.

TALENTED FILIPINO TELLS OF COUNTRY.

Interesting Lecture by Ramon Reyes Lala, of Manila.

AT MUSIC HALL TUESDAY.

GRAPHICALLY PICTURED LIFE IN OUR NEW POSSESSIONS.

Lecture Was Illustrated With a Number of Fine Views—Told of Old and New Manila, Its Buildings, People, Industries and Sports—Was a Fine Specimen of His Race—A Small Audience.

Briefly, but graphically, life in Manila and the surrounding parts of the Philippine Islands was pictured to a small but interested audience in Music Hall last Tuesday by Ramon Reyes Lala, a native of Manila, but a naturalized citizen of the United States. The interesting discourse was rendered more effective by many handsome views of the scenes and people described.

Ramon Reyes Lala was the first native of the Philippines to step foot in Plainfield and considerable interest was expressed in him. He was above the usual stature of the natives of that country, well proportioned and good-looking. His complexion was dark and it was rendered particularly apparent by the white linen suit, the usual costume of the upper classes in Manila, that he wore. He was a pleasant speaker and showed a remarkable command of English, with frequent touches of humor. His voice was clear, but unusually high pitched, and when he sang a Filipino song during the evening it sounded almost like falsetto.

Before beginning the lecture Mr. Lala spoke a few words on the present situation at the Philippines from the standpoint of a native and as an American citizen. He declared that the people of the islands were not yet ready to govern themselves and he favored an American protectorate. The Americans would not find it a difficult work, he believed, and expressed his opinion that both this nation and the Philippines would derive much advantage from the new policy.

He had something to say about the people and their manner of living. The great importance of the buffalo in the household was noted, and he remarked that far more interest in quiry after the health of the wife and children, was:

"How's the buffalo and the little bufe?"

He had much to say on the women of Manila and incidentally remarked that they could flirt like waternymphs. A series of views pictured something of the industries common to the land. The average laborer lived in comfort there and supported a wife, five or six children, a buffalo and a fighting cock or all a month.

Aguinaldo and other of the revolutionary leaders were referred to and Mr. Lala said that they were patriots at heart but were fighting under a mistaken apprehension. Other types of natives were shown with their sports and homes.

Mr. Lala then sang in Spanish a favorite song of his country and showed himself a talented pianist. The remainder of the time was devoted to picturing briefly the volcanoes and other natural wonders of the islands with a little glimpse of Iloilo and other principal cities.

FOR BENEFIT OF STUDEN

Adult Pupils Permitted to Keep Certain Books for Eight Weeks.

A new rule for the benefit of adult students has just gone into effect at the Plainfield Public Library. This rule allows any student in college, correspondence school, or carrying on a special line of study, to receive an additional library card, which will entitle him to six books, which may be kept for eight weeks without renewal. This rule will not apply to students in the Plainfield schools and books of general general interest will not be given out in this way.

Futile Effort to Hold a Meeting.

The Plainfield Advancement Association made another attempt last Tuesday to hold a meeting. It was a futile effort. There were present but three members—Messrs. J. B Coward, Charles H. Hand and Francis E. Whiteside. It was also expected that the committee appointed at Monday evening's meeting of the Board of Trade would be on hand to meet with a similar committee to be appointed by the Plainfield Advancement Association with reference to the new railroad station, but the gentlemen did not put in an appearance.

TO AID SUNDAY-SCHOOLS

PLAINFIELD SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION IS ORGANIZED.

To Ensure the Attendance of Those Children Who Do Not Now Receive Instruction From Study of Scriptures.

Last Tuesday in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church there was a meeting called for the purpose of forming a local Sunday-school association to look after the interests of the work in the city. It has been learned that there is about the children in Plainfield who do not attend Sunday-school, and it is the purpose of the new organization, which will be known as the Plainfield Sunday-school Union, to institute a canvass of the city from house to house and interest the parents to such an extent that their children will be induced to attend some school of their choice. The Union will also take in the vicinity nearby. Occasional meetings will be held to arouse enthusiasm, and it is hoped to bring to Plainfield some speaker, one of possible John Wanamaker will be secured as one of the first speakers.

Most of the church Sunday-schools were represented last Tuesday as follows: Park Avenue Baptist, Rev. J. W. Richardson, Mrs. W. S. Lowry; Seventh-Day Baptist, Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, Mrs. J. F. Mosher; Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, W. D. Murray; First Baptist, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Robbert Love; First M. E., A. Miller; Trinity Reformed, F. E. Smith; Congregational, Joseph Robinson; Church of the Heavenly Rest, W. W. Moore; East Third Street mission, Ural B. Crane; Mt. Olive Baptist, M. C. Dobbins; Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, Miss Nettie Beeching.

The organization is the work of Dr. Main, who has been forming plans for some time past. He was elected president at the meeting. M. N. Miller was elected vice-president; J. A. Robinson secretary and treasurer, and the executive committee elected was W. D. Murray, Rev. Floyd Appleton, G. E. Hall and F. E. Smith. When the meeting adjourned it did so at the call of the president.

OIL STOVE AGAIN.

Started an Early Morning Fire at Residence of Fred M. Letson, of LaGrande Avenue—Loss Was $150.

There wasn't the slightest excuse for it. The oil stove suddenly blazed up and threatened the household of Fred M. Letson, of 815 LaGrande avenue, with a serious conflagration early yesterday a. m. The fire department was notified.

The call came to fire department headquarters over the telephone from John E. Keely's stable at 7:55 o'clock. Assistant Chief Jennings with the chemical engine and No. 2 hose wagon responded. Chief Doane arrived soon after from his home. The oil stove had apparently overflowed and set fire to the floor and part of the furniture in the parlor and dining room. The fire was nearly out when the department arrived. The damage will amount to about $150. Both house and furniture were insured. The house was owned by Daniel Doran.

Soon to Time.

A passenger train Monday evening that the stops in Woodston & Buckle's paint store on North avenue was red hot. The fire department headquarters was notified. Assistant Jennings investigated and then notified Constantine J. T. Buckle. A key for the store was secured and the fire set back. Although the stove was red hot, the floor and surrounding counters did not catch fire.

Married a Bound Brook Man.

The marriage Miss Alma Christina Olson, of 123 Johnson avenue, to John Hocker, of Bound Brook, took place night at the home of the bride. Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, performed the ceremony. The couple will reside in Bound Brook, where the groom is a cigar manufacturer.

Charged With Stealing Coal.

Josephus Scranton, Michael Corert and Antonia Esthe were arraigned before City Judge Runyon yesterday. Detective Hill, of the Jersey Central Railroad, said he found them stealing coal near the Netherwood station and locked them up at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The judge fined them $3 each.

The Cheese to be Heard.

Property-owners along Somerset street are reminded and urged to attend the special meeting of Mayor Smalley and the Borough Council tomorrow evening when the widening of Somerset street will be discussed. A full attendance is desired on the part of all interested.

—Union Gospel meeting in W. C. T. U. room as usual this evening at 8 o'clock.

UNCLE BILLY AYERS DIED VERY SUDDENLY

The End Came at His Home Early Wednesday.

ALMOST 91 YEARS OF AGE.

WAS A PROMINENT MAN IN HIS DAY IN THIS CITY.

Born in North Plainfield, and With the Exception of One Year, Always Lived in Plainfield—Was an Extensive Contractor—Served on Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

In the sudden death of Wm. C. Ayers, of 302 West Second street, which occurred Wednesday at his home soon after 6:30 o'clock, Plainfield has sustained a loss of one of her oldest citizens. The community was deeply shocked to learn of his death, for he was in his usual good health up to within a very short time of his passing away. He was at dinner last Tuesday and talked to the members of the household in his customary happy manner. Throughout the day he was in a very reminiscent mood, which was a frequent occurrence, and in talking with George Dufford, a member of the household, he related many things that happened fifty and sixty years ago.

After dinner he sat up for a while, and then retired at his usual time. He felt as good as usual, save for a slight affection of the stomach, which caused him to rise once or twice during the night. He awoke very early, as was his custom, and after dressing went to the sitting room, adjoining his bedroom. While there he attended the fire in the stove, and after shaking it remarked that he had a little distress in his chest, and he thought he would lie down on his bed a few minutes. It was scarcely two minutes after he laid down before he passed away. He died very quietly and easy. His wife was with him when he died. A physician was called, but nothing could be done.

William C. Ayers was born February 19th, 1809, just back of North Plainfield, on the road to Union Village. He was distinguished for the fact that he was born the same day that Abraham Lincoln was, and had he lived till February 12th next he would have been 91 years of age. Early in life he became an apprentice to the carpenter trade, which business he followed through life. When comparatively a young he moved to this city, and for sixty-four years he lived in the house where he died, except for one year spent in Trenton. During the early days he was the carpenter and contractor of the city, and among the buildings that now stand to his credit are the First Baptist church, Trinity Reformed church, First M. E. and Holy Cross churches, North Avenue Station, and the building owned by Dr. Taylor which stands at the corner of North and Park avenues. This latter building was the first three-story one erected in this city. There are many other buildings he erected of smaller size. He was considered a master of his trade.

For many years and up to five years ago he was the agent in this vicinity for the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company, and looked after the company's property between Jersey City and Phillipsburg. For fourteen years he was an active member of the Union County Board of Freeholders, and for many years he was a member of the Asbestos Club. He was a faithful, earnest Christian and was a member of the First Baptist church, where he attended regularly the services. Up to his death he was the only member left of the original Farmers' Fire Company, and was the oldest member of the Exempt Firemen. Later on he, together with the other members of the Harmony Company, formed what was known as the Granite Engine Company. Up to the very last he was active.

He was married twice. There are four children out of nine by his first marriage living. They are Mrs. L. M. Atkinson, of New York, and Dr. Samuel C. Ayers, the latter superintendent of the New York High School; David Ayers, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Sarah Robinson, of Watchung avenue. He is survived by one brother, Daniel Ayers, aged 87 years, of Philadelphia. His second marriage was to Mrs. Baynon, of this city, which occurred about twenty four years ago. She has a son, Frank Baynon, living at Orange. Mr. Ayers also leaves a grandson, Sandford Robinson.

Miss Delia Vonal, of Somerset street, has returned from a visit with West Field relatives.

Mrs. Harry Brokaw and son, of Somerville, have been visiting borough relatives.

MURDER IN GERMAN ARMY

Trivial Punishment for Officers Who Kill Men for "Discipline."

A correspondent sent us the following translation from a German paper of the recent killing of a sergeant by his officer. Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, captain in the 15th Regiment of Uhlans, in Saarburg, Alsace, who custom-disciplined Steinhardt out of his regiment. Steinhardt was quartermaster, and was ordered off to forage. The soldiers engaged in cooking forgot, in the absence abroad, to thaw out the rubber rings in the covers of the pots, in consequence of which the food got spoiled. Capt. Count Stolberg called Steinhardt to account for this. The sergeant excused himself from blame on the ground of his enforced absence. Later on the captain reported him reproaches, and told Steinhardt he was the lowest cur and greatest blackguard in the regiment. Steinhardt answered that he did not think he deserved to be called that. On this Count Stolberg gave him a box on the ear that made spots swim before the eyes. Steinhardt said to two of his comrades: 'You saw how I was struck.' Count Stolberg immediately drew his sword and struck Steinhardt a cut on the leg and then a thrust on the left side of the head. Steinhardt fell down unconscious. (Another account adds how Steinhardt, as first aid, tried to stop the blood with his handkerchief, and to stand at 'attention' till he fell unconscious again.) He was taken to Hagenau, where he died without recovering consciousness. The funeral took place with full military honors, accordingly to the "Militär-Wochenblatt," which demonstrates that Steinhardt innocence is recognised officially. The parish priest in his funeral oration bolted the fact that the murderer had denounced the act perpetrated by Stolberg as one of the most brutal violence. The father of the murdered man, himself a veteran, wearing the medals for the campaigns of 1864, 1866 and 1870-71, looked as if he would sink into the grave of woe he was suffering so pain. The son had supported the old pensioner from his pay. Count Stolberg has been arrested and taken to the military prison in Strasbourg, but in spite of that he has already killed an orderly of his."

A year ago a Lieutenant von Brusewitz, in Karlsruhe, pursued, cut down and killed a civilian who had bumped against his chair at a cafe. He was sentenced to two years' simple imprisonment, of which the emperor remitted eighteen months.

Story of "The Lost Chord."

In London, in the early part of this decade, Col. Wentling was a frequent visitor at the house of a lady of high nobility, and became acquainted, through his excellent knowledge of music, with many of the best musicians of the English metropolis.

"It was while there," said Col. Wentling, "that I first heard the story of the birth of 'The Lost Chord,' a song that has been sung in every quarter of the globe, and which will live forever. If ever there was such a thing as inspiration, that song was inspired by it.

"There are very few Englishmen who do not remember Fred Sullivan, the great comic star and brother of Sir Arthur Sullivan, who is known as the original Gilbert and Sullivan operas. And no one has been more popular. He was later followed by George Grossmith.

"One day Sir Arthur Sullivan was notified that his brother Fred was very ill. He made every effort to reach the house on Harley street in time to be at the point of death, but arrived too late to see him alive. The two brothers were devoted to each other, and the loss was a bitter one for Sir Arthur. He was closeted with the body of his brother for two hours, at the expiration of which time he came down stairs and went to the piano. Throwing the instrument open he began to play, and the bar, 'The Lost Chord,' was evolved. The composer sadly put his new composition on paper and stored it away.

"The song is the wail of a throbbing heart, the grief of desolation. All through its beautiful harmonies can be heard the strain of grief. So profound an impression did the association of the song with the death of his brother make on Sir Arthur that he is said to have, even at this late day, an aversion to hearing it performed. New York Sun.

A Quaint Ceremony in Madrid.

The Queen Regent held at the palace in Madrid a ceremony of investigation of eleven Grandees of the first class ,who have succeeded to Dukedoms, Marquisates and Earldoms created between the years 1520 and 1624. They were invested in the order of their precedence, the Duke of Medina Sidonia, Duke of Medina Celi, Duke of Fernandina, Peer of Spain, possessing twenty titles and £150,000 income, coming first, followed by the Marquis Astorga, Count Oropesa, Duke of Bailen, Duke of Hijosear, Baena and Arion, the Marquis Santa Cruz and Count Castrillo.

The Queen stood surrounded by the high dignitaries of the realm, and the court in the royal anti-chamber, where the new Grandees, accompanied by their godfathers, who are Grandees of the same class, were successfully ushered in by the Lord Chamberlain and the Lords-in-Whiting. All the Grandees present remained uncovered as the Queen entered, and remained so until the sovereign said to the new Grandee, "Cover your head and speak," which he had to do in a short discourse in praise of his ancestors who preceded him in title. After the investiture the Grandees passed through the Royal Spanish Guards drawn up on the palace stairs, in order that the Guards might know them and pay them the usual honors when they appear on the steps of the palace, where alone they have the right to remain uncovered in the presence of royalty.—Pall Mall Gazette.

"To prove my love," he cried despretately, "let me tell you during how many years I have secretly closed my eyes in sleep, during how many days I have eaten only——"

Here, with an imperious gesture, she waved him to be silent.

"Statistics prove nothing!" she said.

Ah, but what a cold dictum! It was like an icicle plunged into his throbbing heart!—Detroit Journal.

SOME GIANT SCALES.

How Ones That Will Weigh a Load of 150 Tons.

Everybody is perhaps aware that the large scales used upon which entire freight cars with their loads of many tons are weighed are constructed upon the principle of the ordinary steelyard. These have gone all the railroads in this country for some better way, says the Washington Times, by investing at the navy yard one of the largest and finest scales in the country. This machine can outweigh the largest railroad weighing machine by fifty tons, and its results may be accurate to the pound. While railroad scales are considered good enough if they approach anywhere near fifty pounds in forty tons. The new scales are placed on the track going south from the great gun shops and just opposite the forge shop. They are forty-eight feet long and twelve feet wide, and rest upon a cement base built upon long piles. The ground is somewhat low, and it was necessary to drive these piles down to solid rock in order to secure a stable foundation, which is one of the requisites of an accurate weighing machine. The cost was about $1,200.

Much of its fine and sensitive balancing apparatus was manufactured for special use in the new machine, and the completed structure is considered a model and marvel of modern mechanism and American ingenuity.

In order to illustrate the accuracy of the counterpoise of the machine to a reporter the superintendent of the yards and docks picked up a half brick that was lying on the ground near by and tossed it on the huge platform of the machine. He then consulted the long brass lever in the weather box along the side of the scales and found that the record of the of the brickbat was just a pound.

During the time reporter he said that the machine was so sensitive that it could weigh anything from a pound of sugar to a trio of 13-inch naval guns, and weigh them accurately, though it will probably eke out a long existence at the famous gunshop without having the chance to weigh an ounce of the former. The capacity of the new scales is 150 tons, or double the capacity of the old scales, which has just been replaced. The 13-inch guns weigh about 55tons, and it can be readily seen that the new scales can weigh two of the monsters, reclining on a forty-eight foot track, and not tax its capacity to any great extent. All the new guns of the navy yard will be weighed upon these colossal scales.

Story of "The Lost Chord."

In London, in the early part of this decade, Col. Wentling was a frequent visitor at the house of a lady of high nobility, and became acquainted, through his excellent knowledge of music, with many of the best musicians of the English metropolis.

"It was while there," said Col. Wentling, "that I first heard the story of the birth of 'The Lost Chord,' a song that has been sung in every quarter of the globe, and which will live forever. If ever there was such a thing as inspiration, that song was inspired by it.

"There are very few Englishmen who do not remember Fred Sullivan, the great comic star and brother of Sir Arthur Sullivan, who is known as the original Gilbert and Sullivan operas. And no one has been more popular. He was later followed by George Grossmith.

"One day Sir Arthur Sullivan was notified that his brother Fred was very ill. He made every effort to reach the house on Harley street in time to be at the point of death, but arrived too late to see him alive. The two brothers were devoted to each other, and the loss was a bitter one for Sir Arthur. He was closeted with the body of his brother for two hours, at the expiration of which time he came down stairs and went to the piano. Throwing the instrument open he began to play, and the bar, 'The Lost Chord,' was evolved. The composer sadly put his new composition on paper and stored it away.

"The song is the wail of a throbbing heart, the grief of desolation. All through its beautiful harmonies can be heard the strain of grief. So profound an impression did the association of the song with the death of his brother make on Sir Arthur that he is said to have, even at this late day, an aversion to hearing it performed. New York Sun.

A Quaint Ceremony in Madrid.

The Queen Regent held at the palace in Madrid a ceremony of investigation of eleven Grandees of the first class ,who have succeeded to Dukedoms, Marquisates and Earldoms created between the years 1520 and 1624. They were invested in the order of their precedence, the Duke of Medina Sidonia, Duke of Medina Celi, Duke of Fernandina, Peer of Spain, possessing twenty titles and £150,000 income, coming first, followed by the Marquis Astorga, Count Oropesa, Duke of Bailen, Duke of Hijosear, Baena and Arion, the Marquis Santa Cruz and Count Castrillo.

The Queen stood surrounded by the high dignitaries of the realm, and the court in the royal anti-chamber, where the new Grandees, accompanied by their godfathers, who are Grandees of the same class, were successfully ushered in by the Lord Chamberlain and the Lords-in-Whiting. All the Grandees present remained uncovered as the Queen entered, and remained so until the sovereign said to the new Grandee, "Cover your head and speak," which he had to do in a short discourse in praise of his ancestors who preceded him in title. After the investiture the Grandees passed through the Royal Spanish Guards drawn up on the palace stairs, in order that the Guards might know them and pay them the usual honors when they appear on the steps of the palace, where alone they have the right to remain uncovered in the presence of royalty.—Pall Mall Gazette.

"To prove my love," he cried despretately, "let me tell you during how many years I have secretly closed my eyes in sleep, during how many days I have eaten only——"

Here, with an imperious gesture, she waved him to be silent.

Ah, but what a cold dictum! It was like an icicle plunged into his throbbing heart!—Detroit Journal.

DREAMS MAKE ONE FAT.

Nervous or Mental Maladies Cured by Them.

An English physician claims to have discovered a new and efficacious cure for persons afflicted with nervous or mental maladies. If such persons, he says, can gently procure pleasant dreams they will soon regain their health, and his aim is, therefore, to furnish them with delightful dreams.

The new panacea consists of a soft leather cap, which covers the patient's head and ears, and leaves only the face uncovered. Beside the ears are placed two metal plates, which are joined by a rubber tube to a phonograph. The patient rests on a divan in a dark room and in front of him is a sort of magic lantern, which can be projected at brief intervals various enjoyable pictures. In this way, it is claimed, the eyes of the sick person are delighted while at the same time his ears are soothed by the vibrations of the phonograph.

As a result, weariness comes upon him and is soon followed by slumber, and it is while he is dozing in this manner that happy dreams are evoked, that is, dreams which are the product of brief intervals various enjoyable pictures. In this way, it is claimed, the eyes of the sick person are delighted while at the same time his ears are soothed by the vibrations of the phonograph.

The Treating Custom in Haiti.

Of course there is in Haiti a small circle of native-born creoles, who are quite refined in their manners and have exquisite in their courtly manners and most desirable as friends. Then the white men who are living there, as I have already mentioned, are characters. If they take a liking to you, all they have or can capture is yours. The following will illustrate this characteristic:

Mine host and a friend were walking through the leading thoroughfare of one of the towns, when the friend suddenly came to a standstill, and placing his long nervous index finger on mine host's breast, remarked:

"My dear boy, in here they make the best cocktails in Haiti. I have spent three fortunes in assuring myself of the truth of this. Let's go in and try one."

There was a prompt adjournment from the pathwalk to the interior of the house, the minutest of delightful, expectant silence as the ingredients were shaken together, a mutual bow, followed by disappearance of the liquids.

Friend—How do you like that?

Mine Host—Delicious!

Friend—Let us have another.

Mine Host—Certainly, only this second one is on me.

Friend—Make no mistake, my oy; they are both on you. I've no money.

As it turned out that happened, especially in Haiti this evening.—Harper's Magazine.

Teaching Muskrats to Swim.

At the pool our attention was attracted by a comical picture made by an old muskrat trying to teach her babies to swim. It struck us as strange that one should go to such trouble; the little rats should have known instinctively how to swim. But the old rat clung to the bank and to shallow water, above which arose their fluffy backs, bright eyes and sharp noses. The mother set them in the water with a splash and a dive and back. She endeavored to coax, and finally she pushed them over their depth and let them make their own way to the shore. Then you may be sure she stayed close by. When we were seen the old lady shrieked "Tramps!" in chestnuts muskrat language and fled to her sub-aquatic vestibule. I suppose to call the police. The little ones did not attempt to escape. Ostrichlike, they hid their heads among the roots, and left their naked tails waving above the water like a new species of juncos waiting to be examined. The madam could not quiet their fears by words of instinct, as she returned and conducted her happy family to the nursery, where more instinctive lessons in misanthropy.—Forest and Stream.

AUSTRALIAN LUNG-FISH.

It Cannot Live on Land, But Breathes Through Lungs.

There has recently arrived at the Zoological Gardens in London some living specimens of the Australian lung-fish, a species first discovered in 1837 by Forster and described by Kreft.

The lung-fish has teeth similar to certain fossil teeth of the triassic strata in Europe.

The body is long and much flattened from side to side, and covered with large cycloid scales; the limbs are shaped like the blade of a paddle or a trowel, and broadly fringed. The flesh —red, like that of a salmon—is excellent eating, and large specimens are said to attain a length of six feet and a weight of about twenty pounds, the apparent disparity between size and weight being probably accounted for by the tapering off of the body behind the posterior limbs. Their home is in the Burnett and Mary Rivers; and as they were in danger of becoming extinct the Australian Museum recently resolved to establish them in new habitats.

The lung-fish in its natural state eats large quantities of vegetable matter, but this does not appear to be necessary to it.

The lung-fish cannot live on the land, like a true animal but its mouth and ear of a higher type than the gills of ordinary fish, and its heart has three divisions instead of two.

A Hanging Scrap Book.

"What is all that newspaper stuff hanging over your desk?" a loiterer asked a man who writes for a living.

"That" the man answered, pointing to long strips of newspaper clippings which were pendant from a gas chandelier, directly over the desk at which he sat, "that is my scrap book. You've heard of the hanging gardens of Babylon, haven't you? Well, this is my hanging scrap book. People generally go on the plan that a scrap book must be neatly pasted full of clippings, and then piled away on a top shelf of a closet, or in the bottom of a trunk where you can never get at it without much time and trouble. Now, my idea of a scrap book is one that you can have where you want it and when you want it; so I have pasted these long strips of blue paper together, over the cross bar of my old fashioned gas chandelier, so these strips—as I clip short newspaper bits relating to my work—bits of prose or poetry, jest or philosophy, statistics or other information, I stick a little dab of library paste, and up the clipping goes. It is convenient, and easily renewable; there is no patent to be applied for, and my scrap book will be found valuable to all writers who like the things where they can clap their eyes on them."

"What do they raise there?"

"Currents," replied the quick-witted bystander.

"Wat are they worth a bushel?"

"We sell them by the shock."

The farmer pulled his beard, scratched his head and drove downtown to market his vegetables.

SNAP SHOTS IN PORTO RICO

Some of the Many Interesting Sights to Be Seen There.

The advent of Sunday in Porto Rico is marked chiefly by an exodus of those of superior station to the country to picturesque Catania for a cockfight; to the Porto Ricanean soul dearer than things more spiritual. Transportation is by the big steamer, Loiza, a little ferry boat, the only one in Porto Rico, by the way, with a motley freight of puffing and panting senoritas, gay to the waist, the rest of the costume of which, with slanting sails, are skimming ahead.

Arrived on the other side, the sailing craft touch land as best they may, the male passengers wade ashore, carrying in their arms squealing but acquiescent, their feminine companions; and old Pedro, the boatman, a gigantic African, dubbed Dom Pedro by his patrons, with an air of placid satisfaction, leads the way to the scene of action.

Below the Casa Blanca, the palace of Ponce de Leon, is port Catalina, his stronghold. It contains of few humorously called barracks, a flagstaff, and cannon lore. One of its pieces is an old mortar, dating from ancient times. Its type is obsolete, as are the projectiles which it uses. No one knows when last its voice spoke or precisely what might happen if ever it should speak again. Like many ancient guns in the ports of San Juan believed by the natives to be impregnable.

Very strange it seems in this atmosphere of the nineteenth century of progressive America, hopelessly modern, as unconcernedly busy with military matters as at the most possible home port. Every day groups of keen-faced signal service men are seen, with a heliograph, flashing messages to and fro as the steady practice goes on which helps to mould "the unconquerable" army.

Stretching away from San Juan eastward is the only highway leading from the city, and, running along beside, a diminutive railroad, the work—bits of prose or poetry, jest or philosophy, statistics or other information, I stick a little dab of library paste, and up the clipping goes. It is convenient, and easily renewable; there is no patent to be applied for, and my scrap book will be found valuable to all writers who like the things where they can clap their eyes on them."

MORTARS FOR DEFENSE.

They Are Among the Most Terrible Implements of Warfare.

The type of heavy breech-loading mortar relied upon by the army for inner-line harbor defense is one of the most terrible implements of warfare that have been devised. The high-power rifle is mounted in the coast defenses with an effective range of eight to ten miles, and the mortar has a limit range for a blockading fleet the moment it comes within reach. The mortar is a short, thick-walled gun, very heavy for its rifling guns, where it cannot be reached except accidentally by the fire of the enemy, nor is the battery intended to be exposed to the fire of guns. The mortar is in the possession of officers equipped with range finders of delicate precision and with the necessary machinery, all under the concealed battery. The charge is divided into minute squares, and as the enemy's ships cross the intersection of these squares the officers direct the fire of the mortars, although they cannot see the vessels, aim, load and discharge with the certainty born of long practice of their every movement.

These new mortars, of which 1,000 are provided for in the existing scheme of defense, and most of which, to the $20 have already been mounted in positions commanding the entrances of the principal harbors on the Atlantic coast, are of 12-inch bore and weigh 1,080 pounds. This, following a high trajectory, is intended to fall upon the unarmored decks of vessels, and by exploding in the midst of the machinery, stop the crew and perhaps sink the vessel. These weapons each weigh about 13 tons, are 11 feet 3 inches long, and their 12-inch rifled bore is 10 feet in length. Their greatest diameter at the breech is 3 feet 2 inches. This great mass of metal is held in its bed by a massive breech block, and the charge for this is powder, and the projectile is a shell filled with explosive material. The charge is 200 pounds. The projectile weighs 1,000 pounds. Spanish Courage.

The courage of the Spanish sharpshooters, who perched themselves in the trees before Santiago and did signal damage to the Americans was never properly appreciated by the men of the American Army. Here were a body of men equipped with the instruments to get out of sight somewhere and do all possible harm to advancing American troops. "And we don't care a hang for your sharpshooters," was the stance of the parting message hurled into their ears as they left on this mission of almost certain death. They were not to be seen, but there was rattle of musketry and smoke and tobacco and all the Mauser cartridges they could carry. Then, climbing into the little branches of vegetation that stuck out from the tops of the palm trees scattered over the hillsides, the men of the vaqueing American army to begin operations. Whenever they saw an American torso they fired. They had farseeing eyes. They smokeless powder. Their Mauser rifles made no more noise than so many pogoms and threw out no more smoke than the cigarettes of Dick Arnold the head, and one arm. His first shot was fatal to the Spaniard, started across the prairie, but like a flash 'Dick's' hand went to his pistol, and the Spaniard's fingers could not hold from his horse 'Dick' sent a bullet through his head and the Mexican fell to the ground dead.

Then 'Dick' darted from his horse with terrible force, for the Mexican had made the end of his rope fast to the saddle horn. The Mexican's horse started off, dragging the dead Mexican, and before I could get to him the other Mexican had ridden up and supplied his six shooter into 'Dick's' body. He was dead. DUEL WITH LASSOES

Fought Out to Death Between Two Desperate Experts.

Between a Mexican and an American, yes. It happened some time ago, but was about as exciting a piece of work as I ever saw. I was punching cattle at the time on the Bar Z ranch, a horse ranch in Wyoming, and we were on our way from Sydney, Neb., with a bunch of horses that we had shipped from Missouri to Sydney. Joe Wheeler and I drove the animals overland to the home ranch.

Dick Neal picked up an outfit of men around Sydney. Seven Americans and three Mexicans—a tough lot. We started out, and when we got to the Big Chevenne River, south of the Black Hills, we stopped to let the horses rest for a few days. There was one Mexican, Pedro Gonzales, about the most self-centered and beast quarrelsome man I ever saw. He was not the only one American by the name of 'Dick' McAllan all-around bad man. I knew 'Dick' by reputation, and knew that he had no use for Mexicans.

"Well, one day at dinner time 'Dick' made some remark about roping a 'greaser' down in Texas and having a fight with him, which Pedro took to be worn out. The Mexican answered by saying that the man must have been a saloon or dead, for you could not rope and fight on the floor. 'Dick' jumped to his feet and pulled his gun, and Pedro did the same. I rushed between them and ordered them to put up their guns. The Mexican did so, but acted like a rattlesnake's when about to strike, but he put the gun back in his belt, and 'Dick' did the same.

"I knew there would be trouble, and how to avoid it was a question not easily solved. I ordered the horse wrangler to bring up the saddle horses, for I intended to move on that afternoon. The Mexican spoke to 'Dick' and they walked off to one side and talked in a low tone for a few minutes. When the horses came up I noticed that they saddled up their best horses. They both unwound their lasso ropes and began coiling them up. I had a hint that 'Dick's' rope was about forty-five feet long and Pedro's about sixty feet. Pedro drew his knife from his belt and cut his rope in two and handed one half to the Mexican's face. His lips were apart, showing his white teeth and a wicked look he seemed to play about his mouth. His eyes were like coals and a look of tangled fear and rage combined on his savage face.

"They walked off to each end for about fifty yards, watching each other like a pair of caged panthers. Then they made a dash and both ropes whirled in the air like a cobweb in the wind. Both ropes dodged and escaped. In an instant they had gathered up their ropes and began to circle around and around each other, keeping out of their ropes as they swung them around their heads, each man trying to get some advantage. They changed their ropes from the left hand to the right and ropes again. It was a close call for 'Dick,' for the Mexican got his rope over 'Dick's' head, but 'Dick' threw it off with his left hand and caught it in an instant Pedro had gathered up his rope and threw it again and caught 'Dick' around the head and one arm. He drew the rope tight to his saddle and started across the prairie, but like a flash 'Dick's' hand went to his pistol, and the Mexican's horse could not go far from his horse 'Dick' sent a bullet through his head and the Mexican fell to the ground dead.

Then 'Dick' darted from his horse with terrible force, for the Mexican had made the end of his rope fast to the saddle horn. THE ALMOND-EYED CHINESE

They Are Getting to Be a Power in San Francisco.

HAVE A DAILY PAPER

And They Are Highly Respected in Business and Financial Circles—How the Chinese Printer Dances All Day Around His Cases.

The Chinese of San Francisco have a new daily paper. The noisy apotheosis of the Kearney regime found its fitting setting recently when funds for the reception of the California Volunteers were being sought and Chinese merchants subscribed liberally and were invited to and did take a prominent and honorable position in the great public parade, while Dennis Kearney, unnoticed, watched the Chinese ride by him in carriages, and he so poor in the esteem of mankind that "none was found to do him reverence."

Only 20 years in the swift march of time and the despised Chinaman finds a place in the great arena of American activities and, distant and lasting as that of his erstwhile tormentor, whose chief claim to notice was in his open defiance of all law, and his more than Sanctimonious gospel that "might makes right."

The intervening years since the man Kearney waved a Bangizan's noose before a savagely delighted crowd of his contents and preached the doctrine of Chinese extirpation, and the present day, may be called the period of reconstruction of that original law, and great has been the transformation. In defiance of popular will, lawfully expressed, national legislation has shut off Chinese immigration to a large measure, and time has shown the wisdom of the act. But the hundred thousand Chinese then and now within the State of California have had the laws of absorption and amalgamation, as they apply to commerce and trade, gradually forged their interest with those of leading American houses, and their world-wide reputation for business honesty and sagacity has won for them fast business friendships which of the rogues on earth could not break or make.

Steamship lines and brokerage and banking are largely in Chinese hands, and the stately structures in front of San Francisco passes upon such a volume of Chinese commerical paper as to surprise those who do not keep pace with the wonderful progress of this people. Having such great interests in financial circles the Chinese merchant needs a daily adviser and counsellor, just as his American neighbor does, and so the greatest innovation of the nineteenth century follows—a Chinese daily newspaper in San Francisco.

That as with the difference in other national characteristics between the Chinese and Americans, in none are they greater than in the art of printing. This is owing chiefly to the vast difference in the constructive form of the respective languages. The English language has as many roots as it has derivatives, and hence any possible classification could bring them into a form where composition would be possible. The Chinese language, on the contrary, having neither the orthographical or etymological departments—each word being fixed and unchangeable—is derived from 214 root words, which expand into all characteristics of words in ordinary use, and can be expanded far beyond this. Where, then, the ordinary letters and marks of the English language can be placed in a small case, in less than 100 squares or boxes, it requires 14,000 boxes or spaces to hold a fond of Chinese type.

The great cases are ranged about the room, resting on the floor, and, with his coat, he dances from one section to another, forward and backward, and to the spectator, not knowing what the printer was doing, would be apt to believe him afflicted with the St. Vitus dance. Each type is a word complete in itself, and is in a box with other type for other words, but all come from the same root, and any one of them can do duty for several words in the English language.

The Chinese character which means "drum" will also mean "rain," "wind," "thunder," "lightning," "telegraph," "telephone" and so on for all words that have their roots in "drum." The storm is known to produce electricity in the form of lightning, and all the other words follow. A Chinese printer will dance all around the great case and arrange 4,000 characters a day, or what is equivalent to 1,000 ems of type. His method of distributing type is also unique and possible only to such a language. The great case, it will be noted, is in 15 sections, each section being a repository for certain roots and derivatives. The printer takes a handful of type and first distributes them into ten small cases, each holding the root word of ten of the large squares. He then reads, with the small box before the series it represents and places the characters in their proper boxes. To [illegible] only an English font [illegible] use to see type in [illegible] never been laked, while others in the same boxes have been used many times.

This is accounted for by the fact that while they are from the same root they are altogether away from common usage and the unity brought into play when the "root" of some scholarly Chinaman is being set.

The type used is between 12 and 16 points and of course is small. The actual type range from 1 to 6, 1 being largest and equal to two-inch poster type. The Chinese printer is never afraid of "knocking down" forms for the characters are all easily distinguishable and readily reset. The body of a Chinese type is kicked exactly as is an English type, the only difference that the nicks in the former are to the right and out, while those of the latter are up. The type is cast at Yokohama and Tokio, from type metal and with an American trade mark. The sticks, chases, planers, locks, imposing stones, galleys, all are just as in ordinary American job offices.

The new paper is called Chung Sai Yat Po, which means "Oriental and Occidental Daily News."

STEYN'S ROMANCE.

Career of the President of the Orange Free States.

President Steyn of the Orange Free State has had just a bit of a romance in his career. When he was nineteen he left South Africa to study law in Europe. On the same ship was a sweet, winsome lassie of twelve, and the boy and girl became boon companions to the end of the voyage.

Six years passed, and Steyn returned to Bloemfontein a full fledged barrister. At a social function one of the first guests he was introduced to was a beautiful young lady of 18 years, in whom he quickly recognized his ship companion of six years before. His office of marriage was accepted but Steyn's financial condition was not to warrant him in setting up housekeeping just then. There was nothing for it but to wait and work. Steyn traveled a good deal in connection with his law practice and his sweetheart he addressed secretly to a mutual friend, upon whom Miss Fraser—for such was the young lady's name—called daily. Their engagement in those days was so small that everybody made a point of knowing everybody else's business. Consequently people were quick to notice the friendship that had sprung up between Miss Fraser and Steyn's friend in the barrister's absence, and the general impression was that the young gentleman was trying to steal Steyn's sweetheart from him, thus proving himself a traitor to Steyn and unworthy of recognition by any honest, fair dealing resident of Bloemfontein.

When Steyn returned to Bloemfontein people noticed him with veiled expressions of commiseration. Steyn could not understand it. He hastened to the residence of the gentleman who had been acting as his friend and inquired the meaning of it all. He roared with laughter when he heard of the conclusion his fellow townsmen had jumped to, and how pleased and good but misguided folk were when they saw the rising young barrister and the "base deceiver" walking arm in arm!

Great Man Was a Bad Boy.

Like the majority of great men of letters, Nathaniel Hawthorne was not over fond of school. In the very interesting reminiscences of his friend and Annie Fields has just contributed to the "Beacon Biography" series, there are several pictures of young Hawthorne at Bowdoin College. One of which show that the first great American novelist was not guilty of airing an unconfortable superiority of tastes or demeanor.

Once, unwilling to wait for the appointed college vacation, he wrote to his sister Louisa: "It is expedient for me to return to Salem immediately," and proceeds to give his reasons.

Simple country college though Bowdoin was at the time Hawthorne attended it, the students flow and then permitted themselves amusements such as "gaming," which scandalized the faculty. Because Hawthorne was one of the culprits, and the President of the college wrote to his mother to ask her co-operation in the attempt to induce her son more strictly to observe the laws of this institution.

The President added, apparently for the sake of sparing the mother's feelings, that Hawthorne's "habits and demeanor were it not for the influence of a student we have dismissed from the college."

Indeed Hawthorne, having seen this letter, assures his mother in indignation: "I have a great mind to commence playing again, merely to show that I was not influenced by another into anything wrong."

What Lyddite Is.

This explosive, brought into prominence by the shells at Omdurman and Ladysmith, is picric acid made by acting upon carbolic acid with nitric acid. It is a bright yellow substance which can be melted. When exploded it produces an effect 11 times greater than that of gunpowder, killing not only by the force of the explosion of steel shell it hurls in every direction as by the blow of the suddenly compressed air. Lyddite shells are, therefore, more humane than old-fashioned shells since they do not mangle so much, but act by air concussion. The shell have nose fuzes only, so that they explode on impact. Many of the English guns are fitted with 6 and 8.2 inch breech-loading guns, with howitzers and with 4 and 6 inch quick-firing guns. These guns are used chiefly effectively, fortifications, walls, &c. A small town in Kent, where experiments were made with it, gives the name lyddite to the picric shell.—Baltimore Sun.

Carelessness.

Carelessness of persons who send money through the mails is well illustrated by the fact that last year the Government was enriched by $10,008.71, which was found in letters that were undeliverable on account of incorrect addresses. Postmaster General the Dead Letter Office till it was certain that it would not be possible to find their owners, and then the money was sent to the Treasury Department.

Judge A—Well, Uncle Reb, where are you going?

MOTHS ATE THE ROOF.

The Timbers in Winchester Cathedral Were Decayed.

Winchester Cathedral is one of the old glories of England, situated in Winchester, the birthplace of Alfred the Great, whose thousandth anniversary is soon to be celebrated there. Archbishops and builders have just completed their three years' work on the new York roof of the old cathedral and giving it a general overhauling. The repairs were needed badly, for the ancient timber work was full of dry rot and worms resulting of the navy underneath was in a dangerous condition.

When the workmen started in to repair the roof the curious discovery was made that the old timbers were greatly decayed by the action of worms. The insect causing the havoc is known as the Sirex gigas. She is penetrating in mischief in the grub state, and eats away the timber until it is like honeycomb. Several of the grubs were captured during the work and also a chrysalis, which developed into an insect one and three-quarter inches long. Of the roof as a whole a new covering material for which the hole for the eggs is bored in the wood.

The fact that the roof were found to be, in all probability, the original Norman roof, with later work and improvements of the fifteenth century. Its strength proved to be because it was found necessary to renew three of them, and, owing to the difficulty in obtaining English oak nowadays of sufficient size and size these were long and 12 inches wide and 20 inches deep, the beams had to be "made in Germany—they came from Stettin.

While the timbers were being put in the "pockets" formed by the groined work were cleaned and their contents examined before being carried away. Many cartloads of rubbish were removed from the roof. In it were found a pair of mouse's shoes of the fifteenth century, some fragments of stained glass of the same date, an ancient knife, the mummies of a swallow and bat, a piece of slate inscribed with curious writing characters, apparently of the seventeenth century, a tobacco pipe a crossbow bolt and a pair of ancient nutcrackers—a strange museum of relics.

The First "Mysterious Dave."

Dave Rodebaugh was the man who was best entitled to the sobriquet of "Mysterious Dave," which has been wrongly applied to Dave Mathes. Rodebaugh's advent to the circle of fra-mous characters was unheralded, but in no wise lacking in brilliancy. It was at Great Bend, Kan., in the early '70s that one Frank Whitfield who, by reason of his former habitation, was known as Texas Frank, was one day amusing himself by shooting up the town. His crowning feature of dexterity was to shoot the barrooms of the Rome saloon to kneel with a glass full of beer upon his head and to shatter the glass on the bullet from his revolver, fired from the other end of the room. Much amused at the bearbesquattered bartender, Frank proceeded to repeat the performance, but was recalled to the bare surroundings by the sharp command:

"Drop it, pardner, and shove yer hands. I've got ye covered."

Frank turned to look into the muzzle of a six-shooter in the hand of a little red-headed man with a thin, reil beard, says Judge. Whitfield's face whitened, his hands went up very high, and the strange man ordered him to kneel with his face to the wall. This command was obeyed, and following the red-headed man's directions the bartender placed a glass of beer upon his head. The stranger then backed across the room, the wall opposite and with a shot from his revolver smashed the glass in the same manner that his victim had done so recently to himself. After doing this the stranger backed out of the saloon, mounted his pony, which had been left standing in front, and rode leisurely out of the town.

No one could be found who knew him and he was not seen again for some time. His next appearance was in the thick of a street and saloon fight, in which he contributed two men to Great Bend's boot hill. His appearance and departure were as mysterious as the first, and he was "The Mystery."

Not long after the incident last related he killed a faro dealer, whose gun was drawn before his victim's, and was arrested. Although acquitted, the inquiry disclosed that his name was Dave Rodebaugh, and that he had acquired the title of "Mysterious Dave." After Mathes received the title "mysterious" they were distinguished by the adoption of their family names. Dave Mathes's case the game was not a true one. Just here it may be stated that Mathes was a native of Ohio, his family being one which for the most portion of the State, and that he was educated at the Ohio Wesleyan University. The writer knows that two of his strange disappearances from his home in New Mexico were caused by visits to that State. One was upon the death of his father and the other to attend the marriage of his youngest sister.

New Facts About Beautiful Snow.

That eminent medical authority, the Lancet, has just discovered that snowwater is not necessarily ordinary boot and that the only sure way to prevent this is to grease the boot. The ancient and honorable custom of the Yankee boy is set forth in the Lancet fully and scientifically—and is news to no one. But some of the Lancet's remarks upon "beautiful snow" may be new.

*It is stated that few actions of na*ture clear and purify the air as does a fall of snow. A piece of newly-fallen snow shows an enormous percentage of organic impurities and bacteria. These have been swept out of the air by the flakes, leaving the atmosphere we breathe pure and wholesome. Again there is so much friction engendered by the snow flakes brushing against the air that it gives rise to the formation of ozone. It is stated that so much ozone is formed by the descent of snow that to those familiar with it there is a marked smell of that element in the air after a snowstorm.

"He says he will stand on his record," says the politician.

"Well, he won't, replied the man who knew him.

"Why not?" demanded the politician.

"Because it won't hold him, and he's not a heavy man at that."—Chicago Evening Post.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Some of the Things Which Tell of the Forward Movement.

Almost daily we hear of new honors pouring in upon the professional woman, who is seeking to elevate as well as promote the interests of herself and sisters. Miss Beatrix Jones, daughter of Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, a young and attractive society woman of New York city, is winning new laurels. She is the only woman in America who has bent her energies toward landscape gardening. She will probably be employed in this capacity and have entire charge of the grounds of the new cathedral of St. Peter and Paul which is to be erected in Washington. Professor Sargent of Harvard university, who is generally known to be most kindly disposed toward the advancement of woman and the broadening out of her horizon, took particular interest in Miss Jones and made it possible for her to take his courses, but also to study at the Arnold Arboretum. As there are no schools for landscape gardening, Professor Sargent assisted Miss Jones in planning out a practical course, which combined work on the buildings and mineralogy, in addition to an exhaustive course on horticulture and forestry.

Miss Jones' method is to assume complete charge of the grounds after consulting with the architect as to the location of the house. Her most recent success was the planning and laying out of Chiltern, the new country home of Edgar Scott at Bar Harbor. Her plans in this case were carried out toward assisting nature. She advances the cardinal idea of having everything in keeping with the natural surroundings. In this one instance at least Miss Jones accomplished this to perfection, turning wild woodlands and swamps into enchanting bowers and terraced lawns.

Among the new society women who will grace the coming season in Washington is Miss Edith Rose, daughter of Elihu Root, secretary of war.

Mrs. Ira E. Tutt is the founder and manager of an electric plant at Long Branch, Cal.

One of the strange features of the recent election in New York was a family feud which lost one man a job worth $60,000 a year, while his own nephew was from him a bet of $20,000 on his defeat. When Alderman McGarry, one of the Democratic leaders of Brooklyn, died some time ago, he left a fortune of $1,000,000, a widow and two ambitious sons. After his death the boys and their mother agreed that they would control the political influence wherein the former alderman had been the leader. John Morrissey Gray, a brother of Mrs. McGarry, objected to this and essayed to be the leader himself. The political forces, ignoring the McGarrys, nominated Gray for the sheriffs office. Then began a contest in which a woman's wit and tact proved more than a match for the political managers. Mrs. McGarry organized a campaign against her brother, personally directing the fight, generously unloosening her purse strings and opening her handsome residence as political headquarters. As a result Gray was defeated, all his colleagues on the Democratic ticket being elected by large majorities, and Mrs. McGarry triumphed as a political leader.

There recently arrived in this country the Countess Adeline Schimmelmann, who is known as the "girl missionary. She goes around the world on her yacht Duen on a self imposed task of relieving misery wherever she finds it.

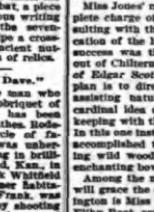
South Dakota has a "girl campaigner" in the person of Miss Hettie Boone Laube, daughter of a well known western inventor, who has made many political addresses. Politically she is a Republican, but one of her warmest friends is United States Senator W. A. Clark, a Democrat, the Montana copper king and multimillionaire.

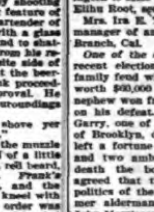
One of the very few women who hold justices of the peace commissions from the governor of a state is Mrs. Louisa J. Cabel, who lives at Fort Worth, Tex. Mrs. Cabel not only holds court with becoming judicial dignity, but prosecutes penalon claims, manages a farm and conducts an express business.

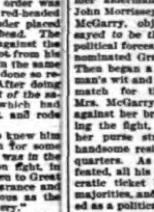
Miss Nellie Tully, a bright young woman who went to Colorado a few years ago, was recently elected treasurer of San Juan county, in that state.

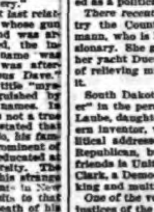
Mary E. Trivett-Haight, wife of Attorney Charles V. Haight of Norwood, Ills., is one of the early pioneers in the work of original designs and interior decoration. Her work commands the highest prices and has won wide attention. She is a scrupulous conscientious worker and has made her fame by the originality and adroitness in execution of her designs. The beautiful decoration of the Woman's building and the entire interior of the Arkansas building at the World's fair in 1893 stand to her credit; also the erection and decoration of booths at the Atlanta exposition.

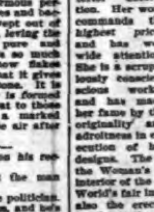
GERTRUDE HALL.











ROLLED IN A BARREL

Punishment Pronounced Worse Than Lynching by a Vigilante.

"There's something barbaric about lynching, as most people will agree," said the man with the broken nose, "but I can imagine two worse things. One is rolling a man around in a barrel and the other is a coat of tar and feathers. The last time I was in Sandusa I arrived at a town in southern Indiana to find the people all excited over several arrests for robbery. A family named Bliss, consisting of a man and wife and a grown-up son, had been caught and made to confess to many thefts. Instead of putting them in jail, the people had determined to apply tar and feathers and walk 'em out of town. I had no objections so far as the men were concerned, but when it came to the women I constituted myself her champion and declared that they must walk over my dead body. I was in a fighting mood, unless I was a hero. Then about a dozen men grabbed me and hustled me into a room, and after the Blisks had been tarred and feathered I was brought out. I was brought out for punishment. Plenty of tar and feathers were left, but the crowd wanted a change, and it was decided that I should be rolled in a barrel. They got out and unheaded a big cider barrel, dropped me into it and replaced the head, and then all let go.

"I was inclined to look upon the proceedings with contempt. I had never been rolled in a barrel, and so I had no fear of it as a punishment. They first kicked it along the wide, unpaved street, and it had not rolled over more than twenty times before I was nervous. After they had enjoyed themselves for a quarter of an hour I was praying for death to hurry up. I dimly realized that I was in the hands of the football work in the street they rolled the barrel up along hill, and then let it go kiting down. You talk of seasickness! I've had it on the ocean. Aside from the feeling of nausea, I was jarred, jolted and bruised from head to heels, and in one of the bumps my left leg was rendered unconscious when they finally took me out, and for a week I was little better than a cripple. I was sick and weak before I got the revolving motion out of my head and I could walk straight, and to this day I can't see a gridiron revolving without feeling affected by it. It would have been far more merciful to hang me up by the neck."

"But how about the tar and feathers?" we asked.

"Well, I met the old man Black about two years later, and he still smelled of tar. He told me that it took a week's work to get him clean after he got the stuff started, and that spots were left which couldn't be got off, even when rubbed with a brick. He didn't feel the feathers so much, but what hurt his feelings was that he had been obliged to put in more time in jail than he had in his life before. He had tried the barrel racket once, and he thought it a shade worse than tar, but he had no words of comparison. The son, on the contrary, he said if I hadn't mixed in the three of them would probably have got off with a ride on a rail."

Li Hung Chang's Mistake.

One day, some years ago, Li Hung Chang was making a journey from Tien-Tsin to Shanghai, as the steamer of the China Merchants' company, of which he is the principal owner, says the Philadelphia Saturday Post. Being of an inquiring disposition he asked questions about the working of the navy and the furnishings of the ship. What interested him most was the barometer, and Capt. Baker explained to him its nature and described the minutest details.

Several months after when Capt. Baker arrived at Tien-Tsin on the end of a voyage, he was informed at the steamship office that Earl Li wanted to see him at the Viceroy's yamen. The Captain, judging from the experience of other men, expected to receive a reward for faithful service, and dressing himself with care, took a rickshaw for the residence of the greatest man in China. Upon arrival he was shown into the reception room, and pretty soon Li Hung Chang made his appearance, followed by a servant carrying a handsomely mounted mahogany box. He put it on the table, opened it, and took out a beautiful barometer, which had just arrived from Paris. After Capt. Baker had admired the mechanism of the instrument, Li Hung said, in his blandest manner:

"Now, I want you to show me how you foretell events with this thing."

"You cannot foretell events with a barometer," said Capt. Baker in surprise.

"You told me you could," retorted Earl Li.

"I never did anything of the kind!" exclaimed the astonished seaman. "I told you that by comparing the changes in the temperature and direction of the wind with the movements of this instrument we could anticipate a storm, but I did not say anything about foretelling events, because that is impossible."

The Viceroy stared at the sailor with incredulity, and exclaimed:

"You are an ignorant, incompetent fellow. Don't you know that the weather is the most uncertain thing in the world? Other events are governed by laws which can be foretold, from which the weather is entirely free, and anybody who can find out what the weather is going to be ought to be able to foretell anything else."

Then with a contemptuous motion he dismissed Capt. Baker from his presence, and never spoke to him again.

On the Bargain Counter.

"Why does Miss Loftover say she is twenty-four when everybody knows she is forty?"

"Perhaps she is trying to take advantage of the speculative instinct in men."

"How can that be?"

"Why may think that some would be willing to gamble at twenty-four who would consider her too high at forty."—Detroit Free Press.

HIS KIND OF A SPOT

The Colonel Didn't Appreciate the Young Lady's Sentiment.

"Here we are!" exclaimed the graceful young creature. "How delightful to come again, from a foreign shore!"

"I—er—understand that you had just been to Philadelphia," said Colonel Bluff, who had met her at the depot.

"Yes."

"Then you allude to Philadelphia as a foreign shor?"

"No. But I couldn't restrain my ecstasies as I thought of the dear old spot from which I had been absent for four long days. Tell me, colonel, isn't there some dear old spot that you long for and which it would fill your with happiness to see once more?"

"I beg pardon!" exclaimed her escort, whose eyes had wandered to the window of the street car. The dearest spot I'd like this young woman much, anyhow.

"I say isn't there some spot for which you long, some spot near and dear memory cleaves you even while expression causes regret and the hope of seeing which revives in you disappointment and encourages you to struggle on."

"If you allude to real estate, with clematis climbing over a grape arbor and roses around the door," she answered with great deliberation, "I'm afraid I can't exactly follow you, owin' to my having lived all my life in the Tenderloin district, and was full of indignant fire as his own.

One morning she started to the Lyons with him as usual. They met Colonel Picquart and Edmond Gast, Maitre Labori's brother-in-law.

"I have forgotten my ticket," she exclaimed, and ran back to the quaint house in the Place Lacaze for it. When she ran out from the house she saw Labori standing motionless, a prostrate figure in the center. Her woman's heart called about the name of that man in the center. The wind was not quite so cold.

The lawyer lay upon his side. The blood was pouring from a wound in his back. She had left him for that moment a man full of life and vigor. She lifted his head upon her lap. He did not speak, but he kissed her hands. Then he closed his eyes and fewer color her black dress. The dust of the street settled whitely upon both of them. She looked upward, as agonized eyes have done since the world began, and prayed.

They carried him to the house, she walking by his side. Then they were trying to staunch his wounds, and men about him were whispering of death. Is he said: "Tell my wife I am thinking of her every moment."

Now he smiled when he felt her presence. When they were carrying him through the door they were afraid to let her go, but he groped around for her hand.

She was his nurse and constant companion until Le was able to appear in court, and she would not be separated from him for a moment.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

An Important Question That Has Not Yet Been Settled.

The tire question is one for which the manufacturers of automobiles have not yet found a satisfactory answer. The most vulnerable part of the vehicle is the tire and it is the part which is most in need of improvement. The tires are heavy and in order to insure comfort, safety and beauty experiments have been made by nearly all manufacturers which have resulted in nothing better than is known to the people outside of the business. The monster pneumatic tires are unsightly, and give the vehicle a look of clumsiness. They are costly besides being expensive. In order to overcome these objections tires of various sizes and shapes of rubber have been made and are being used for the purpose of determining which is the most practicable.

Among the recent patterns is a square tire with corrugated surface, which is a great improvement on the old balloon in looks, although to many fastidious people it is still objectionable. Time will be required to enable them to give an opinion on its lasting properties. Some of the newest pleasure vehicles have the narrow wheel and a large pneumatic tire, but the weight of these tires are being watched closely.

"Only careful investigation," said a manufacturer well versed in the problem, "can solve the question. We have yet to go by, and must get our knowledge through expensive experiments."

The cost of rubber tires justifies a large profit on the vehicle, the difficulty being which is the most durable pattern and design. Tires cost from $25 to $60 each, and some of the special patterns are more expensive. The experiments with the various tires are being watched with much attention by the people who are interested in the horseless carriage, as the heavy vehicles will require tires of great strength. The solid rubber tire has been found to be unsuitable for such vehicles, and in having its share of attention in the tests which are now being made.—New York Tribune.

"Let me see what you know about geography," said the judge, supposing Mr. Bloke was a foreigner.

"I shall be pleased to go straight down to the lake and started across it, going due north, where would you land?"

"On the bottom," said the candidate, promptly.

He got his papers.

Shopper—Tell me, Mr. Sprockett, does riding reduce one's flesh or increase it?

Dealer—In bicycles—Well, you see, that depends. Now in your case——

Shopper—If it would only make me a little slimmer——

Dealer—As I was about to say, in your case I have no doubt it would add to your weight considerably.

"Are you working for a salary or commission in your present position of employment?"

"Salary."

"Are you obliged to do overwork?"

"Yes; all the time. You see, I work regular hours for the salary, and that I'm obliged to do everwork to collect it."

"Oh, I dare say it's all very well, but the colors are too loud for my taste."

"It's awfully hot. What will you say to your wife?"

"Oh, I shan't say much, you know. 'Good morning, dear,' or something of that sort. She'll say the rest."

Parke—Step in here with me a moment. I'm going to get my wife a present.

Clerk—On your own hook?

"Oh, no. Something she has had set aside for me to select and give her."

The Last Straw.

It's bad enough to see the little German band break loose,
And pile the misery on you
Without the least excuse,
But what makes me the maddest
Than all the tunes they play
Is to have them come 'round with the hat,
Suggesting that you pay.

"I have forgotten my ticket," she exclaimed, and ran back to the quaint house in the Place Lacaze for it. When she ran out from the house she saw Labori standing motionless, a prostrate figure in the center. Her woman's heart called about the name of that man in the center. The wind was not quite so cold.

The lawyer lay upon his side. The blood was pouring from a wound in his back. She had left him for that moment a man full of life and vigor. She lifted his head upon her lap. He did not speak, but he kissed her hands. Then he closed his eyes and fewer color her black dress. The dust of the street settled whitely upon both of them. She looked upward, as agonized eyes have done since the world began, and prayed.

They carried him to the house, she walking by his side. Then they were trying to staunch his wounds, and men about him were whispering of death. Is he said: "Tell my wife I am thinking of her every moment."

Now he smiled when he felt her presence. When they were carrying him through the door they were afraid to let her go, but he groped around for her hand.

She was his nurse and constant companion until Le was able to appear in court, and she would not be separated from him for a moment.

LABORI AND HIS WIFE.

The Brilliant Leader of the French Bar and His Constant Companion.

Mme. Labori is a woman of nerves with the grit of pep. She is gay. She is vivacious. She is her husband's right hand in the hour of his greatest need. She always has a smile for him.

Mme. Labori loved her husband. She was his home comrade, his sweetheart, his guiding spirit. She was a helpful, loyal, brave thing of all sense. She always went to court to hear his speeches. Parisians wondered why the brilliant Maitre Labori's wife never left often to his office. "Was she jealous?" Not that. The maitre said he could not study a case well if she were not there among his books and his docs, his manis.

She laughingly humored this whim, though it cost her many a drive on the Bois, many an afternoon at the concert, many an evening at the theatre. She was proud of the flower-covered yoke. She loved him for his fidelity to her. She tried to learn to court under his speech—"our speech."

She struck hands with him bravely when he declared that he would fight the Dreyfus battle to the end. She went to Rennes with him and sat in court, as near him as she might, every day. When he pleaded for Dreyfus her eyes were as full of indignant fire as his own.

One morning she started to the Lyons with him as usual. They met Colonel Picquart and Edmond Gast, Maitre Labori's brother-in-law.

"I have forgotten my ticket," she exclaimed, and ran back to the quaint house in the Place Lacaze for it. When she ran out from the house she saw Labori standing motionless, a prostrate figure in the center. Her woman's heart called about the name of that man in the center. The wind was not quite so cold.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

An Important Question That Has Not Yet Been Settled.

The tire question is one for which the manufacturers of automobiles have not yet found a satisfactory answer. The most vulnerable part of the vehicle is the tire and it is the part which is most in need of improvement. The tires are heavy and in order to insure comfort, safety and beauty experiments have been made by nearly all manufacturers which have resulted in nothing better than is known to the people outside of the business. The monster pneumatic tires are unsightly, and give the vehicle a look of clumsiness. They are costly besides being expensive. In order to overcome these objections tires of various sizes and shapes of rubber have been made and are being used for the purpose of determining which is the most practicable.

Among the recent patterns is a square tire with corrugated surface, which is a great improvement on the old balloon in looks, although to many fastidious people it is still objectionable. Time will be required to enable them to give an opinion on its lasting properties. Some of the newest pleasure vehicles have the narrow wheel and a large pneumatic tire, but the weight of these tires are being watched closely.

"Only careful investigation," said a manufacturer well versed in the problem, "can solve the question. We have yet to go by, and must get our knowledge through expensive experiments."

The cost of rubber tires justifies a large profit on the vehicle, the difficulty being which is the most durable pattern and design. Tires cost from $25 to $60 each, and some of the special patterns are more expensive. The experiments with the various tires are being watched with much attention by the people who are interested in the horseless carriage, as the heavy vehicles will require tires of great strength. The solid rubber tire has been found to be unsuitable for such vehicles, and in having its share of attention in the tests which are now being made.—New York Tribune.

The Governor's Change of Heart.

When Governor Voorhees assumed the high office to which he had been elected by the people, his inaugural address treated the corporation laws of this State, out of which scores of trusts have been born, with considerable attention. At that time—and it was only a year ago—the Governor said that he recognized and appreciated the fact that there was a growing dissatisfaction over the way the corporation laws worked, and that it was incumbent upon the Legislature to take action that would to some extent curb the incorporation of companies whose business practices were inimical to the people's interests. The question was so important, however, that the Governor at that time did not feel assured of dealing with it in the way of making express recommendations for changes, but he promised that in a short time he would send a special message to the Legislature for the purpose of airing his views in more explicit language.

The Legislature continued on its way of making laws, changing laws and doing other things in general until it had exhausted the business in hand, but the promised message of the Governor failed to materialize. The Legislature adjourned, but the discussion of the trust business and the legal asylum that New Jersey offered the combines did not cease. Too part that New Jersey was playing in the nefarious business was bringing odium and disgrace upon the commonwealth, and when the newspaper press in general and nearly all other sources of influence were denouncing the protection that New Jersey afforded trusts, lo and behold if the Governor did not appear and warmly defend the laws that he had but six months before tacitly denounced by conceding that there was a demand for reform in them, and that he proposed to make recommendations to that effect. The Governor proved himself a veritable Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde executive—so far as his views about the incorporation laws of New Jersey were concerned.

Now, after he has been in the Gubernatorial chair for one year, Governor Voorhees sends his first annual message to the Legislature. It is composed of some 16 000 words, which treat of nearly every department of State and discusses many matters of intense interest to the public. Let us interlope here, though, that no subject is so continually before the public as the trust question, as it relates to New Jersey, and that is conformity with his long-standing records other matters of general interest in State affairs it was expected that the Governor would devote some attention to the subject in his annual message.

A studious perusal of the lengthy document does not disclose one word about trusts or the relation of great combines of capital to New Jersey. They are not denounced; they are not upheld and defended—not a line of thought concerning them. In face of the circumstance which the general public gives to the question the Governor's silence is oppressive.

What a conversion of the Governor there has been in a twelve month.

"Justifiable Pride."

The Newark Evening News, one of the most evenly balanced and able newspapers of the country, and the peer of any journal published in New Jersey, which probably did more to elect Foster Voorhees Governor than any other medium, because it threw Essex county into the Republican column a year go—thus turning the tide against the Democrats—does not share in the jubilation that seems to fill the chief executive over the condition of the public treasury. The News speaks with force and truth when it says:

From one point of view the balance of $644,174 in the State's treasury at the end of the month is "justifiable pride" with which Gov. Voorhees refers to it in his message. From another, it is not such a showing of economy, or, rather, of the Spartan quoted by the Governor that the entire income is for the benefit of the Secretary of State, who has and to the last cent has been appropriated. That is to say, it is due to New Jersey's over-liberal appropriations, which have made this State a treat and a harvest field for the lobbyists, to the detriment and return of a large portion of the people of the United States.

The Dey of Algiers, a century ago, might be equally "justifiable pride" have pointed to his overflowing treasury, made rich by the ransom of the piratical corsairs, which sailed under his flag and bore his commission.

The News offers a parallel to the Governor's "justifiable pride" that is at once apt and convincing—even though it is an unpleasant one. The Governor may have the party organs, which generally act in defense of any and everything done by one chosen from their own tribe, back of him in his views concerning the relation of the incorporation laws to the honor and probity of the State, but not so of the free and independent press, of which the Newark News is a shining example.

Trying to Make Virtue Pay.

One of the bitterest quarrels that is now raging between newspaper competitors—and Jersey journalists always seem to be fighting with one another—is to be seen in New Brunswick. The New Brunswick Home News charges a representative of The Fredonian with sending exaggerated and sensational stories of accidents to the New York Herald, thereby injuring the fair name of the city. The Home News man therefore demands the discharge of The Fredonian as the representative of The Herald. If this was the end of the affair everything would be serene. But right here is where the trouble begins. In making the charge against The Fredonian man, The Home News writer uses it as a basis for asking for the appointment as Herald representative, the job being worth, probably, from $80 to $100 per month.

The outcome of such a condition of affairs very naturally leads to strained relations between the two journalists, and what The Fredonian does not say in criticism of The Home News' use of virtue in order to increase the finances of one of its own tribe, is scarcely worth saying. To an impartial observer it does seem that The Home News has indulged in very unpolitic ethical and disputable conduct in making the charges such as it has, and then using them as a basis for depriving one man of a job in order that the assailant may secure it himself.

The Fredonian utters the belief that there is not another man in the newspaper business in New Jersey who would be guilty of such contemptible action. That is where they are mistaken. Right here in Plainfield we have one of the like. We refer to our esteemed friend of the News. For over six months Editor Banyon kept up a running fire of lies and vilification of the work of a member of the staff of The Daily Press for several New York papers—palably for the same purpose as the Home News man has done. But he never succeeded in his designs, and as a matter of fact has since been discharged himself by the sole newspaper which he finally had left out of a one-time almost monopoly of the New York newspaper correspondence list.

New York newspapers are now changing correspondents every day to satisfy the spleen and selfishness of competitors of the men that represent their interests in suburban towns, and so it is likely that the Fredonian man will come out on top, though he may worry somewhat now.

In a Doleful Mood.

Whenever the esteemed editor of the Elizabeth Journal commences to discuss the prospects of trolley connections between Elizabeth and Plainfield, he seems to be in a doleful mood. Contrary to his general good humor, trolley talk always makes him pessimistic. It is evident that he had been reading the mournful note last Friday, for on that day a long editorial appeared in the Journal under the caption "Will It Build?"

The article, of course, referred to the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company's intentions. It was couched in despairing tones, and to one who was not acquainted with the real situation an impression would be gained that Elizabethtown had good cause for setting down and having a real good crying spell over the dark outlook, as our Journal friend seemed to be doing himself.

Our advice to the Journal editor is to have a little patience. Wait and see. As we have said before, the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company must enter Elizabeth under such a franchise as the City Council insists on giving them. The company has no other alternative—except to quit right where it is, and that it will never happen.

Cheer up, esteemed Journal, as your frowns must necessarily turn to smiles eventually, although even then we doubt whether or not you will be willing to admit it.

Russia has discouraged the introduction and use of typewriters on the ground that they would facilitate Nihilistic communications, but the needs of commerce and business have become so urgent that it is now disposed to admit them. A concession which will be of benefit to the empire as well as to American trade in these instruments.

Negotiations with other countries for reciprocity treaties have been suspended by the administration because of the prospect that those already negotiated will not be ratified by Congress.

In Memory of Helen M. Rose, Who Died Jan. 1st, 1890, Aged 3 Years.

God sent this little child of earth,
A token in its faith:
It needed but a few short years
To carry out His will.

In Sunday-school her lesson she recited,
"Yes, Jesus loves me, yes, I know;"
And through the house from morn till night
Her childish prattle rang.

She was always glad and willing
To speak her pieces too.
Always so pleased and happy
To greet the friends she drew.

She was her papa's only pet.
Her mamma's "precious earl" dear;
The joy and comfort of their home.
That now seems, oh! so drear.

For yonder stands a vacant chair
To tell them of their grief;
One little bed unused by night
Teaches that life is brief.

For God, who knoweth what is best,
In His Almighty love,
Hath sent Death's angel in our midst
And taken from above

Too frail was she to tarry long
Upon life's thorny way:
So Jesus took the darling home
To live with Him for aye.

Just as the happy New Year's Day
Dawned on this wintry earth,
The angel of death above opened wide
She had celestial birth.

Poor mother, dry those tearful eyes.
"Oh, mamma, don't you cry!"
And father, cease to grieve for her.
She lives beyond the sky.

"Yes, Jesus loves me," now she sings
In that bright, happy land,
As at the throne of Christ, our King,
She joins the angel band.

Oh! mourning parents, won't you trust
A loving Father's hand,
And let Him lead you gently on
Into the promised land?

Then when life's journey here is run.
At Heaven's wide-open door,
Dear little Helen shall welcome you
Where partings are no more.

Ready to Consider.

Plainfielders, often displaying a lack of lively interest in improvements of a public nature that would be of inestimable benefit and value to the city, seem to have passed from that period into one in which the public mind is ready to entertain projects of considerable magnitude.

That is evident in the talk about the proposed new city hall. For several years this subject has been agitated by the newspapers, discussed by Mayoralty messages and encouraged by those who had special interests to be served by the consummation of the idea. Now, however, the whole people are unusually interested and definite steps are being taken to bring about the erection of a suitable home for city officials. This is the right kind of spirit, and it will be productive, if carried out, of successful results.

Another project that has been talked of even longer and more persistently than the city hall, is the erection of another depot at the North avenue station, to carry with it all the necessary improvements that the safety and the convenience of the railroad company's patrons demand and are necessary. While private enterprise must materialize this improvement, if it comes at all, public sentiment will do more than anything else towards impelling the company to go ahead with the work so long contemplated. At the present time the public mind seems ripe to entertain and vigorously push the idea of a new depot. While in the present mood every advantage should be taken to so form popular sentiment that the proposed improvement will gather force rapidly, and eventually become a reality.

The Board of Trade has taken the initiative. Now let aid and encouragement of an energetic character be given it.

One of the bills which the Essex men propose to introduce in the Legislature is the one which is intended to open the New Jersey Home for Disabled Soldiers and Sailors to the men who served in the Spanish-American War or in the later war in the Philippine Islands. Assemblyman Klein, of Belleville, had such a bill in preparation and will probably present it this week. At present the Board of managers of the Home take the position that only the veterans of the Civil War and the war with Mexico are eligible to admission to the institution. It has been said by lawyers that the courts would probably decide against the attitude of the managers should a contest be made for the admission of those who served in the Spanish-American War, but that it would be better to have a specific act passed to insure that there could be no question as to the right of the young veterans to be admitted.

The Philadelphia Times says that the suggestion by Professor Hadley, of Yale, that trusts may be cured and suppressed by the social ostracism of the trust promoters, will hardly do. The promoters are sufficiently numerous to form a society of their own, which so far as the country generally is concerned, would be "good society," and the members of which would represent every known interest. It would be a society, too, which the outsiders would struggle as hard as ever to enter.

The Chicago politicians known as "The Original 'M. Kinley Men'" is the cord every handle in a domestic scandal. We may expect Uncle Mark to take a hand in removing the stain on the political escutcheon of the administration.

BENEVOLENT CATHOLICS.

Patrick Casey Elected President of the Legion—Organization in Prosperous Shape.

The annual meeting of the Catholic Benevolent Legion was held at the Catholic Club last Monday, when the yearly reports of the secretary and treasurer were received and acted upon. The reports showed that the Legion was in excellent condition and prospering. The following officers were elected:

President, Patrick Casey; treasurer, Hugh McDonald; secretary, J. A. Moore; collector, John A. McNally; marshal P. O Sullivan; orator, J. E Bebout; guard, W. Bourgeois; trustees, J. Kelly and F. Davier; chaplain, H. Lutz.

The newly-elected officers were installed by State President Hannigan, of Jersey City; State Councellor Althof, of Elizabeth and Supreme Auditor John L. McCabe. After the installation some informal speech making was indulged in by the State officers and various members. Before the members left for their homes they were regaled with a light collation.

TO STOP "BARBER'S ITCH."

Circular Letter of Advice Issued to Tonsorial Artists by the Board of Health.

The Plainfield Board of Health has issued a circular which has been distributed among the local barbers. The Board has issued the circular in view of the fact that what is known as "Barber's Itch" is prevalent, and is often transmitted from one person to another through the barber shop.

In the circular several rules for cleanliness are given as suggestions to barbers, and they advise the tonsorial artists to cleanse their hands each time they shave a person or cut the hair, keep their finger nails clean, boil their razors and shears, use powder blowers instead of puffs, and they urge customers to have their own cups and brushes.

If it becomes necessary to stop bleeding with alum, they suggest that the piece of alum be discarded after being used once. A number of other excellent suggestions are offered to the barbers, all of which they are supposed to follow.

BIDS FOR GREAT JOB.

Former Plainfielder May Construct the Underground Transit System for City of New York.

Andrew Onderdonk, probably the successful bidder for the construction of the underground transit system of New York at the sum of $39,000 000, was formerly city engineer of Plainfield. The first city map and grade maps were made by him.

He was also employed by James E. Martine in laying out and opening Park avenue from Seventh street to the city line. Mr. Onderdonk also laid out for the late John Taylor Johnston "Johnston's Drive." He has many friends in this city who appreciate his ability and who will wish him all success in this, his latest undertaking.

Brought From Lincoln in Ambulance.

Jacob Hoffman, aged 35 years, married, a resident of Lincoln and employed in the steel works at that place, sustained a contused wound of the back and side while at work. The accident occurred at 8 o'clock, about an hour after he commenced work. The ambulance was sent to Lincoln and he arrived at the hospital about 9:30 o'clock, where he is now doing very well. His condition is considered excellent, and no serious results are anticipated.

Big Consignment for Powers.

The largest consignment of cough mixture ever received by any druggist in central New Jersey was Tuesday delivered to John P. Powers, the Somerset street druggist. The formula is Mr. Powers' own and the large and growing demand for Powers' Honey of Coltsfoot and Tar is the reason for the large shipment received by Druggist Powers today. It's a money back medicine if not satisfactory.

From Private to Colonel.

From a private in the ranks to the head of his regiment is the military record of John I Rodman Burlington, who was elected Colonel of the Third Regiment, National Guards of New Jersey, to succeed William H. Cooper, who has been advanced to Brigadier-General.

X-ray Proves Used.

Councilman Harrison Coddington of the borough, who met with an accident when he thought his arm was fractured, had the X ray applied and he discovered that the arm is only sprained. It is very painful at times, and it will be a long time before he can use it.

Lost Tip of His Finger.

Oscar Kline, aged 22 years, a resident of Chatham street, lost the tip of one of his fingers Tuesday morning in a very curious manner, and the injured member was properly treated at the hospital. Kline did not tell at the hospital how the accident occurred.

THE LEHIGH MAY YET RUN TO PLAINFIELD.

Local Capitalists Are Willing to Build the Road.

THEN WANT TO LEASE IT.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE BEING CONDUCTED WITH LEHIGH OFFICIALS.

The Promoters are Determined to Secure Competition for the Central Railroad—Trying to Fix It so That There Will be no Violation of Agreement Between Central and Lehigh.

The project of getting the Lehigh Valley railroad to make connections with Plainfield by running trains from its main line at South Plainfield on a spur that it is advocated to be built, has not been given up, although the railroad company is not now moving in the matter. The project has been under consideration by the Lehigh Valley officials for four or five years, and has been agitated by Plainfielders quite vigorously at times.

A proper agreement between the Lehigh Valley and the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in which the former agreed to keep out of Plainfield in return for the latter not encroaching on certain territory in Pennsylvania, has always prevented the Lehigh officials from taking definite action on the proposed spur.

A number of influential capitalists are determined, however, to bring about competition for the Central, which they allege is charging too big rates for Plainfield business, and within a very short time steps have been taken to build a railroad between here and South Plainfield, a distance of two miles. The idea is to make it as independent corporation to be known as the Plainfield and South Plainfield Railroad Company, and after the road is built to lease it to the Lehigh Valley Company, which would relieve the latter directly of violating its agreement not to build connections to Plainfield.

The gentlemen interested in the new project have had several interviews with Lehigh Valley officials with the idea of getting their promise to lease the road and operate it when finished. While the Lehigh people would not, at present, promise to do this, they gave the promoters to understand that arrangements could undoubtedly be made, when the line was constructed, to operate it with Lehigh Valley trains. The impression secured by the promoters of the scheme was that the Lehigh officials, owing to their agreement with the Central, did not care to be directly connected—even by making promises—with the first steps to build a connecting link with their line from Plainfield to South Plainfield. The matter will not be allowed to rest, as those interested believe that their efforts will meet with success in a short time.

AID FOR THE HOSPITAL.

Colored Christmas Contribute $20 in Appreciation of What Good the Institution Does.

Hospital Sunday has been more generally recognized among the churches of Plainfield this year than ever before. When the returns are all in We will hope for a statement from Treasurer H. P. Reynolds, of the hospital. Our readers will be interested to learn that a successful appeal for an offering in support of the hospital was made at the union services of colored churches, held January 4th, in Mt. Olive Baptist church by the zealous pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson. The offering, amounting to $20, has been paid to the treasurer of the hospital; and, whether we consider it as a first attempt, or as compared with the offerings of other churches it, must be regarded as a liberal contribution in view of the fact that the congregation was made up of wage-earners, and included but very few who can be called property owners.

The services rendered by the hospital to our colored people have been very great; and, from the first, no discrimination whatever on account of race, color or condition has been allowed in the institution, or has ever occurred to the thought of governors, physicians, officials or nurses.

MAJOR COLLINS RE-ELECTED

Chairman of the Elizabeth City Democratic Executive Committee for the Term.

At the annual meeting of the Elizabeth Democratic city executive committee the following officers were elected: President, Major D. F. Collins; first vice-president, City Attorney James C. Connolly; second vice-president, Benjamin L. Lawrence; secretary, Frederick Zior; treasurer, City Clerk James J. Manning; sergeant-at-arms, J. H. B. Corbet.

DENOUNCED BOARD OF HEALTH'S COURSE.

City Judge's Remarks in Sentencing William Ross.

SAID CADI WAS A PUPP...T.

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF HEALTH COMPELLED HIM TO FINE ROSS $25.

Case Was Not Left to Discretion of the Judge—Law Not Arbitrary Enough—Execution Will be Issued Again t Ross, and if Amount is Not Realized From His Property He Will Go to Jail.

"The course of the Board of Health in this city is an outrage." Thus City Judge Runyon expressed himself Tuesday in concluding his remarks in the sentencing of William Ross, proprietor of the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House. Ross, it will be remembered, was found guilty last week of violating the Board of Health ordinance in keeping decayed vegetables in his basement. At that time Judge Runyon deferred sentence until this morning.

The acquaintanceship of Ross and the Board of Health has been a long and not particularly friendly one. Ross has dealt in fruits and vegetables besides looking after his restaurant and the Board, through its inspector, William Addis, has frequently found part of Ross's stock stowed away after it had reached an unhealthy state. Ross was once convicted of the charge and sentenced to pay a fine of $25. City Judge Runyon and Corporation Council C. A. Marsh were sorry for him and allowed him to take his time in paying the fine.

Henry B. Newhall, president of the Board of Health, learned that none of the fine had been paid and communicated with the City Judge, calling his attention to the fact. Then came this last complaint and conviction.

When Ross appeared in court Tuesday morning City Judge Runyon explained that the health ordinance left him only one course to pursue. It was not left to his judgment for the ordinance expressly stated that if the prisoner was found guilty he should be fined $25, and that an execution should be immediately issued and levied on the goods and chattels of the convicted violator. In case $25 could not be realized from the property, the violator should be sentenced to jail for a term not exceeding ninety days.

The Judge said that he was merely a puppet and must do his duty. So he fined Ross $25 and made the imprisonment a week should the fine not be paid. That the Judge was not in sympathy with that manner of dealing with the poor restauranter was evident from his remarks in closing.

Execution will be issued at once and served. Ross has had a hard time to get along under ordinary circumstances and it is hardly likely that he can raise the necessary funds to pay the two fines that now hang over him. It is also a question whether he possess enough property which, if disposed of at a forced sale under the execution, would produce the amount. In that case, he will have to go to jail for a week.

Ross says that it would have been all right had it not been for Health Inspector Addis. He firmly believes that the latter is trying to ruin him and is using this means to do it.

MRS. A. L. TITSWORTH.

She Passed Away Suddenly When Thought to be on the Road to Good Health Again.

Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, of 415 West Seventh street, who has been seriously ill for some time, and who has been a patient at the private sanitarium of Dr. Muncie, in Brooklyn, for the last three weeks, died at an early hour Tuesday morning, January 9th. Mrs. Titsworth had been in failing health for some time, and late in the last year was taken to Dr. Muncie's sanitarium for treatment. An operation performed at about Christmas seemed to be successful. She rallied from its effects and was considered to be well on the road to recovery, when a sudden turn came for the worse during Monday night, and early Tuesday morning she passed away.

Mrs. Titsworth was a woman of lovely character and was highly esteemed among her circle of acquaintances, who were shocked to hear of her death. Their sympathy goes out to the bereaved relatives in a most sincere manner.

Mrs. Titsworth was Miss Frances VanHoosen, and formerly resided in Syracuse, N. Y. She was married to Mr. Titsworth twelve years ago. The remains were brought to Plainfield for the final service.

A large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home Friday afternoon, Jan. 13th, to pay their last tribute to the memory of Mrs. Titsworth, whose sudden death a few days ago was such a blow to the community. Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, conducted the services, and read appropriate Scripture selections and spoke words of comfort, based on I Cor. XIII 12:

"For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known."

Rev. Cornelius S. Swick, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, where Mr Titsworth has been organist for the past eighteen years, assisted by offering a very touching prayer.

Remarks concerning the life of the departed were made by Rev. Dr. Rice, pastor of the Belleville Avenue Presbyterian church at Newark. Dr. Rice was pastor of the Presbyterian church at Syracuse, into which Mrs. Titsworth was received as a member, and performed the ceremony at her marriage.

He spoke in the highest terms of Mrs. Titsworth, and of her great devotion to her church. He told of her work in the church, and of her noble and pure life, and dwelt upon her many excellent qualities known to him as a pastor. He offered touching words of sympathy and comfort to the bereaved husband, mother and friends, and pointed them to the Heavenly Father who alone could give the divine comfort so much needed at this time.

Very effective was the singing by a quartette, composed of Miss Etta Krymer, Miss Nan Randolph, E. E. Runyon, of this city, and Robert Gordon, of Boston, Mass. They sang "Asleep in Jesus," and "The Christian's Good Night," and Mr. Gordon sang impressively Rodney's "Calvary," in accordance with a request of Mrs. Titsworth.

The floral tributes were beautiful, the predominating color being pink, a favorite with Mrs. Titsworth. There were many designs of choice flowers and one handsome wreath of galax leaves and roses tied with ribbon. This came from the choir and consistory of Trinity Reformed church.

The bearers were Jos. M. Titsworth, Geo. B. Titsworth, J. M. Wilcox, A. W. Ferrin, Jr., D. E. Titsworth and C. H. Dunham.

The remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside for the present.

BOARD OF TRADE STILL IN EXISTENCE.

Though Its Membership Grows Gradually Less.

ANNUAL MEETING WAS HELD

L. B. WOOLSTON SUCCEEDS F. C. LOUNSBURY AS PRESIDENT.

List of Newly Elected Officers Shows Changes—Treasurer's and Secretary's Reports Submitted—Small Balance to the Credit of the Board—Committees Appointed to Advance New Business.

Including the newspaper reporters, there were thirteen men in attendance at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade last Monday. In the absence of President Lounsbury, Vice-president L. B. Woolston occupied the chair. The principal business was the submission of the collector's, secretary's and treasurer's reports. The collector's report showed that $270.75 had been collected since January 15th, 1898, and the report of Treasurer E. M. Laing denoted a balance of $45.46 to the credit of the Board. Secretary H. C. Runyon's report was the most interesting. It stated that ten meetings had been held during the year, with an average attendance of but eleven members. The most important meeting held was on Nov. 20th, when representatives from out-of-town Boards of Trade and other organizations of like character had met with the local Board to co-operate in the movement toward securing a reduction of fares on the Central Railroad. The report also showed that a year ago there were 94 members, but of that number 21 had resigned and 24 were suspended, leaving a present membership of but 61. During the year the Board had been instrumental in securing the establishment in Plainfield of a silk mill and had brought about the extension of the trolley to Scotch Plains.

Secretary H. C. Runyon brought up the question of building the proposed new passenger station on the east side of the present depot. He stated that he understood the Central Railroad Company was willing to build the station and make the necessary improvements if the citizens were really anxious to have them. He suggested that a committee of three be appointed from the Board of Trade to meet with a committee from the Plainfield Advancement Association at its meeting this evening and assist the latter organization in bringing about the much needed and desired improvement. Some discussion followed as to the best method to be pursued to reach the railroad officials and to properly present the matter. It was suggested that possibly a committee from the Common Council might be appointed to join the other committees. The chairman appointed Messrs. Charles Runyon, F. C. Lounsbury and L. B. Woolston.

The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year:

President, L. B. Woolston; vice-president, James C. Pope; second vice president, F. C. Lounsbury; counsel, W. B. Coddington; secretary, H. C. Runyon; treasurer, E. M. Laing; trustees for two years, John D. Runyon and Robert A. Meeker.

Although Mr. Woolston strenuously objected to being elected president and at first positively declined the honor, he was finally persuaded to accept the office.

Secretary Runyon, from the railroad committee, said he had been informed by the president of the Plainfield Street Railway that the company would build the Arlington avenue line early in the spring, and that the company was favorable to the extension of the trolley to Washingtonville and if possible as far as Stirling and Warrenville. He said the trolley people were also in favor of later on extending the road from Netherwood over Leland avenue, through LeGrande avenue, and so on to Fanwood.

This statement precipitated further discussion regarding railroads which was participated in by Messrs. Charles Runyon, J. H. Vail, Herman Schwed and J. D. Runyon. It led to a resolution being offered to the effect that the secretary be directed to write to the president of the Plainfield Street Railway, Assemblyman Cooper and Messrs. Woolferth and J. Y. Wilcox, requesting them to meet with the Board of Trade at its next meeting with reference to the proposed Washingtonville extension.

Before adjourning the Board accepted the resignations of George L. VanEmburgh, Frank S. Runyon and Messrs. Spicer & Hubbard, and incidentally discussed at some length the question of street paving. John D. Runyon expressed the opinion that good paved streets were more essential than a new city hall.

There were various opinions voiced as to the proper material to use for durable pavement. No definite action was taken in the matter, however, and the first meeting of the new year came to a close without any mishap, notwithstanding the lack of ballots at first with the so-called unlucky number to make up the quota of the meeting.

COOPER INTRODUCES FIVE PER CENT. BILL.

The Somerset Assemblyman Hopes to Secure Its Passage.

JUDGE FORT NAMED AGAIN.

GOVERNOR AND SENATOR McCARTER ARE AT ODDS.

It is Over the Terms of the Supervisor of Bills—Nomination of Judge Lippincott Confirmed—Governor to Make No More Nominations This Week—Anti-Trust Bill is Also Introduced.

The Legislature started in last night to do actual legislating for the State. Several important bills were introduced, among the most prominent of which was the measure of Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset, providing for a reduction of the legal rate of interest to five per cent. Assemblyman Cooper succeeded in having this bill passed by the Assembly last session, but it died effectually when reached in the Senate. This year Mr. Cooper hopes to have better luck.

Governor Voorhees Monday nominated J. Franklin Fort to succeed himself as County Judge of Essex county. The term is for five years and the salary is $7,500 a year. The nomination was referred in executive session of the Senate to the judiciary committee and will be acted upon next week. The Governor announced later that he would send in no more appointments this week.

There is a hitch between Governor Voorhees and Senator McCarter, of Essex, over the appointment of the supervisor of Bills, and Jesse B. Salmon, who has been selected for the berth, has not yet been nominated to the Senate, as the law requires. The Governor is anxious to have the law creating the office amended so that the term shall be fixed at three instead of five years. Senator McCarter, who is sponsor for Salmon, objects to any such change, and has locked horns with His Excellency on the question.

In executive session last night the Senate confirmed Justice Joh Lippincott of Hudson county, who was last week re-appointed a member of the Supreme Court bench. Owing to the absence of Senator Pitney, the chairman of the judiciary committee, none of the other appointments of last week were confirmed, action being taken on Justice Lippincott's nomination because the term expires tomorrow.

Assemblyman Fallon, of Hudson, introduced an anti-trust bill, which clearly defines trusts. It prohibits pools, trusts, monopolies and conspiracies to control business and prices of articles, providing for a fine of from $200 to $5,000 a day for all violations as well as the forfeiture of the charter of the violator.

It is probable that a joint resolution will be introduced at an early date, setting apart a day for the delivery of a eulogy on the late Vice-President Hobart. It is understood that Attorney General Griggs will be invited to be the speaker and January 20th is likely to be fixed as the day for the delivery of the eulogy.

OLD OFFENDERS' BILL.

Legislature to be Asked for Law to Punish Habitual Violators—To be Drawn by Prosecutor English.

Prosecutor English is preparing a bill to be presented to the present session of the Legislature. It will embody some of the features which were in the resolution adopted by the Grand Jury of Union county at the October term, in relation to the punishment in State Prison of persons who have been convicted three consecutive times of drunkenness, and also for the punishment in State Prison of other incorrigible characters.

The bill is to be introduced in the Senate by Mr. Cross, who, however, expresses doubts as to its passage, from the fact that the State Prison is already overcrowded. He is in sympathy with the bill so far as punishment of drunkards and persistent disorderly characters are concerned, but suggests the establishment of a county penitentiary, like the one of Snake Hill in Hudson county, and Caldwell, Essex county, to which they should be committed.

Governor Voorhees is of the opinion that something should be done, as suggested in the proposed bill, looking to the punishment of habitual drunkards and disorderly characters, and has promised to extend the proposed bill all the aid in his power.

Mr. Frost Returns From New York.

Former Councilman George H. Frost, who has been travelling abroad for some time past, has returned to New York. He was called to Canada for a short time on account of the illness of his son, who had had typhoid fever. Mrs. Frost is still in Canada, but will return soon. Mr. and Mrs. Frost are expected to visit Plainfield at an early date.

THREE YEARS FOR BIGAMIST BLACKFORD

The Plainfielder's Duplicity Punished by Judge Vail.

STRONG PLEA FOR MERCY.

JUDGE CODDINGTON MADE THE BEST OF HIS ARGUMENT.

Strong Petition Read to the Court—Prosecutor English Arraigned the Prisoner in Scathing Terms—Blackford Appeared Composed Through the Trying Ordeal He Was Subjected to.

Evidently reconciled to the fate that was in store for him when he pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy, John L. Blackford was brought into court this morning at 10:30 o'clock to have sentence passed upon him by Judge Vail. The court room was well filled with persons having business there or had put in an appearance out of curiosity in the Blackford case.

Blackford was brought in looking worried, but composed in manner. During his incarceration he has grown a beard, which gives him quite a changed appearance. He looked over in his dress, wearing the black Prince Albert coat in which he was married to Miss Morgan of Westfield. Though the object of gaze from all in the court room, he kept his eyes straight ahead, only once or twice lifting his eyebrows to glance at either Judge Coddington when he was making a plea for mercy for the prisoner or at Prosecutor English, when the latter was delivering a scathing arraignment of Blackford.

When the prisoner was brought in Judge Coddington arose and said that while he recognized that the court had a duty to perform, he trusted that leniency and mercy would be shown towards the prisoner. Notwithstanding that physicians had declared that the prisoner was insane, Mr. Coddington said that it appeared to him that no man could have been in his right mind and have committed the offence of bigamy in such a bold way as the defendant had. While he might be perfectly sane at the time the examination was made, Mr. Coddington held that the course of events in his case showed that at the time the illegal marriage was performed there was every evidence that the defendant was mentally unbalanced. There was nothing in his conduct then that led to the presumption that he tried to be a cute criminal, so the lawyer argued.

After this juncture Judge Coddington presented the affidavit of Justice Collins, a resident of Dakota in which the latter stated his belief that during last summer, when Blackford was associated with him in work, he often acted in an irrational manner, and believed him to be mentally unbalanced. Judge Coddington also presented the petition asking for clemency which had been secured by Mrs. Blackford, No. 1. It contained the names of nearly every city official, police force, several physicians and ministers and nearly all the business men of Plainfield.

In closing his remarks, Judge Coddington made a touching appeal in behalf of the wife, by whom the lawyer had been engaged. He said that it was she who would suffer most for the punishment that the prisoner would receive. She was without support herself, and no friends to whom she could appeal.

Prosecutor English's remarks were not extensive, but they were sharp and withering to the prisoner. He said that inasmuch as the prisoner had pleaded guilty all the facts in the case had not come to the attention of the Court. "The offense of which the prisoner is guilty was not committed in a sudden impulse, but was a cold-blooded and deliberate proceeding," said the Prosecutor. He related the circumstances that Blackford paid assiduous court to Miss Morgan, and so open and bold was his conduct that suspicion of his acts was warded off. He described as "cold-blooded villainy" the way in which Blackford joked with his first wife over the newspaper accounts of the wedding at Westfield for the purpose of deluding her. "He did this act to satisfy his unbridled passion," declared the Prosecutor, "and deliberately and maliciously ruined the honor and happiness of two women."

Command ng the prisoner to stand, Judge Vail addressed him solemnly and quietly. He said that the extreme punishment for the crime was ten years in State prison and $1,000 fine. But in view of the fact that the prisoner had saved the county the expense of a trial by pleading guilty, and recognizing the plea made in the petition by the representative citizens of Plainfield, he would not impose the extreme penalty.

"The sentence of this court is that you be confined in the State prison for three years," said Judge Vail.

Without a tremor at the result, Blackford turned and walked through the door that led to the cell from which he had come.

The general sentiment in court was that the prisoner had been dealt with in a very lenient manner. Judge Coddington said that the sentence was lighter than he anticipated.

MANY SITES FOR THE PROPOSED CITY HALL.

Each Has Friends Who Sound Its Good Advantages.

MANY IN GOOD LOCATION.

HOT COMPETITION EXPECTED OVER FINAL CHOICE.

Park Avenue and Fifth Street, West Front Street and Central Avenue, East Front Street and Watchung Avenue, and East Front Street and Church Street, are Some of Those Mentioned.

In connection with the question of selecting a site for a city hall, with jail combination, there has been no end of discussion, and the probable site is located on every corner and vacant lot in the city according to the opinion of many. It will be of interest to many to know of some of the sites mentioned.

One is at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, which is said to be the choice of Third ward people. Another is at the corner of West Front street and Central avenue, where Manning's marble yard stands. Fourth ward people are interested in this site. It is claimed that the whole block from New street to Central avenue could be secured and an imposing building placed theron. Still another site in which First warders are interested is at the corner of Watchung avenue and Front street, known as the Meeker property, and another site on the opposite corner, where J. F. MacDonald resides is mentioned. The Front ward has plenty of sites, in fact, and another one is offered at the corner of East Front and Church streets. This is looked upon as one of the most likely and best. Some have ventured to suggest that the property on East Front street adjoining that occupied by Powlison & Jones, would be just the place.

Thus it can be seed that every ward has its selection and when it comes to the question of finally selecting the site there will be fun enough to suit everyone. Some think one site is too far off, another believes the other site is too close to the centre of the city, and if all the opinions should be published a good-sized book would not contain them. It may be stated that the people in general are not unanimous on any particular choice, and this will cause the trouble when a site is picked out.

HOUSE OF SORROW.

The Traveler Couldn't Expect Very Effusive Courtesy.

The Colonel halted his horse in front of a Dakota dugout and uttered a vigorous "Hello!" and after a minute a low-headed girl of about 16 years of age showed up and looked him over and said:

"How does, what ye whoopin' fur and who be ye?"

"Can I get anything to eat here?"

"Not a thing."

"And a water for my horse?"

"The spring's gone dry."

"How far is it to the river?"

"Lemme."

"Please ask your father to step out."

"Pop's bin on a drink for a week."

"And your mother?"

"She's got the toothache. That's her crying."

"Haven't you got a brother?"

"Yep, but he got snake-bit yesterday and died in a hull hour."

"Well, what about you?" persisted the Colonel. "You seem to be all right."

"Oh, but I ain't," she replied, as she made ready to disappear. "I went to git married yesterday, but my fellow got shot by an Injun, and it'll take two weeks to git him to another. This is a house of sorrow, sir, and you will please to ride on and not ask any more fool questions."—N. Y. Sun.

Rejected His Suit.

"Come, my dearest, come, my darling.
Turn not from my suit away."

Price of Affection.

The Mother—"I am sure you would learn to love my children."

Nurse—"What wages do you pay?"

The Mother—"Eighteen pounds a year."

Nurse—"I am afraid, ma'am, I could only be affectionate with them at that price."—Glasgow Evening Citizen.

NOT REGIMENTALLY DRUNK.

A Distinction Without a Difference in Military Phraseology.

"We had some very funny experiences during the late war," said an officer waiting for the appointment of a major of volunteers. "As you are probably aware, the greatest crime of which an enlisted man can be guilty in the eyes of the military authorities is that of drunkenness, and the majority of punishments inflicted at the camps were for this offense. While we were in Colorado this matter of drunkenness had to be sternly dealt with in order to prevent the men from smuggling liquor into the camp, but in spite of all precautions cases of drunkenness were frequent. One day, a man of my command was arrested by the guard as he was trying to carry a full-sized jag past the unsympathetic sentry on duty.

"In the morning, after he had had time to sleep off the fumes of his debauch, he was brought before me as the senior officer of the regiment, for investigation. After his arrest he went for the surgeon of the regiment to examine him, and, after doing so, after they had inspected him, both declared that they could detect no signs of liquor on the accused man. The case, of course, was a difficult one to decide. On the one hand the non-com. of the guard swore positively that the man was drunk, and on the other hand I had the evidence of two officers, one of whom, the doctor at least, was entitled to respectful consideration as a gentleman and officer. After hearing the evidence of the two officers I called upon the non-com., a typical son of the Emerald Isle, for his evidence.

"'Sergeant,' I said, 'the man drunk when he came off post?'

"True to the traditions of his race, he replied.

"'Well, sir, he had been drinking.'

"That is not the question; I asked you if he was drunk.'

"He had taken liquor, sir.'

"Can you swear he was drunk? Give me a straight answer.'

"The man hummed and scratched his head as if for inspiration, and finally, finding it of no avail, after a hasty consultation of officers listened anxiously for the answer:

"'Colonel, sir, he was not to say rigmintally drunk.'

"As soon as I was able to control my countenance and my risible faculties, I asked:

"'What do you mean by 'regimentally drunk?'

"'If a man can pass the guard without falling down, sir, and by staggering we would not call him rigmintally drunk, but he ought to be taken in all the same.'

"With a roar of laughter, I discharged the man, at the same time warning the over-zealous non-com. to be sure that a man was 'rigmintally drunk' before bringing him before me again. After that when one of the command had been sacrificing too ardently at the shrine of Bacchus, the question was asked, 'Was he rigmintally drunk?'"

Battlefield Nobility.

It is from Miss Florence Day, she has been untiring in her devotion to the Cause. Walewski says, "It is a long remarkable story told by a certain Rough Rider, whose name may as well go unmentioned, says a contributor to the Evening Post. After that battle it seems, had been deputy marshal of Cripple Creek, and for months before the war he had been hot on the trail of a noted desperado, wanted for horse-stealing and for murder. More than once the marshal and his men had nearly run the outlaw to earth, only to lose him at the last.

Then, suddenly, the war broke out, and things of less moment were forgotten. A call for troops, for Rough Riders, who knew the marshal's unflinching courage and his skill as a horseman, wrote him an urgent letter to join his troops, and the invitation was promptly accepted.

So it came, a few weeks later, that this cow-boy, ex-miner and ex-sheriff or of criminals found himself at Tampa in Uncle Sam's uniform. And one of the first men he met was the desperado he had been hot on the trail of, only now he was in soldier's clothes, a Rough Rider, too, with the rest of them.

"Well," said the hunted man, coolly, as their eyes met, "you've got me at last."

"How do you mean I've got you?"

"Why, you have. You came for me, didn't you? I lay down."

"I didn't come for you," said the marshal. "I'm here to fight under Roosevelt, and I've got to, and I don't know you, except as a soldier."

The man stared at him, doubtful.

"You mean you're not my enemy any more?"

"No, sir: I haven't got any enemies now but Spaniards."

"And you won't 'peach' to give me up?"

"Not in a hundred years. There's my hand on it, comrade."

And through the hard days that followed these men were the staunchest friends in the whole island of Cuba than these two whose hatred for each other had been bitter. And it was the war, when the marshal lay ill at Roosevelt Hospital, it was the ex-outlaw who came to his bedside to cheer him. And it was the ex-outlaw, too, who used his influence with a man of position to get honest work for this strangely sound friend, whose gratitude took the form of a resolve to lead a better life was sincere.

Summons of the Drum.

Hark, I hear the tramp of thousands,
And of armed men the hum;
Lo! a nation's hosts have gathered
Round the flag, alarming drum—
Saying "Come,
Freemen, come!
Ere your heritage be wasted," said the quick, decisive drum.

"But when wast the coming battle,
What of profit springs therefrom?
What if conquest, subjugation,
Even greater ills become?"
Still the drum,
Answered: "Come!
You must do the sum to prove it," said the Yankee-answering drum.

Thus they answered—hoping, fearing,
Some in faith and doubting some,
Till a trumpet voice proclaiming
Said: "My chosen people, come!"
Then, and then,
Lo, was dumb!
For the great heart of the Nation throbbing, answered: "Lord, we come."

THREE FOR WESTFIELD ON HOME ALLEYS.

Defeated Cranford Casino in Daily Press League.

ONE GAME HARD FOUGHT,

AND THEN CRANFORD RESIGNED TO THE INEVITABLE.

Westfield Team Won First Game After Hard Fight—The Second Was Very Easy—Foster Made a Great Recovery in the Third Game and Saved the Day—Westfield's Score All Over 800.

After one hard fought attempt to wrest victory from the bowlers of the Westfield Club on their own alleys, the Cranford Casino team settled back into lethargy of defeat. Three games were rolled in The Daily Press Bowling League Friday night and Westfield won them all. Westfield rolled well and all her team scores were above the 800.

Cranford opened the first game by taking the lead, the only time during the evening. On the second frame, Westfield led by six pins and held the lead for the remainder of the game. W. M. Townley rolled strikes in the first four frames, but could not hold that phenomenal pace. In the fourth frame Westfield was 58 in the lead. That was the apex of their strength in that game and Cranford followed with a mighty effort. The sixth and seventh frames saw two double headers for each team. Bates and Sharp made it two triple headers for Cranford in the seventh and Sharp made his fourth consecutive strike in the ninth. It reduced Westfield's lead, but could not win. Westfield won out by 23 pins.

Westfield opened the second game, with a clean frame of strikes. But that was too good to last. The home team kept at it, however, and soon the visitors were so far distanced that they were out in the running at all. A little brace in the fourth and fifth frames stopped Westfield's victorious career for a moment but they went right on and led by 134 pins in the eighth. Victory went to Westfield by the big majority of 140. Cranford failed even to make 700.

The third game was a trifle more exciting than the second. Everybody rolled way off form and it was a tossup which could do the worst. Forster, of Westfield, started in to break all records for low scores. He broke in the first two frames, then followed three splits. He broke again on the sixth, being at that time nine behind his frame. The Westfield rooters were in despair. Then Forster saved his reputation with four straight strikes giving him 167 on the windup. It was the finest recovery that has been made in the league.

Westfield was in the lead by 39 pins in the third, and then Cranford made a brace. Westfield was only twelve pins ahead in the fifth and sixth, but Forster's famous recovery sent Westfield way in the lead and there was no excitement after that.

The individual scores were as follows:

WESTFIELD CLUB.	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
Forster	126	180	167
W. Townley	202	178	178
W. H. Smith	169	156	156

INSTALLED OFFICERS.

Big Time at Meeting of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F.—Talked and Ate Afterward.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, held an important meeting last Friday. After the initiation of several candidates, High decretary John H. Drawies, of Elizabeth, assisted by Past Chief Rangers Lockwood and Ackerman installed the recently-elected officers as follows: Court deputy, Francis Whitney; court physician, H. H. Lowrie, M. D.; junior past chief ranger, J. J. Fraed; chief ranger, L. DeCamp; vice ranger, W. McCombe; recording secretary, James Patterson; financial secretary, John F. Casey; treasurer, John W. Kirk; chaplain, A. J. Jennings; senior woodward, W. Monsell; junior woodward, G. A. McCombe; senior beadle, Bernard Quirk, Jr.; junior beadle, C. A. Vetterberg.

Speeches, recitations and songs followed, after which a collation was served. Brothers Patterson, Allen and Kerr were in charge of the spread.

Miss Dunn Married a Month.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Annie Ware, of 403 Central avenue, and Felix Chargois, of 436 West Second street, which occurred Sunday evening, Dec. 31, at 8:30 o'clock. The marriage was performed by Justice Vincent W. Kash. The bride and groom are well known young people and their many friends will be surprised to hear of their marriage.

WALSH ON DEWEY

Some Up the Admiral and Calls Him "the All Right Little Man."

John Walsh was chief pusher on the Baltimore. He has been in the navy thirty years, has known Admiral Dewey twenty-five years and has served under him seven years.

"He is an all-right man," is Uncle George; an all-right little man," declared Walsh.

"Why do you call him Uncle George?

"Why wouldn't we call him Uncle George? Don't we call the Government Uncle Sam? Ain't he next to Uncle Sam? Why wouldn't we give him the same title? He is Uncle George and an all-right man. You can steer that in your coconut and keep it with you.

The tall, powerful gunner, with the grizzled mustache, turned his clear, gray eyes toward his questioner and continued earnestly:

"We always liked Dewey because he is square. He is calm and quiet. He don't make a fuss over you if he might be sitting on a cake of ice. But there ain't nothing icy about his heart. When a man goes to Dewey with a notice for promotion, or a complaint about the rations he don't turn it down. He calls officers from the quarter deck and says, 'Don't take 'em from their own command.

"He has nice, soft, easy ways, but he is strict on discipline. He put the fear of God into the heart of the all-right little man. The first time I got drunk in Shanghai, I was mixing it up with a non-com. and he got the best of me. Then I was taken up on the bridge.

"'Too much cognac, my lad?' says Dewey.

"'Don't know, sir; think so, sir,' says I.

"'First offense, I see,' says the Commander, 'and you get pay and five days in the brig,' he says.

"He made me wear the epaulettes, too. That's one of Dewey's own punishments. For first offenses he makes he makes a man wear 'em during a watch. Nice things, they are. They are gun swabbers and they reckon that's the reason why after the first half hour they weigh a ton. Then your mates walk around and salute you and laugh. You get your promotion and call you sir.

"And he has made me wear the epaulettes, too. That's the limit. Nothing on the deck. The biggest one in the ship is tied around your neck and you have to wear it so many hours a day until you get the hang of the offense. It's a jewel of a punishment, that is. The other men come up and talk to you about your duties and you have to tell 'em from under your nose. Those are the ways that Dewey handles the men.

"We all liked him before Manila. Now he don't turn a man in the fleet that doesn't love him. Why wouldn't they? He's an all-right man. He was just as cool as a cake of ice in the fight. I couldn't see much of him during the fight, being busy handling No. 3 and No. 5, the same being eight inch guns on the starboard quarter.

"It was like a slaughter-house, hell fire and two million boiler factories on the job. Between the roar of the guns I made more noise than the guns was the way my heart hammered against my chest. We didn't have anything on projectiles, but we were all right, don't make any mistake about that.

"You could see the men laughing and cursing and shouting, but you could not hear. You take in a full breath and let out a screech, but not a ghost of it could you hear.

"Then we drew Spay after the first part of the battle you could hear enough. I had been hit by a shell, which cut open the side of my head. Dewey came down to look to the boys over.

"'Hurt much, my lad?' he asked me.

"'No, sir; all ready for duty, sir,' I said.

"'All right, my lad, stand to your gun,' he said, and then he took his own pocket handkerchief and bandaged up my head. He's an all-right little man.

"Have I got that handkerchief now? Have I? I am going to keep that handkerchief along with some of the cable, for I was in the boat that grappled it and cut it.

"I had another souvenir of that battle. A bullet from a Spanish sharpshooter buried itself in the mother-of-pearl setting of a ring I wore. I was offered $50 for that ring. Well I sent it to a little woman in Pittsburg that I am going to anchor to."

Can't Dodge Bullets.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, talking over the recent hot work with the Spaniards. "I did it myself for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit by a bullet the chances are that the bullet ploughs right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the chances are that the line of the wound being slight—anyhow, not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will get fat and flabby after every chance they get, they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns to dodge bullets and as far as the rest of it is concerned he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences going to bear him out in that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get hit. He has seen men dodge and not get hit. He has seen men stand as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance. I remember at Fredericksburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a tree.

"He was worn out under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear a little to one side of the tree was a ditch full of wrought iron rails. A bullet came along, splintered a tree and drove a piece of the metal at right angles. The jagged iron struck him clean in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him. That's the kind of chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of easy fatal that is immensely amusing to a recruit. It isn't because he has no respect for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."

SOCIETY HONORED BRIDE AND GROOM.

Reception Given to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Tyler

BY THE PARENTS OF GROOM.

MANY GUESTS GATHERED DURING AFTERNOON AND EVENING.

Important Social Event Held at Residence of Col. Mason W. Tyler, of West Seventh Street — Magnificent Home Decorations—Those who Assisted in Receiving the Guests—Dancing in Evening.

One of the social events of the winter season in Plainfield society was the reception last Friday, that was given by Col. and Mrs. Mason W. Tyler at their spacious residence, 823 West Seventh street, to their son, William Seymour Tyler, who was married on December 15th, to Miss Ethel, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Van Boskerck.

The reception was in honor of the newly wedded couple and it proved a brilliant affair. There were more than 200 of the society folk of the city present.

The reception began at 3 o'clock and continued uninterruptedly through the evening. Col. and Mrs. Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Tyler and Mrs. G. W. VanBoskerck assisted in the receiving by the bridesmaids and groomsmen who were the Misses Helen Frances Bushnell, Helen Ashton Bloodgood, Elmer Strong, Daley VanBoskerck, Rosabell Shroeder and Dwight W. Morrow, Boardman Tyler, Dr. James Winsdor Decker and Henry D. Tyler.

At the evening portion of the reception the bridesmaids were assisted by Mrs. Daniel Ginas, Mrs. W. G. Wright, Mrs. John Doull Miller, Mrs. Edward H. VanBuren and the Misses Kathryn Bushnell, Mrs. and Mrs. VanBoskerck, Miss and Lizzie VanBoskerck, who also poured the chocolate.

The spacious residence was handsomely decorated, southern smilax being used in profusion, while red, pink and white roses were also conspicuous in the parlors and drawing rooms. The large piazza had been inclosed and this with the four lower rooms, including the handsome library, were used for the pleasure ground to dance in. An orchestra of four pieces supplied the music. The refreshments were served individually. The affair was one of the most elaborate and brilliant functions that has been held this season in Plainfield. The toilets of the ladies were very rich and elegant, in keeping with the position the host and hostess occupy in society.

CONCLUDING "AT HOME."

Society Folk Pay Their Respects to Miss Ackerman by the Occasion of Her Formal Debut.

The second and concluding informal "at home" of a series following the introduction into Plainfield society of Miss Lydia P. Ackerman, daughter of Mrs. J. Harvey Ackerman, of West Seventh street, was held Friday afternoon at Mrs. Ackerman's residence. Like the first on the preceding afternoon, it was largely attended by society folk from this city and New York.

The house was very handsomely decorated with roses and southern smilax. A profusion of pink roses were used in the table decorations. The guests were received by Mrs. J. Harvey Ackerman, Miss Ackerman, Mrs. Warren Ackerman and Mrs. Wood, of Trenton. They were assisted by Miss Carrie Hall and Miss Katherine Wood.

OLD CITIZEN GONE.

Joseph Cooney, Sr., Died at His Home Friday Afternoon From Pneumonia—Was a Blacksmith.

Joseph Cooney, Sr., aged 72 years, father of Former Policeman Joseph Cooney, died Friday afternoon at his home on West Sixth street, after a severe illness with pneumonia. He was born in Switzerland, and came to this country when a young man, locating in Plainfield many years ago. He was by trade a blacksmith, and worked at his trade for years. He was attended during his illness by Dr. Zeglio. He is survived by a wife and a son. The funeral services were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's R. C. church. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Alarm of Fire by Telephone.

A telephone alarm was sent into fire department headquarters Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, telling of a chimney fire at the home of Dr. W. H. Murray, of Watchung avenue. Chief Doane and No. 3 hose wagon responded. Two extinguishers were used. There was no damage done.

Mrs. James Atwood, of Trenton, who has been visiting Plainfield friends, has returned home.

Matthew Sweeney, an employe at the Fond Tool Works, is detained at home with the grip.

BUYING ON MARGIN IS BAD AS POKER PLAYING

Many Plainfielders Indulge in the Former Game of Chance.

ALWAYS LOOKING FOR TIPS.

BUTTONHOLE NEW YORK BROKERS ON THE WAY TO BUSINESS.

Invest All the Money They Can Rake and Scrape Together and Stick to It Like All the "Locals" Who Try to Make a Big Stake in the Stock That Are Made in Wall Street.

A party of Plainfielders, speaking about the number of "pokers" joints in this city a few days ago, had occasion to remark that in their opinion they were no worse than the business carried on by some Plainfielders who are making a practice of playing the markets in New York. Some of these people, and there are a number in private life, are constantly putting up all the money they can borrow, beg and scrape to buy stock of one kind and another in the hope that some day they will make a strike. The party who was reserring to this matter said that he knew of a number of Plainfielders who gamble in this way every day, and some of them are high in church circles.

While he did not uphold poker playing, he thought that the business carried on by these private individuals in playing the markets was equally as bad. The persons who are quietly playing the markets are simply infatuated with it and nothing could induce them to stop. They constantly see the various brokers living in this city who do business in New York, and thereby hope to get private tips on various kinds of stock.

These people can be seen at the North Avenue station buttonholing the various brokers for this purpose, and if the latter do not succumb to the latter dodging them, would-be speculators in their endeavors to escape them and thus be spared the bother and trouble caused by this "peanut-stand" method of doing business.

On the other hand it has been a custom for sometime past for certain brokers to keep their eyes open for this class of people and try if possible to get them to invest their money on a "dead sure thing." It is not often that the novice makes a strike, but then he becomes infatuated and he is led on until he becomes what he thinks a thoroughbred speculator, and in order to keep the thing a going he borrows from his friends and does all in his power to collect a few dollars confidently hoping that he will make a big strike, but, alas, the big pile never comes his way.

GOLF CLUB CONCERT.

Entertainment for Benefit of Park Golf Club Will Be Given Next Friday Night.

The first of the series of entertainments for the benefit of the Park Club was held in the Park Club house last Friday and proved very successful. The entertainers were from the New York Musical Club and they rendered a delightful programme of instrumental and vocal music. There was a fair attendance.

The programme that was published in these columns was followed and all the numbers were well received. The instrumental duets by Messrs. Willard and Bartlett were particularly fine, although the entire programme was very creditably given.

JUST BEYOND A HUNDRED.

Columbus Drake Died Hieron Days After His Birthday.

Columbus Drake, the oldest resident of Monmouth county, died at his home at Matawan Thursday. He was one hundred years old January 1st. Death was caused by the breaking down of his system, due to old age.

Mr. Drake was hale and hearty until a short time ago, and for several years had lived in hope that he would pass the century mark. He was a native of Ireland. He had been a resident of New Jersey since 1825. He never married, and for many years lived with an only sister, who is herself nearing the century mark.

Elizabeth Banks Prefering.

The banks in Elizabeth are reaping a benefit from the closing of the Union County Bank of Rahway. The business men of Rahway must have banking facilities until such time as a new bank is formed in Rahway, and Elizabeth is the nearest place for them to go to, and the First National Bank and the Citizens' Bank of Elizabeth, owing to their proximity to the Pennsylvania Railroad station, are getting the bulk of the Rahway deposits.

The Turkey Will Be There.

The American bird, the turkey, will be a prominent figure at Trinity Reformed church parlors next Friday evening, January 20th and 26th, when the annual turkey supper will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society. Don't forget the date.

LEGAL DEFECT LETS AGED COUPLE STARVE.

New Misfortunes For Old Jim Clark and His Wife.

POORMASTER CANNOT A D.

SQUIRE DEBBY SAYS APPLICATION FOR AID IS DEFECTIVE.

Instructed Poormaster Wall, of New Providence Township, How to Give Aid Until Corrections Are Made—When Wall Found the Couple on Verge of Starvation he Assisted Them From His Own Purse.

Misfortune follows close on the path of old James Clark, the veteran flax peddler, and his wife. Last spring peddler, and his wife. Last spring they stared starvation in the face and, enfeebled by exposure and insufficient clothing, they were in trouble indeed. The appeal of The Daily Press then brought them substantial aid from many quarters. Now in the heart of winter, they are left entirely without resources while certain public officials argue the question as to whether their application for aid has been properly made out.

Jim Clark has spent most of his life in the vicinity of New Providence. He was at one time well known here as a fish peddler visiting this section at frequent intervals. Now he is old and feeble and unable to earn even the barest livelihood. His wife's condition was so serious that she was confined in the Muhlenberg hospital for some time. Both are suffering from gangreen of feet, and Mrs. Clark lost several toes from that dread disease.

Last spring the Clarks moved into a small but comfortable farm house in New Providence borough. It belonged to a man named Potter living in Summit and he allowed them to live there rent free. The aid they received tided them over until summer when they were enabled to eke out a scanty existance, raising a few vegetables on the plot of land adjoining the house, while Clark earned a little now and then at odd jobs.

The cold winds of the fall and winter came and the Clarks were compelled to remain in the shelter of the little cottage. Their old trouble set in again and they were barely able to totter about the house. They asked for help. John Evans, poormaster of New Providence borough, declared that the borough could do nothing for them as they did not belong there.

An appeal was made to George Wall, poormaster of New Providence township. Wall was prepared to do so when he declared that Squire Peter S. Debby, of New Providence, instructed that he must give them no aid from the poor funds as their application had not been made out properly. The Squire declared that they would have to go to Elizabeth to have the papers corrected. Meantime the Clarks were left to starve.

The Clarks have a daughter who lives in Elizabeth. She sent a small sum of money, the result of careful saving, to the old folks at Christmas. That lasted until Sunday and furnished them with the bare necessities of life. Sunday they had not a cent and the cupboard was empty. Poormaster Wall heard of the situation and came to their assistance, giving aid out of his own pocket.

That afforded temporary relief and the wolf was chased from the door. He didn't go far, however, and now waits longingly for that small supply to be exhausted.

AN "AT HOME."

Pleasant Affair in Connection With the Formal Debut of the Young Lady Last Evening.

The first of a series of two informal "at homes" given by Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman in honor of her daughter, Miss Lydia P. Ackerman, who has just made her debut in Plainfield society, was held at Mrs. Ackerman's handsome residence on West Seventh street Thursday afternoon.

It was attended by prominent society folk of Plainfield and New York to the number of several hundred. The rooms were charmingly decorated, pink being the prevailing color. Those who assisted Mrs. Ackerman and Miss Ackerman in receiving were Mrs. Robert Rushmore, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. M. S. Ackerman, Mrs. Isaac W. Rushmore, Mrs. W. A. Pinto, Miss Mary Whiton and Miss Smalley.

Watchung Avenue Needs Repairing.

One of the city streets that will need the attention of the street committee as soon as the weather permits is Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Fifth street. The upper surfacing is entirely gone and the large stones are rapidly loosening. Wheeling is difficult and the carriages rattle over the stony surface with unusual noise, and a shaking up for the occupants.

FOR MEN WITH PULLS.

REGIMENT OF ENUMERATORS TO TAKE NEW JERSEY CENSUS.

Their Work will Commence June 1st—The State is Divided in Six Districts, With a Supervisor for Each One.

Ten hundred and forty-nine enumerators are to be employed in New Jersey, simultaneously with about 50,000 others throughout the United States, in taking the 13th census. Their work will commence June 1st next. Each enumerator will be armed with the required blanks and pencil, and endeavoring to remember one half the instructions he has received, will be fully impressed with the importance of the task which has been delegated to him.

In the division of New Jersey for census enumeration the congressional lines have not been strictly adhered to. The six districts are as follows: First, the county of Hudson; second, the county of Essex; third, the counties of Bergen, Morris, Passaic, Sussex and Warren; fourth, the counties of Hunterdon, Middlesex, Somerset and Union; fifth, the counties of Burlington, Mercer, Monmouth and Ocean; sixth the counties of Atlantic, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland Gloucester and Salem.

The districts will be in charge of the following supervisors: First district, John H. Weastell, of Jersey City; Second district, Samuel A. Smith, of Newark; Third district, James M. Denton, of Paterson; Fourth district, C. S. Tunis, of Imlaystown; Fifth district, William L. James, of Riverton; Sixth district, John Blowe, of Camden. The number of enumerators in each district will be as follows: First district, 174; Second district, 186; Third district, 200; Fourth district; 141; Fifth district, 166; Sixth district, 184—making a total of 1,049 enumerators in New Jersey.

The work of the supervisors is next to that in importance of the director of the census. To them will be made the reports of the enumerators, and the accuracy of the census depends largely upon their ability and faithfulness. New Jersey is fortunate in having selected for these important positions men of high personal character, integrity and ability, and the figures for the State will be above being questioned.

THE HORSE A SUBJECT.

Interesting and Instructive Talk Delivered by Dr. Knott to Young Pupils.

At the Randolph-Cooley Colleges School Thursday afternoon Dr. Middleton O'Malley Knott came to the students and their friends the first of a series of talks which he is to deliver there on four succeeding Thursday afternoons on the care of domestic animals. For the subject of his first talk Dr. Knott took "The Horse," with some of the problems of their use and abuse, and he gave many practical hints for the care and management of these dumb animals. Dr. Knott made a very strong his appeal for kindness and consideration to these animals. After the talk Dr. Knott invited questions and among others one was raised as to the efficiency of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Everyone felt strongly the need in this city of a society of greater activity and efficiency. Plainfield seems strangely neglectful of these patient, long suffering inhabitants.

The subject of Dr. Knott's talk next week will be "The Dog and Cat," including the subject of hydrophobia, and the two following Thursdays on emergency cases and diseases of animals and how to treat them. These cannot fail to be of pleasure and service to all those who are fortunate enough to hear them.

Miss Hunt a Bride.

Many Plainfield friends will be interested in the cards sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunt, of Newton, Mass., announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Trowbridge Hunt to Edwin Sumner Hunt, Thursday, January 11th. Mr. Hunt was a teacher in the high school for a number of years and is a lawyer in New York at the present time.

Insurance Policy Paid.

D. W. Littell, treasurer of Plainfield Council, 711, Royal Arcanum, has received from E. A. Skinner, supreme treasurer, a check for $3,000 to pay the insurance on the death of the late Josiah Browne. The check was received ten days from the date of mailing the proof of death claim to the supreme secretary, W. O. Robeson, Boston, Mass.

Insurance Agents to Dine.

On Wednesday evening, January 24th, the superintendents of the Prudential Insurance Company of this State will give a banquet at the Hotel Kensington, which will be a very elaborate affair. It will be similar to the one held sometime ago at the Revere House.

Surprised Their Pastor.

The members of Fillmore Baptist church surprised their pastor, Rev. W. D. Johnson, with a donation last Friday at his home, 225 Richmond street.

HEROIC HOME TREATMENT

Mr. Shivers Meant Well, But Went Too Far to Back Out Gracefully.

"Um-m-m!" said Mr. Shivers, cheerfully, laying down his paper "I believe there is something in that."

"In what?" asked Mrs. Shivers.

"Why, in these Health Hints the Hillside they say that the reaction and after-glow of cold bathing baths as invisible cure for neuralgia and rheumatism," explained Mr. Shivers.

"Cold water right out of the spigot, without any warm water at all?" cried Mrs. Shivers.

"Certainly," replied Mr. Shivers.

"O-o-o-oh! I couldn't," shuddered Mrs. Shivers.

Mr. Shivers smiled a superior smile.

"Of course, it is rather heroic treatment and requires considerable moral as well as physical courage, but to a man inclined to suffer from that is of no consequence," he said, complacently, "and I certainly shall give it a fair trial. So now, my dear, I am certifying his sudden resolution, "it is not one sudden freezing plunge, but a gradual immersion while you very slowly count one, two, three, and you put in one foot; two, and you put in the other; three, you sink upon one knee; four, you kneel on both; five, you plunge; six, you rise; and, you immerse your body. So, after all, it is not so very dreadful. Yes, I shall certainly put it to-morrow morning."

However, Mr. Shivers did not seem so enthusiastic in the morning. His wife let the cold water run, according to his instructions, until the tub was full to overflowing, but in spite of reiterated information to that effect he still lingered in bed.

"Breakfast is ready, Mr. Shivers, at last, from the bureau, where she was doing up her hair, "this is the eleventh time I've called you, and you just must get up, now. Like this: One, and you put in one foot; two, and you put in the other; three, you sink upon one knee; four, you kneel on both; five, you plunge; six, you rise; and, you immerse your body. So, after all, it is not so very dreadful. Yes, I shall certainly put it to-morrow morning."

Another wait and exhortation.

"To-th-th-th-th-three-o-o-o-e," next came chattering from the bathroom, followed instantly by a blood-curdling shout and a tremendous splash. Then there was a succession of agonized yells from Mr. Shivers as at first took for a streak of lightning flashed out of the bathroom, plunged into bed and rolled itself tightly up in the covers.

"Why, Jeremiah!" gasped Mrs. Shivers.

"Woman," he growled, when he could control his chattering teeth, "did you leave that cake of soap in the bottom of the bath-tub on purpose?"—Harper's Bazar.

Sardonic Humor

The State takes under its special protection none but those who merit it by their character.

It is really remarkable how well we endure our confinement, considering how everybody in the world that we want to see comes to visit us. We take plenty of exercise and live as much as possible in the open air.

Of course, you've heard this before. Once a year, at least, a girl who visited this place with her mother, and, seeing a lone "con" strolling thro' the yard (a rainy day then, as now), exclaimed: "Oh, mother, look! There's a tame one!" But this little joke, ancient as it is, tickled he into a laugh when I had six and six staring me in the face.

The author of "My Excessive Sentence," "A Victim of Mere Circumstance," "Falsely Accused," "The Prisoner's Inhumanity," and other pessimistic articles written for the Star of Hope, who have threatened to discontinue their contributions unless the above mentioned articles are published at once, will no doubt be suprised to learn, using the language of the "con," that "there's room for all." And we believe that in the multiplicity of choice our readers will beg for their tales of woe.—Sing Sing Prison Paper, "Star of Hope."

NO HEARING HELD ON STREET WIDENING

Combination of Circumstances Kept Councilmen Away.

ONLY TWO MEMBERS THERE.

THE MATTER WAS DISCUSSED IN AN INFORMAL WAY.

About Twenty-Five Interested Property Owners Were on Hand, and Were Shown Maps of Proposed Improvement—The Widening of Street Alone Will Cost Only About $1,000.

As was to be expected there was not a quorum present last Thursday at the special meeting held by Mayor Smalley and the Borough Council. His Honor and Councilman Clark were the only members of the Council present. Clerk Frank Bowley was on hand, and so was Civil Engineer R. C. VanEmburgh, who has prepared plans for the widening of Somerset street, from the county line to Jackson avenue, as proposed. There were about twenty-five interested property owners in attendance to see and hear what was going on.

Mayor Smalley telephoned to Councilmen Rogers and Valiant, but they could not attend for various reasons. Councilman Swackhamer was called suddenly to New York on account of his wife being taken ill there, and as Councilman Codrington fractured his arm a few days ago he could not attend. The other member, Mr. Burtis, is in Baltimore on business and could not be there. All of these things singularly formed a peculiar chain of circumstances, and together with the terrible condition of the weather had a tendency to hinder a little the project proposed.

Those present at the meeting were not discouraged and the determination to widen the street is as strong as ever. Mayor Smalley saw an opportunity to secure the opinion of the property owners attending, among whom were the largest owners along the proposed widening. A mutual admiration society was formed and informally there was a discussion of the project. Mr. VanEmburgh showed his map giving the measurements, present line and proposed line, and after the matter had been thoroughly discussed and a hundred and one questions asked there seemed to be a feeling that the benefit in the widening would be a first class thing. Much of the previous opposition was decreased, and as a result the prospects are that the widening will surely come at an early date.

A majority of the people in the borough have an idea that it will cost $6,000 to widen the street. This is wrong and when investigated in the right way it can be seen that the actual widening of the street will cost the borough about $1,000, making in all an estimated cost of $6,000 for the entire job.

It will be impossible for the borough to do all the work necessary on streets during next year with an appropriation of $3,500, the present year's appropriation. Last year's Council expended nearly $7,000 in street work and was able to cover more ground. The present street committee has done most excellent work with the money at its disposal, and if the work of widening is taken up it will relieve the general street work considerably, as it will give the committee more money for the rest of the borough. These facts were brought out Thursday, and were viewed by the property owners in a reasonable light. It was also shown that all property along the proposed widening would be benefitted.

His Hand Badly Crushed.

Chester Dennis, of East Sixth street, an employe of the Potter Press Works, is detained from work owing to an accident he had Thursday while at work. His hand caught in a piece of machinery and was badly crushed. It is not believed that he will lose the hand.

CARICATURING CHOATE

Presumable Jokes of Our Ambassador —Embarrassed By His Own Wit.

(We understand that an enterprising London publisher has just issued a Choate Joke Book, in honor of the visit of Ambassador Choate. We have not as yet seen a copy, but from the fashion in which certain famous people are at times compelled to appear in print in the pages of other books, we imagine the volume contains the following:)

I.

It was while traveling in Bermuda that Mr. Choate was introduced to Gen. Sir William Wintergreen of her Majesty's Blues. Having heard of Mr. Choate's fame as a raconteur of repartee, Gen. Sir William resolved to put it to the test before a large company gathered in his honor.

"Mr. Choate," said he, "you have studied architecture, I presume?"

"Well," replied Mr. Choate, calmly, "not deeply, General Sir William, but I know a house from an automobile and could distinguish off hand, I think, between an Italian renaissance facade and a piece of Spanish pie."

"Quite so," observed Gen. Sir William. "But, Mr. Choate, do you know when a door is ajar?"

The witty American inclined slightly to himself, and then without an instant's hesitation, replied:

"Ah, General, I think so. Indeed I do. When it's ajar." (N. B.—This is new!)

II.

Mr Choate was once asked by an American newspaper reporter who was trying to find out who illustrious men were in favor of their presenting themselves, who he would prefer to be if he were not Mr. Choate.

"I am sure I cannot say," returned the ready wit. "I have never not been myself."

III.

While crossing the ocean Mr. Choate was asked as to his plans upon his arrival in London.

"Well, madam," he replied, "of course, I am going over to see the first thing I shall do, I presume, will be to study the language."

IV.

Mr. Choate, when asked by Lord Tveagh, the famous brewer, why he and not Gen. Porter was sent to England, the witty American replied: "My Lad, and Porter's a country that makes such excellent beer would be like sending coals to Newcastle or gloom to the Isle of Man."

On the appointment of his predecessor to the portfolio of State, Mr. Choate received a letter from Mr. Depew: "I suppose the President wants to make Hay while the sun shines."

V.

Mr. Choate is sometimes embarrassed by his own wit. An inquisitive Englishman once asked him as to Mr. Depew's rank in the United States.

"He is a man of high station?" asked the Briton.

"He's a man of the Grand Central Station," replied Mr. Choate, with a twinkle in his eye.

"Aw!" said the Briton. "Grand Central Castle and I presume?"

It took the witty lawyer four hours to explain that his joke was based upon the fact that Mr. Depew, as president of the road, has his office in a railway station.

VII.

It is not known whether it was in a jesting mood or because of some natural embarrassment on the Ambassador's part that caused him in his address to omit to begin his talk with the well-known American formula. "If your honor please." In any event, Mr. Henry White, the talented secretary of the embassy, rose unceremoniously, and with wonderful readiness the Ambassador corrected himself by bowing low and saying, suavely: "Or, if I should have said, may it please the court."

The ice was broken at once, and the Ambassador's address, in which his friends all knew he would, so distinctly a persona grata that he was invited to stay over night at the Castle and breakfast at the expense of the crown. —Harper's Bazar.

He Saw Jonas.

When Mr. Jonas Howard, an esteemed citizen of Jeffersonville, Ind., went to Washington from his Congressional district to attend the 4th of July he had in mind him a devoted and affectionate body of constituents in town and country, who fancied that great personal benefits would result to them through Mr. Howard's powerful presence in the halls of national wisdom. One of these rural voters, a small farmer with some momentous political design on his mind, followed Mr. Howard to Washington in eager pursuance of his mission, and Mr. Howard presently found in about five days, seemingly not much elated.

"Well, Bill," a town acquaintance asked him, "did you see Washington and Mr. Howard, and did you get what you went after?"

"I seen Washington," he replied grumpily, "and I seen Jonas; but Jonas couldn't do nothin' for me; he was a-havin' hard work to keep from gittin' trompled on himself."

Correction.

"We stated," says the Plunkville Bugle, "that the part now playing Othello at the Opera house let his hands hang around like a couple of mining claims, but we take us yesterday in regard thereto. With the assistance of the pressman and the shoemaker who occupies the room adjoining the office, we have made him, but not until he had landed on us with a hand that showed the use of the word 'sinister' to have been a serious mistake."—Indianapolis Journal.

Revised to Suit.

"My uncle," said the new boarder, "is pay as you go."

The landlady shook her head.

"It wouldn't do in my business," she said, with a sigh. "I have to feed around a month and then forget his name. My motto is pay Saturday night or go."

Between the Lines.

When women write—some sage opines, A man must read between the lines; But, heavens! what a contract greets That wight whose girl writes sixteen sheets!

"There's a load off my mind," said the Indian woman, as she deposited the seven bushels of coal that she had picked up along the railroad tracks.

HONORED HER MEMORY.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. ARTHUR L. TITSWORTH HELD.

An Effective Service Held at the Home of Mr. Titsworth—Beautiful Floral Tributes—Selections by a Quartette.

A large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home of Arthur L. Titsworth, 415 West Seventh street, Friday afternoon to pay their respects and homage to the memory of Mrs. Titsworth, whose sudden death a few days ago was such a shock to the community. Rev. Arthur E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, conducted the services, and read appropriate Scripture selections, and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, whom Mr. Titsworth has been organist for the past eighteen years, assisted by offering prayer.

Remarks concerning the life of the departed were made by Rev. Dr. Rice, pastor of a Presbyterian church at Newark. Dr. Rice was pastor of the Presbyterian church at Syracuse, into which Mrs. Titsworth was received as a member, and he was pastor at the time she was received.

He spoke in the highest terms of Mrs. Titsworth, of her great devotion to her church. He told of her work in the church, and of her noble and pure life, and dwelt upon her many excellent qualities known to him as a pastor. He offered touching words of sympathy and comfort to the bereaved husband and pointed him to the Heavenly Father who alone could give the divine comfort so much needed at this time.

Very effective was the singing by a quartette, composed of Miss Etta Krymer, Miss Nan Randolph, E. E. Runyon, of this city, and Robert Goodon, of Boston, Mass. They sang "Asleep in Jesus," and "The Christian's Good Night," and Mr. Goodon sang affectively Rodney's "Calvary."

The floral tributes were beautiful, the predominating color being pink, a favorite with Mrs. Titsworth. There were many bouquets of choice roses and one handsome wreath of galax leaves and roses tied with ribbon. This came from the choir and consistory of Trinity Reformed church, where Mr. Titsworth is the organist.

Interment was at Hillside, where the remains were placed in the receiving vault for the present.

WHO THEY ARE

Legislative Manual, Soon to be Issued, Will Tickle Vanity of the Members of the Legislature.

The Legislative Manual for 1900, which is about ready for distribution, like the several preceding editions of the work, is replete with statistical information which renders it valuable as a book of reference concerning affairs of State.

Among the many interesting features are the biographical sketches of State officials, which serve as a sort of informal introduction of the latter to the public at large. To the embryo legislator this is the most interesting part of the manual, because in it he finds a more or less complimentary description of himself, and a ready means of becoming acquainted with his colleagues and other officials.

Union county is represented by three first-year members, neither of whom held public office before. The list is headed by Ellis R. Mosher, who was born in Newark August 7, 1848. He is engaged in the building of yachts and gas motors for the propulsion of yachts and automobiles. He conducted a boat-building business in Chicago during the World's Fair and received a premium for his exhibition of launches. Chester M. Smith, one of his colleagues, is a wholesale tea merchant in New York City.

Charles S. Foster, the remaining Union county member, is a New York lawyer. He was born in Fort Henry, N. Y., and graduated from Yale College in 1885. He resides in this city.

DINED AFTER THE SHOOT.

Contest Between Democratic and Citizens Clubs, After Which a Dinner was Enjoyed.

Thursday afternoon at Scott Terry's farm there was a live bird shoot between the teams of the New Brunswick Gun Club and the Climax Gun Club, of Union county. There were twelve men on a side and the limit was ten birds each. After a spirited contest the members of the Climax Club came out victorious, winning by one bird, the score being 45 to 44.

After the shoot all adjourned to the Kensington Hotel, where a dinner was served in the grill room. Following the dinner a few toasts were drunk, among the principal speakers was Former Judge W. A. Coddington. There were several other speakers and when the affair terminated it was rather late in the evening.

Secured a Pension.

Charles L. Henry, of 411 East Third street, has just succeeded in securing a pension which he has been working for a long time. The pension was obtained through the efforts of Michael McCarty, who is an assistant to Henry Phillips, of Trenton. Mr. Henry secured about $900.

LATE VICE-PRESIDENT EULOGIZED BY KEAN.

Jersey's Junior Senator Pays a Beautiful Tribute.

SENATOR SEWELL OPENED SERIES OF SPEECHES.

Public and Private Life of the Journeyman Statesman at Length—Words of High Praise from Senators Daniel, Depew, Cockerell, Collins, Berry, Davis, Morgan, Chandler, Lodge, Allen, Mason.

The members of the United States Senate, many Representatives and a well-filled gallery January 13th listened to eulogies in the Senate upon the life of Garret A. Hobart.

The list of speakers who sought this opportunity to pay a last tribute to the life of the late Vice-President of the United States contained thirteen names and the remarks were delivered in the following order: Senators Sewell, Daniel, Depew, Cockerell, Collins, Berry, Davis, Morgan, Chandler, Lodge, Mason, Allen and Kean.

The opening remarks were made by Senator Sewell and the closing ones by Senator Kean, thereby giving to New Jersey the most prominent positions in the list.

Senator Kean spoke in part as follows: "Mr. President: The State of New Jersey mourns with the Union of all the States in the untimely death of her distinguished son, Garret A. Hobart. Great as the loss has been to the Nation the blow has fallen with heavier force and with the sense of a personal and intimate loss upon the people of the city and State among whom his busy and useful life has been spent. He was born in the State of New Jersey.

"If the State gave him birth and education, training and experience, home and success, he, too, was generous to the State. Never has he given new honors to the old Commonwealth. he reflected new glory upon its career, already bright with the achievements of the distinguished patriots who had preceded him, and he returned, with thousandfold interest, the bounty of his generous parent.

"He was a life of usefulness, all his abilities centred about that pivot of action and conduct. He believed that the only aristocracy and the true aristocracy was that of industry of usefulness and useful women. He lived loyally by that principle through all his days. He exemplified it in his boyhood among the farmers of Monmouth county.

"He had not only the desire to be useful, but he knew how to be useful. There was no waste of effort either in his intentions or in the application of it. He was not led aside into byepaths. He followed the direct road to usefulness by the shortest route. Thus he accomplished great deeds of usefulness for his city, his State and his country. It was the legacy he most desired to leave for his fellow-citizens.

"Loyalty was no less striking a feature of his character. He came of a loyal, patriotic ancestry, and the influence of that heritage was manifested in all the phases of his busy, useful life. He was loyal to his home, to his city, to his State and to his country.

"He was loyal to the great principles of liberty, upon which the fathers founded the Government. It was his early youth he was led to believe in the wisdom, the justice and the patriotism of the Republican party. He never swerved in his loyalty to that belief, and all the activities of his energetic, political career were devoted to the maintenance and the strengthening of that party and its principles.

"From his young manhood he had taken a deep interest in public affairs. In the legislative halls of his own State he rapidly made an honorable reputation as a faithful legislator, a wise public servant and a man whose integrity and honesty of purpose no man ever questioned. He was barely over thirty when he was chosen Speaker of the Assembly; a few years later he became President of the Senate. In both of these positions he displayed the same grasp of parliamentary practice, the same dispatch of public business, which were so strongly revealed in his career as presiding officer of this body.

"I am here today to testify to the love that New Jersey bore for her distinguished and lamented son, generalas, to his long rest; to testify to the honor and distinction that Vice-President Hobart conferred upon a State which mingles tears over his untimely departure with pride for his illustrious career. Well might New Jersey and the Nation engrave this epitaph over his grave:

"He lives in hearts we leave behind,
Is not to die."

New Jersey Has Enough Soldiers.

The adjutant general of New Jersey reports the present strength of the National Guard to be 3111 officers and 3 455 enlisted men, enough, he says, for any need that may arise requiring its services within the borders of the State.

SENATOR REED SAYS THERE WAS NO DEAL.

Denies That Judge Bartine Was Promised a Reappointment.

HOT FIGHT FOR THE PLACE.

REED REPORTED TO BE IN FAVOR OF HUGH GASTON.

Friends of Mr. Bartine Say That They Have a Very Strong Petition to Present to the Governor, But Republican Leaders Are Against Him—John L. Griggs Mentioned for Prosecutor.

The fight over the judgeship of the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset county is becoming interesting. John D. Bartine, the present Democratic Judge, is taking active measures to impress the Governor with the fact that the people of the county want him continued in the office. Petitions in his behalf are being circulated in every township of the county and have already been numerously signed. His friends say that they will have the names of half the voters of the county on the petitions to lay before the Governor before the appointment is made, and they believe that this will go a long way toward keeping him on the bench. Judge Bartine has occupied the Somerset bench for fifteen years, and has always been an active Democratic worker.

It was reported last fall that Senator Reed had agreed to his reappointment, but this the Senator positively denied. The Judge, however, showed a friendly feeling during the campaign for the Republican ticket. Republican leaders here, including Assemblyman Cooper, are opposed to his reappointment on political grounds, and it is said that Governor Voorhees has said that he would not hear of a reappointment. The situation seems to be unchanged, unless the Judge's big petition should influence the Governor.

Hugh K. Gaston and Lewis H. Schenck are the two available Republican candidates, with the chances now apparently in favor of the former, though Mr. Schenck's friends are doing good work for him and the Governor seems in favor of his candidacy. Senator Reed's influence, however, seems to be for Mr. Gaston.

James L. Griggs seems to be the most probable man for Prosecutor of the Pleas.

Minister Wan's Patronage.

Rev. Mr. Cooper, a minister of Hackensack, has prepared for distribution cards announcing that he has located at Park Ridge, and that he is ready to give prompt attention to weddings, funerals and christenings. The cards have been prepared by him, he says, so as to call attention to his readiness for engagements of any kind.

Funeral of Late Joseph Cooney.

The funeral services of the late Joseph Cooney, Sr., who died last week were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's R. C. church, where a large number of friends gathered to pay their last respects to the departed. The services were conducted by Father Westman. Interment took place in St. Mary's Cemetery.

LIFE AND WORK OF MOODY

LATE EVANGELIST A SUBJECT FOR TWO SERMONS.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck Portrayed the Characteristics of the Lamented Man in Glowing Colors—Dr. Terhune's Tribute.

Sunday morning at Trinity Reformed church the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., delivered an intensely interesting discourse on the life and work of the late Dwight L. Moody. The speaker entered fully into his subject, starting from Mr. Moody's birth and concluding with his death. He spoke of his being a born leader, a trait manifested when a boy, and of his being one of the best of salesmen, as evidenced when a clerk in a shoe store in Boston, and of his being a leader in evangelistic work, always showing that he was destined to lead in the grand work he had undertaken.

In concluding his discourse Dr. Schenck spoke of wherein Mr. Moody's secret power lay, which was in his general composition or makeup, being especially adapted to his work, having full determination to do what he set out to do, and this, coupled with the grace of God, prayer and an abundant knowledge of God's word, gave him great power that made his words always count for the best. He dwelt at some length on his knowledge of God's Word and how faithful he was in the study of it, thereby being thoroughly fitted for his work.

There was a large congregation present to hear the discourse, many visitors being noticed among those in attendance.

Sunday morning at the First Reformed church the pastor, Dr. Terhune, delivered a highly interesting sermon in which he dwelt at some length on the life and work of the late Dwight Lyman Moody. He referred to him as the greatest evangelist of the age and said that the influence of his work would extend to the end of time. He told considerably of his work and of the good he accomplished, and related some very interesting personal incidents in connection with his life.

THE JOLLY WHISTERS.

Councilman Burtis and Wife Acted as Hosts for the Club Friday Night.

Councilman and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, entertained the Jolly Whist Club last Friday night in a royal manner, and everyone had a good time. The usual membership was present and the regular number of games were played. Mrs. Murray Burtis and Mrs. E. H. Bird won the first and second prizes for the women, while the first and second prizes for the men were won by Hiram Woodruff and James F. Buckle.

After the games the members enjoyed dancing, music for which was furnished by an Angelus. It was early in the morning when the guests departed, and all were sorry then to leave. The club will meet again in two weeks at the home of Ms. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue.

MONUMENT SCHEME HAS BEEN DROPPED

No Shaft To Be Put Up To Honor The Soldiers.

ENCOURAGEMENT TOO POOR

COMMITTEE DECIDES TO ABANDON THE PROJECT.

Old Committee Failed to Co-operate With the New Committee, and the Financial Aid That was Promised was Insufficient to Warrant the Going On With the Intended Project.

Last Saturday evening there was a meeting of the soldiers' monument committee, and those present were Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, chairman; F. H. Smith, secretary; J. F. Buckle and W. C. Dobbins. The work of the committee was reviewed and the prospects for the success of the project discussed. After deliberation it was decided for the present to drop the matter. The committee has not received the encouragement that should have.

After repeated attempts to secure from the old soldiers' monument committee a report concerning the money collected by them and how much had been subscribed, and every attempt failed, the present committee has decided that they have not the proper basis. The old committee virtually agreed to turn over to the new committee its accounts, together with the money received and a list of those who have subscribed, but they have not done so and every effort has been a failure in this direction.

It was upon this that the new committee expected to work and they thought that it would furnish a substantial nucleus. Another thing that has argued against the project is the lack of enthusiasm displayed on the part of those who were counted upon. There is no doubt in the minds of the committee that a suitable monument should be erected, but they have decided that there are too many other things that are claiming the attention of the public to secure the necessary enthusiasm and money. In a few days Chairman W. C. O'Donnell will publish a signed statement concerning the work done by the committee and the facts in detail.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

MRS VAN BOSKERCK SUCCEEDS MRS. W. A. WOODRUFF.

Latter no Longer in Charge of Organized Aid Association—Presented With Purse of $30 and Two Sets of Resolutions.

Miss Z aldo Van Boskerck has been appointed superintendent of the Organized Aid Association to succeed Mrs. William A. Woodruff, whose resignation was tendered to the board of managers at their meeting last night.

Although Mrs. Woodruff had expected to be relieved of her duties at the close of the year, she decided to remain until her successor was appointed, which she did, to the gratification of the board of managers and the district committee of the association.

For the past six years Mrs. Woodruff has been the faithful and efficient superintendent of this very important and humane, charitable organization. During that period she has devoted her time so assiduously as to greatly impair her health, which is now in anything but satisfactory condition. This fact led to Mrs. Woodruff being compelled to withdraw from active association in the organization, although still interested in the welfare of the association and the good it accomplishes.

In recognition of Mrs. Woodruff's faithful services and indefatigable labors in behalf of the Organized Aid Association the board of managers have presented her with a purse of $30 in gold and a set of resolutions that express the high regard in which she has been held and the noble efforts she has put forth in assisting to build up the organization. Similar resolutions were also presented from the district committee.

Miss VanBoskerck, the newly-appointed superintendent, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street. Miss VanBoskerck is a young woman who has taken much interest in charitable work and is believed to be thoroughly fitted to fill the important position which the resignation of Mrs. Woodruff made vacant. It is believed the Association will be in good hands with Miss VanBoskerck in charge. She assumed her new duties this morning.

Teachers Tonight.

The Somerset County Teacher's Association met at Bound Brook Saturday. Principal C. E. Morse, of East Orange, was present and gave two interesting and inspiring talks. Several papers were read, one of the best being that of Miss Frazee, of the North Plainfield School.

VICTORIOUS BY A POINT.

LOCAL ASSOCIATION TEAM WON AT BASKET BALL MONDAY.

Defeated the Newark Y. M. C. A. Team By a Score of 9 to 8—Matched Game Showed Very Good Team Work.

After nearly two months without a game, the advocates of basket-ball had an opportunity last evening to witness an exciting game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The visiting team was from the Summit Y. M. C. A., and they came within just one point of victory. It was very close, but the honors went finally to the local association team by a score of 9 to 8.

At the beginning of the season the physical committee decided that only those who attended class work regularly should be eligible to play on the basket-ball team. As most of the old team have not been at class work of late, it was thought that a new team would be on hand last night, but the rule was dropped at the last moment and all the old team, with the exception of Walter Long, the captain, who is in the south on a hunting trip, took their regular positions.

There was a large and enthusiastic audience and the game was an exciting one. There was, however, very little evidence of good play. Neither team possessed any team play worth mentioning, and it turned into a general scramble after the ball.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		SUMMIT.
Smith	right forward	Day
H. Moeller	left forward	Mayer.
Egan	centre	Wagoner. (Capt.) Machmers.
N. Moeller	right guard	Meiler

Goals—Smith, (2); Summit, (3); Mayer, (2); Parris, (2); Machmers, (2); Mayer, (1). Goals on fouls—Smith, (2); Day, (1); Parris, (1); Machmers, (1). Referee—Dr. Sanford, Summit. Umpire—Dr. Sabrey—G. A. Harwood, Umpire—C. L. Vanklyck, of Plainfield, and manager J. Morton, of Summit. Timekeeper—J. H. Dunn. Scorer—Frank Harsler.

Second of the Assemblies.

The second of the assemblies will be held in the Casino Friday evening. The great success of the first points to an even larger attendance at this one. Charles E. Brooks, who has taken charge of the arrangements for the Assemblies, says that the music will stop promptly at 1 o'clock. If the young people want to dance the entire evening they will have to begin earlier, he says. The music will begin at 9 o'clock, and there is every prospect that society will be right on hand this time.

House was Full of Smoke.

Second Assistant Chief Andrew D. Jennings and No. 2 hose wagon responded to a telephone alarm sent into fire department headquarters Saturday afternoon from the residence of George J. Cox, 417 Third place. The house was full of smoke. The trouble was caused by the burning of Christmas greens in the furnace and fire place. The dense smoke leaked through the flues and made its way into the rooms in that way.

Married at Pastor's Home.

The marriage of Miss Mary Allen Durkin, of 335 Somerset street, to George William Kliser, also of the borough, was performed at the home of Rev. George Hauser, of Duer street, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. J. J. Kliser was best man, and Mamie Kliser bridesmaid. After the ceremony the couple went to their newly-furnished home at 5 Walnut street, where a reception was held.

Death of J. B. Chandler.

John B. Chandler, aged thirty-eight years, a carpenter by trade, died last Monday after an illness lasting about ten days. He is survived by a wife and three children. The funeral services will be held from his late home, 560 West Front street, Thursday afternoon next at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Bound Brook.

Change of Location.

The Daughters of the Crown under whose auspices a tea is to be held next Friday afternoon a change in the place of holding the tea from Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen's home, 45 Myrtle avenue, to Mrs. Charles A. Reed's home, 27 Myrtle avenue. Owing to unforseen circumstances this change was a necessity.

Chief Crane's Daughter Weds.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Grant, of West Fifth street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Isadora Oosterdoak, to Louis Lester Miller, of Westfield, Saturday. Mr. Miller is connected with the office of the C. & C. Electric Company, of Garwood, and is a well known member of the Westfield Club.

Her Friends Surprised Her.

A surprise party was given to Miss Eva Dell Benton at her home on East Fifth street Saturday evening in honor of her birthday. It was arranged by Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph. Progressive euchre formed the principal event of the evening. There were twenty present.

Delinquents Pay up Well.

Chief Campbell, of the borough, is now devoting his time to the collection of delinquent poll tax, and he says that it is surprising how well the delinquents are paying up.

Not so Many Cases of Mumps.

There has been a noticeable decrease of late in the number of cases of mumps in the city, and the physicians think that the malady has about run its course.

The Fashion Editor!

The latest string ties are of stitched taffeta with fringed ends caught in a knot of tassel effect. The very dainty girl puts a little sachet powder of her favorite perfume in the folds of her ties.

The new velvet collars will cut high under the ears and embroidered in a pattern with steel beads. A two or three inch frill of lace hangs out all about the neck from the foot of the collar.

Another novelty is stock collars, and a very dainty one is the butterfly bow—not a butterfly bow as it has always been known, but a genuine silk butterfly with body and wings embroidered or spangled. The butterfly is fastened on the silk stock directly under the chin, and is susceptible of wide variety in color combination and decorative needlework.

Have you seen the little umbrella purses? It is a very convenient novelty, of leather, round in shape and fastening securely with a clasp. Fastened by a short chain to the umbrella handle, it is easily carried at a rainy day, and is just large enough to hold carfare, pennies for "extras," or a chrysanthemum for your buttonhole.

Lace for this year's gowns has reached a very expensive phase in the new and elegant Renaissance lace capes, woven in a single piece, for evening wear.

Recent Paris importations in lingerie show corset covers which are a mass of tucks, puffs and insertion run through with ribbons. Some are terminated at the waist-line with inch-wide insertion, through which a drawing string of ribbon is run. This style has been brought about by the close-fitting skirts, as with them all superfluous frills below the waist line are left off.

Cloth belts are coming in again. They are usually fastened with a small clasp, leaving several of the coin links pendant. A very rich and unique girdle is that enamel in sterling and gold medallion, alternating with gold links, on which are set flat, ruby-like stones.

Some of the new fall street gowns have short sashes. One just imported is of dark brown broadcloth, the waist in Norfolk style, and the full jacket like layers. Around the waist is worn a quaint red velvet sash, with two chenille-fringed ends hanging at the left side in the back.

The Gossip:

Mdlle. Lucie Faure has addressed a circular to the twenty French departmental committees of the League of Children, of which Mme. Carnot is as well as president, announcing that the league has secured a place in the Paris exposition, and inviting children to send exhibits of their work.

Daniel Frohman, the theatrical manager, was a newspaper man back in 1871. He employed to manage a walking match. He received from this undertaking were more than $10,000 and this success started Mr. Frohman in theatricals. Mr. Frohman has amassed a fortune since then.

President H. G. Burt of the Union Pacific system, whose recent incognito ride in a freight train is the talk in the papers, frequently uses this method of travel. He believes in "getting down among the men," and not long ago appointed himself engineer of a wrecking crew, doing good work in several minor smashups.

John Conqueret, inspector of the criminal investigation department of the metropolitan police at New Scotland Yard, London, is to retire from the service. Conqueret is well known to the greater number of the prominent men of England. He was the detective attached to Mr. Gladstone during that statesman's premiership. In that capacity he went everywhere with the prime minister.

A Prominent Physician.

A prominent New York physician in discussing Sir Jack Cox's Liver Tabules with a brother M. D. said: "Several years ago I assorted that if one of Cox's Liver Tabules was taken, and did a beneficial good—one that would help the whole human system—that a dozen better ones to promote the Recovery Home, of the Pigeon Tabule, and caution it to be put up in the form of a hatchet and distributed among the poor."

Sales Increasing.

The large retail drug store in America is that of Hegeman & Co. on Broadway in New York City. A reporter who went there to learn how they sell so many Ripans Tabules and to see a customer buying a five-cent package, asked: "Do you suppose that much call for Ripans?"

He was referred to a gentleman who proved to be the head of the department.

"Yes, sir," he said, "the sale of Ripans Tabules is constant and is increasing. Considerably to the surprise of many of the druggists in the daily press, and growing out of them, though the recommendation of friend to friend. Satisfaction with them is very general. When once they are tried I notice that a permanent customer for them is made. This, I believe, is the secret of Ripans' success, which proves the home like character of the advertising. I think them specially useful in the general run of stomach troubles."

FIVE FOR FIVE CENTS RIPANS
ONE GIVES RELIEF

An Elderly Lady.

An elderly lady living at Pine Cliffe, Ga., writes to Sir Jack Cox, and what was known to be a warm advocate of Pigeon Tabules for any and all liver troubles as a remedy, and to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always been subject to liver trouble, and for the last occasion I had for one, was at this time obtained no beneficial work. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but the Pigeon Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald, decided to give them a trial. I found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and find no need of one."

A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules can be had of druggists, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar. A dose or two at the time of this interview there were present two daughters of the lady, who objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to do this the lady said: "I feel that it may be other ones just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one afflicted as I was. If the writing of my name will be the means of benefiting others, I consider it a favor." The daughters, knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received, decided she was quite right.

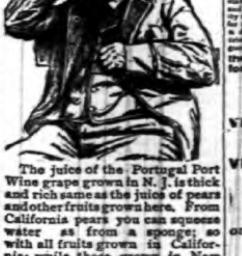
Port Grape Wine Producer in America.

The first native wine sold and used in San Francisco and Sacramento was from Speer's Passaic, N. J., vineyards, was shipped around Cape Horn before there was any railroad to California, and are now being used by physicians and first families there as the richest and best wine to be had



The juice of the Portugal Port Wine grape grown in N. J. is thick and rich same as the juice of pears and other fruits grown here. From California pears you can squeeze water as from a sponge; so with all fruits grown in California; while those grown in New Jersey are solid in substance—less juice but thick and richer. The New Jersey apples, for instance, make a cider that was always popular the world over. If you want a wine for sickness or for entertainments don't take cheap, watery wines but choose a first class old, full bodied, high grade wine from Speer's Passaic vineyards. Sold by Druggists.

GREAT INTEREST IN VISIT OF BRYAN.

Mr. Martine Believes He Will Come to Plainfield.

IN JERSEY CITY YESTERDAY.

COMING OF NEBRASKAN WOULD AID LOCAL DEMOCRACY.

The "Farmer Orator" Has Received Many Assurances That a Great Crowd Would Greet Him—Mr. Martine to Visited the Nebraskan Last Evening and Urge Him to Accept His Invitation.

Great interest has been manifested in the possible visit of Col. William Jennings Bryan to this city as a guest of James E. Martine. Mr. Martine has received letter after letter from Democrats within a radius of twenty-five miles of this city who are anxious to know the exact date of the visit of the Nebraskan, and who say that large delegations will come from their respective communities to give an enthusiastic greeting to the great Democratic leader.

Congressman Daly, who is managing the visit of Col. Bryan to New Jersey, wrote Mr. Martine last week that Mr. Bryan would probably be able to come to Plainfield one day this week, but since then it has been learned that a visit at this time will be impossible, as he has a number of previous engagements to fill within the next week.

Colonel Bryan was expected to speak in St. Peter's Hall, in York street, near Van Vorhis, Jersey City, last evening. Colonel Bryan was escorted by Congressman William D. Daly, and probably by Corporation Counsel Minturn, of Hoboken, to the rooms of the Robert Davis Association, in Mercer street, near the City Hall, where the Colonel had supper. The supper was private and informal. It is likely that Congressman Daly will introduce Colonel Bryan. The Democratic county executive committee has charge of the arrangements.

Today Mr. Bryan will go to Pennsylvania, and thence to the New England States where he will be busy for several days. Then it is arranged that he shall return to New Jersey, and, figuratively speaking, make a swing around the circle. At this time Mr. Martine has strong and favorable hopes of bringing the distinguished leader to Plainfield. Congressman Daly has given the "Farmer Orator" assurances that if it is possible he will induce Mr. Bryan to become the guest of Mr. Martine and deliver an address here in Music Hall.

Mr. Martine went to Jersey City last evening to personally call on Mr. Bryan and secure a promise from him that he will visit Plainfield, and be his guest at Cedar Brook Farm over night.

"I am confident that Mr. Bryan will come to Plainfield," said Mr. Martine in speaking of the matter, "and he can rest assured that if he does come we will give him such a rousing welcome that he will not witness it exceeded in cordiality at any point that he visits. The very fact that we live in a veritable Gibraltar of Republicanism is argument enough to induce Col. Bryan to pay us a visit. We need elucidation of Democratic doctrine very seriously in this community, and no person could possibly lend to help us in that respect as much as my friend Bryan. For the sake of Democracy and its converts we need him here ten-fold more than the sections that are already strongly Democratic. Mr. Bryan would make friends for the cause in this vicinity by a personal visit here. His visit, however, would not mean that he would speak to Plainfielders alone, for I have received numerous assurances that there will be hundreds from neighboring towns that will journey here to meet him if he comes, so that he will come in touch with a very large territory. His visit would be a great encouragement to local Democrsey, and I know it would be a gratification to Col. Bryan, if he comes, to see what a crowd he would attract."

Used for the Storm's Litter.

Edward L. Slocum, manager of the Elizabeth Bill Posting Company, was fined $5 and costs in a police court Tuesday. He protested that he was not responsible for the violation of the city ordinance as alleged. In the storm Saturday night a lot of theatrical posters were torn from the billboards and scattered over the streets. Mayor Mack made a complaint against Slocum, alleging that he was responsible for the litter in violation of the ordinance. Mr. Slocum will probably appeal. Mr. Slocum also runs a system of billboards in this city.

SPECIAL OFFICER ACCUSED.

Appointed to Keep the Peace in the Borough He is Charged With Being an Offender.

Special Officer Patrick Collen, of the borough police force, was arrested on this side of the brook last Tuesday for his share in some troublesome times on Richmond street Monday morning. He was accused of beating and generally abusing Michael McEvoy, besides using some language that was inclined to be profane.

Lawyer Francis J. Bix's of the firm of Murphy & Bix, appeared for the prisoner and at the lawyer's request, the hearing in the case was adjourned until this morning. A plea of not guilty was entered. Collen was released last night after his arrest, Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, going his bond.

BURGLARS IN FANWOOD.

C. H. BUSH'S HOUSE RANSACKED WHILE FAMILY WAS AWAY.

Entrance Obtained by Prying Open a Window—Lot of Valuable Silverware Was Stolen—Boroughites are Stirred Up.

Fanwood, which seems to be a Mecca for burglars, received another visit from midnight prowlers sometime during Monday night. This time it was the home of Charles H. Bush which was entered. The burglary was not discovered until Tuesday morning, when neighbors saw one of the windows open. Knowing the family was visiting in New York word was sent at once to Mr. Bush.

Upon investigation it was found the intruders had first tried to pry open the front door, but this plan did not seem to be a very easy one, so operations were changed and a window was pried open and an entrance made. Examination showed that the thieves had made a complete and thorough search of the entire house, ransacking bureaus, closets and every place where it was possible for anything valuable to be hidden. After being satisfied that they had not overlooked anything they departed with a number of valuable pieces of silverware and Mr. Bush's revolver.

No clue was left as to who the burglars were, but from the appearance of the house and the search they made they must have known that the family was away and that there was no fear of being disturbed. The residents of the borough are aroused over the robberies of late, and will probably form some plan in the near future for mutual protection from the midnight prowlers.

M'KINLEY MAY COME

And Attorney-General Griggs Will Make Hobart Memorial Oration.

Trenton, January 24.—The joint committee in charge of the arrangements for the ceremonies incidental to Hobart Memorial Day, have decided to carry out the plan suggested last week to ask Attorney-General John W. Griggs to serve as the orator of the day. Assemblyman Vivian M. Lewis, of Passaic, was delegated to secure the consent of the Attorney-General, and he at once called up Mr. Griggs on the long-distance telephone.

Attorney-General was at his home at the National Capital, and he readily fell in with the plan of the committee. Mr. Griggs advised that the President of the United States and the members of his Cabinet be invited to participate in the observances, and also suggested that the date of the memorial day be left open until he could consult with President McKinley.

The Attorney-General said that he thought it would be convenient for the President and the Cabinet members to attend the exercises, provided the date be fixed either for February 7th or 14th. Mr. Griggs told the Passaic Assemblyman that he would write the accepted date from Washington, and on that agreement the matter was left open until the promised notice shall be given.

Another City Hall Site.

The property on Watchung avenue occupied by Peterson, the florist, and owned by the Friends' Society, has been considered by the special committee from the Common Council who are looking for a city hall site. It is definitely decided that the corner property cannot be purchased, but it is possible for the city to purchase the adjoining property if they want to.

In Honor of a Cousin.

Miss Anna Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, entertained a few friends last Tuesday in honor of a cousin from Buffalo. A literary programme furnished entertainment for the evening.

MURDER TRIAL NOW ON

OPENING OF THE CASE AGAINST PHILLIP DAVIS.

He was the Slayer of George Monks—An Eye Witness' Testimony Sworn—One Plainfielder is On the Jury.

Elizabeth, Jan. 24.—The trial of Phillip Davis, a negro, of this city, indicted on a charge of murdering George Monks, an Englishman, who resided in Brooklyn and who was shot and killed by Davis on Christmas Eve on Third avenue, in this city, opened yesterday in the Court of Over and Terminer before Judges Van Syckel and Vail.

The prisoner, who in size seems a mere boy, is being defended by former Prosecutor Fred C. Marsh and Abe J. David. Prosecutor English is conducting the case for the State. A special panel of forty-eight talesmen was drawn for the trial, and the work of securing a jury was begun. The defendant's counsel subjected the talesmen to a sharp cross-examination as to their qualifications to serve on the case.

At the end of more than an hour a jury was finally selected before the special panel was quite exhausted. The jurors are: William Simmons, New Providence; George Earnes, Linden; James A. Long, Union; James Johnson, Fanwood; Joseph Clark, Fanwood; J. Wiswall Drayton, Plainfield; Charles E. Smith, Westfield; Bernard J. Levin, Clark; Lester, John Conrad, John F. Arnold and Simon Robinson, Elizabeth.

The case opened with the testimony of City Surveyor Lester, who drew a map of the scene of the shooting. The principal witness during the morning was Michael Kane, an eye witness of the shooting. He testified that Davis and Monks had a quarrel in Vincenzo Romano's saloon on Third avenue, and when they got into the street the fight was renewed with Davis getting the worst of it, and he then drew a pistol, fired at Monks and ran away.

The theory of the defence is that the shooting was done by Davis to protect himself from Monks, who was a much larger man than Davis and powerfully built.

ELEVEN BUILDINGS.

The Central Railroad Company Now Laying a State Track in the Grounds of the Aeolian Organ Factory.

The Aeolian building scheme, already underway at Garwood, when completed will comprehend eleven buildings, scheduled for construction, one after another, according to the convenience of the several interests in the matter of removal to the new site. The plan for this year includes the construction of a power house, a lumber shed, a lumber kiln and possibly the pianola factory. The laying of 3 400 feet of railroad siding has been already commenced; 200 feet of which will be immediately completed. The property of this great company begins about 700 feet east of Garwood station and parallels the railroad track for 1,700 feet toward Cranford.

It is hoped that the contract for the brick work on the new shops will be awarded to Garwood. One of the companies there has the plans and specifications in hand and are now figuring on the work.

WANT NEW SCHOOLHOUSE.

Piscataway Officials Looking for a Site On Which a New Structure Can be Built.

Harry Cathers, superintendent of the public school at New Market, called on S. D. Drake last Tuesday, as a representative of the Piscataway Township Committee, for the purpose of ascertaining whether a suitable piece of property could be secured at Dewey Park on which a handsome public school building can be erected. The fact is that the school at Lincoln and the one at New Market is overcrowded, and something has to be done to relieve the pressure. Mr. Drake assured Mr. Cathers that no doubt a suitable piece of property could be secured, and the matter will be attended to at once.

If the property can be obtained the Committee will go ahead at once and erect a fine school building which will be a credit to that section, and will be the means of drawing people there.

Who was the Purchaser?

Last Tuesday S. D. Drake sold a very valuable piece of property in Woodland Park, 150 x 250, to one of Plainfield's most influential citizens, who will erect thereon a residence that will cost about $10,000. The property is located at the corner of Evergreen avenue. The deede will be filed today for the transfer of the property.

Miss Mary Terry, of 225 East Second street, who has been quite ill with a malarial fever, is gradually convalescing.

EXPRESS PACKAGES SENT HELTER-SKELTER.

Heavy Truck Hit by Express Train Last Tuesday

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MAN.

JUMPED JUST IN TIME TO AVOID BEING HURT.

Express Truck Was Being Unloaded Into East Bound Car When West Bound Train Ran Into It With Great Force—Many Valuable Articles on the Truck Which Were Damaged.

Some kindling wood, a mass of twisted iron and a sadly dilapidated framework are all that remain of one of the United States Express Company's trucks. William Alberts, one of the local employes of that company, is happy that he, too, was not similarly wrecked. The cause of it was the west bound Easton express on the Central Railroad, due here at 6:38, which plowed into the truck last Tuesday while the contents was being loaded into the express car on an east bound train.

There is an express car on the train from Philadelphia to New York, due here at 6:45 in the evening. That train was standing at the North Avenue station last Tuesday. The express car was in the fore part of the train and the express truck was standing across the west bound track at the eastern end of the station while William Alberts was placing its load on board the truck.

The Easton express was ten minutes late and approached the station at a lively rate. The engineer did not notice the truck until too late to stop his train. Alberts heard the shouts of warning, saw the approaching head light and dove headfirst into the express car, just in time to save his own neck. The approaching locomotive struck the truck and battered the wreckage all over the platform.

There were trunks, two hampers belonging to Hillier & Co., several castings and a number of packages on the truck. One of the hampers was demoralized, and its contents scattered about the platform. The trunks suffered slightly. The castings were broken in their tumble and a quantity of type, the property of The Sabbath Recorder, was strewn about the landscape.

In one of the packages was a gown, being returned to a prominent New York house, that was valued at $250. It was somewhat damaged. Other packages were tossed about but did not suffer. The truck itself was a complete wreck. The loss is placed by the express company at $50.

VETERANS WERE GUESTS

SUPPER GIVEN TO MEMBERS OF WINFIELD SCOTT POST.

The Affair Held in the W. C. T. U. Rooms Which Had Been Patriotically Decorated—The Ladies Who Were in Charge.

About thirty members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., assembled at the W. C. T. U. rooms last Tuesday at 5:30 o'clock, after their regular meeting, and partook of a fine turkey supper provided and served under the direction of the committee on soldier and sailor work. This was the annual supper to this organization and it was as usual very enjoyable.

The rooms were decorated in a patriotic fashion. While the veterans were enjoying the supper much pleasure was added by the rendition on the piano of a number of popular selections by Harry Smalley. After the inner man was filled short and interesting speeches were made by the veterans in which the women were heartily thanked for the feast. Among those who spoke were Commander E. M. Dobbins, W. W. Gorlell, E. C. Morse, Wm. Hand, Edward Milliken and many others. The chairman of the committee who arranged and gave the supper was Mrs. M. C. Dobbins. She was assisted by Mrs. R. K. Case, Mrs. S. A. Osborne, Mrs. David Smalley, Mrs. Winters, Miss May E. Howlett, Mrs. J. W. Yates, Mrs. Honeyman, Mrs. Parse, Miss Florence Dodge. It was nearly 11 o'clock when the affair terminated, and as the veterans departed they took occasion to personally thank the women for their kindness.

Boats Impede on Sidewalk.

As Charles Sanborn had no boat to navigate South Second street, near Clinton avenue, he took to the sidewalk with his wheel. He was stopped by the police and ordered before City Judge Runyon. He came Tuesday and the Judge suspended sentence with a warning.

SOMERSET'S NEW JUDGE

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LOUIS H. SCHENCK.

Something About the Man Who Will Succeed Judge Bertine—Born and Raised at Neshanic, Somerset County.

Louis H. Schenck, who was nominated Monday night by Governor Voorhees to succeed Judge Bertine, of Somerset county, as County Judge, has an office in the Globe Building in Newark, and is well known there, where he has practiced since 1877. He was born October 25th, 1845. He is a native of Somerset county, is well known. His father was John A. Schenck, who was a State Senator from Somerset for three years and who served six years in the House of Assembly.

Mr. Schenck was born at Neshanic, Somerset county, where he still resides. He was graduated from Rutgers College in 1874, and then took up law in Elizabeth, and entered the office of the firm of Magie & Cross. Mr. Schenck was admitted to the bar as an attorney at the June term, 1877, and became a counsellor in 1881.

From 1884 to 1886 he was in partnership with Elias F. Morrow, in Newark. In 1892 he was counsel to the Board of Freeholders of Somerset. He filled this position for only one year, but this was because the Board which appointed him was the only Republican Board that Somerset has had for the last fifteen or sixteen years. When a law was proposed in 1895 to have county judges elected instead of appointed, his name was the one most prominently mentioned by the Republicans. The law, however, was declared unconstitutional.

The friends who then wanted him nominated, urged him to seek the appointment to succeed Judge Bertine. It was in response to this sentiment that he became a candidate.

He has always been an ardent Republican and worked for his party in every campaign in his own section of the state. His practice has been a general one and it is the opinion of lawyers that he is well fitted for the office. He will maintain his Newark office. He will also arrange to accommodate the members of Somerset county bar by spending part of each day in Somerville.

WOMEN TO CONFER.

Auxiliaries Connected With Y. M. C. A's of This State Will Meet in This City.

The sixth annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries to the Young Men's Christian Associations of New Jersey will be held in the hall of the local Y. M. C. A. on Friday morning and afternoon. The exercises in the morning will include a devotional service led by Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, D. D., with greeting by Mrs. James E. Kimball, and response by Mrs. Crowell Marsh, of Trenton. The discussion of reports will be led by Donald MacColl, the State secretary. At the afternoon session Mrs. W. B. Millar, of Montclair, will read a paper on "The Means and Methods That Win." At 3 o'clock a business session will be held and pledges made for State work. Mrs. W. B. Butler, of Summit, will read a paper on "Boys." Then a half hour will be devoted to explaining difficulties in the work, which is to be conducted by the president.

Special music will be prepared for the occasion and it is expected that the meeting will be an inspiring one. The out-of-town delegates will be supplied with a luncheon. The committee of arrangements is Mrs. M. B. Baldwin, Newark; Mrs. Joseph C. Nixon, Hoboken; Mrs. J. H. Shafer, Summit.

Ferryboat and Lighter Collide.

The New Jersey Central Railroad ferryboat Communipaw on her 6:20 p. m. trip from Liberty street Tuesday collided with a lighter on the New Jersey side of Jersey river. The lighter headed over and appeared to be capsizing, but she righted herself. The ferryboat was crowded with passengers and there was considerable excitement for a few minutes. Little damage, if any, was done to either boat. There were a number of Plainfielders on the boat.

Spoke in Elizabeth.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, county superintendent of the W. C. T. U., went to Elizabeth Tuesday afternoon and gave a report of her trip to the National W. C. T. U. convention held at Seattle. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Deland.

Praise Service to be Postponed.

The praise service, usually held at the Crescent Avenue church on the fourth Sunday evening of each month, will not be held next Sunday evening, but will be postponed a week. At that time "The Daughter of Jairus" will be given.

USED PENKNIFE TO STAB

Mike Watson the Victim of Colored Man Who is Now Being Hunted by Police.

The police are looking for a colored man named Thomas Carter, who is charged with stabbing Michael Watson, of Grant avenue, in the hand with a penknife. It is alleged that Carter went to Watson's saloon Monday afternoon after a pail of beer and that some practical jokers took the beer away from him and drank it. They gave him money to buy more beer. A quarrel ensued and Watson tried to play the role of peace-maker. His hand was gashed with a penknife.

John Neuman and a young man named McCann were arrested Monday afternoon and taken before City Judge Runyon who discharged them. A warrant is out for Carter.

FELL FROM THE ROOF.

GEORGE BILYEU MET WITH A SERIOUS ACCIDENT TUESDAY.

Was Painting the Vestal House, 320 Park Avenue, When the Breaking of Scroll Work Caused Him to Fall.

After a fall of thirty feet from the roof of a house Tuesday afternoon, the ambulance was required to carry George Bilyeu to his home at 121 West Front street. His injuries were serious, but will, it is believed, not prove fatal. He is a painter in the employ of Marsh, Ayers & Co., of Park avenue.

Bilyeu was sent out by his employers to assist in painting the exterior of the vacant house, 320 Park avenue, owned by J. T. Vail. He had been there several days with other fellow-employes. Yesterday afternoon he was trying to paint the peak of the roof directly over a bow window extension that is two stories high. He stood on the roof to this extension and kept his balance by holding on with one hand to the scroll work at the peak of the roof, while he painted with the other.

Without warning the scroll work broke and Bilyeu lost his balance, tumbling off the roof. He struck the ground, landing on his side and shoulder. His comrades hurried to his assistance. They found that he was still alive, but badly hurt. Word was sent for the ambulance and medical aid. He was able to walk with the assistance of the others to the ambulance and was then taken at once to his home.

An examination of Bilyeu's injuries proved that he had three ribs broken, his ankle and wrist were sprained and he received internal injuries. Dr. B. Van D. Hedges attended him.

AFTER TRACTION COMPANY.

City Club of New Brunswick Says It Has Forfeited $3,000, and Wants to Have It Paid.

New Brunswick, Jan. 24.—The City Club, which was an important factor in New Brunswick a few years ago, has made a startling re-entry into municipal affairs. The Brunswick Traction Company has been endeavoring for some time to have the city return to it a forfeit of $3,000, which was posted in 1895, when the local trolley system was constructed.

The legal action by which the City Club seems to have rushed the Traction Company out of $3,000 was instituted in the Supreme Court, Thursday, by T. B. Boorsem, attorney for Charles J. Carpender, a member of the City Club. Justice Depue granted a rule on Mr. Boorsem's motion to show cause why a mandamus should not issue, compelling City Surveyor Asher Atkinson to certify the work done by the City Railway Company of New Brunswick or its successor, the Brunswick Traction Company, under its franchise in this city.

Mr. Carpender and the City Club claim that, according to the twenty-ninth section of the ordinance passed by the Common Council October 7th, 1895, the Traction Company is bound to lay its tracks on all the streets mentioned in the charter. It is set forth by the City Club that, inasmuch as the City Surveyor has not certified that this work has been done, the Traction Company has forfeited the $3,000 which was put on deposit, and cannot therefore recover the same from the city.

The First Donation.

The Reserve Club, of this city, has obtained the honor of being the first organization in the State that has contributed a set of fifty books to make up a traveling library. The donation was made at the meeting of the club Monday morning, and Mrs. M. E. Kimball has been notified that this is the first donation of the sort the State has received.

MORE POWER FOR BOARDS OF HEALTH.

Local Interest in Bill Introduced by Senator Reed.

TO CONTROL MILK SUPPLY.

ASSEMBLYMAN MEEKER INTRODUCES TWO BILLS.

One of Them Proposes to Establish the Borough of Raritan in Union County—First Will Passed the House—Republicans Differ Over Matters Caused by Supervisor of Bills Law.

Trenton, Jan. 24.—The first measure introduced in the Legislature that is of local interest to Plainfielders was offered in the Senate yesterday by Senator Reed. It is a bill prepared in accordance with the ideas of the North Plainfield Board of Health, and in introducing it Senator Reed disclaimed responsibility for its origin by stating that it was offered "by request." The proposed bill gives local Boards of Health power to adopt, or alter ordinances prohibiting the sale of or having in possession for sale, milk containing any unhealthy ingredient or substance, or which has been transported or stored in an unclean manner or place, or which is produced from diseased cows. It was referred to the Committee of Public Health.

Assemblyman Meeker, of Union county, is the sponsor of two bills offered yesterday. One of them changes the name of the Reform School so that it shall hereafter be "The Trustees of the New Jersey State Industrial School for Boys." (Judiciary.)

The other incorporates the borough of Baltustol, in Union county. (Towns and Townships.)

The opinion of Attorney General Grey to the effect that the law creating the office of Supervisor of Bills was unconstitutional was sent to the House this morning, and Charles H. Polhemus, of Mt. Holly, who had served two years as engrossing clerk in the House, began to work for reappointment to that position.

Major Carl Lentz was of the opinion that Essex county, having been given the office of Supervisor of Bills under the new law, should under the old system of engrossing bills, to which the Legislature must now return, have the selection of an engrossing clerk both for the Senate and House.

Several Republicans differed with him in that view, and they went into a caucus, where there was some lively sparring. The Essex county representatives were plainly told that they had been given all the consideration they were entitled to, and should be willing to let Burlington county have some of the good things that were going around.

The first bill to pass the House at this session of the Legislature was one providing that the disabled soldiers of the Spanish and Philippine wars shall be admitted to the Soldiers' Home of New Jersey. The law was so constructed that only veterans of the Mexican and Civil Wars were entitled to admission to the institution.

A joint meeting of the Senate and House will be held next Tuesday, for the purpose of electing a State Comptroller and State Treasurer. There is no opposition to the selection of Comptroller Wm. S. Hancock and Treasurer George B. Swain.

Governor Voorhees has nominated John Bellstab for Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Mercer county.

BAD BOYS.

They Disturb Worshippers and Are Given a Severe Lecture by the City Judge.

A dozen small boys came up before City Judge Runyon late Tuesday afternoon. There was no formal complaint against them, but a number of the proprietors of the stores in the vicinity of Liberty and South Second streets asked the Judge to take some steps to secure better and good order in that neighborhood.

The boys have been in the habit of throwing stones at the various stores and generally disturbing the lives of the proprietors. Those who appeared in the interests of law and order were Charles Arnold, Abram Lisko, Louis Kudash and William Manning.

The Judge was stern and lectured the boys soundly on their misconduct. They finally all made vigorous promises to behave in the future. The terrors of the Reform School were pictured as the sure ending of any more trouble of this kind.

Residence Improved.

Gabriel Brown, a man of color residing in the borough, engaged in a row with George Reigh, of Somerset street, Tuesday, and the latter had Brown arrested. He was arraigned before Recorder Long who suspended sentence.

THROWING THE LASSO.

Methods of Men Who Are Expert in the Art.

The lasso is a creation of a certain environment and need. Its place is on the broad pralries and grazing lands, and its chief utility lies in the stock business. It is almost useless in a wooded country, by reason of the obstructions it may be forced to ride the bushes. The finest lassos are of rawhide, cut into thin strips, and braided, six ply, into a rope of from three-eighths to one-half inch in diameter. They are quite expensive, a good forty-foot rope costing about $7. On this account, of late years, hard-twisted grass rope is used; but the rawhide rope is the best in a wind, as it is heavier, and when filled with oil it is not affected by wet weather. A stranded rope, which has a tendency to kink than a twisted rope. Cowboys have a mixture of lard and beeswax with which they dress their hemp or grass ropes, both to keep out the dampness, and also to prevent them from getting too dry. The most celebrated of the genuine "ristas", are made in Chicago, which produces an article much superior to the rougher ones turned out in Mexico.

There are three general methods of throwing, with many minor variations of individual habit. The rope is held in practically the same way in every case. First is the plain, straight cast, a half or a twenty-five-foot throw, the exact instant of release being governed by weight of rope, wind, velocity of swing, etc. Long throws become instinctively with practice. The rest of the rope is held coiled in the other hand and released as the loop is formed, two or three coils being retained.

To "snub" the rope (wind it about the pommel after casting) in the instance of a horse is a trick not quite as difficult as throwing properly. The Mexicans, with their large-diameter pommels, have to take only one turn, the Americans, with smaller ones, require two. The pommel very often smokes from the friction created, and is frequently deeply grooved; and at times burned by the rope. The important part played by the trained cow pony is obvious. He is taught to settle back on a rope, to keep the instant the rope begins to tighten, and in many other ways materially to assist his master.

The second method of throwing is exactly the reverse, i. e., the noose is swung from the left to right above the head before release. This is called the "California throw," and possibly gives a little greater range.

The third cast is the "corral drag" which, as the name implies, is used afoot and in confined quarters. It consists in trailing out the loop on the ground behind one and snapping it forward by an underhand motion.

The lasso's greatest effectiveness, as a weapon, is when the wielder is mounted. When both adversaries are afoot its value is slight. With cattle or horses it is an entirely different thing. The whole essence of the matter is to tighten the noose around an object, and that is sufficient to dismount him or take him off his feet. To that end you may ride past him swiftly, or, if pursuing him, stop your own horse suddenly. Or, if he is stationary, and you cannot ride past him, you can wheel your own horse and retreat before a horse, or, if on foot, a man, if done skillfully, the instant of time is too brief for him either to throw off the tightening noose or cut it, which are two of the most deceptive things to attempt to dodge.

Fortunes in Patents.

A patent is a queer kind of property, anyhow. It is intangible, for one thing, in its last analysis merely a thought, an idea, an abstraction. But the idea may have immense value. The idea of putting the eye of a needle near the point instead of at the other end made the sewing machine possible. That simple idea, a hole in a needle, is said to have brought $13,000,000 in royalties to Howe, and it certainly formed the basis for $100,000,000 of profit made by the Singer Sewing Machine Company. More ideas protected by patents have to-day in the United States a market value of more than a billion of dollars.

Public opinion is back of the present our patent system, but it is probable that it has done more to make the United States the leading manufacturing country of the world than protective tariffs or financial policies. Almost every industrial institution in the country depends more or less on patents, and an absence in such institution are held by most all investors the subject of patents is of interest to many besides the inventor and manufacturer.

The Bird That Tells.

The military man walked nervously back and forth till his spurs jingled through halls. Finally he abruptly faced the woman who had confronted him, he asked:

"How do you know all these things about my past?"

"A little bird told me."

"Sdeath!" he hissed. "Another round robin!"—Washington Star.

PERSONAL POINTS.

John I. Blair made his first sailing when he was 12 years old. He thus had 80 years in which to make the remaining $9,999,920.

Lois Fuller will receive $60,000 for her engagement in France. She has already been decorated by Paris Parisiens with her great fire dances.

Sarah Grand has the sense to appreciate that women can do more for themselves with silk and chiffon and face powder than with the ballot.

The young Marquis of Anglesey is patching out his ancestral income of one million dollars a year by vaudeville performances in a music hall in Munich.

Eugene Bode, who keeps a store in Fredericksburg, Va., was so pleased with the results of the election in Nebraska that he caused his shop and residence to be painted a bright silver color.

Governor Stone of Pennsylvania is out with the frank and open expression of opinion that every husband should head in the right direction, she being the queen of the home and entitled to it.

The Daughters of the Confederacy are raising money in aid of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, who is living in ill health and almost blind at her home in Charlotte, N. C. She is said to be suffering from an incurable disease.

The Crown Prince of Germany during his vacation learned to drive a four-in-hand. He was taught by Count Wedel, the Emperor's chief equerry. He attains his majority in May, when he will be given a regiment of his own.

Lady Dilke has just published a critique on French paintings, and the Duchess of Southerland also appears as the author of a book dealing with the life of a factory girl, a subject she seems to be remarkably well acquainted with.

The Countess of Ravanchieri has, according to a Naples journal, given all her executive powers to her maid in order to an Italian hygienic society, with a provision that a hospital for incurable consumptives is to be erected on them.

The Rev. Elijah Kellogg, the author of "Spartacus to the Gladiators," known by all schoolboys, is now nearly ninety years old, but he continues to minister to the little church in Harpswell, Me., where he went in 1844, after his graduation from Bowdoin and Andover.

Lieutenant Commander T. R. A. Mason, of the navy, who died recently, was baptized as Theodore Bailey Myers, but he took the name of his mother's family, Mason, as heir to the fortune left by the family, the income of which was between $40,000 and $50,000 a year.

ATKINSON FAIR SEX.

Another Atchison girl who gets $40 a month for sitting in an office will resign in a few weeks to wash dishes and cook for the man she boards.

Mean people say that the man a widow selects to support her at her husband's funeral is the one she usually marries afterward.

"Well, I see Mrs. Blank is breaking in," is a woman's comment when they read in the paper that Mrs. Blank will give a reception.

By the time a man has saved up enough money to buy a piano and a brussels carpet in his parlor his girl has reached the "company" age and he is not allowed to sit there.

Several years ago an Atchison man married a widow with a little daughter, and everybody said it was a case of hawk and dove. Now the wife weighs twice as much as the husband, and he's known as the hen hawk.

There comes a time to every married woman when she has to use a sort of faith cure on her belief in her husband's affections.

It is a pitiful truth that women trust their children with men whom their husbands wouldn't trust to open an account.

A certain Atchison woman is always invited to serve the brick ice-cream at parties, for the reason that she cuts it in such thin slices.

Would some terrible thing happen if a girl forgot to tie up those terrible buttons on the back of her skirt, and it got within the realm of fashion conditions for a girl to dress without the assistance of the neighbors?

It always makes a daughter mad to see her mother obey her father, and she vows she will show more "spirit" when she has a husband.

Two troopers of the Fourth Hussars and a number of the Welch Fusiliers Regiment in India have purchased their discharges and joined the Roman Catholic Brotherhood in Bangalore.

The Russian armor-plate factory Gronsberg, built at St. Petersburg, will carry no less than sixty-four guns of all descriptions, including four eight-inch, sixteen six-inch, twenty three-inch, twenty three-pounders, and four machine guns, all being quick firers.

One result of the war in the Transvaal is that all leave of absence from the English army to go out of the country in India, has been stopped, but privilege and general leave inside the country, subject to short call, may be granted to officers. The situation appears to the Simla News to point toward further Indian assistance in the Transvaal.

JUST ONE GIRL

She Had Loved Him Years Before But He Had Changed.

"That is Horatio Dalton."

The voice that spoke these words came from another portion of the room, but it gave Mrs. Dalrymple a trembling fit.

Horatio Dalton!

Her first love of over twenty years ago.

His image had ever been in her mind though she had never seen him since the night she had obeyed the parental injunction and said "No."

She looked around the room nervously.

No! He was not there.

The tall, slim figure; the pretty black curling hair; the smooth, boyish face and the merry blue eyes! The description fitted no one there, and, with a sigh, half relief and half regret, she drifted superward on the arm of her escort.

Her hostess interrupted them.

She was accompanied by a portly man of middle age, with a bald head, a double chin, gray side whiskers and a fatherly air of them, in fact.

"Mrs. Dalrymple," said the lady of the house, "permit me to introduce Mr. Horatio Dalton. He says that he's an old friend of yours."

Mrs. Dalrymple paled and gasped. It surely couldn't possibly be!

"—I remember the name," she faltered, "but"—

"But not the man, eh?" broke in Mr. Dalton in a rich, jolly voice. "Well, well, perhaps I have changed a little."

A little! Great Heavens!

Her soul rebelled! She would not admit that this thing was possible! Had she made her heart a storage house all these years for an upheaval like this?

They were seated in a corner of the drawing room now and he was "looking her over" in a critical way that made her wince.

"You've changed a good deal, too," he said. "Gracious! I'd hardly know you. Why, you must weigh a hundred and over pounds!"

She fanned herself furiously.

"And I've always thought of you as a slim little thing," he went on, "with a fare like Ida Lewis' eyes like stars. Dear, dear, but time does work wonders!"

"I'd never know you in the world," she retorted. "I never saw such a change in a human being in my life! You were such a graceful, handsome young man."

He laughed merrily. He seemed to be shot proof, as it were.

"I was a goaling in those days," he went on. "Dash, dash, how silly it all was. D'ye remember the night that you refused me and I ran out into the snow and vowed I'd commit suicide?"

"It was in June afternoon and not at night," she corrected, icily, "and there couldn't have been any snow, for it was the 30th of July."

"Why, so it was," he assented hastily, "I must have got it mixed up with something else."

Mixed up with something else!

And she had remembered the day, hour, minute and second all these years.

She grew faint.

"I wish you'd call my cab," she murmured.

"Must you go? I'm so sorry! Awfully glad to have met you again. You've married nicely, I hear. Good! So have I."

He ordered the cab and came back to say:—

"D'ye remember how I used to wear the U? I had eyes quite great in the world—how I'd one day be in every one's mouth? Well, I am! I'm a dentist! Ha, ha, ha!"

She retired, sick at heart and he waddled back to where the band was playing "Just One Girl."—New York Herald.

The Gay Soubrette.

She was a dainty pink soubrette,
Her cheeks were like pure gold,
Her eyes they flashed like polished jet,
Her lips the Cupid mold.

Her form was classical indeed,
Diana in her youth,
Excelsior she did not need,
An emblem she of truth.

I bought her roses by the ton,
She took them with a smile,
And said her heart was almost won,
Yet I must wait awhile.

I bought her rubies, too, and pearls,
And necklaces galore;
She was like all the other girls,
She wanted more and more.

At last I grew quite desperate
And longed to call her mine;
"Oh, dear soubrette, tell me my fate
Will ever be thine."

"Alas," she sighed, "it cannot be;
I cannot marry you!
I'm far too old, dear boy, for see,
Your grandpa loved me, too;"

Fruit jars can be quickly and easily sealed or opened by a new machine, which has two independent levers, provided with jaws, which are forced to engage the cover and jar respectively, a pull on the levers tightening the collars and turning the cover.

Life-saving apparatus which will not interfere with the movements of arms or legs when swimming has been patented by a Californian. Two elongated air-tight cones are strapped to the person's back, the apex of each of the cones toward the head, to support the body in a nearly horizontal position.

Leaks in fire hose can be repaired, or a new section of hose inserted without the engine being shut down, by use of a cut-off key which has a flat base, corresponding in form to the cut, top of which is inserted a gunked bolt fitted with a shoe to cut off the water when the bolt is screwed down.

For holding large pieces of meat on a block for cutting, a Wisconsin man has designed a gripping device, which has a rod of heavy spring steel secured to the side of the block, the upper end being curved and pointed and set at right angles to carry a fork and press it down toward the block.

Cotton in Massachusetts has patented a single rail, a species of railway, which has a rail slotted through the middle nearly to the top, with wheels in the upper surface of the slot to rest on the rail, the supporting superstructments being separated from each other and reached by individual doors.

CHICAGO PANCAKES

It Is Well to Measure Them Before Ordering Any.

"I don't feel very hungry," said the man from Michigan, as he sat at the table of a Chicago restaurant, and hastily glanced over the bill of fare. "Waiter, suppose you bring me half a dozen German pancakes."

The waiter allowed a look of polite astonishment to flit over his usually impassive face.

"Folks don't usually order more than one," he said, in an apologetic tone.

The man from Michigan looked angry.

"I guess I know what I want," he declared, bringing a fist down upon the table so that the luncheon cards and glass sugar bowl did rattled. "City people may think it polite to eat only one pancake, but I'm a native of Michigan, and when I was a boy I used to eat ten German pancakes for breakfast. Are you going to fill my order?"

The waiter was duly discomfited. The man from Michigan read a paper for a while. Then he fidgeted. Finally he complained to the head waiter that he had been waiting for Dr. Horsemann the day in a public dining room. At the end of fifteen minutes six waiters approached his table. The first deposited a plate before him with a thud. In the centre was a pancake eighteen inches in diameter. It was flanked by lemon and half consumed in patterned steaks. The second and third waiter bore duplicates of the first pancake, as did the fourth, fifth and sixth. There were just room on the table for all of the pancakes, so two of them were placed on a side table. The waiters looked very serious, but the persons who were watching them began to smile. One man laughed aloud.

The man from Michigan looked at his check, which called for $1.80. Then he surveyed the forty square feet of German pancake.

"These things seem to have grown since I was a boy," he observed.

Then, when he left the city of Cuba, who lived on the channel islands, could hardly be induced to take large specimens of the fish, which he said were delicious, out of Cuba. One form, which attains a length of twelve or more feet, was considered especially poisonous. This fish, which was invariably found in the pan of table fish in Florida, was regarded with suspicion in Bahama. One of the signs of poison given by natives of Cuba was that of the silvery teeth," but this sign has no meaning in Florida. The barracuda is common in Key West, according to the report of the census, of a French frigate were badly poisoned by eating it.

The marines in Florida, snake-like fish, are considered poisonous and are, are often said to be poisonous, but the writer experimented with them and found them palatable if one could forget their appearance. The white, leopard-like markings and the certainly disagreeable features of the fish. This was the fish that was so abundant in the Florida reefs that it was impossible to induce a fisherman on the outer reef to eat a murry, and some affirmed that they avoided the barracuda because it actually poisons.

Certain localities have become notorious for their poisonous fish, as the Cape of Good Hope, where the crews of vessels are invariably warned not to eat the fish; and in cases observed here the symptoms were remarkably like those of cholera. Certain kinds of fishes have an evil reputation everywhere, but this certainly does not apply to the Florida species. According to Lieutenant Commander Bartlett, who is known at the Isle of France, in the Antilles, and in China and Japan. He mentions two species in the waters of the Philippines, which, when one of the gar fishes—belone caribbean—is known as a poisonous fish; yet the writer preferred it to all the small fishes and found the flesh most pleasant in Florida as being poisonous. That it is so in other localities there can be no doubt. Dr. Bartlemann says that it is especially dangerous during the spawning season, and that the roe should be avoided. He quotes cases where whole families have died from eating the fish, and advises sailors to avoid fishes of this kind.

In Japanese waters several fish are said to be poisonous, especially Engrifla fagonica, which is dangerous from July to September, and its almost every foreign country fish will be found that are avoided. On the American coast true cases of poisonous fish are few and scattered, and the long prejudice and legend aside, the list of so called poisonous fishes would be very materially reduced.

Newsboys of Manila.

Manila now has the newsboy, for the first time in her history. They are a cosmopolitan lot, including Chinese, Japs, Hindoos and representatives of races from all the islands—but quite like the newsboy, wherever found. These boys are picking up English fast and acquiring an English phraseology which is surprising," says Freedom, an American newspaper published at the labor camp. "Every day a great amount of curiosity is aroused in the American when he suddenly hears such terms as 'Here's the Times! Time in the Old Town To-night,' 'After the Ball,' and all the other popular and unique airs of the Americans, and then to see a little native boy step up with a bundle of papers under his arms) do it all.

"We are amused and laugh at the result, but it is not a laughing matter to newsboy, but their training will be valuable to most of them, and it will, no doubt, add to them the experience and training for the future position in all public and business affairs, and they will be the better for the work they are doing. We are within sight and smaller of the scene of some of the events that are making history for the Nation, but often the newsboy making the most noise with his papers gave us the first intimation of some notable happenings and events as 'Malabon has fallen,' 'Malolos has been taken,' 'All about the Americanos at Pasig.'

"Our pet, Manuel de Lalinde, a young Spanish lad of fourteen years, whose father was killed in the war, supports his mother, four sisters and one brother by his earnings as a newsboy. He is a hard worker and at odd hours. His earnings have averaged $10 per week, which equals $40 in Mexican money."

POISONOUS FISH

Varieties in Cuban and West Indian Waters of Evil Reputation.

There is a belief among the fishermen of Cuba that some of the fish there are poisonous. If asked the cause, one replies that there is so much copper in the water that it causes the fish to be poisonous. In Cuba, however, the jack—Caranx latus—is a common table fish. On the Florida reef all kinds are eaten, and one rarely hears of a poisoning case. In fact, there seems to be a law which prevents the sale of jacks of over two pounds, for the reason that a poisonous Caranx exists which attains the weight of twenty-five pounds. This, when the law is enforced, puts out of the Cuban dietary a number of fishes.

The poisonous jack is known to science as Caranx fallax, its common name in Cuba being jurese. It is difficult for the laymen to distinguish between the poisonous and the non-poisonous jacks. Another jack, Caranx pisquetus, commonly seen in the Havana market under the name of chicaro, is readily known by its yellow tail. Dr. Bartlett, the natives of the West Indies are afraid to eat it at certain seasons. At Guadaloupe, he an example, it is eaten at times without ill effect, while at other times the flesh assumes a coppery hue, the bones turn red and it is then poisonous. Another jack, the Dr. Horneman states that it is used to poison rats.

Dr. Oscar Tybring has collected much interesting information on this subject, and special attention is given to emphasize the fact that some fishes are poisonous at certain times. The writer's belief that fishes feed on what is to do with it. During several years' residence at Garden Key, seventy miles from Cuba, an instance of any one's being poisoned by the local fishes was never heard of by him. The barracuda was at all times considered a fine table fish, but a fisherman from Cuba, who lived on the channel islands, could hardly be induced to take large specimens of the fish, which he said were delicious, out of Cuba. One form, which attains a length of twelve or more feet, was considered especially poisonous. New York has a new evening theological school, understood to be for young men and women for more efficient work in their respective churches, to prepare students for the ministry, to make more proficient Sunday school teachers, to train deaconesses, to give instruction about missions, and to cultivate a Christian spirit among the denominations.

The Western Christian Advocate takes strong ground against full-dress Methodist social unions. It says: "Methodism has comparatively few dress coats and evening costumes. Her ranks are recruited largely from the middle class and the common people as here and there a representative of Caesar's household. Her members are one family in the Lord, and the church, as such, cannot afford to patronize an entertainment from which any member is virtually excluded."

THE EYE STUDENT.

Wide open eyes are indicative of rashness.

Side-glancing eyes are always to be distrusted.

Small eyes are commonly supposed to indicate cunning.

A MATRIMONIAL MIX-UP

English Magistrates Insist on Making a Mystery of It.

A few months ago matrimonial problems as that of which the Richmond, England, justices have patiently but vainly sought a solution would be practically impossible. Previous to the Commission of the Peace a less powerful body than it is at present. Mrs. Gibson a few weeks ago summoned her husband before the bench of magistrates under an order, and the defending Gibson pleaded that a former husband of his reported wife was Joe Bunnell—Joe Bunnell. At a subsequent hearing Samuel Bunnell, a brother of Joe, appeared, and deposed that he had met him last spring.

At the next hearing, a day or two ago, a man claiming to be Joe Bunnell himself entered the witness box and deposed that he separated from his wife about twenty years ago, and had nearly ever since been living in France. Confronted with this witness, Mrs. Bunnell promptly affirmed that he was not Joe Bunnell, but Joe's brother Tom, who, she said, had gone to Australia about the same time that her own husband went to France.

Other witnesses, however, swore positively to their recognition of him as the veritable Joe Bunnell, who had known eighteen or twenty years ago, and Samuel Bunnell on being further interrogated, declared that Tom did not go to Australia for many years after Joe disappeared; that he was living eighteen months ago in Western Australia, when he had written to his brother Samuel, and he added, by way of putting a final touch to the confusion, that Tom had a wife of his own now living in Australia.

On the other hand, there are undoubtedly weak points in the alleged Joseph's account of himself, for whereas he says that he has been living all his life to write letters, and Mrs. Gibson's marriage certificate purported to bear his signature, he has failed to write a single letter, and the art of penmanship was not included among his accomplishments. There was a second point, too, in the Joseph's favor, which he at last endeavored to fill up by stating that he had been "in the plaster-beer department"—a mildewy sort of business, which, however, he says by that name, though in the present state of effervescence over the "Affairs Dreyfus" it would be an ungot description, may be added, by way of putting a final touch to the confusion, that Tom had a wife of his own now living in Australia.

In the result the bench declined to make the order applied for by Mrs. Gibson, explaining that they might, but "they did not otherwise express any opinion on the case." This decision seems to mean that though they would not go so far as to declare the first esquire's decision to be null and void, they would not enforce the payments liable for Mrs. Gibson's maintenance, they feel reasonably assured that he will ultimately be found to be the husband of the woman who has been living with him under the cloud of Bunnell. No accounts are yet to hand of the condition of the magistrates since the opening of the new year, but we should think it not impossible that some of them are suffering from acute headache.

His Hat Made of Spun Glass.

A guest at one of the leading New Orleans hotels put in an appearance in the office wearing a very peculiar looking hat. It was of a brownish tint. At first glance it seemed to be made of finely woven brown straw, but closer scrutiny showed that the material was actually something like it but composed entirely of spun glass. It was passed around among a group of friends and they all took a guess. One thought it was prepared silk and another thought it was cotton goods. "You are all wrong," said the gentleman, "it is made of spun glass. You can see it has considerable flexibility, and I fancy it would be about as hard to break as an ordinary panama. I value that hat chiefly as a curio," he continued, "for I had it made by a glass blower with much comfort. It was made several years ago by an old Alsatian at Pittsburg, Pa., who invented a process for spinning glass and weaving the fibre into cloth to produce a non-inflammable fabric for window curtains and other draperies. It was found, however, that the steel dust made it too attractive to the eye. It was too stiff and ungraceful, and the expense was prohibitive for theatrical stage curtains, the one purpose to which it might have been applied. Anyhow, he gave up the undertaking, and this hat was one of the last things he made. I have had it treated with a preparation to render it fireproof to a small extent, so the hat stands me in about $1,750. It is the most expensive article of attire that I possess. I have no use for it except for its curious properties, but I presume one might talk it through it the same as through any other hat."

Her Curse Disabled by Lightning.

The American ship Sachem, which sailed from Philadelphia before with a cargo of coal for Hong Kong, met with an especial voyage. Before reaching Hong Kong her master died and was buried at sea. Th Portuguese cook also died and the Hong Kong pilot had a most trying experience. She only missed the tail end of a typhoon, and then it was accompanied by thunder and lightning. The sails were blown away, and pieces of mast and rigging went flying over the side. Over half the crew were prostrated by seasickness, and the pilot, who was responsible for the lightning, and for a number of hours the ship drifted about at the mercy of the storm. Her new mast, secured at Hong Kong, suffered the worst of all, and was believed to be dead for six hours. Two members of the crew thought him still alive, and by vigorous rubbing and pouring brandy down his throat he was finally brought to.

Miss White.

Miss White of Twenty-second street and Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, a spinster possessed of considerable quiet means, has created quite a sensation in North Penn village by displaying a roll of bills which she has recently come to carry $2,000, and frequently pulling a 2 or 5 note from the bunch and treating her friends to a drink. She is with the exception of $3 in gunnies $5 bills, the supposed money was Confederate notes, which White had found in an old house in the neighborhood.

New Jersey and Rapid Transit.

The completion of the underground railway tunnel in New York is an enterprise of such magnitude that it will attract attention from all quarters of the globe, but the average Plainfielder will probably not give it any more serious consideration than the man on the Pacific slope whose interest is focused on the subject simply because it involves scientific and practical ideas of a stupendous nature. The completion and operation of this tunnel, however, will have an important bearing on the growth and prosperity of the New Jersey suburban section, of which Plainfield is a very important part.

The operation of the underground railway will make rapid transit to the upper part of Greater New York a mere use of energy in descending a flight of steps, entering a commodious car and being whizzed along the tunnel at something like fifty miles an hour—"to Harlem in fifteen minutes." The trip will be void of all the aggravations and inconveniences which now beset the passengers using the present system of surface or elevated cars in the metropolis, and will make a journey from the lower part of Manhattan to the Bronx district a veritable "thing of beauty and joy forever."

The tide which now turns the faces of thousands of New York business men to the shores of New Jersey in quest of places of residence that can be reached without being jammed in cars like cattle, forced to swing like a clock's pendulum around curves, subjected to delays of all kinds and their peace of mind so rudely disturbed that by the time they reach their firesides they are in an unhappy mood, will undoubtedly begin to turn to its natural course when transit facilities have reached perfection—or as near to it as modern ingenuity and capital will devise—in the metropolis.

Thousands of New York business men now seek homes in New Jersey because residence in upper New York means that they will have to use the old and almost constantly clogged transit facilities of the present day. With the operation of an underground system of transit, which carries with it cleanliness, convenience and rapidity, the inclination to take up abode in New Jersey will be greatly lessened.

Unquestionably, the average New York business man would prefer to live in the State in which his business interests are centered—especially since it is the Empire State—and when the conveniences of reaching the upper part of New York are the best, there is a condition that Jerseymen will have to face with some trepidation as to the outcome. The completion of the underground railway will discourage emigration of New Yorkers to New Jersey for homes. Of that fact even a casual observation of the situation will demonstrate. Such being the case, it is the plain duty of Jerseymen, if they are to keep up in growth and prosperity in the suburban district, to do something to offset the condition that will confront them four years hence when perfect rapid transit is secured for the metropolis. New Jersey, if she is to maintain her present supremacy as the choice home district of New York business men, must be up and doing.

The Legislature has paid a proper tribute to the memory of the late Vice-President Hobart in setting aside a day to be observed in honor of the lamented Jerseyman. January 30th is the date set for honoring the memory of one who was distinctly a Jerseyman from the day he was born to the day he died—always holding allegiance to this commonwealth, devoted to its interests and admired and loved by all its people. Mr. Hobart died at the high tide of success in life, his career adding lustre to the State which claimed him as its own.

Franklin Murphy, of Newark, was named at the Fremont Club, of Hudson City, Thursday night as a possible candidate for Vice-President of the United States. Samuel Monroe advanced the idea, and the members discussed it with considerable enthusiasm.

Lord Roberts is said to be mortally afraid of cats. Let Oom Paul ask for a regiment of felines to route the Englishman with. We'll guarantee to raise a company or two of Thomases for service anywhere on earth outside of Plainfield.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried that new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through the system. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

An Inconsistent Policy.

It requires a philosopher of more than ordinary perspicuity to understand the reasoning of the Riker-Hize trolley syndicate. We confess our inability to comprehend the motives that operate the corporation that is gridironing Union county with street railway tracks. However, without striving to delve into the innermost depths of the master minds that are directing the affairs of the trolley company, it is plain to be seen that their policy is a most inconsistent one—a veritable ebb and tide of contradiction of a most flagrant sort.

Scarcely a week passes but what some new order of things is inaugurated by the company which arouses public objection and indignation because of its being a violation of an understanding with the public. If it is not that, then it is a determination on the part of the trolley people to refuse to accede to what the public demand for the use of certain privileges. Whatever it may be the company attempts to fortify its attitude with the cry that it would be fatal for it to do anything else—in fact, it is among the impossibili ies for it to do so. Is the matter of leases, transfers and benefits to be allowed for the granting of franchises to it, we have seen instances of this sort many times. Is this city a valuable franchise was refused only to be accepted later on with all the terms that the company at first said it was impossible for them to accept; in Elizabeth we have seen exactly the same course of events. Again in this city we have seen the company establish a system of carrying passengers to and from Dunellen, which allowed no transfers with the connecting trolley line, because the syndicate claimed it, it would lose money by doing otherwise. Yet within a few weeks they granted everything that had been asked of them. Recently in Westfield we witnessed the same kind of an exhibition with a similar result. Now, in the present month, the company cut off the right of transfers to Scotch Plains passengers for the various branches in this city. Under pressure of public sentiment the company retreated from its position in the matter in less than a week after the new order went into effect.

Giving the syndicate the benefit of doubt about its animus in such actions as are mentioned, the presumption must obtain that the company was justified, to protect its interests, in seeking to enforce the claims and rules which it made. In taking a stand in all these matters the company's officials have said that to conserve the interests of the capital that had been invested in the trolley enterprise it would be impossible for them to do otherwise than they proposed.

Yet in the face of these positive declarations that bankruptcy and failure stared them in the face to do contrary to what they had outlined, the syndicate has gone and done exactly what it proclaimed it was impossible to do. Such action has been accomplished finally by their own decision, and if they acceded to impracticable demands or conceded to unfair arrangements they had no one to blame but themselves, except insofar as they had overstepped the legal stipulations already entered into—and for these they should be held strictly accountable.

Now the trolley capitalists must have been either right or wrong. If the former, then they are a reckless set of men. If the latter, then they have been insincere and are entitled to no quarter in the consideration of the public. In taking a common sense view of the whole situation it appears that the syndicate has been clickering with the people in the form of several gigantic bluffs. By their pendulum like antics they have lost whatever confidence the public ever had in them, and hereafter their dealings with municipalities should be carried out only with iron-clad contracts in which event will be fraught with such serious results that the people can depend upon a steady and honest service continuously.

The death of former Attorney-General John P. Stockton removes a man who for a generation occupied a conspicuous part in the Democracy and politics of New Jersey. He was a gentleman of culture, having for years been one whose grace and polish brought out many bright spots in the coterie of men whose influence in this commonwealth was so strong and continuous that it was almost looked upon as invincible, but which finally collapsed through the indiscreet use of the power it had gathered in a run of thirty years. Mr. Stockton was one of the last to disappear, officially, under the new regime, having been superseded by a Republican three years ago.

To Exempt Y. M. C. A. Property.

For sometime past there has been a vigorous effort on the part of the officers of the local Young Men's Christian Association to secure exemption from taxation for the property owned by the Association, but it has failed. The argument has been made that the Association is religious and beneficial in its operation, and that therefore its property should be classified the same as organized church belongings, which would permit it to be exempt. The issue was carried into court a year ago and a strong effort was made by the judiciary to take that view of the matter, but it was found that there was not sufficient law for it.

Now, however, a bill has been prepared and will be introduced in the Legislature to accomplish the result sought for. The father of the measure is Assemblyman Lewis, of Passaic county. The bill exempts from taxation religious and charitable organizations, such as Y. M. C. A.'s and rescue missions. The measure provides that the property must be used in part by the institutions or organization owning it and that the entire income from the building must be used for the purposes of such organization, although partly supported by fees and charges received from beneficiaries.

The passage of this measure and its approval by the Governor would fix the case of the local Association in a very favorable manner, as no part of the income from the property of the Association is used for other purposes than its own benefit.

There is no doubt but the bill will pass, however, as there is a manifest inclination on the part of the Legislature to draw the line at passing further laws designed to exempt property from taxation. In a great many cases the matter has already been overdone because of sentiment and sympathy.

Some Progressive Legislation.

A Trenton correspondent observes that by the time the legislative mill gets ready for action there will be lots of grist prepared for it. The sewerage question, which directly concerns the pollution of the Passaic River, will be very prominent, and track elevation, which carries with it necessarily the abolition of grade crossing, will demand much attention. A new subject for consideration will concern the taxation of trolley franchises, which will present the question as to what is the character of such franchises. The proposition to reduce the legal rate of interest to five per cent. will provoke much contention, and the anti-Trust agitation may arouse much interest. Mr. McDermott's proposition to reduce the membership of Boards of Freeholders each to nine in Essex and Hudson, if agreed to, may lead to a similar reform in other counties. The Pitney Ripton bill already caused some commotion in this and other cities which it is supposed to effect. Instead of having the Excise Commissioners elected by the popular vote, the bill proposes that they should be appointed by the Judges of the County Courts. This would prove a radical change.

An Exception to the Rule.

It is an accepted idea that anything that Senator Sewell favors or opposes before the Legislature will meet with a fate that is entirely in accordance with the Senator's opinion on the subject. But there are exceptions to every rule, and according to the New Jersey editor of the New York Tribune the people of the State will witness a demonstration of it in the present session. Regarding the abolishing of the spring elections, the Tribune says:

'General Sewell is not taking any part whatever in the movement to abolish spring elections. He does not believe in it; in fact, his personal opinions to the contrary are pretty strong. His judgment is in favor of having purely local or municipal questions or fights settled on their merits and by themselves at a time when they won't affect anything else and when anything else won't affect them. Indeed, if the change could be made without much cost or trouble the General would probably favor the election of Assemblymen, Senators and Congressmen separate entirely from county officials. But he will not interfere for or against the proposed Anti-Spring Election bill. He will not even visit Trenton while it is up to fight it out among themselves. The present outlook is that the bill will pass."

The Cranford Chronicle, which has been the most friendly newspaper to the Riker-Hize trolley syndicate in Union county, has now turned against the actions of the syndicate and characterizes its conduct as a "robbing Peter to pay Paul policy." There can be but little real sympathy for such futile indignation as the Chronicle displays. The Chronicle aided the Rikers in every way, shape and manner to form sentiment in their favor, and now if our esteemed contemporary feels that it is the victim of ingrates it has no one to blame but itself. It advocated the interests of the trolley syndicate with eyes wide open and in face of numerous warnings.

CONGRESSMAN REEVES.

Well-Known Illinois Legislator Has Openly Announced His Desire to Become Governor.

Walter Reeves, at present the representative in congress of the Eleventh congressional district of Illinois, was born in western Pennsylvania in 1848. He came to Illinois in 1856. After leaving school he taught school for several years in La Salle, Livingston and Marshall counties. He saved his money and was enabled to study law. He was admitted to practice in Streator, Ill., in 1875, where he had resided for 24 years.

For many years he has been active in politics, and in 1894 when the Eleventh district was divided, the two leading candidates, Thomas J. Henderson and Henry Mayo, withdrew, and the party united on Walter Reeves. He defeated the democratic nominee for congress, Capt. Gibbons, by 4,863 votes, although at that time the district was believed to have a democratic majority of 2,000. In 1896 he was reelected by a majority of 4,351, and in 1898 he ran against ex-Attorney General Maloney and defeated him.

Mr. Reeves has served in congress with distinction. He was a member of the committees on rivers and harbors and patents. He was one of the members chosen by Speaker Reed to confer with the senate committee regarding the river and harbor bill. Mr. Reeves' efforts on that joint committee secured an investigation of the whole Nicaragua canal project. He has been greatly complimented for securing this action, which enabled congress to move intelligently in the matter.

Mr. Reeves has announced his candidacy for governor, and has been making a canvass openly for some months, declaring that he represents no faction.

In 1876 Mr. Reeves married Marietta M. Coggswell.

WASHINGTON'S RAZOR.

The Blade Once Used by the Immortal George Now the Property of a Missouri Lady.

The centenary of the death of George Washington has called forth the fact that a Missourian, Mrs. Julia E. Maus, of Linneus, is the possessor of a razor that was the property of the Father of His Country during the revolution, and which he used last on the morning following the battle of Brandywine, says the St. Louis Republic.

A well-known colonial character and special friend of Washington's, Maj. Vivian Brookin, who was taking leave of his superior officer, said to the commander: "Gen. Washington, I want you to give me some trivial thing as a token of our friendship, and which I may retain as a keepsake."

The general, then just finishing shaving, turned from the mirror,

WASHINGTON'S RAZOR.
(Now in Possession of Mrs. Julia E. Maus, Linneus, Mo.)

handed Brookin the razor and replied: "Here, take this, and I assure you that with pleasure it is given."

When Maj. Brookin died, several years later, in Petersburg, Va., the razor was left to his kinsmen and namesake, Col. Vivian Brookin Holmes, who has relatives in Linneus and Centralia, Mo. The blade, after the death of Holmes, passed into the ownership of Mrs. Maus, who still retains the interesting relic.

Upon the blade of the razor, which is of a peculiar shape, the words: "Warranted Grattan," are found near its heel. The handle, on account of its great age, has almost decayed, only about half of the original remaining. In the center is a small ornamental carving.

South African War News.

The news from South Africa starts at Cape Town, is sent to Delagoa bay, thence to Mozambique, to Zanzibar, to Aden, Suez, to Ismailia, to Port Said, a distance of over 5,600 miles. From there it is repeated 143 miles to Alexandria, where it is repeated again, this time under the Mediterranean, 925 miles, to Malta. From Malta it goes to Gibraltar, Lisbon, Falmouth, the great cable center, 365 miles. At this point it plunges under the Atlantic, 800 miles, to Penzance, and so on to London, and the rest of the world.

FOOD SUPPLY WAGONS.

Their Inventor Believes They Will Solve the Servant-Girl Problem to Everybody's Satisfaction.

Conservative old New Haven is soon to have a twentieth century convenience that will make one of the dreams of Edward Bellamy a practical institution. In his famous book entitled "Looking Backward" Bellamy describes great cooperative kitchens from which whole cities are to be fed. New Haven will shortly have a big kitchen from which her citizens will get their hot meals and have them sent piping hot to their homes all ready to be served. This, in brief, is the latest idea of a Yankee inventor, designed to solve the servant girl problem.

This scheme is not a mere dream. It is an idea of a New Haven business man who has made a success. It is backed by over 20 other New Haven business men, every one of whom is a practical and successful man in his line of business. These men have put their money into this idea because they believe that they have in this scheme a big fortune.

Many schemes have been tried in different parts of the world to supply food for families through cooperative kitchens. These schemes have never been very successful, because it has been impossible to keep food hot during transportation from one place to another. The scheme of many families eating together in one building has also proved objectionable. New Haven has apparently solved this problem by the invention of heat retaining devices by which a plate of soup or a chop of beef may be kept piping hot for as long as seven hours. The inventor says they can deliver, cooked and ready to serve, many dishes at a price equal to that which the housekeeper pays for the raw product.

In speaking of his scheme, Mr. S. H. Street said to a New York Herald reporter:

"This is not a mere dream. I have been studying this subject for years. I have discussed it with the best business men of the country. I have placed my ideas before them, and they have all told me that the scheme is practicable.

"People do not realize that it is possible to cook the cheapest portions of meat in a scientific manner and get as delicious dishes as are served in the finest restaurants in the country. It has been demonstrated that you can take the cheapest cut of beef pound—that is, sections of the beef that are not usually used for roasting—and get a more nourishing dish than you can from the choicest cuts. This, however, can only be accomplished by cooking the meat slowly and cooking it in a scientific manner.

"Cereals are very difficult to cook properly. So are baked beans and some kinds of vegetables. We will relieve ourselves at first to cooking things that require long and careful cooking. We do not propose to meddle with steaks and chops, which are easily cooked. Later on we may take up all sorts of cooking."

The secret of Mr. Street's scheme lies in his patent device for retaining heat. This apparatus is apparently nothing more than a big bucket, metal covered and lined, with sides and bottom about two inches thick. There is a close-fitting cover of similar thickness. What the sides of the wall of this package are lined with Mr. Street does not say. Into this heat-retaining package are put porcelain cans, which fit tightly and have close-fitting covers.

Mr. Street proposes to have various sized packages, in which breakfast, luncheon and dinner can be arranged. In the bottom of the bucket is placed the dessert, then the meat and vegetables, and then the soup. This is for a dinner bucket.

These buckets are to be delivered in big wagons, in which there will be receptacles along the side for holding them in place. The scheme is to have a large number of wagons, which will make trips through various sections of the city to deliver food and take orders for the following day. There will be small wagons for quick delivery of late orders.

Lace Made from Hair.

The most curious lace is pulled pork trade. It is very rare, and is made of human hair. A French collector has one that it exists in the present day only in their cabinets. It was confined to the early part of the sixteenth century. Margaret, countess of Lennox, was the mother of Lord Darnley, who was sent from the Tower, where she was imprisoned when her son, Lord Charles Lennox, married the daughter of Bess of Hardwicke, a bit of this kind of lace to Mary, queen of Scots. This is a very strong proof of the belief in the queen's innocence of the guilt that had been imputed to her. The little square of point tresse was worked by the old countess' own hands from her own gray hair. It was, in fact, hair mixed with fine flax.

Recipe for Baking Onions.

Butter a baking dish and lay in it raw onions cut in slices half an inch thick. Bake them pale yellow and then take out of the oven. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with one-fourth of an inch of grated cracker and cheese in equal parts. Return to the oven just long enough to melt the cheese.

Missionary Meeting at Grace Church.

A missionary meeting of special interest was held Monday under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society at Trinity Reformed church. Mrs. F. C. Adams had charge of the meeting and conducted the opening exercises. Special features were the fifteen minute addresses on countries given by Mrs. Benson, of the Presbyterian church, and Mr. Vroom, of Somerville. A pleasing part of the exercises was the contralto solo by Miss Charlotte Messersmith, of the First Baptist church choir. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Holmes. There was a very large attendance of members and friends of the society, all of whom greatly enjoyed the service and felt spiritually benefited.

Death of an Old Editor.

Austin Bittenbender, of 122 East Rae Fifth street, has received word of the death of his friend, ex-Judge Theodore Schoch, of Stroudsburg, Pa., which occurred last Sunday. Mr. Schoch was an editor of great prominence, having published for fifty-nine years The Jeffersonian, during which time he was continuously its editor. This paper was published at the same stand during that time, and it was printed on an old Washington hand press. Most of the type was set up by the editor.

Ran Away With Milk Wagon.

A lively horse attached to a milk wagon, whose owner is unknown, ran away from in front of a West Front street business house Saturday. The animal ran through Somerset street at a high rate of speed, but was stopped by several men near Warren Engine Company's house. There was no damage.

Petition in Bankruptcy.

Petition was Monday filed in the Bankruptcy Court, Trenton, by Wm. J. Frey, of North Plainfield, who is a floor manager in New York, with liabilities of $103,539 and assets of $170. Of his debts $55,144 are held by secured creditors, but the securities are only worth $27,810, according to the petition.

State Prison Statistics.

Union county has 53 State prisoners at Trenton. Out of 1,119 prisoners, 354 were born in New Jersey. There are 280 colored male prisoners and 13 female colored prisoners. October 31st, 1898, there were 1,221 prisoners.

QUAKERS RESIST MODERN IDEAS.

Ancient Meeting-House Will Not be Moved.

PLANS OF YOUNG MEMBERS.

THEY WANTED SOME IMPROVEMENTS MADE TO EDIFICE.

The Elders Objected to Disturbing the Historical Old Building, and It Is Likely That It Will Be Allowed to Stand as It Has for the Past 113 Years—Mentioned for City Hall Site.

Of late there has been an attempt on the part of some members of the Friends Society, whose meeting-house is located on Watchung avenue opposite North avenue, to make some improvements to the property, such as moving the meeting-house close to the property occupied by Mr. Peterson, placing a foundation under it, putting in steam heat, illuminating it in modern style and making some other improvements. These things have been discussed by what might be termed the younger portion of the Society, but the older members have been strongly opposed to any such movement and have discountenanced it to such an extent that it is safe to say that the improvements will not be made. The older members would not think of moving the building which has stood in one spot since 1788, and is by far the oldest structure in this city.

It has also been reported that members have been approached by members of the Common Council who have expressed a desire to purchase the property on the corner where the meeting-house stands, and this has given rise to the rumor that possibly the Council has its eye on it for a city hall. This cannot be verified, however. The majority of the members of the Association are perfectly satisfied to have everything remain as it is and there is no immediate chance of any change.

Last Monday there was a meeting called for the purpose of giving the trustees the authority to sign the necessary papers in the sale of the Meeting's property at Rahway, which has just been sold to Judge Benjamin Vail. The proper authority was given. Nothing else of any importance was considered.

A MID-WINTER WEDDING.

MISS MARGARET A. BENNETT BECOMES MRS. DICKSON.

The Groom a Resident of Summit—Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents, Lincoln Place.

One of the prettiest home weddings of the mid-winter season was that of last Monday when Miss Margaret A. Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Bennett, of 43 Lincoln place, was united in marriage to John Dickson, of Summit. The happy affair took place at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of only the immediate relatives. It was just 7 o'clock when the bride and groom entered the parlor to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march rendered on the piano by Andrew G. Carpenter. They took their position directly in front of a large bow window where Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church, stood waiting to perform the ceremony.

The bride and groom were unattended. The bride was handsomely gowned in pearl grey corded silk, with pearl and lace trimmings, and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The ceremony was that of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was performed with ease. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dickson received the hearty congratulations and well wishes of those present, after which the wedding supper was served in the dining room.

While the wedding feast was being enjoyed Mr. Carpenter added to the pleasure of the occasion by rendering some piano selections. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Dickson left for a short wedding tour, and they were given a rousing send-off. Upon their return they will make their home for the remainder of the winter at Summit. They were handsomely remembered with gifts of usefulness and beauty, among which was a solid silver tea service from the bride's former employers, E. Sonlis & Bro., in appreciation of her faithful service as their bookkeeper.

It was fully expected that Fred Bennett, a brother of the bride, who is now in the service of the U. S. Navy on the torpedo boat, Du Pont, would be able to attend the wedding, but duties detained him and he could not be present. He was the only one of the family of ten who did not witness the marriage.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O has the snap of coffee, with all its dignity and stimulating power, but it is entirely free from coffee's bad effects. Grain-O nourishes the system and the children as well as the grown folks drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1/4 as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

SYMPATHY FOR THE FIGHTING DUTCH

British Tyranny and Interference Roundly Denounced

BIG CROWD WAS PRESENT.

GEO. W. VAN SICLEN AND JAMES E. MARTINE HEARD.

Mr. Van Siclen was Prepared With Facts and Figures to Prove His Assertions—Eloquent Speech of Former Orator, Who Scathingly Arraigned the English Nob Dy—Resolutions of Sympathy.

Sympathizers with the Boers in their struggle with Great Britain for free dom are apparently to be found in great numbers in Plainfield. This was apparent Monday at the Pro Boer meeting held in Saengerbund Hall, which was packed with representative citizens, who expressed their sympathy at the eloquence of the speakers by frequent and generous applause and cheers.

The hall had been made attractive by the display of the national colors and the flags of the Transvaal Republic, which were suspended at the side of the stage. To the right of the speaker's desk was a good sized oil painting of Paul Kruger, President of the South African Republic. A streamer tacked over the stage contained in Dutch the words Eendracht Maakt Macht (Unity Makes Might.)

James E. Martine called the gathering to order and introduced as chairman of the meeting John VanHerwerden, who said his heart was too full to speak, but that he was pleased to see so many present to express sympathy for the cause. Mr. VanHerwerden then introduced George W. VanSiclen, the principal speaker of the evening.

The speaker attributed the cause of the Boer war to the avarice of the English people, who wished to get rich at the expense of the hard working Boers. It was not an honest war, he said, but had been precipitated through the medium of the Stock Exchange. As soon as gold was found in paying quantities the Uitlanders had made excuses that they were being unjustly taxed. The fact is, said the speaker, the Uitlanders do not pay a dollar of the taxes. The only tax they were called upon to pay was 2½ per cent for digging the gold, which they took out of the country. This tax is not so very great when it is taken into consideration that England makes the United States pay 10 per cent. for digging gold on the Yukon river in Alaska, which he claimed did not rightfully belong to Great Britain. The Uitlanders were not obliged to dig the gold.

The statements made by the English that they were not allowed to hold public meetings were false. It was true, however, that the English had attempted to muzzle the press and the Boers had therefore resented this interference with their affairs.

As to the question of naturalization Mr. VanSiclen said the Boers had twice acceded to the demands of the British to reduce the length of residence from 12 years to seven and finally to five years.

In closing his very interesting speech, in which he frequently referred to notes containing statistics to prove his statements, Mr. VanSiclen said he believed it to be the duty of President McKinley to offer to arbitrate between Great Britain and the Transvaal government with a view to putting an end to this cruel war.

Mr. Martine, then in an earnest speech, lasting about fifteen minutes eloquently depicted the trials and struggles of the unfortunate Boers. He said his sympathies were with the Dutch because he was partially of Dutch extraction on his mother's side, and the promptings of his heart bade him urge on their very just cause against the inroads of the tyranous power of Great Britain. The love of liberty possessed by all men for self government was an inherent right which commanded the respect and admiration of all Christendom. England had no more right to interfere in the government of South Africa than she had to come to America and attempt to dictate to the citizens of these United States how they should manage their affairs.

His characterized England's pretended friendship for this country as having been built up during the late war to invoke sympathy and aid which Great Britain realized it would soon need because of the threatened war it had at hand.

During Mr. Martine's speech he was frequently interrupted by applause and cheers, and his eloquence and forcible words held the close attention of the audience.

The following resolution, which Mr. VanSiclen said he would have sent to President Kruger, was then unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, We, the citizens of Plainfield in meeting assembled, take this opportunity to express our sympathy with the Boers in their heroic struggle for self government. Being blessed in America with liberty, we hold it to be our duty to lend all moral aid to struggling sister Republics in every quarter of the globe. The effort on the part of Great Britain to interfere in the internal affairs of the South African Republic is unwarranted and brutal; that the present war is cruel and repugnant to all Christian sentiment.

"Resolved, That to Paul Kruger and his spartan band we tender our warmest sympathy and convey the cheering knowledge that the heart of the great American people throbs in unison with the Boers in this their struggle for liberty against British tyranny and avarice.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to our representatives in Congress as expressive of our sentiment."

A collection was then taken for the widows and orphans of the Boers.

SOCIETY'S RICH TREAT.

ELABORATE FUNCTION GIVEN BY THE WORTHINGTONS.

The Affair Held in the Murray Hill Hotel—In Honor of Dr. Henry Owsley and His Bride—The Guests.

There have been several fine receptions in Plainfield this winter, but nothing has altogether equaled the quiet elegance of the one given Saturday, January 20th, by former residents, Mrs. Louise Grant Worthington and her daughter Laura, of the Murray Hill Hotel, New York city.

This social affair was given in honor of Dr. Henry Owsley and his bride, to whom Miss Worthington was recently bridesmaid, and was attended by friends from Plainfield, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Brooklyn, Yonkers, Dobbs Ferry, Brookline, Mass., and a host of New Yorkers.

Mrs. Owsley is the daughter of Dr. Fowler, of New York.

Two drawing rooms were set apart for the occasion, with a large dining room and retiring rooms across the hall—handsome draperies across the space keeping everything private. Pretty maids and butlers galore, in white gloves, attended to the wants of the guests. Behind a bower of palms a band discoursed sweet music.

The rooms were artistically decorated with ropes of smilax, roses, pink and yellow with such a profusion of English violets as to make the air redolent with their sweet perfume. The immense crystal gasalier, glittering like the sun, was a beautiful sight, with the delicate green smilax and an immense suivez mol in hellotrope, satin ribbon hanging from the middle. The mantel pieces were covered with flowers, and handsome cabinets held rich bouquets.

The perfection of art, however, was reached in the dining room. The table was superb, with set pieces so large and so decorated as to open one's eyes with wonder. Some of them were put together in sections, so covered with savory jelly as to defy the partitions. One of the breasts of chicken was taken apart and the skill of the cuisine was certainly apparent. Here was a peacock in aspic and fruits—a perfect bird, with spreading tail of crystallized fruits and sweets. This was also served. Then the salads, creams, etc., were plentiful and good.

Mrs. Worthington and Miss Worthington were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Owsley, Mrs. Harrison Whittingham and daughters, Mrs. Keep, of Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. Painter, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Moss, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. William L. Patton, and the Misses Bowen, Peck, Owsley, Anderson, Hunt, Russel Lang, of this city.

Among the guests were: Judge Lowe and family, of Paris; Judge Lowe, of Jersey City; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Slauson, Mrs. John French, Miss Mary French, of this city, and several hundred others.

FARMERS PROSPERING.

Change of Crops Has Redeemed Somerset; According to A. F. Sutphen.

Arthur P. Sutphen, secretary of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture, in his annual report just forwarded to the State Department, states that the farmers of Somerset county are now enjoying a period of unusual prosperity.

Two years ago there were many abandoned farms in the county and farming was considered the least profitable of all occupations.

There are now no abandoned farms in the county. A large number of farmers are making money raising small fruits, berries and other products not included in the produce of the large farms of the West, and others have realized substantial profits by raising poultry and other small stock on an extensive scale.

In view of the tendency toward fruit farming it is the belief of the Agricultural Society that a number of canning factories in the county would be highly profitable.

There have been built in the county under the State Aid Act about twenty-five miles of stone roads, and petitions are on file to build fifty miles more.

The dairy farms also report increased prosperity. The creameries are paying higher prices than last year, and the outlook is encouraging.

ASYLUM OVERCROWDED.

ANNUAL REPORT OF NEW JERSEY HOSPITAL FOR INSANE.

It Is Charged That the Institution Is Filled With Many Who Have Many Committed by Careless Physicians.

The Board of Managers of the New Jersey Hospital for the Insane, located near Trenton, has furnished their report to Governor Voorhees. In it they make a serious complaint, to the effect that the institution is overcrowded because physicians are careless in their examinations and freely sign certificates placing persons in the asylum.

There are now 1,170 patients, which is largely in excess of the capacity of the place. Such a condition of affairs would not exist if patients not strictly insane were not forced upon the management. Many of the patients are only suffering from nervous troubles, and ought to have other treatment.

It is further stated as a cause for complaint that Burlington, Gloucester and Salem counties have no asylums, but confine their insane in their almshouses, which are in no way adapted for the treatment of insanity. There are no resident physicians in these almshouses, and there is no regular medical care of the patients, so that the sufferers have no chances of recovery. The managers maintain that this is not only an injustice to the patient, but also to the State, inasmuch as the State of New Jersey is charged $3 per week for each patient, which is considerably more than what it would cost the State itself to take care of them.

As to the cause of insanity of those admitted the Board gives an interesting table. One man lost his mind through novel reading, two men and three women through disappointments in love affairs, seven men and five women from domestic affections caused by death, thirteen men and seventeen women from general ill health, four men and eight women from domestic troubles, six men and three women from loss of property and business troubles, five men and eight women from overwork and loss of sleep, seven men and eleven women from old age, eleven men and five women from epilepsy, twenty men and six women from the use of alcohol, two men from opium eating, six men and two women from sunstroke, eleven men from injury to the head, and one woman from unjust imprisonment.

In the case of forty men and forty-two women there was an acknowledged hereditary predisposition to insanity. Thirty-four cases had a suicidal tendency, and in twenty-five cases there existed a decided homicidal tendency. In fifty-one cases there was alcohol, and in thirty two cases the father of the patient was intemperate in the use of alcohol.

HONORED CANADA GUESTS.

Delightful Tea Given Monday Afternoon by Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, at Two Seventh Street.

A delightful tea was given Monday afternoon by Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, in honor of her friends, Mrs. Toller and Mrs. Bacon, of Ottawa, Canada, who are guests at her home. Flowers and shaded lights added to the beauty of the artistic rooms, which were filled during the hours of the reception with a large number of guests. Mrs. Myers and her friends, Mrs. Toller and Mrs. Bacon, were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles E. Stillmest, the mother of Mrs. Myers; Mrs. Wm. Stillman, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. Charles McCutcheon and Mrs. Percy Fisk, the two latter presiding at the table. Their aids were Misses Ginna, Dumont, Randolph and Cooley. The table decorations of pink roses and pink shaded candles produced a charming effect.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cts. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membranes and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

Four Horses Burned to Death.

A barn occupied by George A. Beebe, an ice man, on North avenue, near Garwood, was totally destroyed by fire Monday. How the fire started is unknown. Four horses, a lot of chickens, with wagons and farm implements, were burned. When the fire was first discovered an attempt was made to get the horses out, but it was impossible. The loss is about $1,000, partly covered by insurance.

SENATOR REED ON SINGLE ELECTION DAY

He Favors Consolidation of Two Elections.

HIS REASONS ADVANCED.

COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AGREES WITH HIM.

Senator Reed, in an Interview, Tells Why He Believes That the Doing Away With the Spring Election Would Work Advantageously, Particularly to People in Rural Districts.

The plan to do away with the spring elections in the boroughs and townships throughout the state has been advocated this winter and there is a prospect of some legislation to do away with that election and have all the public officers, State, county and of the municipalities, chosen at the general election in November. Senator Garret A. Reed, of North Plainfield, is in favor of the change and would undoubtedly support any legislation toward that end. He has the backing of his county executive committee, all the members of which expressed themselves in favor of that course at a recent meeting.

"Yes," said Senator Reed, while in conversation with a local reporter, "I believe the change would work very beneficially in Somerset county, particularly in the rural districts. In the spring, the roads are so bad that it is very difficult to get a good vote out. With a light vote, it is quite possible to put into office men who could not get there if all the people had a voice in the matter. It gives an opportunity to work through schemes with the assistance of a light vote that are directly contrary to the general sense of the community."

The Senator further pointed out that with few exceptions the only people who objected to the combination of the elections were those who never went to primaries and were bound to object to anything. They declared that the municipal election must be entirely separate and distinct from the county and State elections where political issues played such a prominent part. Other objections, the Senator said, were those who found it to their pecuniary advantage to have as many elections as possible.

As far as the business men of the county were concerned, the Senator pointed out that the two elections meant the loss of more time for them with greater expense. It was decidedly more expensive to conduct two elections than one. There was always apt to be but little interest taken in the spring election unless some matter of particularly great moment came up and so the very objects of a separate election to get a free expression of opinion from all the voters was defeated.

NEW EUCHRE CLUB.

Entertained for the First Time in a Pleasant Manner by Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier.

The Mcntauk Eucure Club, a new card club recently formed, was entertained last Monday for the first by Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, at their home on Bank place, when a most delightful time was had by the various members. The usual number of games were played and the honors for the women were given to Mrs. Horace Huff, first; Mrs. Robert M. Clark, second; Miss Addie Weaver, consolation, Edward O. Clark won first honors for the men, Robert M. Clark, second, and Horace Huff secured the consolation.

After the games dancing was enjoyed and at a late hour refreshments were served. The club numbers twenty, but one member could not be present last night. The following were the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smalley, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Huff, Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, Miss May McLoughlin, Miss Addie Weaver, Miss Williams, and Miss Breen, of Elizabeth; Edward O. Clark, Benjamin LaVere and Mr. Hankins.

The club will meet again in two weeks when the members will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Huff, of Codington avenue.

Arranged a Delightful Affair.

The Parish Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross has arranged a delightful affair to be held in the parish house Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. There will be a sale of homemade cake and candy. A pleasant feature of the afternoon will be the presence of an expert in the art of reading character from handwriting.

TALKED ABOUT ATHENS

Interesting Illustrated Lecture by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards for Benefit of McAll Auxiliary.

The story of Athens, its growth and decay, interspersed with his own experiences in that ancient capital, was told by Rev. W. R. Richards in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last Monday. The lecture was illustrated with a number of excellent views. The affair was for the benefit of the McAll Auxiliary, of this city, and was attended by a large crowd.

Dr. Richards described in an interesting manner something of the history of Athens, showing just where the great events in its history had taken place. Many views of the magnificent ruins were shown and the speaker related his own visits to the Acropolis.

He had quite a little to say about the history of Acropolis and the remains of the great temples still standing there, particularly the Parthenon. The other temples of lesser importance were briefly described together with the ruins of the theatres and other prominent places.

The lecture was a very interesting one and Dr. Richards proved a very pleasant entertainer. His talk was rendered particularly effective by the pictures.

SECOND ASSEMBLY SAW LARGE CROWD

Was as Successful as First of Series.

AT CASINO FRIDAY NIGHT.

SOCIETY TURNED OUT IN FORCE FOR THE FUNCTION.

Dancing Began Earlier Than Usual and Ended Promptly at Time Set—The Patronesses and Subscribers—The Ballroom was Prettily Decorated—Much Enthusiasm Shown by Guests.

After a week of comparative dullness for the local society folk the second of the series of assemblies was held in the Casino and the clubhouse adjoining last Friday. Like the first it was a decided success which the dismal weather out-of doors did not a trouble. A brief respite that followed the Tyler reception last week gave everybody a chance to rest, and the affair of last evening went off with decided snap and enthusiasm.

The Casino was used for the dancing and there on the stage, behind a screen of palms, was located the orchestra. Rugs, cushions and easy chairs were arranged on the sides of the room. The rooms in the clubhouse were utilized, the upper floor as dressing rooms while the guests were received on the first and supper was afterwards served there.

The attendance was as large as that at the first of the assemblies, held Christmas week. At that time, there were present many of the young people home from college for the holidays besides the regular subscribers. Of course, there were comparatively few of the college set who could come home for the dance but the subscribers were out in force and there were a number of guests present from out-of-town, many of them guests at the homes of the subscribers.

According to the promise of Charles E. Brooks, who has charge of the assemblies, the music began early in the evening and the young people flocked there with unusual promptitude and danced until 1 o'clock when the second of society's formal dances came to an end.

The patronesses for these series of dances are as follows: Mrs. Charles E Brooks, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. William T. Kaufman, Mrs. Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Henry M. Stockton and Mrs. H. P. Talmadge.

There must have been at least one hundred and fifty guests present during the evening and there were many handsome gowns worn. The four debutan'e of the season were all present together with many of the older set. The music was excellent and the second of the assemblies passed off as successfully as the first.

The list of subscribers is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Miss Lydia P. Ackerman, Miss Edith Areson, Siegfried E. Areson, Dr. F. C. Ard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bartindale, Miss Martha Borrum, Miss Alice Barlow, Miss Helen F. Bushnell, J. Whitney Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, Miss Fanny C. TO AID SWEET CHARITY.

VERY SUCCESSFUL SALE HELD BY CAUGHTERS OF THE CROSS.

Mrs. Charles A. Reed's House Thrown Open for the Use of the Circle—The Profits Will Amount to About $70.

One of the most successful social affairs held under the auspices of the Daughters of the Cross was that of Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Reed, 27 Myrtle avenue, when a tea and sale of homemade cakes and candies was given for charitable purposes. It was intended to hold the affair at the home of Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, but owing to the illness of her brother, a change was necessitated. and Mrs. Reed very hospitably opened her house, considering the very disagreeable weather the attendance was much larger than was expected, there being nearly one hundred and twenty-five persons present during the hours, 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Reed received the guests and was assisted by Mrs. F. H. Ball, Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Mrs. Geo. Rogers and Mrs. Herbert Crowe. In the dining room Mrs. J. H. Howell and Mrs. George D. Hallock were in charge, while Mrs. F. L. Clapp poured tea and Mrs. M. E. Dwight poured chocolate. They were assisted by Miss Howell, Miss Valiant, Miss Ball, Miss Milne and Miss Dwight, who served the beverages to the guests.

An attractive place was the library, where the sale of cakes and candies was held. Those in charge of the cakes were Mrs. Frank Bowley, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Charles Lyman. Mrs. Northrup, Mrs. Knox and Miss Rafferty had charge of the sale of candies.

There was no special attempt made in decoration, but a pleasing arrangement of choice roses and greens added to the general effect. An idea of the success of the affair can be learned when it is known that $30 was received at the door from silver offerings. This, together with the amount realized from the sale, gives to the Daughters of the Cross a profit of $75. This sum will be used in the general charity work carried on by the Circle which is supported at present four families, and contributing to the support of the city nurse. From a financial and social point of view the affair was in every particular a decided success and the women who compose the membership of the Circle are appreciative of the efforts of their many friend to assist them in their grand work. This is one of the oldest Circles and its members have a record for accomplishing much in there particular line Friday's effort still further proves the efficient management and zeal of those who are numbered among the members.

A DISTINGUISHED WAITER.

Frank Lorentz, Direct From Service in the Philippines, Now Attached to Hotel Kensington.

Proprietor Staats, of the Kensington Hotel, has just engaged a waiter for his grill room who is distinguished in more ways than one. A few days ago he arrived in New York from the Philippines, where he has been fighting for Uncle Sam. His name is Frank Lorentz, and his native land is Watertown, Wis. He has traveled extensively about the globe and is thoroughly conversant on all topics of National importance. While in the Philippines he was an aide on Gen. Joe Wheeler's staff, and he saw considerable fighting. He did not hear of Gen. Lawton's death until he arrived in New York. He is loud in his praise of Lawton. While in the Philippines he served in the Twenty-fourth U. S. Infantry, of which Major Edwards, bro ther of George Wharton Edwards, of this city, was also an officer. He says that the Filipinos have no use for the white man, but they went crazy over the U. S. colored troops.

Mr. Lorentz does not think much of the Philippines outside of Manila, but says that he would just as soon live in Manila as New York. He says that a man unversed in tact and skill for a distance of five miles from Manila, no treacherous are the natives. He thinks they are about the most tricky people he has ever met. Mr. Lorentz received several wounds, but none that were serious. He has in his possession several bullets and a number of relics which he brought home with him. He also served Uncle Sam in Cuba in Capron's Battery, First Artillery, and was well acquainted with young Capron and Hamilton Fish.

Need of a Sewer.

HAS A FINE RECORD.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts the Idol of the British Army.

Served Two Score Years in India and Won Many Notable Victories—His Courage Exceeded Only by His Modesty.

Throughout the length and breadth of the vast British empire there is no name that has become to such an extent a household theme as that of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, popularly known as "Bobs." The idol of officers, and especially of common soldiers, a man whose deeds and career have furnished the theme of many a stirring and patriotic verse, notably by Rudyard Kipling, Lord Roberts is regarded by the military authorities at Berlin, Vienna, Paris and St. Petersburg as the foremost and perhaps the only really capable living commander of the Victorian era, his celebrated march from Cabul to Candahar constituting one of the finest feats of English arms in modern times—a feat which called forth the most enthusiastic praise on the part of that past master of military science, Field Marshal Count Moltke.

"Bobs," says the Philadelphia Press, is the smallest holder of the queen's commission, being a mere pigmy as regards size. As a general rule small men, like small animals, are inclined to be self-assertive. But there is no soldier of the queen who is more free from this defect than the little field marshal, who is the most modest and unassuming of officers. Perhaps no stronger illustration of this can be given than is contained in his book, entitled "Forty Years in India." Although he is covered with orders and decorations bestowed upon him by a grateful sovereign and country, yet there is no trace of any insignia on the portrait which adorns the frontispiece of the book.

GEN. LORD ROBERTS.
(New Commander of Great Britain's Armies in South Africa.)

Like so many English officers, Lord Roberts may be said to have laid the foundation of his military career on the cricket field of Eton, and at 19 was already fighting the Afghans as a lieutenant of the Bengal horse artillery. Before he was five-and-twenty he had five horses shot under him in battle, and had received the honor of being mentioned in the dispatches, and last, but not least, had won that Victoria cross which constitutes the climax of every Englishman's ambition.

In launch Lord Roberts with characteristic modesty refrains from giving any description in his book as to how he won his Victoria cross, the only reference to the matter being a brief mention in a footnote of three lines, to the effect that it had been awarded to him, it may be just as well to state that it was conferred upon him not for one, but for several feats of conspicuous gallantry at the time of Khodagunge during the mutiny. In one instance he rescued a regimental flag from several Sepoys, attacking them single-handed and cutting two of them down, the others taking to flight. On another day he rescued a wounded native officer from several Sepoys, killing one of the latter on the spot by a sweep of the saber, which literally split the man's skull.

"Quick as lightning and tough as steel" used to be the description applied to Lord Roberts during his younger days out in India, and that he deserved the qualification thus accorded to him is shown by the fact that on one occasion he rode from Chamkanie to Eawal Pinde, a distance of 100 miles, over frightfully rough country, in a little less than 12 hours.

What has won for him more fame, however, than anything else was his march to Candahar. He had captured Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, after the massacre of the English envoy there, Sir Louis Cavagnari, when news was suddenly brought to him of the crushing defeat of Ayoob Khan, son of Maiwand, the routed forces which had lost their guns being compelled to seek refuge in Candahar, where they were besieged by Ayoob Khan.

Without a moment's hesitation Lord Roberts started with a force of 10,000 men from Kabul to relieve Candahar. For the space of three weeks this expedition disappeared entirely from history. At length it emerged from the trackless and for the most part waterless regions between Kabul and Candahar, and under the walls of the latter city fought a battle and won a brilliant victory, inflicting a crushing defeat upon the Afghans.

This took place in 1880, and before then he had been mentioned in the dispatches more than 27 times. There is no doubt that he would never have been able to accomplish this famous march from Kabul to Candahar had it not been for the devotion and blind confidence with which he managed to inspire his men, while as well as to

GREAT BOWLING DONE AT CRANFORD CASINO.

Defeated Park Club Twice in Three Games.

CRANFORD TEAM ON TOP.

THEIR LOWEST SCORE OF THE EVENING WAS 865.

Such a Pace Would Have Won the Trophy If Started Earlier—Parks Rolled in Great Form After the First Game—H. C. Ball Carried Off Individual Honors for Parks—Two Games Decided in Last Frames.

Just why the bowling team of the Cranford Casino happened to make such a remarkable showing against the Park Club, of Plainfield, in the three games rolled in The Daily Press Bowling League at Cranford, Thursday is hardto say. Such a pace as that, if started earlier in the tournament would have undoubtedly landed the Cranford team on top.

The first game saw Cranford in the lead at the start. So it went for four frames when the Parks began to improve, Johnson making a triple header and Hibbard a double. On the fifth and sixth frames the Parks led by five pins. The final result showed Cranford 61 pins to the good, three of the home team winding up with strikes.

For the first two frames of the second game the visitors remained on top by the majority of a single pin. Clean frames on the third and fourth for Cranford sent them ahead and there they stayed to the end, but it was close. Only six pins separated the teams on the seventh. At the windup it was still anybody's game. Measick, Dumont and Wilber all made strikes, Sharp a spare, while Bates had a split. Johnson wound up with three strikes. Cranford won by fourteen pins, 863 to 849.

The last game was equally exciting. The first frame shows the teams tied. Four strikes on the second for Cranford put them twelve ahead. The lead changed hands immediately and the Parks continued to hold it by a small majority to the end.

It was anybody's game on the last frame. Bates had a triple header to end with. A strike by Sharp on the windup with "good fellow" and the others would have changed the result. Sharp failed even to get his spare. Mr. Thiers also missed his but the game was won for Plainfield by ten pins, 865 to 845.

The scores in the three games were the highest for an entire series that have been rolled this year.

The individual scores were as follows:

PARK CLUB.

	1st game.	2d game.	3d game.
F. O. Ball	186	168	187
Johnson	203	178	162

FUNERAL OF J. W. SANDFORD

Services Conducted by Rev. W. H. Richards—Remains Put in Receiving Vault.

The funeral services of the late Joseph W. Sandford, Sr., were held Friday afternoon from the house, West Seventh street, at 3:30 o'clock, and there was a very large attendance of friends and relatives, many of whom were from New York, where the deceased was so well-known. Rev. Dr. W. H. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections, after which he talked for a short time concerning the uncertainty of life, and how essential it is to be ready when death comes. His words of comfort to the bereaved ones were impressive and touching.

During the services Charles L. Lewis sang effectively "The Holy City" and "Forever With the Lord." The floral display was very large and beautiful and comprised chiefly wreaths, crosses, pillows and bunches of roses. They completely covered the casket.

After the remarks by Dr. Richards an opportunity was given those present to view the remains, and following the service they were laid in the receiving vault at Hillside Cemetery.

Parks Against New Sewer.

The city of Rahway furnishes an outlet for the Cranford sewer system, and in order to forestall an increase in sewage, has filed a protest with the State Sewerage Commission against the proposed extension to Garwood to accommodate the new organ factory. It was upon the promise of sewer facilities that the company agreed to locate in the township.

Work of Education Society.

The Women's Association of the Congregational church held its monthly missionary meeting in the church parlors Thursday afternoon. A paper was read by Miss Anna Mandelow on "The Work of the Congregational Education Society."

TOWN OF KIMBERLEY

Origin of the Diamond City Described by Hon. John Studdy.

Cecil Rhodes from the First Worked Hard and Spent Little—Wilderness Becomes a Municipality in a Single Day.

Residing upon his ranch in southern California is a gentleman—Hon. John Studdy, late of Kimberley, South Africa, and an ex-colonial minister of finance—who, from a personal knowledge of the subject, describes how the first diamond was discovered, which led to the building up of the beleaguered city of Kimberley, and how Cecil Rhodes laid the foundation of his colossal wealth and power.

"It was in 1869," says Mr. Studdy, "that I first met Herbert Rhodes, the pioneer of the Rhodes family fortune, at his Tolworth farm, on the road to the rush to old De Beers, and in which latter place we worked together upon very friendly terms.

"In a short time Herbert Rhodes was followed by Frank, now Col. Rhodes, when the two brothers entered into a partnership working a good paying claim upon road No. 8.

"Both brothers were very popular at the diggings. Herbert was a strong, good, all-round man, and if he possessed a fault it was his big-hearted generosity, which, at times, carried him to lengths of expenditures perhaps not warranted by the extent of his find, and who surely deserved a better fate than that horrible one of being burned to death, which subsequently overtook him when the gold prospecting on the coast of Zanzibar.

"I had worked for over a year at old De Beers, with fairly satisfactory results, when I went out, in company with a friend, upon that memorable hunting trip, which led to the discovery of New Rush, or Kimberley, and incidentally to the making of the fortune and fame of Rt. Hon. Cecil Rhodes.

"It was on a Sunday afternoon, I remember, that we had pushed our way across a plain of high Tambuke grass, when in searching for some partridges I had brought down near a clump of mimora bushes, I noticed a brilliant at which I at once called the attention of my companion.

"On making a careful survey of the ground, seeing that it was of a similar formation to that of old De Beers, I sat down and sorted some of the clay dirt, when in less than five minutes I picked out as many small diamonds.

"Impressed with the belief that I had made a big find, I went over to the tent of an old Natal friend, Popham, by name, with whom we had been living at Herbert Rhodes. I told them of my discovery and we three at once decided to organize a stampede for the new field.

"Popham and Rhodes got away in less than two hours and I fully intended to accompany them, but, following out the wishes of my partner to remain with him at the old De Beers, sending on four Kaffir Zulus, however, to help stake out our claims.

"It was but a few hours after, through the instrumentality of a friend whom I had taken with me on the hunting trip, that the news was spread abroad through the camp; and before seven a. m. in the next morning old De Beers was deserted and in 24 hours later there were from 2,000 to 4,000 men on the ground on which now stands the city of Kimberley.

"In a few days the country all around that clump of mines, where I had shot the partridges, was staked out, and it was almost as the sport, right in the center of the crater of the extinct mud volcano now forming the celebrated De Beers mine, that Popham, Herbert Rhodes and myself secured three of the best-paying claims.

"It was about six months after this, when we had all moved to New Rush, that Cecil Rhodes, the youngest brother, unexpectedly turned up at the diggings.

"On the morning of his arrival in camp, Herbert Rhodes asked me to take his brother Cecil down and show him over the claims, where they were working from 18 to 20 Zulus. To this request I readily agreed, and while at the pit I picked out a small diamond from the sidewash and handed it to him—his first stone in South Africa.

"It was not long after Cecil Rhodes came upon the scene," Mr. Studdy continues, "that I foresaw that, sooner or later, there was going to be a split in the camp.

"In this prognostication I was eventually proved to be right, for Herbert first of all, sold out his interest to Cecil, and then Frank did the same; when Cecil, who would hardly spend enough on his food and clothes to keep body and soul decently together, began with the aid of his savings, to engineer those plans which have raised him to be one of the two foremost men in South Africa."

$7,000 DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF HIS FOOT.

Large Verdict Given to Geo Christiansen

AGAINST OLD EMPLOYER.

DECISION REACHED IN THE SUIT AGAINST JOHN LAMBERT.

Jury Was Out About Two Hours and Then Brought in a Verdict Unexpectedly Large—A Question of Veracity Between Plaintiff and Defendant—The Trial Lasted About Two Days.

For the loss of one leg as far as the knee, a jury of twelve men in the Union County Circuit Court at Elizabeth Friday awarded George Christiansen $7,000 damages. The verdict was in a suit brought by Christiansen against his former employer, John Lambert, of Dog Corners. While it was generally believed that Christiansen would secure a verdict, the one given was a general surprise and was regarded by many as excessive. It was generally supposed that damages would be given for any amount between $1,000 and $5,000.

The last of the witnesses for the defendant was examined Friday morning and then the lawyers summed up. Joseph E. Stricklen represented the plaintiff and Murphy & Blatz, of Plainfield, the defendant.

The plaintiff claimed that he had been ordered by his employer to put his foot into the patent hay press on which he was working and force the hay into it. While he was doing so, he claimed that the defendant, who was in charge of the horses that operated the press, started them and caused the press to crush his foot and leg.

Mr. Lambert claimed that he had not given orders to his employe to put his foot into the press and furthermore, he declared that Christiansen had given the signal to start the team. Lambert is deaf and cannot hear a word. He claimed that he stopped the horses as soon as the signal came to do so.

There were present at the time an Italian and a German but neither saw the accident.

The case went to the jury shortly after noon. At 3:15 o'clock, the jury announced that they had agreed and a verdict was given for the plaintiff for $7,000 damages.

The case will be appealed immediately by Murphy & Blatz, lawyers for the defense.

NEIGHBORS DISAGREE.

And All Because One Tried to Do the Other a Good Turn.

Alexander Richardson and Andrew Emmons, farmers of Branchburg township, who had been lifelong neighbors and close friends, were at war in Justice Sutphen's court in Somerville as the result of an act of kindness that failed through singular circumstances.

Some weeks ago Emmons wanted to move a large hog-pen. He asked Richardson to bring around his team of mules to assist him. Richardson complied with the request and his mules were made fast to one corner of the pen, which had been raised on rollers.

The mules gave a long pull and a strong pull, which snapped one of the timbers supporting the structure. The timber fell and broke the leg of one of the mules. The mule was killed to end its sufferings.

Richardson waited in vain for Emmons to come around to him, and then brought suit against Emmons to recover the value of the mule. After a short deliberation the jury awarded Richardson $36 for his loss.

THE TABLES TURNED.

Reform Officials May Be Arrested for Shirking Poll Tax.

The Cranford Township Committee at a recent meeting ordered the township attorney to take legal proceedings against Assessor T. A. Crane and Collector E. S. Crane and recover from them money paid by 4 former committee one year ago for assessing and collecting special county road taxes, which the reform committee claim was illegally paid those officials.

It is now learned that Treasurer McIntyre and Committeeman Thompson have not paid their poll taxes, the same having been returned with the list of delinquent taxpayers by the collector before Judge Mandell Dec. 20th last. The collector is now thinking of carrying out the law and having both officials arrested and taken to the county jail at Elizabeth for not paying their taxes.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Susan Hunt Ross, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ross, of Central avenue, and Louis Mulford Hummer, of Somerset street. Mr. Hummer was formerly employed on The Daily Press and is now in the composing room of the New York Sun. The marriage will take place in the early spring.

CRAZY MAN KILLED JUMPING ON TRAIN.

Escaped Twice From Those Who Were Watching Him.

HAPPENED AT DUNELLEN.

PATRICK GRACE, OF ELIZABETHPORT THE VICTIM.

Went to Dunellen to Attend a Wedding, and There His Mind Went Wild—Fled, Pursued From Jumping on Fast Train in the Afternoon, but Escaped at Midnight Again—He Had Been in an Asylum.

Patrick Grace, a section boss employed by the Central Railroad at Elizabethport, attempted to board a fast freight train at Dunellen early Friday morning and received injuries from which he died two hours afterwards.

Mr. Grace, who was a cousin of Mrs. John Cooper, came to Dunellen to attend the wedding of Mrs. Cooper's daughter, which took place Wednesday afternoon. He had been slightly demented for sometime and some months ago was an inmate of an asylum.

Wednesday evening Grace showed symptoms of letting out of his mind and Dr. Brakeley was called to attend him. The family of Mr. Cooper kept close watch of the unfortunate man, who was given a room on the second floor of their residence on Madison avenue.

Thursday afternoon Grace became worse and was the more closely watched as it was feared he would commit some rash act. At about 5 o'clock he eluded those who were attending him and jumped from a second story window. He was clad only in his undergarments and one sock. Grace made his way to the railroad station, where he attempted to board a passing train.

He was prevented from doing so by the employes of the company about the station, who finally assisted him to his home. Dr. Brakeley was again called to attend him. The physician gave Grace an opiate and he became quiet.

About 12 o'clock Grace again escaped from the house and ran to the railroad. Before he could be prevented from doing so, he attempted to board the fast Baltimore freight, which passes the Dunellen station about 12:43 o'clock. He was hurled to one side of the track and fearfully injured. When picked up it was found that his left leg and hip were frightfully crushed and he was also bruised about the body besides being injured internally. Grace was carried to the office of Undertaker W. C. Runyon, where he lingered in an unconscious state until 3:30 o'clock when he died. The body was later taken to the home of John Cooper to be prepared for burial. The unfortunate man was about 35 years of age and unmarried.

LEAGUERS GATHERED.

Epworth League of Grace M. E. Church Entertained Leaguers in a Social Way Friday Evening.

The Epworth Leaguers of the Grace M. E. church prepared last Friday to entertain their fellow Leaguers from this and surrounding towns in a social manner. Invitations were sent to all the Leagues between Westfield and Dunellen but previous engagements kept several of the Leagues from sending any delegations.

The social was held in the Grace M. E. church and was well attended. After a prayer by Rev. Mr. Jamison, of Dunellen, President-elect C. J. A. Heywood, of the entertaining League, spoke a few words of welcome. A response was made by Harry Gue, president of the League of the First M. E. church.

A programme followed which included recitations by Miss Jamison, of Dunellen, piano solo by Miss Florence Spaulding, of Bound Brook, and a vocal solo by Mrs. G. W. Gardner, of Plainfield. Refreshments and a social hour followed.

THE PRINCIPAL CREDITOR.

A Wholesale Confectioner's Suit Caused Assignment of J. J. Stahl.

The facts concerning the assignment made Saturday evening by Julius J. Stahl are that Mr. Chilese, a wholesale confectioner, of New York, is the principal creditor, although Mr. Stahl assigned for the benefit of all his creditors, share-and-share alike. Lawyer J. P. D. Kirch was employed by Mr. Stahl to look after his interests, and a disinterested party, W. G. Dibble, of Somerset street, has been put in charge. Mr. Stahl has decided not to re-enter the bakery and confectionery business again.

Magnificus Elect.

At Friday evening's meeting of the Mogullions, the following officers were elected: Master magnificus, Clarence Leland; senior magnificus, G. R. Pierson, Jr., junior magnificus, E. M. Leisz; cust gradicus, Henry Lieflus; quill driver, T. W. Kuhl; worthy scops, Henry Hindwein; inside sinooze, James Forestell; outside sinooze, P. G. Danringer.

GREAT INTEREST IN THE STREET WIDENING.

Hearing By The Borough Council Largely Attended.

THE PROJECT IS FAVORED.

ONLY A FEW ARE OPPOSED TO THE IMPROVEMENT.

Aggressive and Pointed Remarks Were Heard From Both Sides—Justice David Smalley was One of the Principal Objectors as He Thought the Borough was Traveling too Rapidly—Signers Secured.

For the first time in many months there was an exciting time in the borough Thursday, the occasion of it being the reception accorded Mayor Smalley, Councilmen Valiant, Rogers, Bartle, Coddington, and Borough Counsel Reed, by people of the borough who are more or less interested in the widening of Somerset street from the county line to Jackson avenue. By 8 o'clock the hour for which the public hearing was called, the room was filled to overflowing and people were standing up.

Wit, humor and pathos was evidenced. Every minute the audience was held spell bound by the eloquence of Mayor Smalley or Counsel Reed, and the next minute they were thrown into laughter by the jocular remarks of Justice David Smalley, Former Chief Marshal Wm. N. Pangborn and Peter A. Emmons. It was a meeting noted for a wide and general expression of opinion, all of great advantage to those present. On two occasions Justice Smalley and J. A. Blatz had to be called to order for introducing the Watchung avenue opening, and thereby causing Counsel Reed to take the opportunity he had been looking for to explain that he was in no way to blame for the unjust criticism passed upon the work of opening the street.

When Mayor Smalley called the meeting to order he explained the object for which it was held, and then Clerk Frank Rowley read a few communications. One was from P. C. Jennings who stated most emphatically that it was an unwise thing to talk of widening Somerset street, even though the borough was rolling in wealth. He protested against Charles F. Pond also protested against it. Mrs. Lena Hoester communicated with the Council and said that she would dedicate five feet of her property toward the widening, and Elston M. French for J. Harper Smith, of Somerville, informed the Council that the necessary five feet in front of his property between the Peter Wooden property and that occupied by Dr. Mattison, would be dedicated. Dr. Eglis also informed the Council that he gave his consent.

The reading of these communications was followed by a statement by Mayor Smalley who, at length, informed the citizens present of the project.

Senator Reed followed and told how the work could be done. He said that there is a law whereby a street can be widened under an ordinance by the securing of signers of property-owners. The proceedings would be similar to that in the case of the opening of Watchung avenue, by having commissioners appointed to assess benefits and damages. There was also another way, the Senator stated, that of having the property owners dedicate the necessary amount of land, thereby doing away with the expense of appointing commissioners and the legal proceedings.

Councilman Clark said that the actual cost of widening would be about $1,000 or a trifle more, the storm sewer would cost about $3,500 and the balance, about $1,500, would be necessary for macadamizing the street. The expense he said would increase each taxpayers tax a trifle over four cents on every hundred.

Wm. N. Pangborn, representing some property-owners, recited the needs of the improvement, but he seriously objected to anyone encroaching on the building line. He said the people to be represented would dedicate their property on a building line was established and strictly adhered to.

The next important speaker was Justice Smalley. At great length he recited the enormous expense the improvement would be to the borough, and how everyone is now taxed to death. He wondered how in heavens so many people in the borough managed to keep out of the poor house. He believed the chief object in widening Somerset street was to allow owners of fast horses more room so they would not collide with telegraph poles, trees, etc

J. P. Emmons and A. E Kenney spoke in favor of the widening. The latter saw no reason why the people of the borough should not be progressive and move along. He thought it wise to widen the street, remove unsightly poles, posts, etc., and keep up the march of improvements.

S St. John McCutchen, president of the Board of Education, spoke of the condition of the street in front of the school and what a benefit the improvement would be there. He thought the main street to the borough should be a creditable one, which it is not now.

J. A. Blatz favored a storm sewer, but thought it should take in all the territory from the county line to Greenbrook road, as there is often more water near his place than anywhere else. He thought the improvement would work a hardship on some, and the borough should go careful. However, he was in favor of the widening.

Mr. Clark desired to have a recess of ten minutes at this time for the purpose of securing signers favoring the widening, but at Mr. Valiant's suggestion he withdrew his motion to save time.

Justice Smalley again took the floor and commented that petitions be circulated for the purpose of getting people to sign in favor. Mayor Smalley objected and said that petitions were not much of a success except in cases of bigamy. This was followed by the receipt of verbal objections from Mr. Eggerding and Mrs. Verdon. Surrogate Spencer spoke in favor of the project, providing it did not mean a "special assessment" on the borough. P. A. Emmons, who spoke from the point of view of a disinterested person, said that he did not favor the widening, but thought the storm sewer would be a good thing. He also said that Mr. O'Reilly, of New York, owner of the property opposite the public school, would not sign. He valued it at over $7,000.

Mr. Reed closed the speechmaking by rehearsing the transaction between the Council and the trolley company, when the former desired to get the most advantageous terms and the people forced them to grant a franchise for the small sum of $250 a year.

After the meeting an opportunity was given the property owners present to sign the map declaring the necessary five feet. The following signed: W. R. Cosgrove, Lena Hoester, W. L. Smalley, N. B. Smalley, two pieces of property, W. G. Debele, J. O. Emmons, Dr. Zeglio, H. N. Spencer and Henry DeMott. In all there are forty-six properties affected, including the public school property for which the Board of Education has a right to sign. That body will no doubt take some action at its next meeting.

EXHIBIT OF THE W.C.T.U.

SPACE HAS BEEN SECURED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

Local Union is Making an Effort to Interest Its Members to the Extent of Giving Money to Aid Success of the Plan

The World's W. C. T. U has fortunately secured an important space at the Paris Exhibition, April 15th to November 5th, 1900, thus affording a valuable opportunity to present the claims of the union to representatives of the nations who will be in attendance.

At the exhibition given in Paris in 1889, the late Miss Willard and Mrs. Nichols, of this country, organized an exhibit, and the countries and colonies affiliated to the union in all parts of the world gave practical help, and several British friends did much to promote the success of the undertaking. The union pavilion was pronounced to be an "oasis in a desert." Many declared it the only witness that stood for God and things sacred in a place where they were not officially recognized. During much of the time an average of one thousand persons a day passed through the building. Each one was curious, and they were taught the lessons inculcated by the W. C. T. U.

Lady Henry Somerset, in a recently published article, says as follows concerning the coming exhibition: "We hope, if possible, to have a temperance cafe in the pavilion where temperance drinks will be sold, thus showing the practical side of the work. The fifty five countries and colonies affiliated to the union will send literature in different languages for free distribution, but we shall require a special fund to print millions of temperance leaflets for free distribution, and thus fulfill one of the last wishes of Miss Willard who prayed that we should use every effort to have a pavilion at the coming exhibition."

In view of the above facts the local union is making an effort to interest its members to the extent of giving money to help in the execution of the plan, and twenty-five cent offerings, handed to the treasurer, Miss Mary French, West Seventh street, will be forwarded to the treasurer of the World's W. C. T. U.

Death of John H. Lord.

John H. Lord, banker, farmer and philanthropist, died of pneumonia at his home in East Somerville Thursday. He was born in New York city in 1845. Twenty years ago he succeeded his father, Haynes Lord, in the burlap business in New York. He was a member of the Somerville Board of Commissioners, president of the Somerville Second National Bank, vestryman of St. John's Church, and the founder of the suburb of East Somerville. He leaves a widow but no children.

NOTES FROM MANILA.

Philippine Life Has Some Pleasant and Delightful Phases.

Chinese Peddlers Go from House to House and Make Your Chocolate While You Wait—The Cocoa Bean Industry.

Here in Manila they make your chocolate while you wait. Right in the house a Chinaman comes with his basket and rolls the brushed cocoa bean and sugar, and then makes a supply of chocolate that is far superior and more palatable and cheaper than the commercial brand sold in the Chicago stores.

When the Chinaman comes he lays aside his hat and shirt, and, stripped to the waist and barefooted, he begins his work. In the basket is the chocolate or cacao bean from which the rancid oil has been extracted and which all long ago has anointed the hair of some Filipino belle or lighted some Filipino home. To the bean first comes on the board bitter and brackish. With a rolling pin the Chinaman grinds them into a fine powder. This takes time. When it is done, he opens another basket and dips out the sugar for the sweetening and the final mixture. The sugar is what would probably trade as "coffee C" if it were in commercial circles. Like the bean, however, it grows on the island. Industriously the Chinaman rubs, and gradually the chocolate forms on the bottom of the board and drips off in sticky sweetness into the basket beneath. The family gathers about to sample the product and the Chinaman stops to smoke a cigarette while judgment is being passed. Cups of the beverage are handed around and all "taste." If it is not sweet enough, the manufacturer throws more sugar on his board and drops in another pinch of vanila and cinnamon for the flavoring. When it is "right" he goes to work and for several hours rubs away at his task. The deposit below the rolling pin is ingredient and mixture both soft and moist, while above it is to all appearances a dry powder and sugar. The little ones gather about, and if there is an older daughter perhaps she sits down on the floor in front of the Chinaman and watches the growing pile.

Such, writes a Chicago Record correspondent, was the case in the house of a Spaniard to-day when I called. The young lady sat there and idly watched the manufacture of the edible, and when a little brother came she took his head in her lap and he lay there with her, watching the Filipino and Chinaman rub and rub the sugar into the other ingredients. It was insisted that I should sample the finished article, and I found it very good.

The chocolate, before it is chocolate, is cacao bean, and the cacao bean is a speculative crop. It is said that it takes four years to raise a crop. The plants grow only ten feet in height. They are subject to insect attacks, and when the fruit is nearly ripe and ready to pick, a windstorm may come along and break it to the ground. Not until the early seventeenth century the work of raising cacao began in the Philippines. Then priests brought the bean here from Mexico. In Mexico the tree grows 25 or 30 feet tall, and the crop is not always an uncertain quantity. Here, however, only those planters who can afford to lose a crop oftener than they harvest one raise the cacao bean.

The fourth year the fruit comes, and when ripe it is filled with seeds that are not unlike almonds in shape, growing in a pulp like the seeds of a watermelon. These seeds are separated from the pulp by hand and dried in the sun; then the oil in the cacao bean is further dried. Then it is ground into powder and the oil extracted.

Then it is shipped to Spain or anywhere that there is a market, or it is sold in the markets in Manila. There is also in Manila where the chocolate is ground and seasoned with vanila and cinnamon and molded into cakes, wrapped in tinfoil and pretty blue paper and sold.

But the picturesque way is to rub it with sugar and vanilla and cinnamon and make one's chocolate under one's own roof and before one's own eyes.

Orange Free State Arms.

The coat of arms of the Orange Free State shows an orange tree in the middle of the field; on one side stands a lion, on the other a lamb. The motto beneath is "Freedom, Immigration, Prosperity, Courage." The emblem of the lion and lamb has a Scriptural reference to the peace and harmony within its borders, and does not glance at the geographical position of the republic between the descendants of the British lion and the pastoral Boers of the Transvaal, as an American joker might assume.

A Carpenter's Journey.

If a man of 64 could have one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life it would have traveled in that period no less than 5,180,800 miles.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MEN IN ANNUAL SESSION.

Interesting Report of President Stephen Cahoone.

RESULTS OF A YEAR'S WORK

THE Y. M. C. A. IS IN A FLOURISHING CONDITION.

Few Board of Directors Chosen to Hold Office for Three Years—Brief Address Given by State Secretary Donald MacColl on State Convention—Thanks to City Newspapers and Cold Storage Co.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association was held last Thursday. The small hall at the association building was well filled with the members and friends when President Stephen Cahoone called the meeting to order and read a short chapter from the Bible.

Prayer was offered by Edward L. Suffern and the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting. Then the various reports were submitted and read. The first report was that of President Cahoone, which was the most important and exhaustive, and to all present it proved highly interesting. The following is an epitome of the work done by the association during the past year as submitted by the president for publication:

The term "Christian Association," emphasizes the character of our organization, and the distinctively religious features of our work have the preeminence in all plan and effort. The religious work, during the past year, has been given the attention which it rightfully claims, and has been steadily carried on in all its departments. There have been held 52 meetings for men on Sunday afternoons, with an average attendance of 94, and 16 meetings for boys with average attendance 98. Preparatory services have preceded the gospel meetings, and during the year 43 other special prayer services have been held, mostly in our building, and many of our workers have taken part in religious meetings in Plainfield and elsewhere. Three classes for Bible study have been maintained; that taught by our General Secretary having an average attendance for the year of 8, and another under the charge of our Physical Director, Mr. Heywood, attendance of 9. Recently there has been organized a junior class for Bible study conducted by Philip Suffern, which has had five sessions with an average attendance of 18.

The report of the educational committee shows a total enrollment of 60 in the evening classes; 44 different students, and an average attendance for the year of 28.

The junior work department has received quite an impetus from the State Conference for Boys, held in Plainfield October 20-22, on which occasion 127 delegates were present. One result of this convention is a Bible class, which has met five times, with an average attendance of 15, also an increased interest in this work on the part of the older boys serving on the committee.

Mr. Heywood, our physical director, reports this branch of Association effort in a prosperous condition. Altogether 195 men and 44 boys have used the privileges of this department and four classes in the gymnasium, having a total average of 66. Mr. Heywood has made 80 physical examinations, and given special treatment to six men under the direction of their physicians.

That our building is fully appreciated and used by the people of Plainfield, is evidenced by the fact that sixteen different organizations, mostly religious and philanthropic, have occupied our hall and rooms during the year free of charge.

A literary society was organized last year, has held six meetings with an average attendance of twenty five, and the debates have been interesting and profitable; also during the year the Bible study normal class is most promising. Our "Star Course" of entertainments, to which all our members are admitted free, improves with age, and grows more popular each year.

Our general secretary is at the building every day and part of Sunday, and naturally is the one to receive any who are seeking help of any kind or his personal advice and encouragement. Both Mr. Manning and his assistant, Mr. Davis, are occupied largely in attending personal to the varied wants of the men who come to our building. During the year just closed thirty six men have been directed to employment and pleasant boarding places. Many who come to our city are strangers, and would without such direction often make their home in places where the surroundings and influences are not of the right character. Thirty-one situations have been secured, permanent and temporary, for those out of work, and thirty others have been assisted in various ways. Those seeking spiritual light have been dealt with by our Gospel services, and at other meetings, as well as at their homes and elsewhere. Some have been encouraged to sign the temperance pledge, and much personal work has been done with men addicted to the drink habit, while others in need or in sickness have been visited at their homes, prayed with and counselled in various ways.

Our treasurer's report, which gives our attention to a full and complete receipts for the year, $7,126.14, disbursements, $7,026.62, balance on hand, $103 01. In addition to other demands on our resources, which could not be anticipated, we paid last year a large amount in taxes. It seems unjust to tax an institution like ours that is supported so largely by the contributions of generous friends in our city, and all of whose receipts are used to carry on this work for the benefit of the young men in Plainfield, and indirectly of the city itself. By the work done by the community certainly tends to diminish crime and vice, and promotes all the forces which make good citizenship. This Young Men's Christian Association has always stood for the highest type of citizenship, and spiritually its ministrations have extended far beyond the circle of its own membership. It has been a Christian home, a place of refuge for many a friendless and discouraged man, a helper to many a stranger coming to our city seeking employment or friendly counsel.

Stephen Cahoone,
President.

Then followed the report of the Religious Work Committee, which was read by Harry Gee. H. C. Munger read the report of the Educational Work Committee and Physical Director Heywood gave a verbal report of the work accomplished in the department under his supervision. Other reports were read by O. S. Rogers from the Boys' Work Committee and one on the Committee on Vacancies, prepared by R. H. Radford, was read by the recording secretary.

The following directors to serve three years were then elected: Stephen Cahoone, Nelson Runyon, A. B. Beers, H. J. Martin, E. L. Bonney, William D. Murray. The directors will chose the officers at the next regular meeting of the Association.

Donald MacColl, State secretary of the Y. M. C. A., made a brief address which was followed by a social hour of the association and the approaching State convention, soon to be held at Trenton.

Before the meeting closed, upon motion of W. D. Murray, a vote of thanks was tendered the Plainfield newspapers for the interest shown in publishing notices of the association's affairs. A. B. Meredith also offered a resolution of thanks to the Plainfield Ice and Storage Company for ice furnished the association for several years.

J. J. STAHL ASSIGNS.

Somerset Street Baker Unable to Continue His Business—Will Debele is Assignee.

Julius J. Stahl, of Somerset street, who has for some time past conducted a bakery and confectionery store, made an assignment Thursday to Wm. G. Debele, who resides opposite. It cannot be learned at present who the chief creditor is or the amount of liabilities and assets. The business will be continued for the present by Mr. Debele until the affairs are straightened out. The many friends of Mr. Stahl will be sorry to learn of his failure, and they hope that he will be able to continue business at an early date.

A FREAK ADMINISTRATION.

Cranford Disgusted at the Reform Township Committee.

The latest economy of the noted Reform Township Committee of Cranford was a refusal to buy blotting pads for the use of the public schools. Several citizens undertook to supply them and others inscribed upon them such uncomplimentary opinions of the administration that the committee put tripple locks on the doors of the offices. Now no one can get into the rooms except when the committee is there.

The Land of Breed and Butter is the title of a new illustrated pamphlet just issued by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, relating more especially to the land along the new line it is now building through Bon Homme and Charles Mix counties in South Dakota. It will be found very interesting reading. A copy will be mailed free on receipt of 2 cent stamp for postage. Address: Geo. H. Heafford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill. 1 13 2-0

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

WORK OF STOKERS.

Feeding the Furnaces of a Warship Is About the Hardest Task Man Can Perform.

Take a trip down to the shelter deck of one of our cruisers. When you enter you are nearly taken off your feet by the sudden gust of burning hot air—disinfectants holds you in its embrace; the heat is terrific and the hallucinating. All around you are parts of the throbbing engines moving insistently, some of them slowly, others so quickly that the eye cannot follow them.

Descend yet further. Glancing at a thermometer, you see that the heat has risen another 10 degrees, and as the present time 97 steam cylinders are active, your guide tells you. You crawl down an iron ladder; darkness is around you; only here and there a small electric flame. You are just 25 feet below the water line.

You reach the very bottom of the ship and face the fiery eyes of the long row of furnaces, each "eye" three feet in diameter and emitting unbearable heat. The small space between the iron wall and the row of furnaces is enlivened by a hundred or more men swinging great shovels and irons.

Clad only in fragments of trousers and a woolen shirt, the brawny stokers work with clockwork precision. Their bodies are naked, and these are covered with soot a quarter of an inch thick—so thick that the perspiration, running from their heads in streams, leaves no marks. Every half minute each furnace must be fed, which means a temperature of the prevailing heat by about 80 degrees, and the normal temperature is 122.—N. Y. Journal.

NEW CATTLE MARKER.

It Is Intended to Do Away with the Cruel Method of Branding Now in General Use.

A new method of branding cattle has been devised by Walter A. Cameron, of Stacey, Mont. By this means the animals are indelibly marked instead of being burned. The patented device is shown in the cut from the Scientific American.

The branding instrument consists of two levers pivoted together and provided with jaws. On the lower jaw a soft metal impression block is secured, and on the upper jaw a block is secured, which is provided with a communicating by means of a tube with a reservoir containing the indelible fluid. The tube incloses a plunger operated from the upper lever and is provided with lateral ports at its upper and lower ends. The lower ports permit the liquid to flow into the chambered block when the plunger is raised, and the upper ports permit the liquid above the plunger to be forced back into the reservoir.

Soft pad-carrying plates are removably secured to the chambered block.

BRANDING BY FIRE DONE AWAY WITH.

The symbols consist of letters, figures or other characters, and are formed of tubular pins.

In using the instrument the levers are operated to separate the jaws. By means of this device the plunger will first be drawn upward to permit the liquid from the reservoir to flow into the chamber. After placing the impression block carried by the lower jaw against the outer side of the animal's skin the levers are operated to force the tubular pins into the ear, thereby causing the plunger to inject liquid into the wound.

A spring within the tube holds the plunger normally below the lower ports, so that the liquid will not escape when the device is not in use.

Glass by Electricity.

A lamp chimney manufacturer in Anderson, Ind., has discovered a new process of melting the sand used in glass-making. While passing through his plant he saw a globe on an arc light break, and a piece of glass fell on the carbon. The heat melted it until it was reduced to a liquid. He directed the construction of a big vat with sides and bottom composed of carbon, over which he could turn a current. An arc was started by means of the current through this vat. It worked perfectly, and the best molten glass is being turned out in as many seconds as it required hours for the old fools to melt it. The process has been patented.

New Artificial Paving Stone.

A new artificial paving stone is made in Germany. It is composed of coal tar, sulphur and chlorate of lime. The tar is boiled with the sulphur and warmed thoroughly and the lime is added in the sunlight soon. After cooling this product is broken fine and is added with ground glass or blast furnace slag. The blocks are then subjected to a pressure of 2,500 pounds to the square inch.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING ON KENSINGTON AVENUE

Marriage of Miss Alba L. Townsend and Walter H. Howe.

AT RESIDENCE OF S. M. DAVIS

CEREMONY PERFORMED UNDER A FLORAL ARCH.

Rooms Were Prettily Decorated in Pink and White—Couple Were Unattended Save for Four Ushers—Ceremony Performed by Rev. Dr. Lemuel Pressey, of Brooklyn—Party and Reception Private.

Simple, but very pretty, was the wedding ceremony of Miss Alba Laura Townsend, of this city, and Walter Hunt Howe, of Greenpoint, L. I., at the home of S. M. Davis, of 429 Kensington avenue, last Thursday. Miss Townsend was formerly from Brewster, N. Y., and has lately been making her home with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Davis. A merry party of relatives and friends were present at the wedding and at the informal reception that followed.

The parlor where the ceremony was performed, was elaborately decorated with palms and potted plants and southern smilax while carnations and roses were arranged to give color to the general effect. They were pink and white. A floral arch was built in one corner of the room and beneath it, the young couple were wedded. The beautiful church service was used, Rev. Dr. Lemuel Pressey, of Brooklyn performing the ceremony.

The bride looked charming in a gown of white satin. Her bouquet was composed of lilies-of-the-valley. The groom wore the conventional evening dress. They were unattended save for the four ushers, William Townsend, of this city, a brother of the bride; Roswell Howe, of New York, a brother of the groom; Benjamin Nichols, of Brewster and Harold Davis, of this city, a cousin of the bride. The bride was given away by Mr. Davis.

Immediately at the close of the ceremony, the reception was held. The hall and other rooms were prettily decorated for the occasion. A collation was served. After receiving the congratulations of their friends, the newly wedded couple departed for New York. They left for the south today amid the usual shower of rice and will be absent for several weeks. They will then make their home at 158 Decatur street, Brooklyn.

The groom is a son of Daniel H. Howe, of North Salem, N. Y., and is the junior member of the firm of Brown & Howe, of Brooklyn, dealers in masons' materials.

The out-of-town guests present at the wedding and reception were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Griffiths, Miss Estelle E. Sprague, Miss Lydia P. Field, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Moore, the Misses Barlow, Miss Susie M. F. Howe, Mrs. O. F. Howe, Mrs. Gaitskell S. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Greene, A. B. Mooney, Edgar Barlow, A. J. M. Cullum, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Lathrop, Mr. and Mrs. George Rowland, James W. Lathrop, of New York; Miss Bessie Nichol, of Brewster, N. Y.; Miss Harriet Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page, of East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Disbrough, of Weston, N. J.; Miss Ella B. Lee, of Trenton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Roden, Dr. Spyglee Duryea, N. Y.; Miss Linda Forshee, of Millstone; Mrs. Gertrude W. Vanderwort, Miss Elsie K. Vanderwort, of Weston, N. J., and J. P. Staats, of Millstone.

ENTERTAINED AT EUCHRE.

Thursday Evening Club was the Guest of Miss Harriet Plimer.

Miss Harriet Plimer entertained the members of the Thursday Evening Euchre Club, of which she is a member, at the home of P. A. Dunham, of Madison avenue, Thursday. Euchre was the principal event of the evening. There were five tables. Prizes were won by Miss Ernestine C. Smith and Frank Smith.

The guests were then invited into the dining room where refreshments were served. Mrs. Frank H. Smith and Miss Griswold presided at the tables. Music closed a pleasant evening. The club will be next entertained by Miss Ella Titsworth, of West Ninth street.

Microbes Kills Them.

It turns out that there are no disease germs in the telephone, as they show them. No case of contagion has been traced to the use of the telephone, a scientific commission in Paris having thoroughly investigated the matter, as many persons had become alarmed over adverse reports. Hence, it would seem as if electricity was the "knock out" drops for microbes.—(Dover, N. J. "Index," Jan. 9th, 1900.)

PLAINFIELDERS INTERESTED

PROMOTER STARTED THE DIVIDED MORTGAGE PLAN.

The Scheme Got the Association Into Trouble by Loaning It Up With Second Mortgages Upon Which Nothing Could be Realized—Somerville Man is Now President of Concern.

The members of the New Jersey Central Building and Loan Association, of whom there are several in Plainfield, are considerably agitated over the financial condition of the association. As a result of a complaint of some of the stockholders of the Bavonne branch to the Chancellor the affairs of the association are being wound up. It is not believed that the members will lose more than 50 per cent. of their holdings, but that will depend upon the manner in which the affairs can be settled, and it may be several years before they can realize much.

The home office of the association is at Newark. It was organized about three years ago, and Hon. James J. Bergen, of Somerville, was elected president. The association was organized through the efforts of J. Dickson Whitlaw,a promoter of building loans, and he promised great results. His scheme was the divised mortgage plan of loaning money. If a member wanted to borrow from the association $2,000 he would find somebody who had $1,500 to loan. Only $500 of the association's money would be used and $1,500 of the other lender's. The latter would be given a first mortgage on the property for the amount of his claim and the association would take a second mortgage for the $500. The borrower would pay into the association, however, just the same as if all the money came from its treasury. In this way the association would be realizing about 20 per cent. by the transaction. This plan, however, was one of the things which got the association in trouble, for it was soon loaded up with a lot of second mortgages upon which nothing could be realized.

Mr. Bergen did not continue as president very long, as he found it interfered with his business, going to Newark every week. He was succeeded by A. P. Sutphen, of Somerville. Things went along satisfactory for a time and branches were organized at Bayonne, Morristown, Long Branch, Lakewood, Perth Amboy, Bloomfield, Plainfield, Somerville and other places. Then some of the members became dissatisfied and it was thought about a year ago that the affairs of the association would have to be wound up. Whether was receiving a big salary and offices had been rented in Newark at an expense of $75 a month.

Finally some of the stockholders got together and decided that they would try and bolster up the institution, cut down expenses and save the members from loss if possible. The board of directors was supplanted by a new board.

About three months ago three members of the Bayonne branch filed a bill in chancery asking that a receiver be appointed and setting forth, at length, the condition of the association. An expert sanctioned by the Department of Banking and Insurance went over all the business at their instigation. In the bill it was claimed that while the annual report submitted by Litchmat December 31, 1896, showed a surplus over and above liabilities of $13 373 34 and that there were outstanding assets of loans and mortgages amounting to $32 415, that upon examination of affairs Litchman admitted the statement was erroneous and that the loans and mortgages only amounted to $30,415 and that there was really a deficiency of $727 66. Other irregularities and bad management were detailed in the bill.

James L. Griggs, of Somerville, represented the association in the matter of the receivership and he procured the appointment of S. R. Farrington, one of the board of directors, to act with Judge Harris, of Bayonne, as receivers.

Vice-Chancellor Emery expressed himself as perfectly satisfied with the action of the last board of directors when the circumstances had been explained to him. The Vice-Chancellor said it was evident that these business men had neglected their own affairs in order to help bring the association through without loss. He said he would give the men appointed by him three or four years to wind up the affairs if they thought it best for all interested. Mr. Griggs thinks that the assets will be disposed of to the best advantage possible and that the members will not lose over 50 per cent.

HAS NO FRANCHISE.

New York Officials Say They Will Stop the Operating of the Whitehall Street Ferry.

After operating without a franchise for nearly two and a half years, the Central Railroad of New Jersey will be called upon by the New York city authorities to discontinue its line between Jersey City and Whitehall street.

When the Central Railroad Company began running its boats between Whitehall street and Jersey City, in August, 1897, it had not been announced that any ferry privilege was to be disposed of, and no other companies had an opportunity to bid for the privilege. This ferry was operated for six or eight months, however, without causing special comment, and when inquiry was set on foot it was learned that the railroad company started the ferry on an assurance that a franchise soon would be granted.

Tammany officials recently have evinced an unwillingness to allow the ferry longer to be operated without a franchise.

Representatives of the railroad company have indicated a willingness to pay for a franchise provided one should be passed by the Municipal Assembly.

Corporation Counsel Whalen yesterday said:

"This ferry is being operated without a franchise, and while it might be unfortunate to interfere no company or individual should be permitted to operate a ferry without first obtaining a franchise. The fact that no legal franchise has been granted makes it necessary for me, in the interests of the city, to take steps to restrain the company from longer operating the ferry. I shall take such steps at once."

SCHENCK WILL BE NEXT COUNTY JUDGE.

County Committee Caucus Favored His Candidacy.

NO CHANCE FOR BARTINE.

JAMES L. GRIGGS CHOSEN FOR COUNTY PROSECUTOR.

Meeting of Republican County Executive Committee Held at Somerville Saturday Afternoon — First Ballot Showed Overwhelming Feeling in Favor of Messrs. Schenck and Griggs.

There is no doubt at all now that Governor Voorhees will present the names of Lewis H. Schenck for County Judge, and James L. Griggs for County Prosecutor, both of Somerset county, to the State Senate, and ask that the appointments be confirmed. And there is also no doubt but that the Senate will immediately confirm them. The action of the Republican county executive committee Saturday afternoon in declaring themselves in favor of these two candidates by an overwhelming vote practically ended the contest.

The meeting Saturday afternoon was called by Senator Charles A. Reed to get the consensus of opinion of the members of the county committee. Senator Reed, it was understood, favored Mr. Schenck for Judge and Mr. Griggs for Prosecutor. There are twenty-four members of the committee, and they were all present during the afternoon. The candidates were also members and naturally took no part in the proceedings.

Regarding the choice of a County Judge the strong fight put up by Judge Bartine, a Democrat, for reappointment, was the only possibility against Schenck. A ballot was taken which showed eighteen for Schenck and two for Bartine. The choice of Schenck was immediately made unanimous.

There were three names mentioned for the prosecutorship and the ballot on that office was as follows: Griggs, 18; Suydam, 2; Reger, 1. The choice of Griggs was immediately made unanimous.

Senator Reed told a reporter Monday morning that there was no question as to who he would recommend. It would certainly be the man chosen in the caucus Saturday afternoon. As the Senator is the recognized leader in the county, there is no doubt but that the Governor will stand by his recommendation and present the names of Messrs. Schenck and Griggs to the Senate at once, probably this evening.

S. D. DRAKE WAS HOST.

Plainfield Social Club Members Were Entertained by Their New President.

Silas Dewey Drake covered himself all over with the glory again Saturday when he tendered a trolley ride and dinner to the members of the Plainfield Social Club, formerly known as the Asbestos Club, in honor of his election to the membership of the club.

The members gathered at the clubrooms in the morning at 11 o'clock and from there boarded a trolley car and enjoyed a trip to Bound Brook and return. At 12:30 o'clock they went to the Hotel Kensington, where an elaborate dinner was served in the grill room. Twenty-five sat down to the dinner.

After the dinner each one of the guests were called upon to make a few remarks. Nearly all responded and many complimentary things were heard of the host.

WHERE PEACE REIGNS.

Borough Has Been on Extraordinary Good Behavior the Past Year.

According to the statement of Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, there have been thus far about forty-six arrests made in the borough during the past year, while in the previous year the number reached 89. He says that if there is no trouble that if people do not violate ordinances and make themselves liable to arrest, he cannot arrest them. This is logical if nothing else. Chief Campbell's theory is that "if there ain't nothing, there ain't, and if there is, there is, and that is all there is to it."

Rich Maritime Voice Heard.

The rich baritone voice of Elson C. Martin, of Putnam avenue, was greatly enjoyed in Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Martin sang an offertory solo at both services and also filled the position of precentor, for the congregational singing, very acceptably.

NEWSPAPERMEN DINED.

ENTERTAINED AT HOTEL KENSINGTON BY JAMES E. MARTINE.

The Genial River Tonguest Quaker Makes an Ideal Host and Entertains Proprietors and Staffs of the "Press" and "Courier."

The dinner given by James E. Martine Saturday night at the Kensington Hotel to the proprietors and staffs of the Daily Press and Courier proved a pleasant affair. The dinner was served in Landlord Staats' best style and was thoroughly enjoyed by the newspaper men.

Covers were laid for twelve, which included all the active newspaper men of both newspaper staffs in Plainfield. The menu cards were very handsome and had been especially printed for the occasion, with the compliments of the genial host. Mr. Martine presided at the head of the table with Mr. Foroe, of the Press, on his right and Mr. Runyon, of the Courier, at his left. The sentiments to which the diners responded were clever quotations from well-known authors and quite apropos of the gathering.

Mr. Martine being the host, also acted the part of toastmaster, which he did in his usual graceful style of oratory. After the cloth had been cleared Mr. Martine welcomed his guests in a speech overflowing with kindly greetings and warm sentiment. He expressed the high appreciation he had always maintained for newspaper men in general and those of Plainfield in particular. Mr. Martine was followed by Mr Runyon and Mr. Foroe, who briefly thanked their host for his hospitality.

The most important speaker perhaps of the evening was Silas Dewey Drake, Mayor of Lisdale, who convulsed the host and guests by his droll stories and recital of reminiscences of his boyhood days, when he essayed to grasp the intricacies of the newspaper profession.

As a newspaper man Mr. Drake did not believe he made as much of a success in that line as he had in after years in founding new boroughs.

Brief remarks were also made by those attached to the staffs of both papers.

The function proved a pleasant affair. It will live long in the hearts of the newspaper men, who cherish the highest regard for James E. Martine, the silver-tongued orator, polished gentleman and firm friend of the gentleman who make the newspapers of Plainfield.

The newspaper men present included F. W. Runyon, A. L. Foroe, S. D. Drake, W. W. St. John, M. F. Biderton, F. E. Whiteside, Corra Ryno, C. F. Stout, C. B. Morse and W. C. Dobbins.

PAST FOUR SCORE POINT.

Harvey Bird Passes Away at the Age of Eight-one Years—A Well Known Resident.

Harvey Bird, aged 81 years, one of the borough's best known citizens, died last Sunday of heart trouble. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Caspar Bolsterli, Watchung avenue, where he has been making his home. For a short time past he had been critically ill and his death was not unexpected. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Bolsterli and Mrs. Charles McGinnis. The latter also lives in the borough.

Death of Preston B. Vail.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Preston Boyle Vail, aged 45 years, son of Mahlon Vail, of Park avenue, which occurred at his home, 39 East 45th street, New York, Saturday last. Mr. Vail's death was quite sudden, he having been ill but a short time. He was a son in law of Morgan S. Bird, of Park avenue, and was well-known in this city prior to his taking up his residence in New York. The funeral services will be held at Grace P. E. church, this city, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment was at Hillside Cemetery.

Couldn't Carry Out Contract.

Aaron Ward, who last summer was compelled to abandon his contract for re-paving three of Camden's streets, has brought suit for $100,000 damages for breach of contract against the Columbia Construction Company, of Syracuse, N. Y. Ward claims that he had to give up the contract after he had started work because the construction company refused to live up to its contract with him.

Cut the Fence.

The Jersey Central Railroad Company recently fenced in its tracks with wire fencing, thus closing many short cuts and paths along the line. This does not meet with favor with those who have been accustomed to use the paths, and the fence has been cut in many places. Railroad officers are looking after the fence cutters.

To the Late Business for Himself.

Henry Windham, who for sometime past has been the head bartender at the Hotel Kensington, has resigned his position. He will hereafter be located on East Front street at the place formerly known as Caper's Hotel. Mr. Windham has leased this place and will conduct it in the future.

DEAD, HE WAS PRAISED.

EULOGY OF LATE W. C. AYERS AT FUNERAL SERVICES.

Dr. Yerkes Spoke in High Terms of the Life of the Aged Citizen—Large Attendance at Residence and the Services.

The funeral services of William C. Ayers were held Saturday afternoon last from his late home, West Second street, and were very largely attended by neighbors, townsmen and a number from out of town, many of whom were prominent in the business world, who had known the deceased for many years. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, where Mr. Ayers was an attendant and a member, officiated. After reading appropriate selections from the Scriptures he spoke at some length concerning Mr. Ayers. He eulogized him and spoke of his many excellent qualities. He referred to the upright life he had lived and how he was respected by his fellow-townsmen. He also spoke of Mr. Ayers as a Christian and of his faithfulness to his church, always being in attendance when it was possible.

The sentiments expressed by Dr. Yerkes were those of the people in attendance, for all knew of the exemplary Christian life of the departed. During the service a quartette, composed of Miss Willis, Miss Nan Rudolph, G. W. Smith and E. T. Barnes, rendered two beautiful vocal selections.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, and came from friends and relatives who held the departed in high esteem. There was a large set piece from the Exempt Firemen's Association whose members were present in a body, and another large piece came from the associates of Dr. Samuel Ayers, who are with him in the work of the evening school work in New York. There were many other handsome tributes.

During the forenoon an opportunity was given persons to call and view the remains and after the services another opportunity was given. Even in death there was no change in the features so well known to all.

Interment took place in the Plainfield Avenue Cemetery and those who served as pallbearers were H. Mulford Estil, L. Warren Randolph, Eugene M. Laing, Edward L. Bonney, Edward H. Holmes and George Tilsworth.

DEATH OF GEO. A. MOORE.

Once a Well-known and Prosperous Butcher—Bicycle Accident Hastened His Death.

Last Monday about 11 p. m. occurred the death of George A. Moore, aged 44 years, of East Fifth street, who was for ten years one of Plainfield's well known butchers, having conducted the place where J. W. Van Sickle is now located on North avenue. Mr. Moore was confined to his home since a year ago when he met with an accident. He was riding a bicycle and fell off, sustaining injuries which hastened his death. It has been about three years since Mr. Moore was in business. He was then located at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue.

Mr. Moore was born at the corner of Washington and East Second streets, where he lived for eighteen years. He has always lived in this city. He was a prominent member of No. 2 Engine Company, and after serving his time became a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association. The last time Mr. Moore was out was when the borough firemen gave a parade. He then rode in a carriage with Exempts who could not walk. He is survived by a wife, a brother, Benjamin Moore, of the butcher firm of Moore & Schneelein, a sister, Mrs. David Ryno, of East Second street. There are also several half brothers.

GUARD TO GO TO SEA GIRT.

Military Board Decides That the Whole Division Will be Ordered Out This Year.

The State Military Board has made a new departure, and the entire National Guard of the State will be ordered into camp this year at Sea Girt. This will be the first time since the establishment of the permanent State camp that the whole division will be on duty. The rule has been that only one of the brigades was ordered to camp in each year and they went alternately, and consequently did service every second year.

The State Military Board met a few days ago and decided that the division should be sent to camp in July next, and the officers were instructed to make provision. One of the advantages that were claimed for the change is that it will promote pride and ambition to excel, and each brigade will endeavor to surpass the other and also afford an opportunity for comparison and to determine the deficits, if an exist, in any brigade or regiment, and enable the introduction of new regulations if necessary to bring all up to the highest possible standard.

GEN. VICENTE PERAZA.

He Will Represent the Troubled Republic of Venezuela as Minister at Washington.

The bloody and long-drawn-out revolution in Venezuela having at last come to a close, the new government, presided over by Gen. Castro, has selected as its representative in Washington Gen. Vicente Peraza.

Gen. Nicanor Zadiet-Peraza, the well-known Venezuelan litterateur and diplomat, was born June 4, 1839, in the city of Caracas, Venezuela. While yet a young man he took an active part in the political fights of his country and rose to the rank of general. He has achieved considerable reputation as an orator and is one of the foremost newspaper men in Venezuela. He has always been affiliated with the liberal party and has been assistant secretary of the interior and attorney general. He was a congressman from 1870 to 1878.

In 1889 he went to New York and founded and published for five years La Rivista Illustrada (Illustrated Review) and Las Tres Americas (The Three Americas). Both publications were printed in Spanish. Gen. Peraza was also a delegate to the Pan-American congress held in Washington in 1889, and at its close was appointed minister plenipotentiary to the United States. He has been consul general in New York of the republic of Salvador and later of the greater republic of Central America. He was a delegate to the universal postal congress in Washington in 1897. He took an active part in the revolution which resulted in the establishment of Gen. Castro's government.

PREMIER OF MANITOBA.

Political Advancement of Hugh John Macdonald, Son of the Great Canadian Statesman.

Hugh John Macdonald, who in consequence of the recent election in Manitoba will become premier of that province in succession to Thomas Greenway, who has been at the head of the liberal government for the last 12 years, is the only son of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, who was for nearly 20 years the leader of the Canadian conservatives and was for 17 years prime minister of Canada. Hugh John Macdonald is a lawyer of Winnipeg, and is now in his fiftieth year. He has been a member of the dominion parliament, and was minister of the interior in the administration of Sir Charles Tupper, which held office for two months in 1896.

His facial resemblance to his father is striking, and he has much of the political shrewdness which made Sir John the leading public figure in Canada during his lifetime. It is an open secret in Canada that Hugh John Macdonald is to become the leader of the dominion conservative party in succession to Sir Charles Tupper upon the retirement of the latter. This cannot be long delayed, as Sir Charles is now in his seventy-ninth year.

The Consumption of Beer.

Recent statistics show that the consumption of beer in Germany during the year 1897-98 was 1,361,700,000 gallons; 1,212,000,000 in Great Britain; 180,000,000 in France and about 90,000,000 in Russia. A better notion of the popularity of beer as a beverage is to be had from the estimate of consumption "per head" of the population. It is reckoned at 38 gallons in Belgium, 32 in Great Britain, 23 in Germany, 21 in Denmark, 12 in Switzerland, ten in the United States, 9½ in Austria-Hungary, nine in Holland, five in France, 2½ in Norway, 2½ in Sweden and one in Russia.

Treasure from the Sea.

Greek divers have discovered treasure in a Russian (Sapphic) wreck in Greek waters in 1770. Gold coins to the value of $55,000 have already been recovered and the divers report great stores of silver and jewels, which the storms of a century have washed out from the bulk of the old wreck.

COUNTY CLERK'S FEES MAY BE REDUCED.

Proposed Change In Recording Of Mortgages.

REDUCES FEES ONE-HALF.

MR. HOWARD IS VERY MUCH OPPOSED TO IT.

County Clerks Throughout the State are Opposed to It — Assemblyman Smith Proposes a Law to Compel Railroads to Provide Better Accommodations at Their Stations for Passengers.

Trenton, January 31.—County Clerk William Howard, of Elizabeth, is very much concerned over the proposed law which legalizes the registration of mortgages in place of fully recording them. Mr. Howard has been hovering around the State House doing what he can to defeat the proposed law, as if it passes it will result in cutting down his fees considerable.

It costs about 75 cents to register a mortgage and about $1 50 to record one. Some lawyers prefer to have the mortgage placed on record in full; others have hitherto taken the risk of simply registering them. A question was raised last summer as to the legality of merely registering these documents, and to cure any defect a bill has been drawn making legal all such documents as have been thus registered, and all that may hereafter be registered.

The county clerks of the State held a meeting in Trenton Monday and decided to oppose this last clause of the bill. It cuts down their fees somewhat, and it also makes the records somewhat incomplete. The bill is, however, favored by building and loan associations and by institutions which loan money on mortgages. They save half the mortgage fees by registering instead of recording their mortgages.

Assemblyman Smith, of Westfield, has for some time past had a bill in his possession to compel the railroad companies to provide better accommodations for their patrons, not on the cars, but in their stations. He said he would not introduce it unless compelled to, but he has yielded to what he believes to be the necessities in the case. The bill is a general one, but it is aimed at the Cranford station on the Central Railroad. It provides that in towns where there are sewer systems, railroad companies must provide proper closets for the convenience of passengers.

Assemblyman Meeker has explained his bill to change the name of the Jamesburg Reform School to the "State Industrial School for Boys." It is to divest the school of even the nominal suggestion that it is a penal institution. When the State reformatory at Rahway is completed, it will be known as a prison for young offenders, and the Rahway reformatory and the Jamesburg Reform School will be improperly considered as similar institutions. Hence the advisability of changing the name of the latter institution.

The spring elections bill, which is one of the most important measures of the present session, is meeting with strong opposition in its present form. The current opinion about the State House last night was that it would be greatly modified. One suggestion was that a referendum clause be embodied in it, leaving it to the people to continue or abolish spring elections by their respective wards. Another and more probable plan is to make the bill apply to cities, but not to towns or townships.

To Avoid Entering the Streets.

Manager Slocum, of the Plainfield Bill Posting Company, has determined that the chances of the city streets becoming littered from pieces of loose paper flying from his boards, shall be reduced to a minimum. He has therefore ordered his local bill poster to take a horse and wagon and make a trip around the city and take up all loose pieces of paper after a heavy wind or rain storm.

Somerville Man Hurt in Runaway.

Somerville, Jan. 31.—A horse ran away with George W. START OF GOOD ROADS

MOVEMENT ORGANIZED OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Essex County Claims the Honor of Taking the Initiative, But Union County Has Done Much Work in That Direction.

The great movement for improved roads in the United States originated, it is generally believed, in Essex county, more than thirty years ago. Some progressive men in the Board of Freeholders conceived the idea of building a system of hard roads by the macadam process, and a special act was passed constituting a Road Board. The bulk of the cost was assessed upon the county at large and was provided for in the annual taxes. Newark paid four fifths of this tax. There was much opposition and considerable protest, but the work went resolutely on.

The good results soon became evident. East Orange, Montclair and other suburbs attracted the best class of population, and handsome houses went up by the hundreds, while property prices enormously increased. The roads built were of excellent workmanship, and excited the wonder and admiration of strangers who drove over them. Union county subsequently procured a law for county aid to road building, and the work was prosecuted with the same energy and good results. This led to the enactment of the law for State aid, under which hundreds of miles of new improved roads have been built in all sections of the State. In Essex county the improvement has gone on under the State Aid act until the county is a network of good roads. For road improvements projected for the present year the county will pay about $51,000.

The law imposes one-third of the cost of new roads on the State, 10 per cent on the property owners, and the balance on the county. By the new law townships may petition independently on the Board of Freeholders for State aid, and this will promote road building in counties which have been backward by reason of the unwillingness of the county authorities to assume the county's share of the cost.

PRO-BOER SENTIMENT.

There is Talk of Holding a Meeting in Music Hall for Sympathizers of the Dutch Republic.

There is a prospect of another pro-Boer mass-meeting in this city some evening in the near future. The large attendance at the first meeting, held in Saengerbund Hall, encouraged those in charge to believe that there was a strong sympathy for the Boers existing in this city. The advisability of securing Music Hall for another and larger mass meeting is being considered. In that case the meeting would be held under the joint auspices of the German and Irish societies of the city.

The Germans of Somerville are also considering a pro-Boer mass-meeting in that place. There is a large number of people of Dutch and German descent there, and a rousing gathering is expected if the meeting is held. No date has yet been set.

GOES SOUTH TO GAIN HEALTH.

T. B. Green Will Probably Remain in Georgia if Climate Agrees With Him.

T. B. Green, of East Front street, who is associated with the Home Insurance Company, of New York, will leave Plainfield Thursday for the south, where he will remain until next spring. He takes this trip on account of his health which has not been very good. He will be accompanied by Francis Whitely, of Steiner place, who has been a groom for him for the past nineteen years, and in whom he has implicit confidence. Mr. Green is a valued officer in the company in which he is employed and the company feels as though the trip will greatly benefit him. If the climatic conditions are agreeable he will remain in Georgia for sometime.

Commissioners Will be Necessary.

The all-important matter to be considered at the meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council Friday evening will be the widening of Somerset street. It is understood that a sufficient number of property owners have signed for the improvement to warrant the Council in going ahead and making the street wider. No doubt commissioners will have to be appointed to assess benefits and damages, and this will not work to the advantage of those opposing it.

An Illustrated Lecture.

An illustrated lecture on "China, India and Arabia" will be given in Trinity Reformed church this evening by A. S. VanDyke. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. No admission will be charged, but a collection will be taken to defray expenses.

A SAD CHAIN OF EVENTS.

Rev. Dr. Nelson's Accident Will Prevent His Preaching Funeral Sermon of Old Friend.

There is a very sad home at 35 Summit avenue, Sunday evening. Rev. William C. Nelson fell and broke his right arm. Then Monday morning a telegram came announcing the sudden death of Mrs. Lizzie M. Roe, Newark, mother-in-law of Mrs. S. S. Roe, who has been stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson for some weeks and also an old friend of forty years of Mr. Nelson and wife. Twenty years ago he preached the funeral sermon of Mrs. Roe's mother, and thirteen years ago he preached at her husband's funeral. Mrs. Roe died about the time the doctors were setting Mr. Nelson's arm Sunday evening. And before the family heard of Mr. Nelson's fall and accident they had sent him a pressing invitation to conduct the funeral in Newark, which took place yesterday at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Roe was one of the happy circle present at Mr. Nelson's birthday party in October.

THE COMING OF BRYAN.

EVERYBODY IS ANXIOUS TO HEAR THE NEBRASKAN.

Mr. Martine, Whose Guest Mr. Bryan Will Be, Has Received Countless Applications for Seats From Many Places.

Of all the men who are now at the front in the political arena, there is probably none more generally talked about than William J. Bryan, the probable Presidential candidate of the Democratic party in the coming campaign. Now that it is assured that Mr. Bryan is to speak in this city, men have expressed a great desire to hear him. Regardless of political opinion, there is a general desire to see and hear the man who has played such an important part in the recent history of the Democratic party.

Plainfield is naturally a Republican city and a great majority of the citizens differ from Mr. Bryan in their political views. They are nevertheless quite anxious to hear what he has got to say in defence of his position.

Plainfield will undoubtedly have a big representation of its citizens at the meeting Wednesday afternoon, February 7th, that Mr. Bryan is to address. But reports from all the neighboring cities and towns tell of a great crowd that will invade Plainfield that afternoon. Up in the country districts of Somerset and Hunterdon counties it is declared that the entire male population of several towns will turn out to hear the great Democratic orator.

James E. Martine, of this city, who has the meeting in charge, has been simply overwhelmed with requests for tickets from all the adjoining counties. There will be no seats reserved except those on the platform for a few prominent guests and the representatives of the press. It is expected that a great crowd of newspapermen will be present.

The meeting will not be for men alone but the women will be just as welcome as the men. It is not intended to have a crowd of small boys present. Those who accompany their parents will be admitted but some steps will be taken to prevent the hall from being flooded with a crowd of children who cannot understand or appreciate the speaking.

A MYSTERIOUS WEDDING

Miss Grace Burdick's Relatives Profess Ignorance of Her Reported Nuptials.

Dunellen, January 31.—The many friends in the borough of Miss Grace Burdick will be surprised to learn of her marriage to John La Maire, of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield. For some months Miss Burdick has been living with her sister Mrs. J. E. Thompson, at North avenue, Dunellen, although her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Burdick, live at Westfield.

When it became rumored that Grace had married the news spread rapidly through Dunellen and there was much speculation.

A Daily Press reporter called upon Mrs. Thompson to verify the rumor. The latter said that she had learned from her sister that she was married, but that when the ceremony took place or by whom it was performed she could not state. Mrs. Thompson said that she understood that her sister had been married at the home of the LaMaires in North Plainfield. She was under the impression that the wedding took place last week Wednesday, though she was not sure as to that. Mr. and Mrs. LaMaire are said to be living at the home of the bride's parents in Westfield, where it is understood the couple are to hold a reception in the near future.

Mrs. Charles Westphal, of Brooklyn, has returned after a visit with Plainfield relatives.

FELL INTO LAW'S HAND TWICE IN ONE DAY

Once Theodore Glaser Pummeled Ernest Roth.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.

FINALLY LANDED IN LOCKUP FOR BEING DISORDERLY.

When Patrolman Myers Attempted to Arrest Glaser a Friend of the Latter Interfered and Was Arrested Also—Both Culprits Were Fined in the Police Court Yesterday Morning.

Theodore Glaser, a dealer in hides and fat, took a day off Tuesday and before night he landed in the station house. Early in the day Glaser dropped into Blair's saloon at West Front and Somerset streets, where he got into trouble with Ernest Roth, an employe of Drake & Mundy. The men quarreled after a dispute and finally got into a rough and tumble fight. Glaser was too strong for Roth and it took but one round for him to put Roth in a condition of almost insensibility. He was severely beaten and cut about the face. When the men were separated Roth was found to be so badly used up as to require medical attendance. He was assisted to Shaw's drug store where his injuries were treated. Later he went before Justice M. Hoff and swore out a warrant for Glaser's arrest on a charge of assault. He was arrested by Constable Weaver and gave bail for his appearance in Justice Moffett's court this morning at 10 o'clock.

In the meantime Glaser continued on his spree in company with Fred Bendelstader, who is in his employ. About 9 o'clock Tuesday Glaser was making night hideous by yelling and using vile language on West Front street in the vicinity of Koch's meat market. Patrolman Myers advised Glaser to keep quite and go home. For his advice the officer was roundly abused. Myers then placed Glaser under arrest. The latter made a desperate resistance and for a few moments there was a lively scrimmage between Glaser and the officer for supremacy. The men rolled about the floor of the meat market and the excitement drew a crowd.

Special officer Martin, who happened along, went to Patrolman Myers' aid. Bendelstader, who attempted to prevent Glaser's arrest, was also taken to the station house by the officers. He was charged with interfering with an officer.

Yesterday Glaser was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, charged with being drunk and disorderly. The prisoners were represented by Wm. G. DeMeza. Glaser was fined $5 and Bendelstader $3. The fines were paid.

At 10 o'clock Glaser was arraigned before Justice Moffet to answer for his assault upon Ernest Roth. At the request of S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for the complainant, the examination of Glaser was adjourned for one week. In the meantime he was released on bail.

NEW MOVE IN 'PHONE WAR.

Big Company Has Opened an Exchange in Opposition to Local Concern in Bound Brook.

Bound Brook, Jan. 31—The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has made a new move in its war against the local company. The larger company has opened an exchange of its own on Main street in the building formerly occupied by the First National bank. Heretofore the exchange was located in Manley's pharmacy on Main street. The number of local subscribers then were so small that there was no trouble in handling them at the store. With twenty 'phones in operation, Manager Charles W. Runyon, of this district, decided that an exchange was necessary.

This final move of the New York and New Jersey Company practically settles the question. There is no doubt now that the big company is here to stay and all the efforts of the Somerset company cannot drive them out. The new telephones have been put in without locating any poles in the street and no change was necessary to start the exchange.

A meeting of the Bound Brook Borough Council will be held in a week and then it is probable that a new ordinance granting the invading company the rights that they have been seeking will pass its first reading. There may be opposition but the big company is here to stay and the borough officials are beginning to reconcile the fact and make the most of it.

—There will be a few fine shad this week. Place your order for your Friday's sea food early. Rogers.

SEVERAL ARE WILLING.

A Lively Contest for the Formenship to Elizabeth to be Prospect.

Elizabeth, January 31.—There is apt to be a lively contest for the Post mastership of Elizabeth, as the term of the present Democratic incumbent, William J. Whelan, expires this year. Ex-President John D. Bart, of the City Council, has strong backing for the place, and thinks he has an inside track. Other aspirants, it is said, are ex-Councilman Meiton W. Halsey, treasurer of the Union County Savings Bank and manager of the German-American Insurance Company, and Samuel S. Moore, keeper of the New Jersey State Prison, who formerly held the office. United States Senator Kean, who, with Congressman Fowler, controls the appointment, is non-committal. Congressman Fowler, it is said, favors Mr. Bart, but has not expressed himself openly on the subject.

WILL NEED DEEP STUDY.

PLAINFIELD UNIVERSITY CENTRE HAS BEEN ORGANIZED.

Aims to Give a Better Knowledge of Important Educational Subjects—Dr. A. H. Lewis Elected President.

The Plainfield University Centre, a branch of the University Association of Chicago, was organized at the Plainfield High School last Tuesday. It is somewhat on the same plan as the University Extension work and aims to give a better knowledge of various important educational subjects. The particular feature is that the local organization is to take up a course in sociology and political economy.

At the start the membership has reached seventy five, of whom a large number are from the ranks of the teachers in the public schools here. Most of Plainfield's clergymen have joined, and there are several of the lawyers in it as well. Dr. J. B. Probasco and S. St. John McCutchen, the presidents respectively of the city and borough Boards of Education, are included in the membership.

The meeting was called to order by Prof. Davis, of Chicago, who has organized the local branch. Irving L. Brady was made temporary secretary. The election of officers was then held and resulted as follows: President, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis; vice president, Miss Clementine Yates; secretary, Irving L. Brady; treasurer, Henry M. Atkinson; members of the executive committee, Miss Adams, Miss Cilder and S. St. John McCutchen.

The regular meeting night will be Tuesday night from eight to nine o'clock. The first study session will be held next Tuesday evening. Prof. Wightman, Mrs. Bushmore and O. S. Rogers were selected to analyze one section of the lesson each. The superintendents of the city and borough public schools were appointed a committee on examinations. Rev. G. W. Gardner, William M. Runyon and O. S. Rogers were appointed a committee to select a permanent place of meeting.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED.

Case of E. M. Milliken Against Mary Cortell Will be Heard Again in Circuit Court.

Upon application of S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for the defendant, a new trial has been granted in the case of E. M. Milliken vs. Mary Cortell. Both parties live at Dunellen. Milliken brought an action against Mrs. Cortell last fall to recover $90 for a heating furnace, which the plaintiff had placed in the defendant's house at Dunellen. At the trial before Justice Warden a verdict was secured by the plaintiff. The case was carried to the Circuit Court where the plaintiff was awarded $33. Tuesday argument was had at New Brunswick for a new trial, which was granted. The case will be retried at the spring term of the Circuit Court of Middlesex county. H. C. Runyon represents the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer the defendant.

Will Pioneers Kept on Mrs. Grave.

Mount Holly, Jan. 30.—By the will of Thomas Warford, who died recently at Moorestown, there are bequests of $200 each to the Odd Fellows' Home and Odd Fellows' Orphanage, of Philadelphia, and a further bequest of $1,000 in trust, the income to be devoted to keeping flowers on the Warford burial lot in Mount Peace Cemetery forever. The residue of the estate is to be devoted to the purchase and distribution of books on the philosophy of spiritualism.

Christian Endeavor Day.

Christian Endeavor Day will be observed Friday evening at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The programme to be used will be the one recommended by the united societies of the Christian Endeavor.

ADIEU TO HOPE CHAPEL

FRED H. ANDREWS TRANSFERRED TO WARREN CHAPEL.

A Farewell Reception Given to Mr Andrews by Hope Chapel Members —Presented With a Handsome Chair.

Hope Memorial chapel was filled Tuesday with members and friends who gathered to give Fred H. Andrews a farewell reception upon the eve of his departure to Warren chapel, where he has been transferred to the position of superintendent of the Sunday-school. For twelve years, or since the founding and organization of Hope chapel, Mr. Andrews has been associated in the work there and had charge of the music. Leander Lovell was superintendent at Warren chapel, but recently withdrew from the work. Mr. Strong has been holding the position but he is called to the Crescent Avenue church Sunday school, where he will be superintendent. This left a vacancy at Warren chapel, and Mr. Andrews was selected for the place.

A committee, composed of Donald McInnis, Thomas Hendry, James Brown, Alex Muir, Mrs. Donald McInnis, Mrs. Thomas Hendry, Mrs. Robert Frey, Mrs. Robert Gow, Mrs. George Vetter and Fred Wearton, secretary and treasurer, arranged the affair of last evening. The chapel was prettily decorated with American flags, kindly loaned by Crosby & Bill, and flowers donated by Brooks Carson.

Mr. McInnis introduced the several artists who took part. The programme opened with a piano solo by Miss Carrie Dewey, followed by several pleasing vocal solos by Elmer D. Dutting, accompanied by Clifford Brainer on the piano. A feature was the appearance of Miss Grace Overton, who gave some recitations in her best style.

Another feature was the flute solos by Fred Newman, accompanied on the piano by Miss Dewey.

After the rendition of the musical and literary programme Rev. Dr. W. B. Richards was introduced, and made an address in which he recited the ability of Mr. Andrews as a Sunday-school worker. Then on behalf of the Sunday-school he presented Mr. Andrews with a handsome Morris chair. At this time Mrs. Andrews was remembered and she was presented with a beautiful bouquet and a handsome handkerchief case.

Mr. Andrews thanked all most heartily for the kind remembrance. Other remarks followed by Rev. G. K. Newell, H. C. Squires, E. R. Munger and others.

During the evening Louis Martin took a flash-light picture of Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and a portion of the audience. This was followed with a social time and the serving of ice-cream and cake.

MAJOR COLEMAN RETIRES.

He Finds That There is Not Enough Patronage for Him to Succeed at Park Hotel.

The management of the Park Avenue Hotel will change hands today. Major F. W. Coleman, who ran the Hotel Hunterdon last summer and took up the Park Avenue Hotel at the opening of the winter season, has found that the patronage at the latter hostelry was not enough to make it a success and so he decided to give up the establishment and retire to his private life until April 1st, when the Hunterdon will re-open for the summer.

H. J. Brossen, owner of the Park Avenue Hotel, will take charge of the house and will run it hereafter for a time. The complete corps of servants will remain and the affairs of the hotel will go on as usual. Mr. Brossen believes that the hotel can be run profitably as a hotel. The change in the management will take effect today.

Major and Mrs. Coleman and their daughter, Miss Coleman, will remain at the hotel until they can secure a furnished house which they will occupy until the opening of the big hotel at Narberwood.

Brewery Company's New President.

Elizabeth, Jan. 31.—The stockholders of the Bailey Sun Brewery Company in this city will hold a special meeting today to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Charles Seeber, president of the company. It is probable that Phillip Schaible, of Elizabeth, the company's treasurer, will be elected to the presidency.

School at New Orange.

The Cranford Board of Education, at its meeting Saturday night, decided to build a primary school at New Orange. There are 104 children at that place who are practically without school opportunities, owing to the distance to the present schools. Plans are to be secured and a building erected at once.

To Work the Copperas Mines.

After being closed fourteen years the Copperas Mines on the Copperas mountain, near Macedon, Rockaway township, will resume this week. The Carteret Steel Company, whose furnaces are at Hackettstown, where it is expected to make steel direct from iron ore, has control of the mine.

MANY SITES OFFERED, BUT NONE CHOSEN YET.

City Hall Will Not Lack For A Location.

OFFICIALS CONSIDERING.

COMMITTEE WILL RECOMMEND CHOICE OF THREE SITES.

The General Sentiment is That There Should be a City Hall—Some of the Proposed Locations are Not Regarded With Much Favor — Three Plots Are Available on East Front Street.

The Common Council will be advised that Plainfield is greatly in need of a City Hall and that it would be well to secure the necessary ground and erect a proper structure for that purpose. The committee, appointed to consider the advisability of building a City Hall and to suggest a proper site for it, held a meeting last Tuesday and will make that report. The committee discussed many possible sites but finally settled on a few that seemed to answer the requirements and will recommend them to the Common Council at the meeting Monday evening.

It will be remembered that the members of the fire and police committees were appointed a special committee to consider the subject. Mayor Rockafellow had President of the Council Smith were members ex-officio. The meeting was called for last evening and all the other members of the Council, not included in the committee, were invited to attend the session. It was held in the Council chambers and all the Councilman were present except Mr. vanHorwerden. The Mayor was there.

It seemed to be the general sentiment that there should be a City Hall and the only question was where it should be located. The site at the corner of East Fifth street and Park avenue was suggested and was strongly favored by a number. The vacant lot at the corner of West Fourth street and Arlington avenue was mentioned but was objected to as not being centrally enough located.

There were three sites mentioned in the vicinity of East Front street and Washington avenue. The Gardner property, which lies on the north side of Front street between Washington and Dr. Probasco's residence, was favored by several. The Mrs. Thomas MacDonald property on the opposite side of the street had its advocates who agreed that it would be particularly valuable in that the property backed up against that owned by the city on which the fire department headquarters is located. It was argued that it would be particularly advantageous in that the city would then own a strip clear through the block and the city buildings would thereby be grouped. Its central location was pointed out. It was urged against it that a valuable house stood on the lot and would have to be torn down, thereby increasing the expense.

The third location in that vicinity suggested was that owned by J. Fred MacDonald on the corner of Front street and Washington avenue, now occupied by a fine house and store. It is directly across Front street from the Y. M. C. A. building.

Another proposition was that the City Hall be located on the southeast corner of West Front street and Central avenue, directly at the head of Grove street. The chief objection against this location was that it was not centrally located.

From these various suggestions the committee will probably recommend two or possibly three sites to the Council. The members of the committee are reticent about saying which site will be recommended.

New Process for Making Steel.

Washington, N. J., Jan. 31.—The first of the Carteret Steel Company's furnaces have been lighted and the new process of making open hearth steel from the iron as it comes out of the ferro-manganese furnaces introduced into the steel industry. H. A. Jones, of Brooklyn, the president of the company, and the inventor of the new process, lighted the furnaces. By the new process steel is made direct from the molten iron in about three hours. It is claimed that if the process works satisfactorily steel can be made there, shipped to Europe and sold at a lower cost than the cheapest European steel.

After being closed fourteen years the Copperas Mines on the Copperas mountain, near Macedon, Rockaway township, will resume this week. The Carteret Steel Company, whose furnaces are at Hackettstown, where it is expected to make steel direct from iron ore, has control of the mine.

WINTER GOWNS.

Pretty Costumes For Ordinary and Theater Wear.

The bodice differing from the skirt is now worn chiefly for the theater, when the lower part of the costume is not seen and the upper part is doubly prominent. Dark skirts of satin or velvet are usually chosen, and if they have lost a little of their freshness it is of less consequence at the theater than anywhere else. The bodice is usually light or bright, and spangled and jeweled effects are here in their best and most appropriate service. Elaboration of trimming is much indulged in, and lace, ruches of mousseline de soie, applications, chenille net, all the newest decorations, are lavishly employed.

In a different type of costume the differing bodice also holds its own with great determination. Shirt waists of flannel or velveteen are much used with serge or cloth skirts for morning wear and similar hard service. The shirt waist costume may be considered a woman's uniform—comfortable, neat, convenient, appropriate for plain wear, but unsuited for social occasions, where something more formal and pretentious is required.

The costume shown in the cut is of silver gray cloth. The redingote skirt has seven lines of stitching around the foot of the back. The tablier has a band of deep knotted fringe. At each side of the tablier are two groups of three gold buttons. The tight bodice has a bolero front, the revers of white cloth being embroidered with silver gray silk. Bands of stitching border the revers and the flaring collar. The vest is of golden brown velvet fastened with small gold buttons. The sleeves have inside cuffs of the velvet, and the gray felt hat is also trimmed with golden brown velvet, with a gold buckle and a mottled plume.

FASHION HINTS.

The Correct Wardrobe of the Season.

It is not often that any style is universally becoming, but the bolero, in some one of its many forms, can be worn by almost everybody. It is in great favor this winter, appearing in all materials and in fur.

Nearly all parts of the costume are trimmed with fur this winter. Gowns, wraps and hats all show it. Jackets and boleros have large revers of fur, a fur collar and fur lined frouts. Redingotes are similarly trimmed, and garments having a body of fur are adorned with another kind of fur or with velvet, satin or lace.

Besides fur, a great deal of passementerie is used, and it often designs boleros on jackets and redingotes. For evening and theater wraps it is of the richest—jeweled, beaded and spangled, embroidered in silk and metal threads and mingled with tiny ruches of gauze and ribbon.

Some evening capes are entirely composed of flounces of fur, and the inside of capes is as elaborate as the outside, consisting of fine ruffles or shirrings of gauze or lace.

The picture shows a hat covered with stretched black velvet. The brim has a wide border of black astrakhan, and the side trimming is a sort of large butterfly of black velvet lined with white satin and stitched with white. This butterfly is fastened in front by a large silver and crystal buckle. The tight bolero is of black astrakhan and has a flaring collar lined with ermine and ornamented with revers.

ELEGANT COSTUMES.

Elaborate Gowns For Evening and Day Receptions.

Many full dress gowns have a separate guimpe and sleeves made to match, which make the costume practical for day wear also. This is a consideration where expensive gowns are in question.

The fashion of a day reception is now attired very richly and usually in light colors. The ten gown has been elaborated out of its wrapperlike aspect and has become the favorite costume for these occasions. Liberty silk, painted mousseline de soie, velvet, moire and lace are materials much employed, and long trains are invariable. The empire style in its various modifications is often chosen as the mode of making.

Cloth is undeniably the fabric of the season, and never have there been more beautiful kinds manufactured. Thin, pliable and light, the finish is exquisite, and among the newest styles is a cloth of such exquisite smoothness and glossy silkiness that it closely resembles heavy satin, only the weight and softness of the folds betraying the fact that it is woolen goods.

The picture shows a gown of red cloth. The skirt has two circular flounces around the foot, over which is a tunic embroidered with black. This opens in front, showing a tablier composed of a little vest and a black revers finished with fringe. The tight bodice is embroidered like the skirt and has a plastron to match the tablier. The guimpe is of black net, the fanciful outline of white satin embroidered with black. The close sleeves have black embroidery at the wrists. The black velvet hat is trimmed with a bow of black velvet, a gold buckle and three black ostrich plumes. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SKIRTS.

The Newest Ones Are Gathered or Plaited.

The plaited and shirred skirts which are the newest thing the mode has to offer are practically the same. The plain skirt, for the plaits and gathers are so arranged that they add almost nothing to the bulk of the skirt. Usually the plaits are small at the waist and increase in size as they pass downward. They are stitched down, being left free toward the foot of the skirt to give the usual flaring effect. The folds inside the skirt, where the plaits have been stitched flat, are cut off, so that no unnecessary thickness is added. The effect is as of a fluted ribbing as in the plain skirts. Sometimes the tablier is left plain, sometimes it is plaited like the rest. The lining is made separately and of the same intended size as the outside, but not plaited. The lower edge is stiffened, and the outside and lining are then sewed together and the edges concealed under the plaits. A silk ruffle or plaiting around the foot of the lining skirt is a great addition. The outside and lining must be fastened together only so far down as the plaits extend.

The cut shows a princess costume of black faille. It has a yoke of point de venise, which also forms the top of the sleeves. A scarf of spangled tulle borders the yoke back and front and ornaments the top of the sleeves. It forms a loop, fastened by a steel ornament at the side of the bust, passes down through another ornament at the waist, then to a third at the side of the skirt, where the end falling free. The collar is of point de venise, the cravat of spangled tulle. The black velvet hat is trimmed with three black plumes.

GOODBY TO THE COOK.

New Haven Trying the Delivered Meal Plan. With Success.

With the end of the nineteenth century the woman of many household cares welcomes the promise of freedom from fetters which have bound her hand and foot, the dethronement of the kitchen demigod—in other words, the family cook. Maiden can now look forward with enchanted hope to the time when there will no longer be in store for her hours of tedious questioning and unsuccessful trips for references and, worse still, the contention with wasteful and incompetent help.

Edward Atkinson has vowed to conquer the despotic female when he invented his device for preparing a course meal, sufficient for a family of six, over a lamp's flame. But on practical application the epicure found himself vis-led. Reluctantly he returned, a defeated victim, to the thraldom he had vainly struggled to cast off.

A MEAL CAN.

Now it is a resident of conservative old New Haven who is to promulgate a scheme for co-operative kitchen work such as Edward Bellamy dreamed of and dared to hold out as the millennium of womankind.

The many schemes that have been tried throughout the world to supply food to families from co-operative kitchens have failed because it has never been possible to keep the food warm. But this latest idea of Yankee inventiveness is the result of a successful business man's insight. It is backed financially by over 20 practical business men of New Haven. By the new plan soup, roast, vegetables, dessert and coffee can be delivered at your door piping hot as long as seven hours after cooking.

This co-operative schemer not only proposes to deliver deliciously cooked food prepared after scientific methods, but he claims that, profiting by buying in large bulk, he can save to the purchaser the price of fuel and other expenses, including the labor of preparing and cooking, besides the enormous waste which is inevitable in the average kitchen.

There is some special devices for cooking the cheaper portions of meat with resulting dishes as palatable as are served in the finest restaurants in the country. But the chief secret in the scheme lies in the method of retaining heat. The apparatus is a large bucket, copper covered and copper lined, with sides and bottom about two inches thick and a close fitting cover. The sides of the bucket are lined with a nonconductor of heat.

Into this receptacle are placed porcelain cans which have tight fitting lids. The bucket is divided into sections, the lower division containing the dessert, then the meat and soup on top. This arrangement is for a dinner course. There are to be breakfast and luncheon cans also.

The buckets are to be delivered in wagons which will have an arrangement for holding them firmly in place, thus doing away with much of the jarring occasioned by rough pavements, and will resemble the vehicles used by up to date bakers.

JEANNETTE DEVOE.

Notes of Woman's Work.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet is one of the richest women in the world. The real estate holdings of her late husband in New York city were only second to those of the senior branch of the Astor family.

The unusual success that Miss Jennie Hilton has had in finding gold on Dominion creek, in the Klondike region, has won her the distinction of being the most successful woman gold miner in the United States.

An interesting feature at the Paris exposition will be a complete display of the lace making industry of the Indian women of the United States. A space 10 by 13 feet has been allotted for the Indian laces. Miss Bityl Carter, director of the Dawes lace making schools, has the exhibit in charge.

Sousa, like every other musician, needed a discoverer, and it was due to the appreciation of the manager of the Germania band of Philadelphia, Miss Hannah Harris, that the director of the little Marine band received an introduction to a concert audience. Gilmore had for many years played an annual engagement under her management. He was taken sick and unable to fill out his schedule. Miss Harris was worried, for the brass band had always been a popular feature. She had heard Sousa play in the White House garden. She liked his style and dash over his music. But she was uncertain if his small band would be strong enough to fill the great academy. She resolved to risk it. Sousa never played in concert before. He tried hard and won. Philadelphia went mad over him. Miss Harris had played a trump card.

Miss Eleanor Hoyes of Cincinnati has achieved much success in painting "Indian pictures." She is the one woman who has gained marked recognition in this field.

THE SPRING FASHIONS.

Peeps at the Thin Goods We Will Wear Next Summer.

Every day is a new day, yet it is so like yesterday that one could scarcely define the difference in them, and this is just how it is with the new spring fashions. They are just like the fashion of last spring with a very few touches of difference.

Plaids are the dainty thin goods, and they will be covered with delicate [illegible] and such other trimmings as one may desire. Organdies, dotted swisses, piquets, nainsook, dimity, khaki, linon lawns and sergher gingham, percales and cotton crepons without end are among the new wash dresses, and all are old acquaintances in new colors and rather new patterns.

The percales are particularly pretty. White with black dots makes the prettiest kind of gowns for morning and shirt waists. Polka dots are seen everywhere, even on the velvets and suede, china and India silk and several of the light flannels.

Of washable goods the counters are full, and, as I said, there is nothing really new among them. Washable silks there are in abundance, some of them exquisitely pretty and some of them so ugly that they are wofully swell and stylish." There are three or four new weaves in light silks and innumerable ones in wool and silk, some of them thin and some thick, some firm and others flexible and so open as to appear like grenadine.

There are also grenadines in dozens of designs, with the old favorite "iron frame" always leading the list. This made up over colored linings is one of the most pleasing of them all.

In the black goods for summer wear there are china crapes, crepons, gauzes, chiffon, veilings and silk crapes made waterproof. These are mostly in black and are intended for mourning. Yet made up over bright colored linings nothing could be prettier, the shading brought about being very beautiful and the effects so elusive and changing. These are to be trimmed with a little lace, and here and there a suspicion of the bright color beneath shows to the outside. Veilings are to be among the most fashionable of all these dainty dark stuffs unless present signs fail. Veiling makes deliciously soft and graceful gowns, especially for the young. There are veilings in the pastel tints as well as black.

Foulards bid fair to be the popular silks for next summer. They are printed in various designs, on black or dark colored grounds. Foulard is not often seen in light shades, but there are a few, but this is not a silk that ever commends itself for very dressy wear. It is more for every day, but it is serviceable. Many of the Japanese wash silks have heavy cords.

The new panne velvet in all sorts of pompadour designs is among the novelties. It is not intended for full costumes so much as for separate waists, guimpes and fancy garnitures. Personally I do not like it, but it is thought pretty by most people.

The spring woolens are in the main beautiful. However desirable for many things silk, satin and velvet are, there is nothing to take the place of wool for utility. This is produced in so many different weaves and manners as to make one think there must be hundreds of different kinds of woolen fibers. There are now in black, each one a distinct kind of goods, venetians, tamise, crape cloths, drap d'almas, clairettes, mohairs, both plain and fancy; satteens, prunella cloths, cheviots, serges, estamines, camel's hairs, coverts and cravanettes, the most of these and especially the coverts and cravanettes, being waterproof.

Whipcord is one of the prettiest as well as one of the best wearing of the spring woolens. It is the best quality, it is handsome and resembles heavy, corded silk more than anything woolen. A most elaborate costume was made of that. It consisted of a long redingote open in front over a dress of the same.

The front of the skirt was lapped in such a way as to represent three skirts with stitched edges. The panne velvet vest and collar were of white satin tan, and the whole was a stylish costume. It was said to be imported from a famous Paris house, but I take some of these statements with a large sized grain of salt.

BICYCLES and MOTORS

WILL STAY FOREVER.

The Automobile Will Never Succeed in Supplanting the Cheap and Useful Bicycle.

Many a day has gone by since we saw any report of a new bicycle complaint, or, indeed, since we saw any noteworthy reference to any of the old complaints. Once upon a time, you remember, the papers lodged out with wise dissertations on the bicycle nose, the bicycle thrust, the bicycle hump in the back, and still other forms of what might generally have been classed as cyclerities. Ah! and what sport it all was for the poor, hard-tigging paragrapher and the lazy, conventional cartoonist, with his feet on the editor's table! But days and months have passed without either a new discovery or an old reminiscence. In fact, about the only thing worth noticing recently was the sensational attempt of two New York women to ride to death. One of them came very near doing it; the other succeeded in getting her pictures into all the yellow papers.

However, an odd item came flying up from the south the other day. A friend of ours down where the cotton and the sweet potatoes grow believes that the cycle, like the famous horse that the Manhattan cannot be, is going backward, scared out of its siren by the complaints to which we have referred and the rise of the automobile. It is a fact, we admit, that fewer bicycles are exported to-day than were exported four or five years ago, but we believe that not so many bicycles are demanded for domestic use as were a few years back. These changes are readily explained by the fact that manufacturers always have been increasing and by the other fact the cycling over here is no longer in a feverish state. A year or two ago the country was fairly bicycle mad. Now the people are beginning to appreciate the real worth of the wheel. The wheel used to be a fashion. Nowadays it takes its place as a pleasant recreation and a sterling medicine for those afflicted with dyspepsia or the mullgrubs. As for the old complaints, well, let us say that they are dead and too enthusiastic riders may have loosened a screw somewhere in their anatomy, but we do not remember that a specific case of any of the forms of the fanciful cyclerities has ever been demonstrated.

The bicycle is down for a long visit. Not even the clangorous and fat-tired automobile can drive it out.—Boston Journal.

SAVES THE POSTMAN.

Pouch for Collecting Mail Built, in a Measure at Least, on the Plan of a Bicycle.

Uncle Sam's novel little letter carriers' mail collecting wagons, although but recently introduced, have conclusively proved their great value as an adjunct to rapid mail collection and delivery. Our illustration shows a very novel form of letter carriers' wagon, the scheme of an Alabama man. It consists essentially of a truck or vehicle of the type shown, having at its lower end a small wheel and a framework to carry the postman's heavy mail pouch. Such a pouch undoubtedly represents a considerable weight, and a truck of the form shown, which could be wheeled along, the propelling power being applied by the postman's shoulder, would certainly be less tiring and burdensome than carrying the pouch. Granting this is a fact, the carrier could, of course, cover a given section in less time, the great desideratum in all postal affairs. Legs are provided to enable the truck to be stood up conveniently and easily when at rest. Naturally, the truck could be utilized for carrying and delivering parcels as well.

Brakes Coming Into Favor.

One of the most marked developments of the year's cycling has been the rise in popularity of the same kind of free wheel and coaster brake device that a few years ago were snubbed as impracticable and relegated to obscurity. It is the old story of a rejected improvement coming to the front a victim of fashion. The coaster brake device will not rank as a fixture of the sport with such innovations as the ball-bearings or pneumatic tires, it is likely to be sufficient to create a new demand and give fresh impetus to the trade by supplying riders with a change worthy of consideration and diverting the sport from a groove. The number of riders who have used free wheels and coaster brakes the past season is enough to impress their practicability.

WAYS OF THE COYOTE.

He Is a Cunning Midnight Marauder and His Speed Exceeds Even That of the Fox.

One of the interesting and typical animals of the far west is the American wild dog, lowland wolf or coyote, Canis latrans, by which names he is known in books and other titles. While a very homeless animal, it is rarely well figured in the books, and is made to look more furlike than wolfish. A wolf the coyote is, a lowland form, and every traveler who crosses the plains has wandered from the beaten paths or visited small places knows it well.

"Don Coyote" is essentially a night animal, and my observations of the living animal were made chiefly in the saddle in full chase after him in the dull early morning, and I can commend his speed, which is greater than that of the fox. When the sun goes down Don Coyote comes out of his haunts in the foothills and wanders down around or into the settlements. He lies in the spurs of the hills and mountains in southern California, as in the San Gabriel valley, in some safe and inaccessible point, and surveys the country. His vision perhaps directed to some hennery in the home of some fat turkey. At such times I have occasionally seen him, his fur as almost perfect protection in its resemblance to the rocks that surrounded him; and that is recognition this was shown in one instance when I rode within 30 feet of one, pretending to look directly ahead, but watching him out of one corner of my eye. He crouched as I approached and seemed satisfied that I did not see him imperceptibly moving, ever keeping his head pointed toward me; and few would have recognized in the gray rock a coyote.

While the coyote hunts singly in towns or villages, he runs in packs in the open, and it is here that he demonstrates his skill and cunning. A friend of mine observed a pack of coyotes on the edge of the desert manipulating a jack rabbit. They swept across the country in a line, now and then flushing a hare, then formed in two parallel lines about 200 feet apart. There was a regular plan of action, and none of the coyotes seemed overexcited, but when the hare was started they settled into columns like soldiers, the leading coyote running at the top of his speed. After a few moments he dropped to the rear and a fresh coyote took the lead; and this was kept up until the hare was run down. The whole was a silent one. This method recalls the wild dogs of Australia, or dingo.

While the coyote is invariably written down as a coward, and it is true that either singly or in packs he will not attack man or horse more than himself, when cornered he is a vicious fighter. I have seen one fight off a pack of greyhounds, wounding them so that to save the dogs the hunter was obliged to finish the animal. The coyote in this case had run at least two miles at race horse speed, and when reached by the hunters was backed up against a rock, snapping his jaws at his crowd antagonist, his teeth sounding like a steel trap as they came together, and taking a piece of flesh wherever they hit the mark.

Don Coyote can be tamed, and I knew of one instance where a heifer kept one that was apparently as much so a dog. The near allies of the coyote are the malkongs or crab-eating dogs of South America, that hunt in packs and resemble the coyote in appearance. There are several species in South America that call to mind the coyote, as the Guara Canis jubatus, a large, powerful, ferocious dog-wolf five feet in length. Like the coyote, it frequents the lowland countries, especially in Paraguay.—Prof. C. F. Holder, in Scientific American.

Used in Place of Coins.

Chocolate is still used as money in certain parts of the interior of South America, as are also cocoanuts and eggs. According to Prescott the money of the Aztecs consisted of quills full of gold dust and bags of chocolate grains. Before the introduction of coined money into Greece, skewers or spikes of iron and copper were used, six being a drachm or handful. The small, hard shell known as the cowrie is still used in parts of Africa and Africa in place of coin. Whales' teeth are used by the Fijians, red feathers by some of the South Sea islanders and salt in parts of Abyssinia. In parts of India the cocoanut and in China pieces of silk pass as currency. Cattle form the circulating medium among many of the Zulus and Kaffirs.

Fussy Adopted a Rabbit.

A curious instance of maternal instinct was exhibited the other day by a cat. Some of the officials of the Norfolk county asylum caught a young rabbit, which they gave to the cat, thinking that she would kill and eat it. To their astonishment pass did nothing of the kind; she adopted it and suckled it with her own offspring. Both the rabbit and its foster mother seemed to be perfectly happy together.

ARIZONA SUN DANCE.

Heathen Ceremonials Observed by the Acoma Indians.

Although Ostensibly Christians the People of Various Far Western Pueblos Still Worship the Gods of Day.

[Special Acoma (Ariz.) Letter.]

TRAVELERS return from India and tell us of the sun worship of the Parsees; of the prayers offered to the rising sun by devout citizens of Bombay. They would lift up their hands in amazement and horror were they told that there are thousands of sun worshippers in the United States of America at the present time. And yet such is the case. Every morning in the year men and women may be seen among our sun-worshippers, sprinkling their sacred meal to the rising sun and praying to the great morning luminary to bestow all his best gifts upon them.

"But," you ask, "where are such benighted heathen as this to be found in the United States?"

In Arizona and New Mexico. The pueblo or town Indians of Isleta, Laguna, Zuni, Acoma, etc., are all sun worshipers of the sun, and daily their adoration is offered, as well as in special ceremonies of great pomp and importance, which occur less frequently.

If one leaves the transcontinental line of the Santa Fe railway on the journey to California, at the little town of Laguna in New Mexico, and drives, or rides horseback, 27 or 28 miles south, he will reach the wonderful "City of the Cliffs," Acoma. Here, in the first day of September of each year, the "feast of St. Stephen," the patron saint of the people, is observed. The feast is a strange and interesting mixture of Roman Catholic ceremonial and pagan and pure and unadulterated sun worship. I have seen the dance and its attendant ceremonies several times, and each time the "pelanges" of the two sticks of the cornstalk become apparent. The old priests, when Acoma was subjugated to Spanish rule 320 years ago, were wise. Instead of totally prohibiting the religious ceremonials of the people, they gave new and Christian significance to them, hence, today, we see an orthodox Catholic priest engaging in the rites of holy mass, and then marching in a procession to the plaza where the whole afternoon is spent in a dance performed in honor of the sun.

During these processions the visiting Mexicans often unite with the Indians, though, regarding themselves as superior to the natives, they head the procession, and slightly to one side, and thus preserve their dignity unimpaired. One of their number, on one occasion, was induced to add charm to the performance by rendition of certain airs on his accordion. During a solemn song, when the Indians were praying for the continued blessings of the sun above, the accompanist compelled his accordion loudly and insistently to give forth the strains of "Marching Through Georgia." Soon he changed it to "La Paloma," and then, when the most solemn part of the ceremony was reached, he thrilled the religious feelings of his auditors by bringing forth with intense fervor and "expression" the stirring melody, "After the Ball is Over." But, happily unconscious of any incongruity, the earnest Indians sang on, and felt grateful to their Mexican friend for so kindly helping accompaniment.

In one of the main streets was a bower made of cottonwood boughs, in which the wooden figure of St. Stephen, the patron saint, was placed, and here, during the day, all the devout women came to pray, offer up thanksgiving, and, at the same time, deposit at the shrine corn, bread, melons, beans, and other products of their gardens as thank offering. Then began the dances.

Two men only, or at most a couple of this portion of the ceremonies. The women were clothed in all the finest garments they were able to obtain. Robes, elegantly woven and highly colored sashes, buckskin leggins, moccasins, and ornaments of silver and coin the head each woman wore a headdress of wood or leather, a foot or more high, and painted or carved, or both, to repre-

Apprehensive.

"It's no use trying to get ahead of 'em," said Mr. Hykins. "Capital is bound to take advantage of us. It may figure it out and make it all seem plain and plausible, and before we know it, we're being oppressed."

"What are you talking about?" asked his wife.

"The twentieth century."

"Oh, that's easy. You just make up your mind when you think it ought to begin and then say the other thing." Mr. Hykins looked at her witheringly and then exclaimed:

"Did you know that the twentieth century will be sky on Mondays? Of course, you didn't. You don't know any mathematics or chronology outside the grocery book. Scientists have lifted their minds higher and shown conclusively that while there will be plenty of Tuesdays and other days, we won't get the Mondays that are coming to us. I don't want to be violent, but I will say that when we consider that Monday is pay day with the concern I work for, the whole thing looks mighty suspicious." — Washington Star.

The Boers' Advantage.

The ability of a race of brave marksmen behind intrenchments, to make a formidable resistance to assault by the very best veteran soldiery is a fact familiar to all persons of historical intelligence. The repulse of the British regulars twice by our embattled farmers' line at Bunker Hill; the dreadful repulse of Wellington's seasoned "Peninsular war" veterans, 14,000 strong, under Packenham, by 5,000 Kentucky and Tennessee hunters and Indian fighters at New Orleans; the destruction wrought by Hofer and his riflemen in the ranks of Marshal Lefebre's corps of Napoleon's army in the defiles of the Tyrolese mountains; the successful resistance to the Russian army offered by the Turks under English officers at Plevna, are cases in point.—Portland Oregonian.

Nature's Efforts.

My friend's colored maid came in one day after her regular weekly outing, looking as if she had enjoyed herself.

"Indeed? So you took a little trip to the country to see the fields and flowers?"

Making Kava.

Taking the root stalks of the plant, two men quickly stripped away the dark outer bark, and, laying the white pith on one flat stone, beat it to a pulp with another. The great kava bowl, a hollow dish supported by several feet—the whole carved out of a solid block of wood—was produced and the bruised root placed therein, water being poured over it. The maker in chief then went through a process of stirring, the dregs being ultimately strained out with a bunch of hibiscus fiber.—Blackwood.

FRANCIS W. CUSHMAN.

Newspaper Correspondents Have Already United in Calling Him the Memorial of Congress.

A new star has appeared in the house. He shone out suddenly and brilliantly the other afternoon in the middle of a dull debate on the currency bill. He may prove a fixed star of the first magnitude or a comet shooting with brief brilliance athwart the leaden skies of monotonous talk. Who may say? Dropping metaphor, whether or not straight, it is a fact worthy of other than congressional notice that Francis W. Cushman, of Washington, made the first hit of the season by a new member. Cushman is only 32 years old, yet he has lived in four states. Born and educated in Iowa, he was a cowboy at 16 in Wyoming, a lawyer in Nebraska at 21, removing to Tacoma, in Washington, at 24. At 31 he beat James Hamilton Lewis, the democratic shooting star of the last congress, on a gold standard platform. Hence he is a republican of the very purest. He came to Washington heralded as the Abraham Lincoln of the Pacific slope. And he looks the part. That is, he looks as Lincoln probably did at Cushman's age. He is tall, lank and as homely as a rail fence. He is fluent and readyble of speech and humorous withal. Without this latter quality he would be a dismal failure as a Lincoln resembler. But he has the saving grace of humor.

BISHOP HENRY TURNER.

Distinguished Colored Divine Who Was Refused a Berth in a Georgia Sleeping Car.

Bishop Henry M. Turner, who was refused a berth in a sleeping car on the Georgia Central railroad because of his color, is one of the most famous negroes in the United States. He was born in South Carolina in 1834, and from his earliest childhood showed unusual talent. Before he was 11 years old he had, entirely by his own efforts, learned to read, and at 15 secured employment in a law office at Abbeville. His employers quickly recognized that the young negro had unusual powers of intellect and isolated him in his studies, so that he so quired a good common school education. His memory was so remarkable that in the course of a single evening he could memorize three or four chapters of the Bible. He was licensed to preach when he was 20 years of age and soon afterwards studied Latin, Hebrew and Greek, becoming proficient in all. In 1862 he became pastor of the largest colored church in Washington, D. C., and in 1863 was appointed chaplain in the army by President Lincoln, being the first colored man appointed to such a position. In 1880 he was elected bishop of the Methodist church. Bishop Turner who had been given the titles of LL. D. and D. D. by universities of the highest standing, is one of the principal agitators for the return of his race to Africa. He thinks their prospects in this country are poor.

Where Soap Is Unpopular.

In spite of British rule, India is virtually a soapless country. Throughout the villages of Hindustan soap is, indeed, regarded as a natural curiosity and it is rarely if ever kept in stock by the native shopkeeper. In the town it is now sold to a certain extent, but how small this is may be gathered from the fact that the yearly consumption of soap in India is about 100,000 hundredweight; that is to say, every 2,500 persons use on an average only 111 pounds of soap among them; or, in other words, considerably less than an ounce is the average consumption of a person.

Pretty Ancient Ceremony.

One part of the wedding ceremony among the Babylonians was very significant. The priest took a thread from the garment of the bride, and another from the garment of the bridegroom and tied them into a knot, which he gave to the bride. This is probably the origin of the modern saying about tying the knot in regard to marriage.

As Applied to Family Advice.

"What," asked the teacher, "does anthracite mean?"

"That's a kind of coal," said little Willie.

"Yes. Anthracite coal is what we call hard coal. So anthracite must mean hard. Now, can you tell me what bituminous means?"

"That's coal, too," Willie replied.

"But it isn't the same kind of coal that anthracite is? Bituminous coal is what we commonly refer to as soft coal. Now, Willie, let us see if you can form a sentence containing the words anthracite and bituminous."

Willie thought the matter over for a minute and then said:

"Here's one. This morning before pa started downtown ma wanted five dollars for groceries and things, and she tried to get it by saying bituminous words, but pa was after her in anthracite look, and when he disappeared around the corner she was weeping bituminously."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Pole Star.

Prof. Campbell, of the Lick observatory, says the north pole star is approaching our solar system at the rate of seven miles per second. This velocity is estimated by means of the spectroscope. The professor further announces that the star is not single, but double. The companion star is not visible to the naked eye, but can be made out with a powerful telescope. The two stars revolve around the common center of gravity in a period of four days, their orbit being comparable in size to that of our own moon. It is also believed that a third body is attracting the two star system, thus causing a periodical variation in the velocity of the pole star.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking It Gently.

The doctor came into the room rubbing his hands and smiling.

"Everything all right?" asked the man who was anxiously waiting for him.

"Couldn't be better," returned the doctor.

"Good," said the man, with a sigh of relief, "when he saw that the doctor intended to say nothing more, he asked, with some hesitation: "Er—ah—boy or girl?"

The doctor stopped rubbing his hands and looked a trifle uneasy, as if the task before him were not just to his liking.

"Well," he said, at last, "you'll need a tandem bicycle for it." — Stray Stories.

How Dogs Fool One Another.

A correspondent noticing my stories of "Duxies" (who "make believe" in order to draw off each other's attention from desirable things, and to oust each other from comfortable dens, chairs, promising burrows, and so forth), makes the following remarks: "'Puddy' and the retriever pretend at rabbit holes, just like your dog friends. When one dog is at the hole that the other thinks the best, the dog who is 'out in the cold' as it were, gets up a scene, and thus humbugs the dog in possession, and then slips into his place."—London News.

Getting His Money's Worth.

"Arthur, dear," she said, "I do wish you would not use cigarettes."

"Why?"

"Because you don't know what is in them."

"Oh, yes I do. Why, for the trifling sum that a cigarette costs you get nicotine, valerian, possibly a little morphine, and any quantity of carbon."

She looked up into his eyes more tenderly than usual, for the congregation donated all its available money to the war fund.

"I took the matter in hand promptly and did all the painting myself, including spouts, woodwork and windows, and finally, with the assistance of one of my parishioners, executed in painting the roof."

"Is it not rather uncommon for a rector to perform manual labor, even in the interest of a parish?" was asked.

"Oh, not specially so," answered Mr. MacDonald. "The history of the church of England affords several examples.

Wood, for more than 30 years curate and incumbent of St. George's, Preston, whose death was recently announced, was an expert carpenter, whose skill was always at the disposal of his poor parishioners. "Another of my brothers of the cloth who achieved distinction in this direction was my old and valued friend, Rev. C. W. Goodwin, of St. Aidan, Middlesbrough. He having no edifice in which to hold services, suggested to his parishioners that they should construct one themselves.

"He himself dug the foundation and then with a gang of volunteer helpers to the number of 30, who labored in their spare hours, set about the work with such zeal that a few months back the building, which can seat between 600 and 700 people, was opened by the archbishop of York.

"A short while back the blacksmith of a Lancashire village was suddenly taken so ill that he was obliged to quit work, which let that time pronounced to be exceptionally brisk. There was no one to take his place, and his business would have been at a standstill had not the vicar, who in his younger days, for the sake of exercise, had often worked at the village forge, appeared opportunely on the scene. He grasped the situation at once, and, doffing his coat, proceeded to demonstrate that he still retained all his old skill by filling the smith's place until the latter was sufficiently recovered to return to his duties."

PAINTS HIS CHURCH.

English Clergyman Surprises His Brethren of the Cloth.

Funds of His Parish Were Distressingly Short, So He Turned In and Did the Work Himself, and Did It Well, Too.

Rev. G. M. MacDonald, vicar of the historic old Church of St. John the Baptist, in Spalding, England, has just given his brethren of the cloth an impressive lesson in practical Christianity and also won for himself the interesting distinction of being the first parson-house painter recorded in the history of the English church.

For a long time the walls of his venerable charge had been sadly in need of a new coat of paint, but the parish, on account of that, there were no funds available to pay for having the work done.

It was at this unfortunate juncture that the vicar proved the practical character of his devotion to the church. Instead of wasting time in idle regrets, Mr. MacDonald donned a painter's blouse and painted the walls of the church and school himself.

It was a unique undertaking for a clergyman, and one that has attracted general attention. It is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that Mr. MacDonald, unlike many other English divines, is not descended from tradesmen or mechanics, but is the scion of distinguished English-Scotch family, his own mother being a member was the famous Flora Macdonald.

Mr. MacDonald is a talented antiquarian and was engrossed in his studies, but willingly stopped to chat a little in reference to the church-painting episode.

"I don't see any particular occasion for all this comment with reference to my having temporarily discarded the stole and gown for the painter's blouse," he said, "for I consider that I simply did my duty. As a minister of the church I consider that I should at all times to be ready to perform any service whatever pertaining thereto and believe each of the many duties to be equally important and dignified.

"When I came to this I found both the church and the school buildings in a state of extreme dilapidation.

"Even under normal conditions the limited resources of the parish would have precluded the expense necessary for the work, and this year was poorer than usual, for the congregation donated all its available money to the war fund.

"I took the matter in hand promptly and did all the painting myself, including spouts, woodwork and windows, and finally, with the assistance of one of my parishioners, executed in painting the roof."

A GUILELESS FINANCIER.

But He Knew Enough Not to Go to His Father to Borrow Money.

A man in one of the rural communities not far from the city, who is content to profit peculiarly at the expense of his personal popularity—who is, in fact, a money lender at extravagant rates of interest—was greatly surprised by a visit from the son of a well-to-do neighbor.

The young man wanted to borrow $500.

"Been to see your father?" asked the man of computations.

"Nope," was the reply of the youth whose family had been too thrifty to spend much money on his education. "I ain't been to see dad. An' what's more, I don't gwine to see dad."

As he spoke he twisted his hat in his hand and leaned lazily over to one side until one leg of his trousers was drawn half way up his boot.

"What do you want with this $500?"

"You're almost as bad as dad. What's the use of you're askin' all them questions. You've been 'bout it, ain't yer?"

"Heard about what?"

"Me courtin' a gal."

"Oh, yes, I believe I did hear something of the sort."

"Well, it's happened. I proposed to her. We're goin' to get married, an' I want $500 so's we kin have enough money all at once to go from here to China an' stay forever, if we want to."

"You're not going to run away, are you?"

"No. We'll be back. Only we don't want to feel hampered."

"Well, Jed, I'll tell you what I'd do if I were in your place. I'd go to your father and tell him I was going to get married."

"Dad knows it. He's tickled to death. He says Sadie's a good, stout gal an' a willin' worker, an' he'd be right pleased to have her in the family."

"Well, why don't you go to him and say frankly that you want to borrow $500?"

"He knows it. I told him me an' Sadie wouldn't git married 'less I was had it."

"Wouldn't he lend it?"

"Yes. He said he reckoned he could git it for me."

"Then what's the use of coming to me?"

"Well, you know dad is powerful slus in money matters. If I was to borrow from you and not pay, you'd jes sue me or something. But if I was ever to tell dad I couldn't pay him, he'd jes mosey right down to sayin' ar' law me, till I couldn't stand."—Washington Star.

CARE OF WEAK EYES.

Simple Remedies for Granulation, Styes, Cataract and Other Affections.

The strength of the eyes usually depends upon the strength of the body; if the body is weak and exhausted, the eyes will frequently display similar conditions. In treating the eyes the general health must be considered, for when the general health is good, and the eyes are simply weak, the first care must be to see that they are not overtaxed; then they should be bathed in salt water, fairly strong. Regularly used several times a day, a salt water bath will wonderfully strengthen the muscles of the eyes. It acts as a tonic not only on the eye itself, but on the eyelids as well, and the action of every salt water or lids proves to granulation or to styes, is most marked and immediate.

The salt water may first be applied with a soft sponge; later, when the eyes are accustomed to the bath, they should be held open in a basin of the water for a few seconds at a time.

Obstinate cases of cataract of the eyes, a frequent cause of eye weakness, owing to the tear-duct being blocked by the inflamed condition of the blood vessels which line the membrane of the nose, and prevent the eye-waters finding their natural channels, yield to the salt water treatment, and the bath becomes a luxury indeed.

People with weak eyes should have their rooms well darkened at night before retiring, thus giving the optic nerves all possible rest; sleeping in light is one of the most common causes of weak eyes. Another necessity, if weak eyes are to be made strong, is never to read, sew or write with the light full in the face; the light should always come from over the shoulder or from the side.

Whether the eyes are weak or strong, one should never strain them by attempting to read or to do other work in a reclining position. — American Queen.

Oysters and Sweetbreads.

Have the sweetbreads parboiled and blanched as soon as they come from the butcher's and cut in pieces about the size of oysters. The oysters, too, can be parboiled in their own liquor; some people prefer to do this, all being in readiness, a white sauce is made on the chafing dish, stirring together until melted and foamy, two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour and adding slowly a pint of cream, one and one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Cook until smooth and velvety. Put into the sauce the oysters and sweetbreads, letting them simmer just long enough to "curl" the oysters. Then pour over slices of toast dipped for a moment in hot milk. One quart of oysters and three sweetbreads will serve nine people; the combination is delicious.—Good Housekeeping.

Stewed Celery on Toast.

Stew the celery, as directed in preceding recipes, drain, season to taste, and mash to a pulp. Put a spoonful on a square of buttered toast, and pour over it a little cream sauce. This is also good for breakfast dish.—Mothers and Daughters.

FRISCO'S WHITE SLAVES.

Women and Children Who Work for Chinese Fruit Merchants for Very Small Pay.

Rev. Frederick Poole has said that there were at one time, if not now, in Philadelphia's Chinatown, white women and even little children who were slaves to the Mongolians. This is true at San Francisco to-day.

There have been white men who considered themselves, like the Bill Nye of whom Truthful James speaks, "robbed by Chinese cheap labor." Well, in Frisco white women and children serve yellow, almond-eyed taskmasters for less than even Chinese wages.

The whites in question are employed chiefly by the Chinese fruit packers of San Francisco. One instance—the latest reported and a fair example of the rest—is that of a fruit packer of Stockton street, who, during the season just ended, discharged nearly all his Chinese help and hired white women and children to do his work, because they would consent to work for less money.

The Chinese boss would not induce his fellow-countrymen to accept the pittance he offered, and, of course, his fellow-countrywomen never thought of such a thing.

There were plenty of white children working in such circumstances, it was said, but there were no little Chinese children at it.

This especial Chinaman's establishment is on Stockton street and his business is to put up canned fruits and vegetables, tomatoes being his specialty.

On the occasion of a recent visit to this place a score or more of white women and 30 or 40 children were found working in filthy cellar under the sidewalk, paving for the privilege under the supervision of a Chinese boss, who ruled them as few masters outside of a slave pen would do.

The little children evidently stood in awe of the master. The eldest woman in the place was a matron of 70 and there was one little girl there who seemed not more than six or seven years old.

Boys ranging from eight to 12 were there, and girls and girls just entering womanhood, all serving their Mongolian master in fear lest they should fall under his displeasure and he should deprive them of the coveted reward of working for less than Chinese wages.

The nose is assaulted with noisome vapors and the odor of decaying vegetation; the cellar is dark and ill-ventilated; but these poor women and children pay for their work eagerly amid the whirring machinery and the steaming vats of the canning factory.

Yet investigation shows that this is not the result of hard times. On the contrary, it is the regular thing in all places in San Francisco. Indeed, the demand seems far in excess of the supply.

Ignorance is one of the causes, then, for this condition of affairs. But there are other causes as well.

Many of the women are opium fiends, and can get the drug only by doing a Chinaman's bidding. All, for one reason or another, are said to be under some kind of compulsion to work for what they can get.

Some of the children are orphans, and others have relatives in the Pacific states army in recent years, most of them being new with the army in South Africa. —St. Louis Republic.

How a Boer Opens His Purse.

The Boer may be fairly good at handling a rifle, but he is sadly deficient in his ability to handle a pen. When the average Boer has to attach his name to a document an air of trepidation pervades his whole being, and several horrors. The children are consistently chilled, the patient "vrouw" has a preoccupied look, and the household timepiece pulls even more vigorously than usual at the fly which still a corner of the table is steered and carefully wiped. The family Bible is placed in position, and the sheet of paper requiring the signatures placed upon it. An expectant silence then falls upon the company, broken by the wife. "Stilze, kindet jes, pepa gaat een naam teken." ("Hush, children, father is about to sign his name.") The family stand round, breathing hard, and all eyes gaze expectantly upon the paper. With armed lapped for the fray, and with pen carefully poised, the Boer bends to his task. The pen is gripped firmly between his horny fingers. In this originally scratches, but with slow and painful motion, the pen begins to work, and at the end of it, maybe four minutes, the deed is accomplished.—London Mail.

A Fiction About Panthers.

One of the time-honored attributes of the panther is his scream. One could not take $4,000,000 and therewith disabuse the American public of its conception of the terrible howl of the panther. Yet many scientists to-day affirm that the panther is a mute animal, and does not scream at all. This latter I believe to be accurate, for my friend, "Old Bill" Hodgkins, who is a most reliable and genuine old-timers of the Rocky mountains, tells me the note of the panther is a sort of hoarse, roaring noise, and he compares it rather to the roaring bass of the bull elk than to the voice of any other wild animal. He laughs at the "womanlike wail" notion. Once when in camp in the Bear river mountains of New Mexico I heard at night the cry of what I supposed to be a mountain lion or panther. It was answered from beyond our camp, and the first animal passed within a few hundred yards. It might have been a wildcat, but the trapper who was with me said he thought it was a mountain lion.—Chicago Record.

"The Tomb of Romulus."

A notable monument to archaeology is the discovery in the Roman Forum of a massive pavement of black marble nine feet square, which some believe to be the veritable "black stone" with the Roman venerated as marking the tomb of Romulus. Under the marble, among other objects, was a broken stele, or sepulchral column, covered with archaic Latin characters, and this has been considered to bear out the statements of the later Roman historians that in the early days the Romans spoke a tongue which their descendants could not understand.—Youth's Companion.

A New Classification of Cities.

The Passaic News thinks the New Brunswick Fredonian makes a good suggestion when it points out that Newark and Jersey City at present stand alone as first class cities, with thirteen cities, ranging from Paterson down to Perth Amboy, the latter having only 12,000 people, in the second class.

The second class includes cities of from 12 000 to 100 000, and they must wear the same kind of clothes. The Fredonian says this range is too great, and that either first-class cities should comprise all over 50 000, or else a new class should be created including cities of 50 000 to 100 000. This class would contain, after the promulgation of the census of 1900, Camden, Trenton, Hoboken, and Elizabeth Orange, New Brunswick, Bayonne, Passaic, Plainfield, Bridgeton and Perth Amboy would be left in the third class, with populations of from 12 000 to 30 000. There would probably be some new recruits from the present third-class also.

The Passaic paper declares that "there is no doubt that legislating in the same breath for Paterson and Perth Amboy, Camden and Passaic is a constant perplexity to our legislators, and is the cause of many unconstitutional laws. The present division is wrong. There is more similarity of needs between Camden, with 80 000 people and Newark, with 220 000, than between Camden with 80 000 and Perth Amboy with 12 000. The present classification ignores this important fact."

Bishop Vincent's Opinion.

Widespread interest has been manifested in the scheme of the Topeka State Capital to turn over that newspaper to the absolute management of Rev. D. Sheldon for one week in order to allow him to exploit his ideas of "What would Jesus do?" If He was running a newspaper on earth at this time. The fame of Rev. Mr. Sheldon's sermonizing on this topic is already fixed, but now that he is to have an opportunity to demonstrate by practical work the ideals he has given voice to, the experiment will be watched with extraordinary attention wherever modern ways of journalism obtain.

What manner of man Rev. Dr. Sheldon is to prove a sidelight of the unusual project that he is demanding study and observation. It will be of particular interest to Plainfielders to learn what one man whom they all know to respect and honor thinks of the man who is to put to practical test the delicate question of "What would Jesus do?" That man is Bishop Vincent, himself a former Plainfielder. In an article contributed to the newspaper that is to be turned over to Dr. Sheldon's management for seven days, Bishop Vincent says:

Mr. Sheldon is a dreamer. He has a strong, original and fertile imagination. He is a practical dreamer—a genius. That ordinal, he is of course by an idealist. His specialty is in the direction of idealistic work. While scholars in seminaries are speculating concerning a practical application, Mr. Sheldon is experimenting and as he dreams of the ideal possibility, he puts pen to paper and produces an edit of romance. He is a Christian socialist. Like Mr. Ford's "Peter Stirling," he is a "practical idealist." As the standard of life in the Christ who assumed humanity to show man what he should be and to live, he naturally applies the faith and power of idealization to the practical application of Christ and His ideas to the age in which he lives. I have not yet seen any criticism of or concerning "In His Steps," which I have read as he fully transparent.

A Washington correspondent says that in spite of the fact that the majority report in the Quay case favors his exclusion as a Senator, it is by no means improbable that he may be admitted. Extraordinary efforts are being made in certain directions to not only bring recalcitrant Republicans into line, but also to draw Democratic support in favor of Mr. Quay's admission. Strange as it may seem, there are a number of prominent Democratic Senators—some even from the south—who favor Mr. Quay in this matter, one of them having but recently expressed his convictions that Mr. Quay ought to be seated. It will probably be a long time before the Quay case will come up for discussion in the Senate, inasmuch as the Clark case will have to be disposed of before the committee on privileges and elections will be called to give its attention to the Quay matter. When the matter is finally determined, however, it need surprise no one to find that Mr. Quay is again a Senator from the Keystone State.

May Miss the Mark.

The proposed consolidation of the spring and fall elections has practically become a partisan issue through the warm endorsement of the plan by Republican leaders in the State, three county organizations already having boldly proclaimed their faith in the abolition of the present system of separating State and municipal elections.

The able Newark News, which has supported the Republican party in every campaign for the past four years, calls it an "unmanly party policy," because "the aim and intent of the proposed bill are to coerce the independent votes, and the practical result would be in all probability to disgust and alienate the very element which it is hoped to control."

The News then goes on to argue that "it is the independent voter who for the past six or seven years has furnished the Republican majorities in New Jersey at State and national elections. He has had abundant justification for his action, and, while the course of the men whom he has helped elect may not always have met his approval, he has not upon the whole had occasion to regret his choice. At the same time the independent voter has always reserved the right of thinking for himself, and he has not hesitated to exercise this privilege at the spring elections to the frequent dismay of politicians, who, judging from results in the fall, have imagined that anything bearing the stamp of party regularity must win. To suppose that this all-powerful element will not recognize in the election-merger scheme an attempt to coerce it into supporting objectionable Republican candidates for local offices, is to discredit the intelligence of its members. To imagine that the independent voters will not show their resentment at the polls is to ignore all the lessons of past experience. Defeat of candidates for State offices is far more likely to follow consolidation of elections than success of candidates for local positions.

Not along a Vice Chancellor ruled that a divorce was a luxury, and as such should be paid for by allowing the defendant wife liberal fees with which to oppose the judicial severing of the nuptial bonds. Now along comes the Legal Aid Association of New Jersey, which was organized to assist worthy poor people to obtain their rights under the law and keep them out of the hands of "shysters," also saying that divorce is not a necessity. If divorces are wanted by applicants to the association they are to be turned away.

If Miss Allen and other delegates interested in the affairs of the New Jersey State Federation of Women would take a special holiday some time in moderately cool, they would stand a better chance of seeing their children in type. Letter making a column and a half of printed matter are not of such importance as the brief history of the society which those people are trying to bring before the public.—Times a Press.

The Press hits the nail exactly. However, the fault of the plaintiff is one who seek the use of newspaper columns, is not theirs alone. It is one common to too many others who would reach the people through the newspapers.

The professed desire of some of the Republicans of this city is to clip the wings, politically, of our esteemed friend, Editor Runyon, of the News, and the way they propose to accomplish the result is to furnish him a lively competitor in business. Running a newspaper in a field already well occupied may afford plenty of room for that sort of humor with some high priced. It is seldom that a paying newspaper is built up on a political grudge.

It is as certain as anything can be in politics that McKinley and Bryan will be the opposing heads of the two national tickets this year. On the other hand, however, there are a score or more of Republicans who are being mentioned as running mates for McKinley, but up to the present time there has been scarcely a whisper as to who will keep Old Bryan company in the approaching campaign.

Congressman Mudd, of Maryland, has introduced a bill to establish an art commission of the United States, the purpose of which shall be the examination of any object of art that may be proposed to be acquired either by donation or purchase by the United States Government. The opposite sorts of art will doubtless claim now that Mr. Mudd is the salt of the earth.

The re-election of former Mayor Alexander Gilbert to the office of chairman of the Republican city executive committee is a choice that was argued by the previous record of Mr. Gilbert in that capacity. It is doubtful if there is another city in the State of New Jersey that has a more effective political organization than the Republicans maintain here.

The fund in aid of the widow of Gen. Lawton now exceeds the sum of $23 000. A sum six times greater than it was at first proposed to raise. It testifies to the appreciation of the American people for such a noble soldier as General Lawton proved himself to be.

A Way to Kill the Salt Trust.

Probably no more flagrant case of evil arising from the liberal incorporation laws of New Jersey is offered for present instruction than is afforded in the case of the National Salt Company, which is capitalized for $12,000 000. The policy of the National Salt Company characterizes it as a Trust pure and simple, yet with the legal asylum which New Jersey affords under the lax and liberal laws of the State in reference to such concerns, all of its unfair and even disreputable practices are wicked at off lally.

It is stated that by ownership and lease of factories and by purchase of product it now controls about 90 per cent. of our product of salt. It and the smaller combinations which it has absorbed since 1896 have nearly doubled the price of common salt to many consumers in this country. It has "dead locked" and closed many of its factories, and is now being prosecuted in Ohio because it has, for monopoly purposes, bought and closed three or four furnaces at Pomeroy, Ohio.

While the matter of closing factories—and the consequent deprivation of work for a large number of men who have been employed in them—in order to serve its own selfish ends, is one that is contrary to the public welfare of the country, yet it is not such practices alone that arouse popular indignation to this industrial octopus. It is the tax that galls the public and makes them most rebellious is the fact that price of the commodity dealt in has been raised unnecessarily.

Ruling, however, that the present administration of New Jersey seems to be committed to the idea of sustaining the law system that permits the existence of such a concern as the Salt Trust, those who would seek a remedy are looking for it outside of New Jersey. Along this line it has been suggested that an effective way to reduce the Trust to a decent appreciation of its functions is to throw all the competition possible in its course. What is regarded as the most successful move in this direction is to remove the tariff on the importation of salt into this country. Looking at it from this standpoint, the Philadelphia Record says:

"While the removal of the duty up on imported salt might not kill this Trust, it would surely lessen its power over our citizens living near the seacoast. It is absolutely impossible to frame a sound economic reason why the duty on salt should not be removed. The natural protection in cost of transportation amounts to about 30 cents per barrel. It is absurd to increase this protection by duties amounting to from 20 to 30 cents per barrel."

A change is evidently coming over Rev. Dr. Charles Parkhurst in his ideas of what are needed to elevate the moral tone of the metropolis. For years Dr. Parkhurst has had the reputation of one who was strenuous and aggressive in his purpose of reforming the urbanites, but some recent utterances of the distinguished clergyman show that he holds a new track in reference to his old love for the wicked vice and iniquity of the proud city of the Empire State. Dr. Parkhurst's ideas of a campaign as now announced discloses him as a veritable temperiser, a radical difference in the views he has heretofore exploited. He now offers three views of a cumulative sort. He says first that the Sunday law is broken anyway, which is worse than if there was no law; second, the police decline to arrest from public lawbreaking; and third, the Sunday opening would remove the side reason which a large class of citizens have for supporting the Tammany organization.

The much-mooted question of whether or not a railroad ticket is good for transportation in the opposite direction for which it calls, has at last been decided by a New Jersey court. Judge Lewis, of Passaic county, had a case before him in which a man sued the Erie Railroad Company for damages because he had been rejected from a train when he refused to pay his fare after the conductor had decided to accept a ticket which was meant for a trip in the opposite direction. Judge Lewis' opinion is that a ticket is not a contract but the regulations of the company printed thereon, and that tickets good one way are not on that account good the other way.

It is noticed that despite the continued absence of Aguinaldo and the diligent search that is being made for him, the Manila newspaper in his city.

"When the gods would destroy the first make mad" seems to fit the case of Miss Bonjou is not in respect to the proposition of establishing another Republican newspaper in this city.

The Rev. Dr. Sunderland's Work.

Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, O., general secretary of the International Sunday-school Association, will make an address in this city February 6th under the auspices of the Plainfield Sunday school Union. It has not yet been decided where the meeting will be held, but the place will be announced later.

TO WELCOME COL. BRYAN

DEMOCRATIC ORGANIZATIONS OFFER TO AID MR. MARTINE.

Adopted Resolutions of Which It Is Promised to Make the Visit a Notable One in History of Local Democracy.

A joint meeting of the Democratic city executive committee and the members of the Somerset County Democratic committee from North Plainfield was held in the Hotel Kensington parlors last Monday for the purpose of offering aid to James E. Martine in any way possible to make the approaching visit of Col. Bryan to this city a notable one in the history of the local Democracy.

The meeting was attended by nearly all the members. The following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, The announcement of the approaching visit of Hon. William Jennings Bryan to Plainfield as a guest of that loyal and popular Democrat, James E. Martine, at which time a public meeting will be held and an opportunity given to the people of this vicinity to meet and hear the distinguished leader of the Democracy, has aroused great interest; be it

"Resolved, That we, the Democratic city executive committee of the city of Plainfield, and the members of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee from North Plainfield, hereby express our appreciation of the services of our townsman and party colleague, Mr. Martine, in prevailing upon Col. Bryan to visit Plainfield and deliver a speech here, and we offer our aid in every way possible to make the occasion a notable one in the history of the local Democracy. We esteem it a high honor to have the pleasure of cheering on the distinguished and devoted exponent of Democratic principles such as Col. Bryan has proven himself to be, and believe that the result of his visit to Plainfield will be to encourage and inspirit the Democrats of this vicinity in a manner that will be reflected favorably at the ballot box next November."

Another meeting will be held this evening when definite plans will be made to co-operate with Mr. Martine in accordance with the resolutions.

SILK MILL BUSY.

The New Looms to be Installed to Accommodate the Increased Business.

The Watchung Silk Company is very busy at present. The increase in the number of orders has made it necessary for the company to purchase additional machinery and looms. Ten new looms have been ordered and they will be put in operation the last of this week or the first of next. There is a great demand for the silks and the present number of looms are run to their fullest capacity. As soon as possible other improvements will be made at the mill so as to be better able to meet the increase in business.

DAVIS IS SATISFIED.

He Hoped to Be Acquitted, But Does Not Care to Risk His Neck.

Ex Senator Marsh and Abe J David, counsel for Philip Davis, who was convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of George Monks, had an interview with the prisoner Friday, and he expressed himself as disappointed with the verdict. He had hoped to be acquitted.

He agreed, however, that he had taken a risk, and that a new trial would simply be to place his life in peril again. Davis according advised the counsel not to ask for a new trial, which would probably be granted on the ground that Juror J. Clark Luster had served on the coroner's jury.

Under a new law the penalty for murder in the second degree may be for thirty years, at the discretion of the court.

Editor's Remains to be Removed Here.

The remains of the late Ernest O. Chamberlain which were interred at Edgewater-on-the-Hudson, at the time of death, will be brought to this city at an early date and interred in Hillside Cemetery. This is done at the request of Mrs. Chamberlain who desires that her husband's body shall rest in this city owing to the fact that his parents reside here. Permission to remove the body has been secured.

New National Bank in Railway.

The men who are interested in establishing a new National Bank in Railway, to take the place of the collapsed Union County Bank of that city, have succeeded in getting $75 000 subscribed in that city alone, and the balance needed, $25 000, it is said, has been offered by Brooklyn capitalists. The new bank will probably be situated in the new Graves building in Irving street.

Country Letters Wed.

The elopement of Miss Stella F. Vogbte and George O. Kitchen, both of Millstone, is the talk of that vicinity. The young couple went off in the night and were married at Hopewell by Rev. J. B. Kerr. Miss Vogbte's parents were opposed to the marriage, as she is very young.

CHOIRMASTER IS OUT.

MUSIC FOR CHURCH OF HOLY CROSS TO BE IN NEW HANDS.

George Hoskins Resigns Owing to Dissatisfaction—Part of the Choir Also Leaves with Him—New Ones Engaged.

A surprise was given a majority of the members of Holy Cross church Sunday when the announcement of the resignation of George Hoskins, as organist, was made. To a certain number the announcement was not a surprise but to many it was. Mr. Hoskins had a contract to play at the church until next April, but owing to certain conditions he decided to retire earlier, and he played Sunday for the last time at the church.

It is not a breech of trust to say that for sometime past, in fact since the reorganization of the Church of the Redeemer and Holy Cross church Mr. Hoskins has not been satisfactory to the powers that be, and his retirement was only a question of time. There is no doubt but that he was tended to bring about this dissatisfaction, and rather than continue under these conditions Mr. Hoskins thought it best to resign.

Mr. Hoskins has been with the church for several years. His home is in Jersey City, and he came to Plainfield twice a week for choir rehearsal, in addition to the Sunday trip. With the choir he was generally popular, although there has been some dissatisfaction here from the fact that some of the members were paid and some were not. This, together with the retirement of Mr. Hoskins, has caused a division, and nearly one half of the choir retires with Mr. Hoskins.

The new policy of the church so far as music is concerned is to engage Prof. Sears and Prof. Stubbs, both of St. Agnes' church, New York, for one year. The former is a regular organist, while the latter is a teacher of church choirs. At the end of the year Prof. Sears will continue as organist, and Prof. Stubbs will retire. It is hoped that the music at the church will be a strong feature. There will, no doubt, be a change in the choir, and some new voices can be looked for. There are many who regretted to see Mr. Hoskins retire, and he goes with the best wishes of all.

GUNN GOT GUN'S LOAD.

Former Got in Range of Letter and Is Now Filled With Bird-Shot.

James Gunn attended the shoot at Scott Terry's last week and stayed on the outskirts of the grounds looking for stray pigeons that might escape. There was another man there with the same object. A pigeon swooped down between the two men, and the stranger emptied a portion of the load of his gun into Gunn. Gunn is now confined to his home at Washingtonville as a result.

Three of the fine birdshot struck Gunn. Two struck him in the body, passed through the clothing, but did no injury. The other struck just below his right eye, passed through the lid and lodged against the eyeball. A very painful injury resulted. Gunn will not be able to use his eye for some weeks, but it is believed that he will not permanently lose the sight of the eye.

No one knew who the stranger was that fired the shot, although many inquiries have been made.

GOT WHAT HE LOOKED FOR.

Passaic Valley Farmer Offered to Whip Four Men, but One Lone Did Him Up Nicely.

Henry Burnett, who lives in the Passaic Valley, was roughly handled last Thursday night when he went to a sociable at Mt. Bethel. He was badly beaten and had to be assisted to his carriage by his friends. It is said that he went into the hotel at Mt. Bethel and offered to fight any four men, but his offer was taken up by three men the hotel.

Burnett's three assailants included a well known Plainfield sport, a Mt. Bethel man and a stranger. They set upon Burnett and severely time followed. One of the men fell against the stove and burned the hotel had a narrow escape from going up in flames. At last they let their victim go. He was covered with cuts and bruises.

Cows Will be Required.

Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, of the borough, was called to Somerville last week to consult with Director Logan, of the Board, regarding a recent accident near Raritan on one of the county bridges. A party in driving home late at night went off the bridge and narrowly escaped serious injury, and he signified his intention of suing the county for damage. An investigation proved that the man was intoxicated and therefore not responsible for his actions. It is believed on good authority that he was driving carelessly when the accident occurred. The case is likely to be settled without much trouble.

COMBINES MEAT WITH GROCERIES.

Alex Thorn Purchases the Market Run by Charles Arnold.

Charles Arnold, 35 Somerset street, has disposed of his butcher business at that place to his landlord, Alex Thorn, and Mr. Thorn has removed his grocery store one door east of his former place of business, so that it adjoins the meat market, and by cutting an archway through the wall has connected the grocery store and meat market as one store, and will hereafter run it as such. Mr. Arnold's butcher, R. J. Smith, formerly in charge of Mr. Arnold's market, will remain with Mr. Thorn and have charge of that department.

Death of Mrs. Flynn.

Mrs. Catherine Flynn, wife of Thomas Flynn, died at her late home 301 Madison avenue Sunday. The deceased is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Michael De Cordey. The funeral was held from the family residence on Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at 9 o'clock.

Still Alarm for Chimney Fire.

A still alarm was sent into fire department headquarters Monday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock for a chimney fire at house of Watchung avenue, near East Front street, belonging to J. Fred MacDonald. Chief Dunne and No. 1 hose wagon responded. One extinguisher was used.

BRIDGE FROM JERSEY TO NEW YORK CITY.

Work on the Immense Affair to be Begun Before Long.

THE LARGEST SINGLE SPAN.

TO BE DOUBLE-DECKED AND HAVE FOUR VIADUCTS.

The Enterprise Will Cost $60,000,000 and Preliminary Arrangements Have Already Cost $500,000—Will Cross From Hoboken to a Point Near Fifty-fourth Street — Will be 150 Feet High.

The project of bringing the Hudson river between New York city and New Jersey seems about to be actually undertaken. The time when those who have undertaken to raise the $60,000,000 which the bridge and its approaches will cost can enter into contracts for construction is said now to depend only upon a satisfactory arrangement being made between the projectors of the bridge and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund regarding the location of one of the approaches and the rates of terms upon which the franchise for this approach is to be granted.

The work of getting general franchises for this bridge and of satisfying all the requirements of the States of New York and New Jersey, of Congress, the War Department and of New York has been under way for many years and has involved the expenditure of something like $500,000. The work also involves the acquiring of much property in New York for terminal and approaches, the location of the terminal and approaches, and the terms upon which these rights are to be had by the Sinking Fund Commission.

All of this work has been actively added so far as lay in their power by the New York and New Jersey Bridge Commission, of which Andrew H. Green is chairman, and but one portion of the work now awaits official sanction The promoters of the scheme declare that the financing of the great project is all arranged for ahead, and that work will be begun on the bridge as soon as this final connection is officially authorized and that contractors have already been secured who will undertake the building.

The Hudson River bridge, when it is finished, will be the largest single span suspension bridge in the world. It is to cross the Hudson from Fifty-ninth street in New York city to a point in Hoboken, and to stretch between piers in one span a distance of 1,750 feet. This is about one thousand feet father than the distance between the piers of the new East River bridge now building, which, in turn, is longer than the Brooklyn bridge.

The clear height above the river is to be 150 feet. Since the general plans were changed from those for a cantilever bridge to a suspension bridge they have been changed so that instead of the structure carrying a single deck, it is to be double decked and provided with a carriage road, a footpath, a bicycle path and four trolley-car tracks on the upper deck, besides the six tracks for regular steam railroad, freight and passenger trains on the main deck.

On the New Jersey shore, where the land is high, the approaches will be simple, and all are arranged for, but on the New York side these must be elaborate, costly and extensive to give the bridge its full value to the investors and to the public. The terminal station is to cover the four square blocks between Forty-ninth and Forty-fifth streets, facing on Broadway on its eastern side, and a curved approach will bring the trains to the station from the end of the bridge proper at Fifty-ninth street down the necessary grade.

The location of this approach and that of the terminal station was made in December, 1896, and was approved by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. This provides for the main passenger traffic, but in order to provide direct connections between the bridge and the steamship piers along the North River front and with the yards of the New York Central Railroad and accomplish one of the most important purposes of the bridge, another approach is needed. This approach is to curve southward from the bridge near the New York tower and run along the river front to Battery place.

FINE TALENT WAS HEARD

CONCERT FOR BENEFIT OF PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS.

Recitations and Vocal Music Furnished by Clever Artists—Programme Was Varied Enough to Please All.

The concert given Tuesday in the Y. M. C. A. hall for the benefit of the Park Avenue Baptist church was a decided success in every way. There was a very large attendance, and a most enjoyable programme was rendered. Those who had a part in the programme were all Plainfielders. They were Mrs. Frank J. Smith, reader; Mrs. Nelly Usell Smith, soli violinist, and Charles L. Lewis, baritone. The accompanists were Mrs. Charles L. Lewis and Frank J. Smith.

Mrs. Frank J. Smith's first recitation was "The First Quarrel," by Tennyson, a love story with a sad and tragic ending. Her other readings were a patriotic selection, "When the Northern Lads Played Dixie," by Stanton, "The Serenade," by Herbert, both with music, two bright little encores, a comic selection entitled "The Tea Party," by Rogers, and the witty little dialogue "If I Were You," with piano accompaniment, and a dance at the close. All were given with spirit and sympathy, and the gestures and bits of dance were full of grace and humor.

Mrs. Nelly Usell Smith played a brilliant "Fantasie de Ballet," by De Beriot; a dreamy encore, played with the mute; a Romanza, by Norris; a Mazurka, by Leonewski, and the violin obligato to Mr. Lewis' last song. Her playing was strong, easy and graceful, and her selections were well chosen and thoroughly artistic.

Charles L. Lewis sang "Gipsy John," by Clay; "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," by Nevins, "Thy Beaming Eyes," by McDowell; "Broken Dreams," by Ziedo, and "Because I Love Thee," by Ford, with violin obligato. His varied and pleasing selections, his easy and sympathetic manner of singing, and his clear pronunciation of the words of a song, gave great pleasure.

The two accompanists did excellent work, playing the difficult accompaniments with ease and sympathy. The soft, running accompaniment to Mrs. Frank J. Smith's recitations added much to their effect.

The programme was so varied as to present something to the taste of everyone, and the entire entertainment was one of the most enjoyable given in this city during the season.

MADE PICTURES FOR FUN

CARTOONIST BLACKTON AND MISS WEST IN THE STAR COURSE.

Those Two Artists Pleased a Large Audience at the Fourth Star Course Entertainment at Association Hall Monday.

The fourth entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star course, given Monday night in the hall of the local association, was well attended. It was also thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of the friends of the association, who have come to look upon these entertainments as pleasant diversions from the common place affairs with which the country is filled. They are parlor entertainments of excellent merit and are highly appreciated.

Last night's entertainment was furnished by J. Stuart Blackton and Miss Emma Eliss West. Mr. Blackton is a newspaper cartoonist and has been connected with the New York World and other publications. To his public exhibition as a cartoonist Mr. Blackton has added that of a caricaturist, and he displays almost as much ability in essaying the latter adaptation as in the skill he has obtained in his profession as a cartoonist.

Mr. Blackton kept the audience at the Y. M. C. A. last night in good humor by his clever drawings of character, and his part of the programme was well received and so thoroughly appreciated as to bring forth unstinted applause.

Miss West is a cultured reciter, who gives evidence of being a close student of the elocutionist's art. In her recitation of "The Owl Violin" Miss West certainly displayed her powers of expression to excellent advantage. During Mr. Blackton's sketches of ancient and modern theatrical Miss West favored the audience with selections on the piano, to the delight of all.

The entertainment was much enjoyed and may be classed as one of the best yet given in the Star Course.

GETTING READY.

Plans for the Special Iron Work Required for the Arlington Avenue Trolley.

Residents of Arlington avenue will be glad to know that Engineer Vanemburgh is preparing plans for the curves and other special iron work for the construction of the southeastern extension of the Street Railway.

As these curves have to be made to order for each corner turned by the railroad it is usual to order it some time in advance of construction.

STEPPED INTO PATH OF FAST FREIGHT.

Harry Park, Medical Student Seriously Injured.

AT GRANT AVENUE STATION.

STEPPED OFF WEST BOUND LOCAL INTO PATH OF LIMITED.

Was Struck By Cylinder Head And Thrown Violently To The Platform — Arm And Leg Broken And Internal Injuries Received — Injuries Are Very Serious But Not Fatal.

When Harry Park, a medical student of one home is in Plainfield, stepped off a train at the Grant avenue station last Monday, he stepped directly into the path of a fast freight bound for New York. He still lives but the injuries he received are of such a serious nature that it will be many weeks before he recovers from the effects.

Harry Park is a young man, twenty years old, who lives with his father, Albert E. Park, 248 West Sixth street. He is studying medicine in New York and it is his custom to commute daily to and from New York. He usually takes the train at Grant avenue.

Monday he came out on the local leaving New York at 6:15 o'clock and due here at 7:32, and at Grant avenue station two minutes later. The train was a few minutes late. He stepped off the train at Grant avenue on the side toward the station. He did not see the head light of the approaching freight.

He had nearly crossed the eastbound track when the train came through moving at the rate of forty miles an hour. The side of the cylinder head struck him on the shoulder and he was thrown violently to the platform. He was carried to his home on West Sixth street and then Drs. Hedges were summoned.

His arm was broken at the joint and his leg was broken in two places. His body was badly bruised and internal injuries are feared. The shock was a severe one. His injuries are considered very serious but not fatal.

HANNA'S NEW BILL

It Provides for Incorporation of National Associations of Manufacturers—Chas. A. Moore Interested.

Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, has introduced a bill into the United States Senate providing for the incorporation of the National Association of Manufacturers. This bill has been read in the Senate twice and referred to the committee on manufactures. According to the bill, the general object of the association are to promote the manufacturing industries of the United States and to give proper direction to the efforts looking toward that end and also to extend the facilities of transportation, both at home and abroad, and generally to take all proper methods for advancing the manufacturing interests and promoting the commerce of the whole country.

Among the incorporators and members of the proposed organization is Charles A. Moore, of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, and prominently interested in the Pond Machine Tool Works, of this city.

BIG COCKING MAIN

Madison Birds Fitted And the Murray Hill Cock—Seven Rounds Were Fought.

One of the largest cocking mains held in this section in several years was pulled off with much secrecy in a barn near Madison on Saturday night. The main was one of a long standing dispute as to who had the best birds—Murray Hill or Madison.

The sports from both places backed their opinions with their last dollar. Seven battles were fought, running the main well on toward daylight Sunday morning and it was not until the last battle was fought that either side was sure of victory. The eleventh and concluding battle was won by Murray Hill amid great excitement. The Madison sports had backed their birds and lost a great deal of money which was brought home by the Murray Hill crowd and their friends.

LITERARY.

Just what the good, helpful church member is in church he is at home, with an open heart and an open head, never content unless his friends are coming and going; never angry unless they will not stay and have a meal with him, never so full of joy as when he is doing a good turn, or going over old days with those to whom he is bound by a hundred ties of kindly words and deeds. As he has dealt with all men, strangers and friends alike, in his church and in his home, so will God deal by him, and for him we may feel sure there will be a acceptable welcome waiting where the churches of earth have changed into Our Father's House.—In Maclaren in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

Edwards Vase Awarded With Carnegie.

METUCHEN POSTMASTER.

THE TERM OF NATHAN ROBINS ENDED SATURDAY.

No Successor Has Been Appointed as Yet—Has Been Held Over Two Weeks Three Men Want the Appointment.

Because no one has yet been chosen to succeed Nathan Robins, as postmaster at Metuchen, he will hold over until one is named. The term of the present postmaster ended at 12 o'clock Saturday night, and it is said on very good authority that because there is such a division of opinion as to who shall be postmaster that the postoffice appointment has gone over for two weeks.

The three candidates for the office are James P. Morton, Former Sheriff Charles Campbell and Edward Burroughs.

Morton has a lot of warm advocates who contend that he has always been a good political worker and should be appointed. Some say his appointment was an assured fact until last week, when a delegation went to Washington and objected.

Former Sheriff Campbell also has a host of friends who want him to be named because he has made himself active in the political arena.

The objection raised by some to his appointment is because he has been Collector of Raritan township for years.

Edward Burroughs is picked out by some as a dark horse. They believe that with the Campbell Morton forces at work he will come in a winner.

Postmaster Robins says he is ready to turn over the key to the best man of the three.

WEDDED AT ST. MARY'S.

Nuptials of Miss Bertha Landrigan and John McElgunn Celebrated Sunday Afternoon.

A pretty wedding was that of Sunday afternoon when Miss Bertha Landrigan, of North avenue, and John McElgunn, of Baltimore, were married at 4:30 o'clock at St. Mary's R. C. church in the presence of a large assemblage of friends of the contracting parties. Rev. Father Smyth, rector of the church, performed the ceremony according to the Catholic church ritual, which is very impressive. The bride, an attractive brunette, was becomingly attired in a gown of grey cloth, with white silk and pearl trimmings. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Landrigan. The groom was attended by John King, of this city, who was best man.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McElgunn left the city for Baltimore, where they will visit the groom's folks for a week. Upon their return they will reside in this city, where the groom has a lucrative position at the Pond Tool Works.

Free Delivery for Summit.

Inspector Snow, of the Postoffice Department in Washington, visited Summit Saturday to start the arrangements for establishing the free mail delivery system, application for which had been made by the Common Council and Postmaster Guggebahl. Mr. Snow examined the city thoroughly and announced that he would approve the application and endeavor to further the plan, so that the system can be established within six months. The Street committee of the Common Council expects to submit a plan for numbering the houses to provide for the system at the next meeting of the Council.

A New Idea.

The Hyatts Ice Company has decided to install a new and improved system for making ice in its plant on North avenue. There is now a plentiful supply of ice in the storehouse of the company and the plant will be shut down for three months to permit the change to be made. The supply will be sufficient to furnish all the customers of the company during that time.

F. W. Andrews is Chairman.

The thirty-first annual convention of the New Jersey Young Men's Christian Associations, is to be held at Passaic February 8th to 11th. Frederick H. Andrews, of this city, is chairman of the State executive committee. Messrs. William D. Murray and Lewellen Dennis of this city are also members of the committee.

Lamp Throwers Paid Fine.

George C. Apgar and his wife, the principal participants in the lamp-throwing incident of Sunday evening, are at liberty again, having paid the fine of $10 each imposed by City Judge Runyon. It was first thought that they would not be able to raise the necessary funds, but they accomplished it after much trouble.

Sights Seen in Palestine.

On Monday evening, February 10th Rev. Dr. Richards will tell of a trip through Palestine at a meeting to be held in the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Primary Teachers' Union, of this city. It will be a public meeting and a cordial invitation is extended to all. There will be no admission fee.

TROLLEY CRASHED INTO WAGONETTE

Party of Six Plainfielders Were Badly Frightened.

JUST BEYOND BRUNSWICK

A WONDER THAT SOMEONE WAS NOT BADLY INJURED.

Brunswick Traction Company Car Struck the Plainfield Rig, Wrecked It and Smashed the Occupants Around the Road—Superintendent Sadel Lays the Blame on D river—Came Home by Trolley.

Six Plainfield youths on their way home from New Brunswick in a wagonette met a trolley rather suddenly near Poli Smith's Hotel Sunday evening and the wonder is that some one was not killed. The youths were so riled that they attempted to whip Conductor Schramm and Motorman McDonald.

The Plainfield fellows had been spending the afternoon in New Brunswick. They had a rig hired from Liveryman George W. Cole, driven by William Osborn, a portly colored man. They were driving along the Highland Park road upon the right side of the road, apparently ignorant of the fact that there were trolley tracks there. It was a dismal night, raining rather smartly as the team of grays were jogging along at 9:30 o'clock.

At Poli Smith's Hotel the road branches off, one branch going to Metuchen direct and the other to Bonhamtown. From the Bonhamtown road there is a sharp turn into the main road. A trolley car came bowling down the road from Bonhamtown just as the wagonette was nearing the corner. It swung around the corner and smashed into the wagonette, about twenty feet from the turn.

The car knocked the horses completely around and upset the wagonette, throwing the occupants out. The colored driver fell beneath the car and had to be hauled out.

When the Plainfield men gathered themselves together a couple of them tackled Conductor Schramm and the motorman. The trolleymen received a few punches. The conductor grabbed a controller from the front of the car and threatened to brain the first man who struck him. People who had been attracted by the accident interfered and assisted in straightening out matters.

Philip Smith and William Burns, who were soon on hand, did much to restore order. Mr Smith telephoned to New Brunswick to the Traction Company for help. The horses by so ill used for nearly an hour. They were finally gotten on their feet and stabled at Smith's Hotel.

The Plainfield men were bruised up more or less, but none were seriously injured. They went back to New Brunswick and took the 11 o'clock car for Plainfield. The driver, Osborne, spent the night at the Salvation Army barracks in New Brunswick, and returned to Plainfield Monday morning. He is suffering from pain in the back.

There were six passengers in the trolley car, Aldermen and Mrs. Fred Taylor and two children, Mr. Reed and Miss Newman.

Motorman McDonald had his fingers painfully cut during the trouble.

Supt. Rudel, of the Brunswick Traction Company, says the accident was due to the carelessness of the driver of the wagonette. The car was damaged more than the carriage. If circumstances warrant it he says he will bring suit.

THEOPHILUS SMITH DEAD.

He was Well-Known Resident of The City—Married for Many Years Fifty Years.

Theophilus Smith, aged about 77 years, one of Plainfield's best known citizens died at his home on Park avenue yesterday. Death was due to dropsy, with which Mr. Smith had been a great sufferer. Mr. Smith was born near the Catskills, in New York State, but the largest part of his life was spent in this city. A few years ago he and Mrs. Smith celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Up to within a comparatively short time ago he was able to come to town in a carriage.

He is survived by a wife, a son and a daughter. The latter is Miss Grace Smith, and the son is Roland Smith, who was for years secretary of the Knickerbocker Ice Co., of New York.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membranes and decompose, causing far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell it at 50 cents or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

A slight improvement is noted in the condition of Mrs. George Egel, of Somerset street.

DOG'S MASTER IS MISSING.

William Reed's Canine Turns Up to a Shrewd Conclusion, and Railway's Police Are Investigating.

Railway's Police Department is looking for William Reed, who has been missing since Friday.

Reed did chores of all kinds for the neighbors in that section of Railway known as Lowtown. He had an inseparable companion, a small dog, and the two were fast friends. It was the dog that suggested that Reed had met with some misfortune, as the animal appeared at the house of City Treasurer Vanderhoven Monday afternoon in a nearly starved condition. It is thought the dog had remained with Reed until hunger drove it away. The animal was fed, but is not inclined to show the whereabouts of its master.

Reed is thought to have succumbed to the severe storm Friday night.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Leland, of Elmwood place, is greatly improved from a recent illness.

DIED ON HER WAY TO BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Mrs. James M. Boice Expired in Her Husband's Arms.

HAD URGED HIM TO HASTEN.

HOUSE OF REJOICING FOUND HUSBAND AT DOOR WITH HIS DEAD.

Mr. and Mrs. Boice Were Going From Their Home at New Market to Attend a Surprise Party at Her Son's Home in Raritan Landing—There Was Mourning Instead of Joy.

On her way to a birthday party Mrs. James M. Boice, of New Market, died in her husband's arms at Raritan Landing, Thursday evening. The nearest house was that in which the party was to be held. They carried her body there.

Mrs. Boice and her husband were driving to the residence of C. N. Conover, at Raritan Landing, where her son by a former marriage, Daniel Conover, of Charleston, S. C., was awaiting her. It had been long since she had seen him, and she talked much about the joyful meeting in store for her. She was sixty-seven years old. She kept urging her husband to drive faster.

"We'll be there in good time," he said to her, but she seemed uneasy and overanxious to reach her destination. Afterward the husband remembered her haste and thought perhaps she had a premonition that she would never arrive there.

She fell back in her seat as they reached Hoey's lane. Her heart had grown weak. As her husband supported her she cried weakly, "I am dying!"

She did not speak again and Boice found that her pulse was still. He drove furiously to Conover's. There were guests from New Brunswick, Plainfield, Dunellen and many other places in the neighborhood.

The company waited the mother. They heard the sound of wheels and cried, "There she comes!"

A door was opened and a voice was heard shouting "Help!" They rushed out to find Boice checking his plunging horses.

"What is it?" they asked.

"My wife is dead," he said.

And so the birthday party was one of mourning.

WANTS A COMMISSION.

William H. Marchant Claims That He Was Not Paid for Negotiating Sale of Livery Stable.

The action of William B. Marchant against Daniel S. Roberts, who formerly kept the North avenue livery and boarding stables, was tried before Justice Abbott Friday afternoon. The action was to recover an amount alleged to be due the plaintiff as commissions for securing a purchaser for the property. Mr. Marchant at first demanded 10 per cent. of the amount of the purchase as his commission. Afterwards he agreed to take two-and-a-half per cent. This was considered too much by Mr. Roberts, hence the suit. The court gave a judgment for $200 and costs. W. A. Codrington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, for the plaintiff; Walter L. Hetfield for defendant.

DEATH NOT EXPECTED.

Mrs. Catharine Kiernan Succumbed to an Attack of Pneumonia.

The death of Mrs. Catharine Kiernan, one of the borough's most highly respected residents, occurred Saturday morning rather suddenly, at her home, 41 Steiner place. She had been ill but a few days with pneumonia, and it was thought that she would recover. Her illness took a decided unfavorable turn during the night and she passed away Saturday. Mrs. Kiernan was before her marriage a Miss Walsh. She was born in Ireland. She was a devoted Christian woman and a faithful attendant and a member of Holy Cross church. She was the wife of William Kiernan, a special marshal in the borough, and the mother of Miss Kiernan, a teacher in the Borough Public High School. The funeral services were held from Holy Cross church last Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

HACKMAN GOT HIS FARE.

Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone and a New York Councilman Disputed the Charge.

Dr. Jocelyn Johnstone, secretary to President Guggenheimer, of the New York City Council, formerly a resident of this city, had a dispute with a hackman in New York last Friday while in company with Councilman Brice. They refused to pay the charge at first, claiming it exorbitant. Councilman Brice was one of those who drafted the hack ordinance and he said he ought to know. They finally drove to the Thirtieth Street police station and Sergeant Daly was called in. He said the price was too high. The two passengers finally paid the fare demanded, but Councilman Brice declared that he would see that the hackman's license was revoked.

NEW G. O. P. PAPER FOR PLAINFIELD

Republicans Disgusted With Editor Runyon's Policy.

COMPETITION IS ASSURED.

NEW PAPER WILL HELP MR. F. SK'S POLITICAL AMBITIONS.

Definite Steps Are Being Taken to Start the Enterprise, Which Will be a Stock Company—The Idea is to Discredit the News as a Republican Organ and Take Away Official Printing.

Quiet but aggressive steps are being taken by a number of leading Republicans of this city, headed by Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, to start a new Republican paper in opposition to the present local Republican organ, the Plainfield News. For several years the News has violently opposed the Republicans in the policy and management of the party, and that independent spirit has been so manifest that at times it has annoyed the Republican leaders greatly. In the campaigns, however, the News has always fallen in line and supported the candidates, but sometimes in a half-hearted way.

It is well understood in political circles that Former Mayor Fisk desires to be a candidate for Congressman from the Eighth district, now represented by Congressman Fowler, of Elizabeth, and he realizes that a newspaper would aid his chances very materially. Together with several of his friends a canvass is now being made to see how much money can be raised towards aiding the enterprise, the idea being to make it a stock company in which enough Republicans would be financially interested to give the paper a boom at the very outset.

The intentions of those behind the project are to equip an office with all the modern typographical facilities, and turn out an up-to-date paper. It is expected that within a few weeks the project will be in such shape that definite steps will be taken to establish the office. Efforts have been made heretofore to start another Republican paper in this city, but they have failed. This time it is claimed that there will be no failure.

When the new paper is started and an assured status a local standing, it will be made the official organ of the city on the Republican side in place of the News.

TROLLEY CAR HIT UNDERTAKER.

E. E. Runyon's Vehicle Wrecked and Mr. Runyon's Leg and Arm Hurt.

E. E. Runyon, the undertaker, while driving across Richmond street into East Third street Saturday was run into by a trolley car. Mr. Runyon was accompanied by one of his assistants, and both were thrown from the wagon which was completely wrecked. Mr. Runyon's injuries seemed to be in the arm and leg, and he was obliged to go home in a wagon. The assistant was not injured. It is claimed that the motorman did not ring his bell, and as the wind was blowing very hard the occupants of the wagon were not warned of the approaching car.

RECEIVED CHIEF'S DEGREE.

Two Candidates Wormed Out—Interesting Talk by Mr. Newcorn.

The regular meeting of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men was held Friday Two candidates received the chief's degree, while five applications were received. An interesting talk was given by Great Senior Sagamore Newcorn on the progress of the order as ascertained by his travels through the State. The membership had increased 1,200 during the past year. He also told of the meeting to be held in Trenton soon, when the ritualistic work is to be exemplified for the benefit of the order all over the State.

Mrs. Brooks' Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, of West Eighth street, gave a luncheon Friday at her home. It was a brilliant affair, fourteen of Plainfield's well-known society women being present. The decorations were very pretty, blue and white prevailing, even the china being a fancy blue and white ware. White flowers in silver holders adorned the table.

The Ceiling Fell.

What might have been a serious accident occurred last Friday about 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Hodge, on Plainfield avenue, when about half of a ceiling in a room just off from the hall fell and completely covered everything therein.

FISH THAT FISHES.

He Lies on the Bottom of the Sea, Waiting Motionless for the Approach of His Prey.

Most remarkable of strange fishes is the angler fish, whose very name seems a paradox. The fishing fish is nevertheless a reality, and a stern one to all that approach those awful jaws of his. With a body the color of mud he generally lies in the shadow of some rock on the bottom of the sea, waiting motionless for the approach of his prey. He is provided with an odd kind of fin just over the mouth, and this is held out in front of him to give warning of the coming of something to be swallowed. One taken alive was experimented on and it was found that if this projecting fin was touched with a stick, even though the stick did not come near the mouth, the jaws closed convulsively. This shows that the fin by some provision of nature closes the jaws as soon as it is touched. The mouth is tremendous, growing to the width of a foot when the whole fish is only three feet long. One of these anglers was caught not long since and though it was only 33 inches long, a fish 15 inches long was found sticking in its throat. The angler is provided with peculiar teeth set in double or treble rows along the jaws, and at the entrance of the throat. Some of these teeth are a foot long. He is not a pretty fish to look at, but he is strictly to the business and will swallow anything that touches his warning fin, whether it is meant for food or not. All kinds of things have been found in the stomachs of anglers, from bits of leaf and stone to fish as large as the angler itself. This is without doubt one of the most peculiar and interesting fish in the whole ocean.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

INSECT CALCULATOR.

He Is Found in New Caledonia and Can Count Correctly Up to the Number Six.

There is a little insect found in New Caledonia called the "insect which counts," and which seems capable of counting to at least six. It is found on the leaves of the banana tree, and when the moment is favorable it may be seen to turn around, with its head as a center, in describing rapid circles. At first it executes six of them, nor can more nor less, then it stops at the moment and makes the same number in an opposite direction. It stops a moment and begins again, but only makes five this time, always alternately in opposite directions. Another step, the double rotation in alternative ways, the turns this time only being four, and so on, diminishing constantly in such a way as successively three, then two and at last one single turn.

After these gymnastic exercises, which are at the same time mathematical, the insect remains absolutely motionless until its agitation again takes possession of it and it gives itself up to its complicated calculations with an aptitude which many people might envy.

STRANGE FRIENDSHIP.

A Cat and a Pigeon That Live Together in Amity and Eat from the Same Plate.

Cats and pigeons as a rule do not associate with anything like friendliness. An exception to this fact is found at Wheeling, W. Va., where a white cat and a pigeon live in perfect amity, much to the pleasure of their feminine owner. They eat from the same plate, and one will not touch his food in the absence of the other. Frequently the bird takes a walk with the pigeon perched comfortably in his white fur.

On the Back of a Shark.

Capt. Vane, of Long Island, declares that the following story is strictly true. He was out after mackerel one night, when his dory began to move uneasily, and then slowly but steadily it rose in the air, and, turning over, threw him a couple of somersaults and landed him on the back of a big dog shark. He clutched the dorsal fin and held on. The shark was probably the more frightened of the two and started off at a racing clip. The man held on for a full mile and only let go when the shark dived. Then he was within a quarter-mile of the Half-Way Rock lighthouse, which he easily reached by swimming.

He Answered the Question.

There is a bright ten-year-old boy in Brooklyn whose aunt has a fad of keeping an autograph album. Her sentimental friend wrote upon one page the quotation: "What is an ass as a day in June." The youngster in question was looking over the book for a place to put his name, and noticed this. The next page was vacant and he wrote in the bold, if somewhat scraggy chirography of youth, the answer as he saw it: "A Chinaman with whiskers," and then signed his name.

ALEX. GILBERT WILL LEAD CITY CAMPAIGN

Chosen Chairman Of Republican City Committee.

J. B. DUMONT IS TREASURER.

WILLIAM NEWCORN ELECTED AS THE NEW SECRETARY.

Ticket was Elected Without Opposition—Mr. Barrows was Not Present So His Name Could Not Be Used Even If His Friends Had So Desired—Ward Organizations Will be Formed — Registration.

Peace and harmony prevailed at the gathering of the Republican leaders Friday. Only one ticket appeared in the organization of the new city executive committee and that went through without a break, meeting with no opposition. The entire committee was not present so action in some lines that had been expected was deferred until a future meeting.

According to the by-laws of the committee, a member cannot be elected to an office unless he is present at the meeting and gives his consent to the use of his name. The name of Former Councilman E. T. Barrows had been mentioned for the chairmanship of the committee to succeed Former Mayor Alex. Gilbert, but part of the committee was in favor of returning Mr. Gilbert to the leading position on the committee. Mr. Barrows was not present at the meeting and that effectually prevented the use of his name, even had his friends wished to nominate him.

Mr. Gilbert was nominated and unanimously elected to the chairmanship of the committee. Councilman J. B. Dumont was made treasurer and William Newcorn secretary without opposition.

After the organization had been completed there was a general discussion of the approaching campaign It was decided that it would be well to form ward organizations. Nothing was done regarding the advisability of securing a registration of Republicans for use at the primaries. If any action is taken it will be at a meeting when the entire committee is present.

There will be a campaign club started during the summer and the Young Men's Republican Club will undoubtedly be revived when the active campaigning begins. No details of the work were arranged, but the members spent some time in discussing the situation.

The meeting was held in the offices in the Marsh building, Park avenue, formerly occupied by Robert A. Meeker. During the meeting, the committee was offered the use of those rooms for a headquarters during the coming campaign. The offer was made by Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk and a resolution of a vote of thanks tendered to Mr. Fisk.

THE AUDUBON SOCIETY.

H. M. Maxson Resigned as Chairman, as He Could Not Give Proper Attention.

The Executive Committee of the Audubon Society of New Jersey met last Thursday and considered the resignation of H. M. Maxson, as chairman, which was presented at the previous meeting. As Mr. Maxson stated that his other duties prevented him from giving the attention to the business of the society which he felt it needed, the committee were obliged to accept his resignation.

Rev. A. C. Kickerson was elected as his successor, but the valuable service of Mr. Maxson will not be lost to the society, as he will continue as a member of the committee.

It is understood that Mr. Kickerson is much interested in the preservation of our feathered friends, and aggressive work in this state toward that end may be expected.

PROGRESSIVE PATCHWORK.

Novel Kind of a Party Arranged by Congregationalists Was a Success.

The progressive patchwork party of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church last Friday proved a decided success. It was held at the residence of Rev. M. E. Dwight, of Rockview avenue. Considering the gale that swept from the mountain and threatened to take everybody off their feet, the attendance was good. The evening was spent in making patchwork quilts for the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, the young women sewing and the young men cutting the pieces.

To Have Distinguished Guests.

Governor Voorhees, Mayor Mack and the mayors of Plainfield, New Brunswick and Perth Amboy, and many other distinguished men will be among the guests at the first annual reception to be given at Quien's Hall, to Elizabeth February 7 by the Superior Officers' Police Protective Association of Union and Middlesex counties and the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of this city. It will be one of the most notable affairs the police in this vicinity have ever given, and several hundred invitations have been extended.

GOVERNOR SCOFIELD.

"Mentioned" as an Available Candidate for Vice President.

Wisconsin Republicans Think the Gallant Major Would Make a Good Run and, If Elected, a Splendid Official.

Gov. Edward Scofield, of Wisconsin, who has been proposed for vice presidential candidate on the republican national ticket, has all the qualifications usually demanded in "a good man for the place," besides many sterling qualities and abilities which, as vice president, he would not be called upon to show.

Wisconsin's governor, says the Chicago Times-Herald, is one of those men whose all around capacities fit them for almost any station in life. In a career ranging from the humble, though very necessary, position of "printer's devil" in the office of a country newspaper, to that of chief executive of the great state of Wisconsin, Maj. Scofield has always been able to do the right thing at the right time. His political life has been quite brief, but very successful. He never sought an office, but offices have been brought to him, and, like the good citizen that he is, he has never refused to serve the people and has always appreciated the honor thus conferred. He is fortunately intended to confer on him.

Thus, in 1889, when the people of the Oconto district desired him to come to the capital as the guardian of their interests in the capacity of state senator, he accepted the call in the spirit that tendered it, and did not refuse to return when he was asked to do so for the next term. In 1894 his friends desired that he should try for governor, and he went before the convention. He was defeated. He is free, but then he received more votes than any other of the unsuccessful candidates, and in 1896 he was nominated and elected and reelected in 1898.

Gov. Scofield has devoted most of his life to business and has been singularly successful in his line. His first attempt at earning a living was in the capacity of helper in an Indiana printing office. There he was the "newspaper man" at the age of 13. In 1858 young Scofield went to Brookfield, Pa., and there obtained employment as compositor on the Jeffersonian. In this position he received the munificent sum of $100 a year and board. For three years he labored thus, but in 1861 he became one of President Lincoln's 75,000 volunteers. He began as a listed man and ended as a major, having won every intermediate rank by his gallantry and devotion to his duty. His sufferings were great, but he has never discussed his army experience except with old comrades, and even with them he is silent about his own performances.

Maj. Scofield did not return to the printer's "case" after the close of the war. His first work as a civilian was in the way of civil engineering. Commencing in 1865, he was employed for three years engaged by Finn Hall as foreman of Hall's mills in Oconto. In 1868 he formed an association with the Marinette Lumber company, and later with George Arnold. These partnerships resulted in the organization of one of the largest lumber concerns in the country. Gov. Scofield has satisfied nearly everybody with his administration of state affairs and should make an acceptable candidate for the vice presidency. Such, at least, is the opinion of a good many republicans in Wisconsin. The governor himself will not discuss the subject. He feels somewhat delicate about expressing himself thereon, owing to the fact that he has taken open issue with the national administration on some features of its Philippine policy, having publicly declared against the United States taking possession of the islands. These views, it is asserted, he has modified since his party attitude on the issue has become more clear.

Aguinaldo's Wife's Earrings.

Earrings worn by the wife of Aguinaldo, the Philippines insurgent, are now in possession of Mrs. T. L. Wells, of Concord, N. H. Mr. Wells, who is a transfer clerk connected with the United States mail service in Atchison, said that the pendants which were once used as personal adornments by Mrs. Aguinaldo were sent to his wife by Lieut. Fred Strother, of the Kansas cavalry. The ornaments were secured some time ago, when the wardrobe of Aguinaldo's wife was found by the American soldiers. The earrings are of solid gold and appear to have been cut out of the metal with a die. They are marked in six squares and are much larger than the earrings in use in most civilized countries. They are greatly prized by Mrs. Wells on account of their historic association.

IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

PLAINFIELD BOYS WHO ARE ACTIVE IN THEM.

To Take There are Several Former Who are Proving Worthy Contestants for Honors in the Various Sports.

Those who are interested in athletics, particularly at the colleges, have remarked on the number of young men from this city who have distinguished themselves in that line during the past few years. Plainfield sends its largest delegation of young men to Yale University, where Plainfield has been specially well-favored.

In football Westley Abbott, Raymond A. McGee and Charles Dupee have kept up the name of Plainfield at New Haven during the last few years. McGee also made a good showing for the crew while Carroll L. Runyon, now a Freshman there, promises to stand in the front rank of collegiate hammer-throwers when the outdoor athletic season begins. W. M. McCutchen is one of Yale's best open wheel. J. Vincent Bittenbouse, now a Junior at Lehigh, is a member of the lacrosse team from that college. J. M. Middledith, who recently graduated from there, also played on that team. Arthur W. Lederer was honors at Princeton on the baseball team.

Elbert D. Snodgrass, while a Freshman at Dickinson College, won his "D" by winning his quarter in the intercollegiate team race at Philadelphia. He also won honors by making the hundred yards in ten seconds flat. Ernest H. Repalje, a former student of the Plainfield High School, is a member of both football and baseball teams at Rutgers College, while William A. Fisher, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last year, is counted on as a prominent candidate for the baseball nine at that same college. William Bushmore is the crack pitcher at Amherst. Jesse L. Hurlbut, Jr., who died last summer, was the champion intercollegiate pole vaulter. Everett Morgan won honors in the same event at Amherst. There are many others that could be mentioned in the same line.

It all goes to show that Plainfield is even better represented in college athletics than any other of the cities of its size. Wherever they go, the Plainfield boys are always bound to make a mark in whatever line they undertake.

WITH THE OLD MASTERS.

Literary Entertainment Given by Epworth League in Vincent Chapel Last Night.

Four score of the members and friends of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church assembled last Friday in Vincent chapel for the literary entertainment of the League. "An Evening with the Old Masters" was the title of the entertainment.

The programme included piano solos by Miss Symons, vocal solos by Miss Etta Raybert and Mrs. S. H. Tugwell. There were also a series of short papers on famous paintings and the artists. Harry Gee told of Raphael's "The Madonna of the Chair." Miss Derby described "Angel Heads," by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Raphael's "Sistine Madonna" was the subject of Miss Angleman's talk. Miss Luella B. Crowther described Leonardo da Vinci and his "The Last Supper." Mrs. A. B. Meredith concluded with "Aurora" and its painter, Guido.

Refreshments and a social time followed. The affair was arranged under the joint charge of the literary and social committees of the league.

CONSUMERS WILL BUILD.

A Project on Foot in Westfield to Break the Monopoly Prices That Now Prevail.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Jan. 27—The committee appointed to consider a proposition to build and maintain a consumers' water and light plant held a meeting at the town rooms last night, but the weather being so cold there was but a small attendance. A committee, composed of the following gentlemen, was appointed to get subscriptions for stock in the new company: Messrs. C. W. Harden, F. W. Wood, A. R. Pearsall, A. G. Anderson, Wellington Morehouse, Edward Harbison and Arthur N. Pierson. Supt. Dowd, of the Union Water Company, was present, and after the meeting said to several of the members that as soon as the new company was in a position to supply water he would offer the town water at just half the rate that the new company did and that he would give a ten year contract.

Series of Lectures Promised.

It is probable that a series of morning lectures on "Europe in Africa, in the Nineteenth Century" will be given in the city during Lent by Miss Dorothy Wilberforce Lyon, Ph. D. The lectures would have especial reference to the present situation in South Africa and Egypt. Miss Lyon has given a similar course in Elizabeth, and is also lecturing in New York.

Bought Finger's Hotel.

Fred Nelson, of Basking Ridge, has purchased the hotel property at Watching avenue, formerly owned by the late Peter Finger, and will take possession April 1st.

WOMEN WHO AID IN WORK OF Y. M. C. A.

Annual State Conference Was Held in This City.

MANY DELEGATES PRESENT.

MRS. JAMES E. KIMBALL WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT.

State Secretary Donald McColl Also Addressed and Led in the Discussion of the Reports—Substantial Collection Served by the Ladies in the Small Hall — Two Sessions Were Held.

The sixth annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries to the Young Men's Christian Association convened at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the large hall of the local association building in this city. There was a large attendance. Many delegates were present from Trenton, Newark, Hoboken, Summit, Madison and this city.

The committee of arrangements consisted of Mrs. M. P. Baldwin, Newark; Mrs. Joseph C. Nixon, Hoboken; Mrs. J. H. Shaper, Summit. The proceedings of the conference were opened by a short devotional service conducted by Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, D. D., pastor of the First M. E. church of this city.

Mrs. James G. Kimball, of this city, gave a greeting after which the responses were heard by the various delegates, being led by Mrs. Crowell Marsh, of Trenton.

At 10:30 o'clock the organization of the conference was perfected by the election of the following officers: President, Mrs. James E. Kimball, of Plainfield; vice-president, Mrs. William Wright, of Trenton; secretary, Mrs. William Webb Davis, of Madison.

After the organization the delegates listened to an animated discussion of reports, which was led by Donald MacColl, the State secretary. At 12:15 the convention adjourned and the delegates repaired to the small hall and enjoyed a splendid collation that had been prepared by the local Women's Auxiliary committee composed of the following ladies: Mrs. J. W. Gawell (chairman), Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Mrs. J. E. Kimball, Miss Ada M. Runyon, Mrs. John M. Lewis, Mrs. Reuben Dixon, Mrs. Harry Gee, Mrs. I. M. French, Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, Mrs. A. B. Meredith, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Miss S. Lena Boss, Mrs. L. H. Gale, Mrs. Roger F. Murray, Mrs. Townsend Bushmore, J. O. McKelver.

The afternoon session was highly interesting and equally well attended. At 2 o'clock there was a praise service, followed by the reading of an important paper on "The Means and Methods That Win," by Mrs. W. B. Millar, of Montclair. This was followed by a business session, during which pledges were read from State work. Mrs. W. F. Bailey, of Summit, read an interesting paper on "Boys" that was well received. The conference was brought to a close by the half hour discussion of difficulties that are met with and if possible overcome in conducting the work of the auxiliary. This was led by the president. The conference was conducive of much benefit, and those present were well repaid for their attendance.

A SPELLING MATCH.

Pleasant Affair Held at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church held a sociable last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown, Grove street. A feature was a spelling match between sides championed by George F. Brown and Dr. Kempton Browning. Dr. Browning's side won easily. This match afforded no end of amusement for all. At a late hour refreshments were served and everyone departed well pleased with the affair. The committee in charge consisted of Miss Susie Woodland, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown, Mrs. W. B. Vail, Miss Maude French and John G. MacLoughlin.

Copies Now on Sale.

The book "From America to the Orient," published by Honeyman & Co., 181 North avenue, has not been on sale since the Christmas holidays, owing to the inability of the binders to supply copies. The remaining copies, however, which are not many, can now be had either at local bookstores or at 181 North avenue.

Dressed and Played Cards.

About twenty-five friends of Miss Hattie Yoorhis, of Central avenue, were her guests Friday at the home of her parents. The evening was enjoyed by dancing and card parties. Refreshments were also served.

Another New Lodge.

Former Councilman W. A. Westphal is organizing a lodge of the Order of the Iroquois in this city. He has been appointed a deputy organizer and is meeting with excellent success.

Miss Cantin Resigns.

Miss Cantin Runyon, a teacher in the High School, is detained at her home by illness.

WOMEN OF TRINITY MEET WITH SUCCESS.

Annual Turkey Supper Tickled The Palates of Many.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS, TOO.

NAMES OF THOSE WHO WERE IN CHARGE OF THE AFFAIR.

Patrons to the Number of 212 Were Served With the Delicious Meats That Had Been Prepared—Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle was Chairman of the Committee That Had Various Details to Charge.

It was a happy event in the history of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church Jan. 25th, when their annual turkey supper was attended with success that was well deserved. For weeks past this society has been working hard and faithfully in completing arrangements for this event of the year, and they certainly must have felt gratified with the result, for notwithstanding the very disagreeable, rainy night, 212 persons were served with supper. Every member put forth her best effort and all worked in unison to make the supper surpass all previous ones, and those who were present last evening can testify that a more successful affair was never held. From beginning to end it was complete in every detail, and not a thing was left undone that would add to the pleasure and success of the event.

The Sunday school rooms, where the supper was given, spacious and brilliantly lighted, presented an attractive and welcome sight. Here and there were to be found numerous tables, handsomely decorated with dainty china and costly silver, while in the centre a palm or a fern added to the general beauty. It was at these tables that the supper was served, and those in charge were kept constantly busy attending to the wants of their many patrons. The hours were from 6 until 9 o'clock, but it was long after 9 o'clock when the last person was served. The unanimous opinion of all, as they left the tables, was that they had never partaken of a better turkey supper, and this was, of course, gratifying to the women.

While the supper was being served the usual formality of such occasions was delightfully relieved by a programme of pleasing instrumental music rendered by a trio composed of Mrs. Buckley, Mrs. C. D. Corle and Mrs. George Saums. This was one of the features of the evening thoroughly enjoyed. As the guests of the society arrived they were received by a committee of gentlemen, who gave their personal attention in seeing that everyone was made to feel perfectly at home.

The attendance throughout the evening was very large, as was to be expected, and aside from the real purpose which brought people out in such large numbers, there was a delightful sociability evidenced which still further added to the enjoyment of all. So general was the sociability that all formed themselves into reception committee.

Of course, all of the members of the society assisted in the affair, but upon a certain number there was placed the responsibility, and to these women too much cannot be said in praise of their efforts. Mrs. Edwin T. VanWinkle was chairman of the whole affair, and she was assisted by Mrs. P. M. Demarest, as head of the supper committee. Mrs. VanWinkle's ability was clearly evidenced, and she was ably assisted in the work of this committee by Mrs. Seaman Williams, Mrs. Harry W. Marshall, Mrs. Salmon C. Baker, Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, Mrs. Howard B. Templin, Mrs. R. B. Rogers, Mrs. H. B. Paul, Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver and Mrs. A. M. Gilliem.

Now from the above number there was selected persons to take charge of the supper tables Mrs. Cornelius Schenck presided at one table, and she was assisted by Miss Emma Hantsch. Miss Grace Berg and Miss Minnie Berg. Another table was presided over by Mrs. W. C. Startup, assisted by Miss Josephine Fritts, Miss Grace Emmons and Miss Sadie Holmes. Mrs. H. B. Paul was in charge of a table, with Miss Maude E. VanDyke and Miss Chandler as her assistants. At another table Mrs. O. W. Dunham took charge and her assistants were Miss Jennie Quick and Miss Edith Dubois. Another table was presided over by Mrs. Horce J. Martin, assisted by Miss Bessie Martin, Miss J. Kissam and Miss Mabel Wikoff. Mrs. Howard B. Templin was in charge of the other table and was assisted by Miss Grace VanFleet and Miss Grace Rowland. The service was perfect and the wants of all were promptly attended to.

In addition to the above there were other attractions that appealed to those present. There was an apron table where all kinds of this necessary article was to be found. This was in charge of Mrs. VanDoren, Mrs. John Brough, Mrs. B. Frank Cortell and Mrs. Garret VanWinkle. One of the tables that proved very attractive was that where home-made candies were sold, and as a side feature a handsome collection of Japanese dolls were offered for sale. Mrs. E. H. Bird was in charge, assisted by Miss Minnie Williams, Miss Martin and Miss Griffin. In one of the class rooms there was an attractive table where the most delicious home-made cakes were sold. Mrs. Peter A. Emmons, Mrs. R. B. Rogers and Mrs. T. B. VanZandt were in charge there. One other attraction, but not the least, was the "mystery box," where for a small sum one could get a useful article. Mrs. E. E. Anthony took charge of this, and she did a good business. At all of the tables good business was the rule, and those in charge had no trouble in disposing of their goods.

In the culinary department the women were assisted very much by John H. Tier, Sr., who so generously carved the turkeys. At the door was to be found a person with an eagle eye—E. H. Bird—assisted by E. T. VanWinkle, who saw that no one entered without a proper passport. W. C. Startup added still further to the comfort of those present by looking after their coats and hats. The members of the society in thanking all for their many kindnesses take this occasion to thank Woodhull & Martin for so generously allowing them the use of the necessary dishes.

The turkey supper was continued at Trinity Reformed church last Friday under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, and the success attending it was almost the equal of the first night. There were 174 persons served with supper. The night being so cold accounts in a measure for the slight decrease in attendance, but the women are very thankful for the liberal patronage and are rejoicing in the fact that they will clear about $160. About everything was disposed of before the affair terminated and the amount received represents practically a clear profit. The members of the society feel well repaid for their earnest efforts in assisting in the work of the church.

OFFSET BILL RULED OUT.

Justice Nash Decided In Favor of Jerry VanWinkle in His Suit Against William Abbott.

The action of Jeremiah VanWinkle, a painter, against William H. Abbott, Justice of the Peace and real estate dealer, to recover $3 19 alleged to be due the plaintiff for painting a sign for the defendant's office on North avenue, was tried before Justice Nash Thursday afternoon. The sign in question was painted more than one year ago and has been in use ever since. Mr. Abbott refused to pay for painting on the ground that the work had not been satisfactory. At the trial Thursday the defendant's counsel offered in evidence an offset claim of $6 40 against the plaintiff. The bill was ruled out by the justice, it being shown that it had been purchased from B. W. Hand after the plaintiff had commenced the action. The court gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount and costs. The plaintiff was represented by V. W. Nash, Jr., and the defendant by Willie Sweeney. This was Master Nash's maiden effort.

FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED.

No Reserved Seats in Music Hall When Col. Bryan Will Speak There.

The public announcement that Col. William Jennings Bryan would honor the citizens of Plainfield by being the guest of one of her well known citizens, and address them in Music Hall February 7th, has led many people in this and nearby cities to make requests of Mr. Martine for tickets of admission. There will be no reserved seats. The hall will be open to the public, and Republicans as well as Democrats will be welcome.

Although Mr. Martine has received many letters from his friends through out Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, begging him to save seats for them at whatever cost, he has decided that it will not be wise to do so. The only seats reserved will be those on the stage for the gentlemen who accompany Mr. Bryan and the representatives of the press. To secure a seat it will be necessary to be at Music Hall early the afternoon of February 7th.

Celebrated Her Birthday.

About twenty of the young friends of Miss Mattie Klein gathered at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Klein, 324 East Second street, Thursday evening and assisted in celebrating her fourteenth birthday. The evening was passed most delightfully with music, games and refreshments.

May Amend Constitution.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church held a regular business meeting Friday night at which time several amendments to the constitution were proposed. Action will not be taken until the next business meeting.

FIRES IN OLD NEW YORK.

The Bucket Brigade of a Century Ago Worked on a Home Rule Principle.

Fire engines in New York a century ago were of very inferior quality and of the crudest construction. The only water there was for fire purposes was obtained from wooden pumps, and by a law of the corporation every owner of a dwelling was obliged to supply a fire bucket for every fireplace in the house or back building. These buckets held three gallons and were made of sole leather; they were hung in the passage near the front door. When the bell rang for fire the watchmen, firemen and boys, while running to the fire, cried: "Throw out your buckets!" Then out were pitched up by men, women and boys running to the fire. Two lines were formed, from the fire to the nearest pump; when the pump gave out the lines were carried to the nearest river; one line passed down the street, the other passed up the full buckets; if a person tried to break through the lines he was compelled to fall in and help, under penalty of a severe drenching for refusal. Every bucket was branded with the name and number of the owner, and any householder not supplied with a bucket was liable to fine and in some cases imprisonment.

Every morning after a fire the corporation firemen went to the streets near the scene, picked up the buckets and dumped them in the lobby of the city hall. People then sent their children or servants to bring home the buckets, to await the next fire.

This method of fire fighting had many disadvantages, though at that period most of the inhabited part of New York was below the line of Fulton street, and in consequence the distance to either river was not very great. Moreover, the riparian boundaries of New York were less extended than they are now, Greenwich street and Front street being the line inside of which all the city grew northward and as the distances from the central Broadway line to the river front were gradually increased it was no longer practicable to depend on buckets passed from hand to hand, and the system was adopted of a copper pump for drawing water out of the river in case of fire, and thereby avoiding the disagreeable necessity of the inhabitants going down to the slips and handling the water in the old buckets. This was ordered by the corporation in 1799. One year afterward this pump was deposited, by authority, in the rear of the city hall. The wheels of the engines were at that time in motion and transportation was extremely difficult when there was much snow. Accordingly a new style of sled was tried and similar ones were ordered to be made for the other engines. But they were found to be worse than useless, for in attempting to turn a corner the engines were often upset and damaged. In very narrow streets sometimes they were left to be burned, because it was impossible to get them away.

About this time each engine house was supplied with two poles long enough to carry 12 buckets each. These poles were borne on the shoulders of the firemen. The general rule was that the first fireman to reach the engine house after an alarm of fire should have a right to the pipe and take it with him to the fire; that the next four firemen to arrive should carry the bucket poles, and that the rest of the company should run off with the engine as best they might, "hawling out and demanding the aid of citizens as they proceeded on." The "hawling out" proved to be the bane of the department of ordinance as well as custom, was not wholly satisfactory to New Yorkers, as in case of false alarms it often disturbed the slumbers of the burghers and at other times emptied cellars and other premises of fire without any practical result. —N. ROSELLE HAS GRIP ON PRESS TROPHY.

Won Two Out Of Three Games From Westfield.

AT ROSELLE CASINO ALLEYS.

PRACTICALLY DECIDED THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF LEAGUE.

Westfield Made Strong Effort and Won the First Game but Lost the Other Two — Good Scores Rolled — Second Game Was Very Close and Nineteen Pins Decided It — The Individual Scores.

Roselle's grip on the Daily Press Bowling League trophy was tightened last Thursday. Only the complete collapse of the team from the Roselle Casino can prevent the trophy from spending its first summer here. The Westfield Club came here last evening bound to win and did win the first game. But after that, the supreme confidence of the Roselle bowlers of victory on their own alleys carried everything before it and the last two games went to the home team.

To begin with, Cannoey D. Smith, captain of the Westfield team, missed his train and took the trolley to the B. and O. crossing, walking the rest of the way. When the first game began, he was the only one who could roll at all. The strain of waiting may have effected the rest for they couldn't hit anything. The farce lasted for three frames and then Westfield woke up. Roselle woke up, too, and stayed right with the visitors for two frames. Then Chauncey Smith started for a triple header and Westfield walked away to win by 46 pins.

The pace that was started by both sides on the second game was killing. Westfield opened with a clean frame. There wasn't a break for either side on the second and Roselle did the same thing on the third. Warner and Townley both began with triple headers while Mulford swept the alleys with one ball in the third, fourth and fifth frames. Warner fell down but Townley set a fast pace only to be split on the windup. Mulford rolled in great form and with any amount of luck.

For three frames, Westfield held the lead. Then Roselle jumped to the front by twelve pins. That was made in the fifth but fell back to 11 in the sixth. The fight was close as the windup approached and it was a question as to whose game it was likely to be. Roselle's windup was slightly stronger than that of the visitors and the home team won by 19 pins.

Roselle led all the way on the third game. The opening was fair and then both Warner and Townley and fifth frames without a break. Westfield did the same on the fifth and sixth and made a strong brack. Some hard luck and more poor bowling ruined the visitors' chances and Roselle took another jump. The windup was slow but Roselle had it easily by 83 pins so there really wasn't any need of a hot finish.

The individual scores were:

IN HONOR OF BOBBY BURNS.

Jolly Times Enjoyed by Local Scotchmen on the Birthday of the Famous Poet.

In honor of the anniversary of the birthday of that Scot whom all of that nationality love to revere and praise—Robert Burns, the poet—the Scottish Thistle Club of this city Thursday arranged to hold a meeting that would serve the purpose of giving them a good time and honor the memory of the Scottish bard. The programme that was arranged for the event enjoyed to the full, and was participated in by nearly 175 Scotchmen and their friends.

The affair was held in Red Men's Hall. The committee in charge of the anniversary exercises was composed of Neal Head, Thomas Kenney and William Gray, who were assisted by the wives.

The early part of the evening was devoted to music and recitations, dancing and the sociability for which all true Scotchmen are famous.

At midnight an elaborate banquet was set down to, and after it had been served a number of poems written by Burns, and dear to the hearts of his countrymen, were read and recited. Alexander MacDuff was a recitationist of considerable ability in this direction.

Mrs. George E. Curtis, of West Third street, went to Baltimore Thursday to attend the funeral of a cousin.

TO CHECK SENILITY.

Dr. Metchnikoff Claims to Have Discovered a Serum by Which Death May Be Warded Off.

Dr. Metchnikoff's discovery of an alleged means of checking senility is still the subject of intense interest at Paris, although the authors are still trying to prevent the premature publication of the results of their researches. The distinguished physician, however, received a correspondent in his private laboratory in the Pasteur Institute.

"At present," he said, "we are only in the theoretic stage, but the surprising success that has attended our experiments thus far gives hope that we soon shall be far beyond mere theory. Until the best serum for use to the end of strengthening and invigorating the nobler cells of the human body is found, we shall be defenseless against old age, but this once discovered, the cells needing it are armed for the conflict with their destroying neighbors. Then death will become less terrible, for one need not prove the final hour until the tired body calls for rest. The time assuredly will come when we shall be able to maintain for an indefinite period the equilibrium between the constructive and destructive forces of the body. I am not prepared to say that man ever will be able to live always. No one would want that. Some force apparently outside one's self, but really within, gives a command that one should die. All of us will be glad of death at some time, just as we wish to stop eating when we are satiated."

DR. ELIE METCHIKOFF.
(Reputed Inventor of a Serum That Checks Senility.)

Dr. Mirey, the newly elected president of the Academy of Medicine, expresses regret that the wonderful discovery has received such wide publicity thus early. "It has not yet come before any scientific body for examination," he says, "and until this happens scientific men will pay no attention to newspaper talk on the subject."

DUKE OF WESTMINSTER.

Determined to Remain in the Field, Although He Is Now the Richest Man in Great Britain.

The new duke of Westminster, who has just succeeded to his grandfather's titles and estates, is the richest man in England and bears one of the proudest names in the British peerage. But he is not too rich nor too proud to serve his country in war. He has enrolled himself as an aide-de-camp on the staff of Sir Alfred Milner, the governor of the Cape of Good Hope and its dependencies.

The duke, better known under his former country title of Viscount Belgrave, will come of age next March, should he not fall in the campaign. He is a second lieutenant of the Cheshire Yeomanry cavalry. The romantic interest aroused by the determination of the young duke to remain in the field in South Africa, is increased by a recent discovery. It appears that the 600 acres in the heart of London, which constitute the chief wealth of the duke of Westminster, came into the family as the result of a runaway love match contracted by an ancestor of the present duke. In 1656 Sir Thomas Grosvenor fell in love with the pretty daughter of Ebury Manor, a house standing far without the city, and surrounded by five large pastures. The property has come into the dower of the bride and gradually London grew up around it. It lay idle, however, until the first part of this century, when the great-grandfather of the new duke conceived the idea of building up the estate with row after row of palatial houses.

Swords May Be Abolished.

The suggestion that substituting a Martini-Metford carbine for the sword an officer usually carries is being largely discussed in military circles. The objection against the sword is that, when marching through hilly country, it hampers an officer's movements in getting over rough ground, while a carbine could be used as a walking-stick, thus being a great help and support.

FINE MUSICAL AT "TUNLAW"

EXCEPTIONAL TALENT WAS DISCOVERED BY MISS WILSON.

Understudy of the Great Mallen Was Heard—Local Musicians Also Distinguished Themselves—The Entertainment.

One of the events of the season in musical circles was that of The Day afternoon when Miss Minnie Wilson, of "Tunlaw," entertained the Choral Musicale, one of Plainfield's social clubs. The club's membership is limited and as a rule no one outside of the thirty members are permitted to be present at the events. However, as Miss Wilson, who entertained yesterday, had invited out-of-town talent of great note, she was allowed also to invite a few outsiders, which brought the attendance up to about fifty people.

At 1 o'clock Miss Wilson gave a delightful luncheon to a few of her friends and in honor of her guests from out of town. There were eleven guests present, including Mrs. Edward G. Gemmer, of New York; Mrs. Edward Ely and Mrs. A. J. Cray, of Philadelphia. The dining room was decorated in a most pleasing pink effect.

The hour set for the musicale was 3.30 o'clock, and the drawing room, where it was given, was certainly a picture of beauty. The decorations were of pink roses and palms and were arranged in the most attractive manner.

Those who entertained the fashionable assemblage were people of note. The club was particularly fortunate in having Madame Paranosky and her sister, Miss Aggie Trombiani, of New York city. The former is the understudy of Melba. It was the opinion of those present that such singing had never been heard in the city before. This can also be said regarding the singing by Miss Trombiani, who is a member of the Grand Opera Company. Their work was so highly appreciated that they were twice called time and again. Both singers accompanied themselves on the piano.

Another delightful feature was the reading of the last chapters of "Mill on the Floss," by Miss Grace Cooley. The part given is a pathetic one, and so impressive was it read that the guests, held spellbound, failed to applaud. There was the most intense silence during this part of the programme.

Miss Sadie Mae Howell rendered several piano selections. Her work was appreciated equally as well as that of the other artists.

After the musicale all remained and a delightful social time followed. Miss Wilson entertained the out-of-town guests last evening at her charming home, and they left this morning for their homes.

MAY BREAK A DEADLOCK.

Superintendent of Railway Schools, Who was to be Superseded, Refuses Suit for Salary.

The deadlock existing for nearly a year in the Board of Education of Railway over the appointment of a public school superintendent to succeed William O. Robertson, a Republican, will now likely be broken. The board was tied in the selection of a successor, and during the deadlock it refused to pay Superintendent Robertson his salary, although he presented the bill in due form and at proper time each month, declaring that the by-laws of the board stated that "a superintendent should hold office and receive pay until his successor shall have qualified.

Tuesday night the City Council was served with a summons to appear before the Supreme Court, at Trenton January 26, and there show cause why Superintendent Robertson should not be paid his salary. Councilman William Howard moved that the matter be allowed to go by default. The motion was carried, and means that the matter will not be contested. The Board of Education and the Mayor of the city were also cited to appear before the Court, but they have taken the same action, and it is believed that Superintendent Robertson will win and get his back pay, and that a successor will shortly be appointed.

T. A. B. BALL.

Annual Reception Held at the Crescent Rink Last Thursday—What it Resulted.

The twenty-eighth annual reception of St. Mary's T. A. B. Association was held at the Crescent Rink Thursday. The weather was against it but it proved a success nevertheless. The attendance was good, fully a hundred and fifty couples being present. P. J. Reville was general director with James J Kane as floor director and T. McInerney, A. McGinley and F. Egany as his assistants. There was a large reception committee of which Clinton A. Shannon was chairman. A delegation was present from the Bloomsbury T. A. B. Association.

Surprise Party for Mrs. Blair.

A surprise party was given to Mrs. J. B. Blair last Friday at her home on Door street. It was arranged by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Dowd, of Door street. A number of friends gathered and walked in upon Mr. and Mrs. Blair who were completely surprised. A very enjoyable evening was then passed.

INSURANCE AGENTS DINED BY COMPANY.

Prudential Men Enjoyed a Pleasant Evening.

AT THE HOTEL KENSINGTON.

ENCOURAGING TALK FOR NEW YEAR'S BUSINESS.

The Guests Were the Employes Engaged to Work in the Plainfield District—Local Superintendent Had Presided at the Head of the Table—Appropriate Responses Were Made.

January 16th at the Hotel Kensington was held the annual banquet to the division superintendent, assistants and agents of the Plainfield district by the Prudential Insurance Company. There were about fifty guests present. Plainfield's new superintendent, Charles E. Ball, who has just been transferred from Dover, presided at the head of the long table, that extended from one end of the dining room to the other, while on his left was Division Superintendent Gammel, of Newark, and on the left was G. Elston Woodland, the retiring superintendent, who has been transferred to Trenton. From these officials on down the table was occupied by lesser lights in the service of the company.

It was nearly 9 o'clock when the dinner was concluded, and then Superintendent Charles E. Ball, of the local office, called for order and made a few remarks. He said that the Prudential Insurance Company was the best concern in the country to work for.

Division Superintendent Gammel was called upon and he gave an enthusiastic speech. He spoke of the work done by the company in 1899 amounting to $221,000,000 worth of business, showing that the company is only excelled by one other company. During last year there was paid out $4,000,000 in benefits, etc. Speaking of the Plainfield district he gave the men much encouragement. During the year of 1899 3,079 policies were issued and during 1900 5,000 were issued. He urged all to write the best business obtainable, and thus make the coming year, which will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the company, a banner one.

Mr. Gammel was followed by Assistant Superintendent G. W. Hope, of Bound Brook, who spoke kindly words concerning the employes of the company. Daniel Haley, his assistant, followed with a few well chosen remarks. A very interesting short address was made by H. H. Kind, who has been assigned to take Mr. Ball's place at Dover. He was followed by a few remarks from Chief Clerk Ash, of the Home office. There were short speeches from Assistant Superintendent I. W. Blesinger and Agent Charles Vail, of the local office. Superintendent G. Elston Woodland thanked all for the cordial support accorded him and gave the credit for all success to the men under him, whom he said are a loyal, true band of workers.

Assistant Superintendent G. H. Fairchild, of the local office, followed with a short speech, in which he thanked the company, and said that he was going to try to secure first honors next year. Other remarks were then made by Agent D. W. King, City Treasurer William F. Arnold, of Plainfield; Assistant Superintendent W. J. Allen, Agent W. D. Craner, of Clinton; Charles Stedman, third assistant in the local office; R. D. Woodland, of Flemington; Agent Charles Wood, of Bound Brook; Agent Lowell, of Flemington; Assistant Superintendent H. N. Searle, Agent Robertson, of Lambertville, and Agent Seale, of Whitehouse.

During the evening Charles Stedman, of the local office, offered a challenge which was taken up by the Somerville men. Four teams of cigars are to be contested for, and the branch doing the most business for the first three months will win them. In this line Mr. Gammel stated that the New Jersey superintendents at a meeting had divided the State in such a way that there should be contests for business. The leaders are Superintendent Fritsche, of District No. 1, and Superintendent Reilly, of district No 4. In this contest Plainfield will work to beat New Brunswick in the year's work.

Entertained Whist Club.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Taylor, of Westerveldt avenue, entertained Thursday evening the whist club of which they are members. The usual number of games were played and the customary prizes awarded, after which dancing and refreshments concluded an evening of great enjoyment to all. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor proved again that they are delightful entertainers.

Miss Randolph's Informal Dinner.

Miss Josephine Randolph, daughter of Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, gave an informal dinner at her home last Thursday in honor of the four debutantes of the season, the Misses Louise G. Fish, Fanny C. Cox, Lydia P. Ackerman and E. Elsa Strong.

SCORE OF YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

Twentieth Wedding Anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Richards.

CELEBRATED PLEASANTLY.

PURSE OF MONEY CONCEALED IN A WEDDING CAKE.

The Occasion Made an Auspicious One by a Rich Prize Tendered at the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church—Ladies Arranged the Pleasant and Social Features in Connection with the Event.

The love and esteem in which Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William R Richards are held was evidenced in a pleasant manner Saturday evening by the members and congregation of the Crescent Avenue church, when they gave them a reception in the chapel in honor of the twentieth anniversary of their marriage. The affair was one of the most delightful in the history of the church. During the hours from 8 until 10 o'clock there was a very large number of guests present, including not only members of the church and congregation, but persons from other churches as well. A pleasant feature was the presence of the pastors of the city, who called to extend their hearty congratulations.

Dr. and Mrs. Richards received, with the wives of the elders and a few other women, beneath a large illuminated bell of white crepe and smilax. To the left of this was suspended against the wall, the figures of the years "1880 1900" in green and white. These colors prevailed throughout the chapel and Sunday-school room where supper was served. In the chapel there was a pleasing arrangement of the green and white which encircled the gallery and filled the alcove directly back of where the guests were received.

As the guests extended their congratulations they retired to the rooms below where supper was served. Here a pretty scene met the eye. The colors of green and white were brought out in charming effect in the table decorations. There were also a number of palms that added to the scene of beauty.

A feature that added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion was the music by an orchestra under the direction of P. Ludwig Gonde. They were stationed in the gallery and through out the evening rendered a programme of choice selections.

During the latter part of the evening the bride of twenty years ago was requested to cut the bride's cake in which was concealed an Oriental silk bag brought from Jaffa, containing a sum of money in gold. This handsome purse was a unanimous gift from the congregation together with the best wishes and hearty congratulations of all. The recipient on behalf of her husband expressed her sincere thanks for the kindly remembrance.

Dr. Richards has been pastor of the Crescent Avenue church for nearly six teen years, and during that time he and his wife have steadily won favor not only with those associated with the church, but with the people of Plainfield.

The success of the affair is most gratifying to the committees in charge, owing to the short time, ten days, allotted in arranging it. Mrs Frank S. Martin arranged for the supper and she was assisted by Mrs. H A. Schuyler, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, Mrs. H. E. Bowen, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers. In connection with this committe there was a committee of about fifty young women who acted as floaters, and who devoted their time to making the affair as pleasant as possible. The financial part of the reception was in charge of Mrs. George P. Mellick assisted by Mrs. H. R. Halloway, Mrs. O R King and Miss Mellick. The decorations were looked after by Mrs. John Doul Miller, assisted by the Misses Andrews, Schoonmaker, Strong, Fisk, Wood, Miller, Bowen, Martin, Patterson, Pierson, Bushnell. Mrs. John Gray Foster had charge of the music and she was assisted by Mrs. Samuel Kimball, Mrs. F. H Andrews, Mrs. Charles L Abbott, Miss Julia Ketcham and Miss Jessie Munger.

To those composing the various committees too much cannot be said in praise of their efforts. Every endeavor was put forth to make the reception the success that it was and it was only through the untiring energy of every member that the grand result was accomplished.

BROKE THROUGH THE ICE.

Two-ye Year Old Boy Was too Venturesome in Skating on Thin Ice at Tice's Pond.

John Hovey, aged 12 years, living on Harmony street, narrowly escaped being drowned last Saturday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock. He was on Tice's pond, near the bridge. The ice was rather thin, and too dangerous to skate upon. Hovey was venturesome, however, and the first thing he knew of it that he was in the water up to his chin. He went down twice, and was just about going down the last time when he was rescued by John Rose and some other companions living nearby. He was rescued with a rake borrowed from Mrs. Emmons. He was then taken to the home of Mrs. Maggie Killoran, where his wet clothes were removed and dry ones were obtained. The boy was so thoroughly frightened that he will not venture on the ice again.

OLD MINISTER BADLY HURT.

Rev. W. G. Nelson Slipped and Fell Downstairs and Fractured His Right Arm.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Rev. Dr. William C. Nelson, a retired Methodist minister, who resides at 20 Summit avenue, met with a very painful and severe accident, which will detain him at home for awhile. Dr. Nelson started to go to the cellar for something and he slipped and fell down two steps.

In his efforts to save himself he sustained a fracture of his right arm between the shoulder and elbow. Assistance was rendered at once and Drs. Zeglio and Buchanan were summoned. They reset the broken member and the patient is doing as well as can be expected. Owing to Dr. Nelson's advanced age the break will not mend as quickly as otherwise.

Dembroski Says Mrs. Fingerhuth's Life Was Threatened.

HE MAKES AN AFFIDAVIT.

TO BE USED IN TRYING TO OBTAIN A PARDON.

Dembroski Now Swears That Robert Clark Borrowed a Revolver of Him When the Door of the Fingerhuth House was Being Forced by Ed. Clark — Clark Denied This at the Trial.

An effort is being made by Rev. F. K wehli and several leading citizens of Somerville to obtain a pardon for Mrs. Henrietta Fingerhuth, who is serving a six months' sentence in the county jail at Somerville for killing Paul Boehricht, a wealthy jeweler of New York, near Washingtonville last September. A petition for her pardon has been signed by a large number of persons and it will be forwarded to Gov. Voorhees, accompanied by new evidence in the case, which, it is alleged, will show that Mrs. Fingerhuth is innocent of crime. Robert Clark, Boehricht's counsel, Emil Dembroski and four other men were forcibly dispossessing Mrs Fingerhuth from a house owned by Boehricht, when she fired the shot which killed Boehricht, who was standing on the lawn directing operations.

The New York Sun Correspondent says that: "One of the witnesses for the State was Dembroski, who had acted as foreman for Boehricht. He appeared to be an unwilling witness, and he said some things before he could be checked that were in favor of Mrs. Fingerhuth. On seeing Mrs. Fingerhuth convicted because the jury refused to believe her statement that she had acted in self defence, he voluntarily went before Justice William E. Mattison, of North Plainfield, and made an affidavit which is now in the possession of the persons who are trying to secure Mrs. Fingerhuth's pardon. In this affidavit Dembroski says that just before Mrs. Fingerhuth fired the shot which killed Boehricht, Edward Clark was attempting to force open a door and Robert Clark, his brother, was at an open window. Robert Clark turned to Dembroski and asked him for a revolver which he had in his pocket. Dembroski handed Clark the revolver, whereupon Clark placed his elbow on the window sill and thrust his hand inside the house, pointing the revolver and using threatening language."

Dembroski says he did not give this evidence at the trial for the reason that no questions were asked him by either side relative to it, and he was instructed by the State to make no statements except in answer to questions asked. He avers that he now makes the affidavit in justice to Mrs. Fingerhuth and to relieve his conscience.

At the trial Mrs. Fingerhuth swore that Robert Clark had pointed a pistol at her, but her testimony was not corroborated, while Clark denied it and another witness testified in support of what he said.

TROLLEY CONSOLIDATION.

Three Big Traction Companies to be Formed Into One Organization.

A meeting of the stockholders of the three trolley companies—Brunswick Traction Company, New York and Philadelphia Company and New Brunswick City Railway—has been called for Friday, Feb. 16th, for the purpose of consolidating the three into one company.

The stockholders will meet at the office of the Brunswick Traction Company, 322 George street, in New Brunswick at 2 o'clock on the date above mentioned. The notice has been issued by Edward H. Radel as secretary of all three companies.

The officers of all the companies are the same so that there will be no difficulty about forming the organization contemplated.

Hobart Fund is Now $6,400.

A large addition was made to the Hobart Memorial Fund Friday in Paterson by the receipt of checks for $1,200 by L. A. Piaget, the treasurer. This is the largest amount received in any one day. The subscribers Friday were: Former Captain Charles Curie, of New York, $500; B. A. C. Smith, of New York, $500; The Ashley & Bailey Company, $100; Rev. Dr. Magie, $50, and Henry B. Crosby, $50. These subscriptions bring the fund up to $6,400.

A Cure for a Congressman.

Representative Howell, of the Third district, is the recipient of a handsome cane, sent him from Cuba. It is the gift of Ortland Nixon, first lieutenant of the Second Infantry, U. S. A., now stationed at Sancti Spiritus, Cuba. Mr. Howell was instrumental in aiding Mr. Nixon in obtaining his commission, and the cane was sent as a slight token of appreciation for his kindness. It is made from a piece of the Royal palm.

CITY HOTEL WILL GO INTO NEW HANDS.

Anheuser-Busch Company Has Secured a Lease.

WILL REMODEL HOTEL

MAKE IT EASTERN HEADQUARTERS OF THE COMPANY.

Elaborate Improvements are Planned—New Front and Side to be Built—Modern Will be Equipped With Up-to-date Restaurant, Cafe and Grill Room—Will Start Changes on or Before April 1st.

It is now a certainty that that well-known hostelry, the City Hotel, is soon to pass into other hands and is to be entirely remodeled inside and out. The Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company has decided to make that its eastern headquarters and will make an entirely new place of it.

For some time representatives of that company have been looking for a location in Plainfield which they think is in every way suited to their needs. A lease has been secured for a long term of years for the present City Hotel. The lease of John Beerbower, the present lessee, does not expire until April 1st, but the Anheuser-Busch people will try to begin their repairs before that time if possible.

The Park avenue and the Second street fronts of the hotel will be torn down and entirely rebuilt on elaborate and handsome lines. Inside, a cafe, restaurant and grill-room will be arranged that, the representatives of the company claim, will excell anything in this part of New Jersey.

The interior finishing is to be on a very elaborate scale. The second and other upper stories are to be overhauled and made over. The rooms will be furnished in first-class shape.

The aim will be to make the hotel one of the handsomest and best equipped in Jersey and it is said that no money will be spared toward that end. It will be the headquarters of the company, and a storage department will be established in connection with the hotel.

HOME FOR JOURNALISTS.

It Receives a Tract of Land in New Orange.

The trustees of the International Journalists' Home have been deeded a tract of land in New Orange, a new hamlet near this city, and it will soon erect a spacious home on the site.

The land has a frontage of one thousand feet and is located on a beautiful hill at the foot of the Orange Mountains.

The International Journalists' Home is backed by the Amalgamated Press Clubs of the United States and is composed of such men as Whitelaw Reid, Melville E. Stone, Victor F. Lawson, A. G. McClure, H. H. Kohlsaat and other prominent men in the field of journalism.

W. H. Olmsted's Mother Dead.

William H. Olmsted, of Bank place, received the sad news Tuesday of the death of his mother about 5 o'clock that morning at her home in Newark. Mrs. Olmsted has been a great sufferer with an incurable disease, but so patient was she that never a murmur at God's affliction ever escaped her lips. She leaves a husband and another son to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother. Her funeral services will be held at the home of her son, J. H. Olmsted, 282 South Ninth street, Newark, Friday afternoon next. Interment will be at Fairmount Cemetery.

Surprised Mrs. Blake.

A surprise party was tendered to R. Mills, of Westfield Saturday evening, under the supervision of Miss Tillie Rowe, of Grandview avenue, in the borough. A large company of friends walked into the house and completely surprised Mr. Mills. Dancing was the feature of the evening, and at a late hour refreshments were served. Those present were the Misses Tillie Rowe, Carrie Waite, Martha Willmer, Ida Wright, Aggie Wright, A. Mills, Samuel Wright, John Wright, John Todd, Edward Waite, Edward Johnson and John DeVine.

Host Dressed Women to be Queen.

On the evening of March 1st next the Missionary Band of the Mt. Olivo Baptist church will give an entertainment assisted by the other colored churches for the purpose of raising money to assist in entertaining the New England Missionary Convention which meets at the Mt. Olivo church this year. The neatest dressed woman attending the entertainment will be crowned queen for the evening.

For Aid to Hackensack Fund.

In response to an address showing the needs of the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, by Rev. John H. Raven, a special offering for the Endowment Fund was taken at Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning, and a very gratifying amount was pledged for that worthy object.

Show Are Your Eyesight?

Dr. Hinkle, Optician, 116 Dudley building, Somerville, N. J., will be in Plainfield at Dr. Hinkle's office, 116 East Front street, Wednesday, Feb. 14th, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

REFORM IS NEEDED.

Public Schools of Washington Are Far Behind the Times.

An Educational Reform Is Needed.

Congress Makes the Laws for the District of Columbia—All Citizens Are Interested in This Matter.

[Special Washington Letter.]

YOU have often been told of the splendid educational advantages which are afforded to young men and young women in this national capital, but there is another story to be told on that subject.

Higher education is desirable only for those who aspire to high places in public affairs and in social life. Common school education is desirable for the masses. Every child should have a common school education, and it were better far that every child should learn to read and write and cipher than that a chosen few should have collegiate and university advantages.

The common schools of this city are not worthy of the national capital, because they are not conducted on common sense principles. Consequently the children receive educations which are impractical, because they do not fit the boys and girls for practical contact with the world.

In the first place, surprising as it may seem, grammar is not taught in our common schools, nor in our high schools. One of the young lady graduates of the high school, a near relative of the narrator, this evening said: "I am now going to college and am studying Latin and Greek. It is absolutely necessary to study grammar in order to learn the first principles of those languages, and hence I am studying grammar. I never studied grammar while I was in the public schools here, nor in the high school. What I know of English grammar was learned by absorption, by the lessons learned at home, when my speech was corrected by my father and mother. So far as the public schools are concerned, I might have been graduated in complete ignorance of the correct methods of speaking or writing my mother tongue.

"Moreover," she continued, "they did not teach spelling in the public schools, and very few of the high school graduates know how to spell correctly. In Latin and Greek I find that it is absolutely necessary to know how to spell every word, in order to be able to use the dictionary intelligently, when attempting to translate sentences and paragraphs into English. Hence I am beginning, although a high school graduate, to turn my attention to the correct spelling of the English language. Of course, I am not a poor speller, but I am not a good speller because spelling was never taught me in the public schools."

This statement is so surprising that it would not be deemed worthy of quotation or belief, but for the fact that the writer has personal knowledge of its truthfulness. High school graduates have attempted to write shorthand and transcribe their notes on the typewriter, and have demonstrated their utter inability to do even that kind of work, because they do not know how to spell.

For example, graduates of the Washington high schools acting as stenographers for years for four correspondent have written out the word "write" right, so commonly used, constitute but one word spelled as above. Scores of them use the word "anythink" for anything. Hundreds of them say: "I takes" for "he takes" for "I took" or "he took."

The young men and young women who speak and spell in that manner are graduates of the Washington high schools. There is not a common school in the District, white or colored, for boys, or in the lake region, where the first principles of practical education are so neglected. There is probably not a teacher on the premises who would not be ashamed to graduate pupils in such ignorance of spelling and grammar.

Elocution is something of which the pupils in our schools know nothing. The teachers are graduates of our high schools. They were never taught spelling, grammar or elocution, and it were better far that every child should learn to read and write and cipher than that a chosen few should have collegiate and university advantages.

The common schools of this city are not worthy of the national capital, because they are not conducted on common sense principles. Consequently the children receive educations which are impractical, because they do not fit the boys and girls for practical contact with the world.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXIII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY, 8, 1900. NO. 6.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

A GREAT DAY FOR DEMOCRATS.

Col. Bryan's Visit to Plainfield Proved To Be a Big Success.

2,500 HEARD HIM SPEAK IN STILLMAN MUSIC HALL.

GREETED WITH ENTHUSIASTIC APPLAUSE BY THE AUDIENCE.

His Speech Dealt With Finance, Trusts and Imperialism—Hundreds Shook Hands With Bryan as He Drove Along the Street—Pleasant Time At Cedar Brook Farm.

Col. William Jennings Bryan has come and gone, and with him one of the biggest political meetings ever held in Plainfield. There were thousands here to greet him as believers of the same political principles, and as many more who, though differing with him as to the policies that should govern the Nation, were glad to see so distinguished a personage and to give attentive audience to what he had to say.

FROM TRAIN TO FARM.

Ovation for Bryan When He Arrived in Town—Pleasant Time at Mr. Martine's Home.

Col. William J. Bryan's visit to this city is an event of the past. It will pass into history as one of the functions which has served to give prominence to Plainfield. The ovation accorded the distinguished visitor will long live in the memory of James E. Martine, who had the honor of entertaining Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan reached Plainfield on the 1:21 o'clock train from Jersey City. Half an hour before that time the North Avenue station contained a vast crowd that filled the waiting rooms and overflowed to the tracks. It numbered fully 1,000 men, women and children.

By the time the train pulled into the station the crowd had grown to alarming proportions, and taxed the efforts of the police under command of Sergeant Kisly, to keep order.

Mr. Bryan was accompanied to this city by Congressman William Sulzer, of New York, and Congressman William Daly, of Hoboken. He was met at New York by J. H. Hillman, a member of the Democratic city committee, and A. E. Kinney, of North Plainfield, who had been delegated to act as a reception committee.

As the train drew into the station a salute was fired by the Democratic Association's cannon stationed in the small park at the east end of the depot.

When Mr. Bryan made his appearance on the car platform the Queen City Band, stationed alongside the tracks, struck up "Hail to the Chief" and the vast crowd gave a mighty shout.

Instantly there was a rush to greet the distinguished guest and efforts made to shake hands with him.

Mr. Martine was the first person to grasp Mr. Bryan's hand and give him a cordial greeting. After doing so Mr. Martine linked arms with his guest and escorted him to a carriage in waiting. They were followed by Congressmen Sulzer and Daly.

It was with difficulty that Mr. Bryan succeeded in taking his seat in the carriage with Mr. Martine, so eager were the hundreds surrounding the vehicle to shake Mr. Bryan's hand. For a moment their desires were gratified and Mr. Martine's distinguished guest was almost overwhelmed. Sergeant Kisly and Roundsman Frederickson finally came to the rescue and the crowd was driven back.

The visitors were at once driven to Cedar Brook Farm, preceded by the Queen City Band, and followed by hundreds of citizens in carriages and on foot.

At the old home of Mr. Martine an informal reception was held with Mr. Bryan as the central figure. Mr. Martine was assisted in receiving by his sisters, the Misses Mary, Ella and Mrs. Meyers, and about fifty prominent citizens of this and adjacent cities. After being introduced and shaking hands with Mr. Martine's guests, Mr. Bryan was given an opportunity to remove the stain of travel, while the guests engaged in friendly greetings. A half hour later the party was entertained by a collation, while the band, stationed on the lawn, discoursed National airs, and the little brass cannon continued to belch forth its welcome.

At 2:30 o'clock Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Mr. Martine, was driven to Music Hall where for more than an hour he addressed fully 3,000 people.

After the speaking Mr. Bryan was driven at once to the railroad station, and he took the 4:15 train for New York where last night he delivered an address before the Winfield Scott Hancock Post, G. A. R., at Carnegie Hall.

On the way to the North Avenue station the carriage containing Mr. Bryan and Mr. Martine was followed by an immense crowd and many took occasion to shake hands with the Nebraskan, and also Mr. Martine. The fact that the enthusiastic followers were liable to be run down did not in the least deter them from jumping up and grasping Mr. Bryan's proffered hand.

By the time Mr. Bryan reached the station several thousand people had preceded him. There was an immense jam. But it was a good natured crowd that jostled and pushed each other in a wild desire to have a last look at the man who may possibly be the next Democratic candidate for the President of these United States. It was a perfect sea of faces and the sight was both surprising and pleasing to Mr. Bryan.

When the train pulled out having on board Mr. Bryan, and Messrs. Sulzer, Daly and Martine there was a storm of cheers from the men and a waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies while the band played "Whistling Rufus." The demonstration was most flattering to Mr. Bryan and creditable to the efforts of Mr. Martine, who was the prime factor in making it a splendid success. Mr. Bryan expressed great satisfaction at the very enthusiastic and cordial reception which the citizens of Plainfield extended to him.

Among those who attended the reception at Mr. Martine's home were Congressman William D. Daly, of Hoboken; Congressman William Sulzer, New York; Senator Keys, Senator Foster, Senator Kuhl, Sheriff Schoonmaker, Albert Cook, Moses H. Acker, Silas Leonard, Samuel Halliday, Rahway; Mayor Rockfellow, Dr. E. M. Rodman, W. A. Coddington, Dr. Lowrie, Elston M. French, Fire Chief Doane, Chief of Police Grant, Assistant Fire Chief Jennings, A. L. Force, Rev. J. P. Taylor, John Rafferty.

BRYAN'S SPEECH.

Substance of the Remarks Made by the Big Audience in Music Hall.

Without proceeding in the usual perfunctory manner of mass meetings by naming a list of honorary officers, Mr. Martine arose and in a brief speech introduced the honored guest of the day.

Mr. Martine referred to Mr. Bryan as "being nearer and dearer to the hearts of the American people than any man in the country," at which sentiment there was wild applause. "While I do not wish to presume upon the result of the proceedings of the coming National convention I believe that the man who will marshal the hosts of Democracy and carry them on to victory in 1900 will be your friend and my friend, William Jennings Bryan," exclaimed Mr. Martine in his final peroration.

As soon as the noisy greeting of Mr. Bryan subsided, the latter commenced his speech in a cordial tone, "I have long heard of Plainfield as a centre of great wealth, and as a consequence of strong Republican influence. I always like to speak in such a place, and when my friend Martine urged me to come here I concluded that if he could afford to live here for 365 days I could, at least, stand it to be here one day.

"The men who voted the Republican ticket in 1896," declared Mr. Bryan, can be divided in two classes—those who voted it because they knew why they did so, and those who voted it not knowing why they did so.

"I have no hope of converting the man who voted the Republican ticket in 1896 and knows why he did so. Republican success is good for some men, and there certain men are very apt to support that party from which they receive the most good. To this I have no objections, but I desire that everyone should have broad and liberal views, that they should consider the future as well as today. Some people prefer immediate enjoyment and small reward, and some people support the Republican party because they want just what the party gives. In 1896 there was a contest between plutocracy and Democracy. The former cannot claim the majority, but many in that class are now doing penance for voting as they did.

"We draw the line between honest and creditory wealth, between just and unjust laws. I always like to speak before a rich community, and ask them if they believe in mortality. If so, they had better get acquainted with people here before crossing the river to the other side. The people who toil are the most important part of society, and I like a political economy that will serve for the parlor as the kitchen, that treats with the man who drives a carriage as well as the one who rides in the carriage.

"We are not opposed," said Col. Bryan, "to wealth that has been honestly accumulated, but we are opposed to the tyranny of coporate wealth which has been obtained through legislative bribery and practices which should be prohibited and not protected by law.

"I want to leave something more enduring than money—a good Government, which is a richer inheritance than any millionaire could leave. There are men here who denounced my party in 1896 who have never known the principles of the party.

"The income tax I believe is just, and those who oppose it are people not willing to pay their share of running this Government. The poor are not seeking charity, but justice, and that they will have.

"Then there is the money question. Financiers think they are the only people who know anything about money. I believe everyone is interested in the money question and no one class should legislate in this matter. The gold-bugs have a majority of the newspapers in the country, but today the silver sentiment is stronger than ever. The railroads, banks, corporations, etc., can't kill it. These gold-bugs pose as philanthropists to the farmer and laboring man, but I do not see them returning any favors by way of reciprocity. They say that there is more than enough money now, and they are actually afraid there will be a flood of it. If England and a handful of Boers can shake our money standard as occurred a short time ago, where would it be if Europe should engage in a real war with a powerful country.

"I have been asked to drop the silver question, just as though it would break if I dropped it. It is the most important question ever presented to the American people, and is greater than any man or body of men. You can readily understand why bankers and money men support the Republican party that places the dollar above man. The young man now has to look forward to a perpetual clerkship. His hopes and his money are in the hands of a few, and it will not be long before his brains will be at a discount. I appeal to the young men and ask you if you are satisfied with the present conditions. What we want to do is to take the government and place it on its old foundations.

"Regarding imperialism, there are three arguments I have heard in favor of it. They are: There is money in it; God's in it, and we are in it and can't get out. England started a war recently and it is costing her more money than she expected, yet her armies have not reached Ladysmith, and God grant they never may.

"Plainfielders! I dare you to put money value on one American boy. What mother wants to raise sons at so much a head to be sacrificed in the Philippines. There is a religious argument that the Republicans advance about this war of conquest. It has been said that 'God opened the door to the Philippines, pushed us in and shut the door.' I have heard people going up and down telling what God wants, but if He knew them as well as I do He would never let them know anything. How do we know God's will? Through His Word. In that Word we read that the Son of Man came to save life and not to destroy. It amazes me to her ministers shout war of conquest. If the Filipino had been given equal independence with the Cuban not one drop of blood would have been shed. We must fight for liberty, not for lands. Give the Filipino his freedom and then defend it to the last."

CROWDS AT MUSIC HALL.

Theatre Was Filled to Its Capacity in a Few Minutes After the Doors Were Open.

While Mr. Martine and his guest, Mr. Bryan, were quietly lunching at "Cedar Brook," a very different scene was being enacted at Music Hall. Like wolves clamoring for their prey the crowd fought for entrance to the hall and a fierce struggle it was. Sergeant Kisly and a squad of Plainfield's "finest" bravely stood their ground and tried to keep some semblance of order but the mob fairly swept them off their feet.

It had been generally announced that the meeting would begin at 3 o'clock and that the doors of Music Hall would be opened to the public an hour earlier. As soon as the guest of the day with his escort of honor had departed for "Cedar Brook" after his arrival, the crowd began to flock to the Music Hall. There they waited, augmented at frequent intervals by the new arrivals. The delegations from Somerville and that part of Somerset county came down in two special cars attached to the 2:21 train and marched to the hall, headed by a band.

At 2 o'clock promptly, the doors were flung open and the little cordon of police faced the host. Then there came such a wild scramble for places in the hall the like of which has seldom been seen in this city. There were women in the throng who were fairly dragged in. The seating capacity of the hall is 900. Inside of five minutes, every seat was filled. Then the remaining spectators fought for standing room, until at last, when the meeting opened three-quarters of an hour later, there were twenty-five hundred people in the hall.

Seats were provided for three hundred invited guests on the stage. These were soon occupied and a hundred more guests stood in the rear and in the wings. Most of the guests were Democrats who came from out-of-town to hear Mr. Bryan. They were a varied collection from all walks of life. A few local Republicans could be found scattered about the edges. In front a delegation of well-known local Democrats were seated.

The boxes were filled, both tiers of them, mostly with women. One box was reserved for Mr. Martine's party and another for the families of the newspapermen. The wives of several Plainfield's well-known Republican citizens also occupied seats in one of the boxes. Many women were also to be noticed in the dress circle and the gallery, several hundred in all.

It was with great difficulty that Mr. Bryan and his party reached the stage where a few chairs were reserved for them. The crowd had simply overwhelmed the press tables. The arrival of Mr. Bryan was the signal for a mighty outburst of applause. The audience rose up in its might and shouted itself hoarse. It was several minutes before Mr. Martine could make himself heard above the din. Then, in a few words, he introduced the speaker and again the crowd went wild with acclamation.

It was, in most of the audience the first good glimpse of the man who will, in all probability, be the Democratic nominee for President this year. He looked very much as he has been pictured, smooth face, a head a trifle bald now but showing decided force of character. He seemed a little hoarse but spoke clearly and distinctly so that everyone in the hall must have heard him.

He moved his body but little, but his hands and arms were frequently used in gestures to emphasize his remarks. There was plenty of enthusiasm shown by the audience during the progress of the speech and he was often interrupted. Several men in the back of the hall had comments to offer. "Bet your life," shouted one at a particular telling hit. "Lots of that in Plainfield," yelled another. The reference to the war in South Africa seemed to please the crowd best of anything he said and they shouted and stamped.

When four o'clock came and he ended his remarks, after speaking for an hour and five minutes, the people surged toward him and swarmed over the front of the stage. It was only by dint of great exertions that he reached the side entrance and was hurried away to the station.

While Mr. Bryan was referring to the Philippines, a large bouquet was thrown to him from the upper right hand tier of boxes. Just at the close of his address, another, a particularly handsome one, was handed up from the front seats of the hall. He carried them with him as he left.

As soon as the meeting was over, there was another grand rush to reach him get into the coach that waited him at the main entrance. Mr. Bryan, Mr. Martine and Congressmen Sulzer

CENSUS CHANGE TO AFFECT NEW JERSEY

Many Cities to Be Withdrawn From the Regular Districts.

WORK FOR SPECIAL AGENTS.

PLAINFIELD AND NORTH PLAINFIELD IN FOURTH DISTRICT.

How the Plums Have Been Divided in Order to Secure the Best Results—Many Applications for the Places Received—Quota Will Reach Thousand Mark Sometime in December.

A bulletin has been issued by William H. Merriam, director of the census, directing that nearly cities and towns in the country be withdrawn from the districts of the regular enumerators for the statistics of manufactures. These cities will be attended to by special agents, having technical knowledge of manufacturing industries.

It is believed at the Census Bureau that this change will do much to add to the accuracy of the statistics relative to manufactures that the Census Bureau hopes to obtain. The number of cities and large towns that have been withdrawn from the districts of the regular enumerators is 1,412, and 2,023 special agents will be appointed to obtain the statistics relative to manufactures in them.

The State of New Jersey is affected by the order of the director in the same manner that all other States have been, and it will receive its proportionate share of the additional patronage the appointment of the special agents will create.

To New Jersey will be assigned fifty-four special agents, and already applications innumerable are being filed with the director by persons desirous of the remunerative employment.

The director has, after a careful examination of the State, decided upon making the subdivisions.

First District—Twelve special agents to collect statistics of manufactures in Jersey City, Kearny, Union Hill, West Hoboken, Hoboken, Harrison, Guttenberg and Bayonne.

Second District—Twenty-one special agents for Newark, Orange, South Orange, West Orange, Montclair, Irvington, East Orange and Bloomfield.

Third District—Five special agents for Paterson, Passaic and Rutherford.

Fourth District—Three special agents for South Amboy, Perryville, Rahway, Perth Amboy and New Brunswick. Bound Brook, North Plainfield, Plainfield, Raritan and Somerville and the city of Lambertville, all in the Fourth District, will be allowed three special agent.

Fifth District—Seven special agents for Newton, Bordentown and White Hill, and Mt. Holly and Burlington, also in the Fourth District, will receive one special agent.

Sixth District—Three special agents for Vineland, Salem, Millville and Bridgeton.

The city of Elizabeth is in the Fourth Census District, but the manufacturing statistics will be collected by a special agent assigned to the First District. Washington and Phillipsburg will be attended to by a special agent assigned to the Third District. In Pennsylvania, Camden, Woodbury and Gloucester will be in the same manner looked after by a special agent in the First District of Pennsylvania.

There is a belief among the New Jersey members of Congress that the twelfth census will result in an increase in the representation at the National capital. Congressman Daly said that he was confident that the census will result in making Hudson county a portion of three Congressional districts.

A BEQUEST OF $200.

Relatives of Job Male Left That Sum to Be Used in Aid of Soldiers' Monument Project.

Rev. W. G. O'Donnell, chairman of the soldiers' monument committee from the town of Scotch Plains, has been investigating the report that according to the will of the late Job Male $200 was left for a soldiers' monument. He communicated with a Mr. Rathbon, of Newark, who has charge of the estate, and learned from him that Mr. Male died intestate and that $200 was not left for such a purpose. Mr. O'Donnell investigated still further, believing that there must be something in the story, and he found that a woman, a relative of Job Male, left the sum of $200 for a monument. An effort is now being made to ascertain how that money can be secured and placed in the monument fund.

WORK OF PICKPOCKETS

SEVERAL CASES OF WHERE MEN LOST CONSIDERABLE MONEY.

South Somerville Man Lost $1700—Lawyer Moffett Was Touched for $25 and Jerome Moffett Was Bothered of Valuable Papers.

The crowds gathered Wednesday to see Col. Bryan was the occasion for the pickpocket to get in his fine work and many today are sadder but wiser, for not a few Plainfielders were touched, and some from out of town. Gil Huffman of South Somerville, lost a pocketbook in which was $200. John Ross, of this city, lost $9; Dr. Thiers, of Grove street, lost several dollars; Justice Reuben D. Moffett had his pocketbook taken in which there were $14, a check for $3.75 and some very valuable papers; Lawyer Charles Moffett was relieved of $25; Jeremiah Manning of a few dollars, Daniel Manning lost $13.

There were a number of other cases but the names could not be learned. All of those who suffered from the pickpocket were in the big crowds and were jostled about. They discovered their losses after the orders then was over. The police were unable to locate any of these thieves, as most of them were out of town persons and they are no doubt experts in their line of business.

Among others who claimed to have had their pockets picked and lost money was Henry Dunham, of Dunellen. It is not known how much Mr. Dunham lost.

Ethan Lamphear, of Central avenue, who is nearly 80 years of age, is reported to have lost $25 by having his pockets picked.

A citizen named Wheeler, of Somerville, is also reported to have been "touched" for $25 or $30.

J. B. Coward was also the victim of the crooks, but the amount of his loss is not definitely known, being estimated from $12 to $20.

It is reported that a track walker on the Central Railroad found two pocketbooks along the tracks near Richmond street.

It is believed that others lost small sums of money, but have not made the fact public.

INSPECTED THE CADETS.

MAJOR D. F. COLLINS OF THIRD REGIMENT HERE.

Was Favorably Impressed by Showing Made by Cadet Battalion of the Plainfield High School Wednesday.

A very favorable impression was made on Major D. F. Collins of the Second New Jersey regiment Wednesday when he inspected the cadet battalion of the Plainfield High School. The inspection and muster was held at Washington hall, the drill hall of the company, yesterday from noon until 1 o'clock. The company went through a few simple evolutions under the direction of A. B. Meredith, military instructor, and then Major Collins looked the boys over. He was quite pleased with the showing made by the battalion in such a short time and complimented the officers very highly for the successful result of their labors.

Besides Major Collins, Captain George F. Edwards, of this city, was also present and took part in the inspection. There were a few visitors present.

The inspection was made at the direction of the State militia authorities who now recognize the High School battalion as a regular cadet organization of the State.

OLD FACTORY ON FIRE.

Plainfield Fire Department to Have Hard Contest by Tonight.

The old vacant hat factory on Clinton avenue tried to go up in smoke Wednesday. Fire was discovered in the second story of the building and an alarm was turned in from box 41, corner of Clinton avenue and South Second street. The firemen arrived only to find the fire practically out. It had started in a closet and was undoubtedly the work of incendiaries or tramps as the building has not been occupied for several year. The building was owned by William Mc R. Corbell.

A Colonial Proposition.

Netherwood is to have another resident in the person of T. D. Wilson, of New York. He has rented, through the real estate agency of E. G. Mulford & Son., of North Avenue, the handsome new house owned by David Arthur, Jr., located on Belvidere avenue.

Trolley Car Speaks an Axle.

Car No. 5 of the Plainfield Street Railway Company came to grief Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Jerusalem road. The axle broke and the car had to be left there for the night. It was repaired temporarily and brought back this morning.

MAYOR FISK'S VISITORS AND HIS MANY LETTERS

One of the Former Was a Nervous Little Man

WHO HAD A BIG SCHEME.

LETTERS WERE FROM NEWSPAPER MEN OUT OF A JOB.

The Real Estate News Was Offered as a Machine for a Republican Daily Newspaper, But Was Declined With Thanks—Mr. Stow the Latest Friend in Will Mr. Fisk Need a Nightcap.

He was a nervous little man whom the servant ushered into the parlor of the handsome home of Former Mayor Fisk a few evenings ago.

The banker was about to sit down to dinner, but when told that "there's a gentleman to see you, sir," made haste to learn his visitor's errand.

Without going through the formality of introduction the caller began to state his business. He had a paper for sale—the Real Estate News—whose circulation had reached the goodly figure of thousands. Though not as well known as its proprietor it had a clientele that gave it a dignity and prestige unparalleled in the annals of Plainfield journalism. The Real Estate News was already a factor in the eyes of its founder, whose business of late had been that of founding anything from newspapers to boroughs. In fact the founding idea had been so long with him it became a mania. For five minutes the nervous little man talked on and his copious flow of words at first astounded the ex-Mayor and finally startled him.

As the nervous little man stopped to catch his breath, the good-natured, but somewhat alarmed Mr. Fisk quietly asked:

"My dear sir, you have certainly the best of me; whom have I the honor of addressing?"

"Why, Mr. Mayor, don't you know me?" exclaimed the nervous little man with self-assurance, as he cast a patronizing smile and pulled down his vest. Then he drew himself up to his full height of five feet four.

The ex-Mayor looked surprised. He felt sure that he had seen that face before, but where he could not think.

The nervous little man, realizing that he was losing time, made haste to explain.

"My name's Drake—S. D. Drake—Silas Dewey Drake, the founder of Lincoln, Dewey Park and the promoter of many enterprises whose fame extends from Maine to California and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf."

"Why, sir, do you realize that you are talking to the only man who was the leading spirit at the famous Woonsocket caucus held several years ago at Detroit? Why, sir"—

But the Mayor waved his visitor to a seat and asked him to state his business, while strange thoughts coursed through his mind with reference to the harmlessness of his caller, whom he wished he was well rid of.

Before the nervous little man left he had explained that he was anxious to sell the Real Estate News. If Mr. Fisk was interested, or any friend of a new Republican daily paper in Plainfield he would be to him his namesake of Manila fame, first on the ground.

It suddenly dawned upon the affable ex-Mayor that he was in ignorance of the entire scheme. When explanations were made and Mr. Fisk was told that there was a report that it was to be the Randolph backing of a new Republican newspaper, which would champion his Congressional aspirations, he took it as a good joke.

But he gave Uncle Silas plainly to understand that he was not a candidate for Congress, neither was he interested in any projected scheme to establish a Republican newspaper in Plainfield. And S. D. D. was politely ushered from the Mayor's home, feeling most disconsolate.

But Mr. Fisk's troubles did not end with the visit of the Mayor of Lincoln.

During the evening he had a number of newspaper reporters, advertising solicitors and some who sought to give advice. To all his visitors the former Mayor good-naturedly explained as he had to Mr. Drake, that he was not interested in the project.

The incident was discussed at the ex-Mayor's dinner table. The members of the family agreed with the head of the house that it was a huge joke. All enjoyed a hearty laugh over the visit of the ubiquitous Drake and those who had fallen victim to him.

When Mr. Fisk reached his New York office the following Monday morning his mail was found to be unusually heavy. There were hundreds of letters from reporters, printers,

MILLINERY NOTES.

Something About Winter Hats—A Silk Waist.

One enormous flower often serves as almost the entire trimming for a hat. Immense roses or orchids of velvet are this used; also monstrous pansies.

Blue, violet and red are less dominant among millinery products than they were. Yellow is, on the contrary, coming forward and is used in shades ranging from lemon to deep orange; also in duller modifications of those shades. The deeper tones are particularly becoming to brunettes, but it is a mistake to suppose that green with delicate lemon and primrose shades are suited to a brunette skin. On the contrary, instead of clearing and enriching it, as do the orange tones, they make it appear dull and muddy in contrast to their own extreme delicacy, and only a fair, pure complexion can stand their close contiguity.

Draped bodices toques of velvet are much worn and are trimmed with fur, choux of mousseline de soie, wings of lace, metal ornaments or lace flowers.

A picture is given which shows a bodice of French blue peau de soie. A bertha of lace descends to the waist in front, following the line of the revere, which are of blue velvet and are ornamented with jeweled buttons. The yoke and plastron of pearl blue taffeta, tucked horizontally, and the collar and cravat are likewise of turquoise taffeta, as are the belt and choux. The sleeves have pointed wrists, finished with a lace frill.

PREVAILING STYLES.

Gowns Are Closely Molded to the Figure and Are Plain.

To supply exactly the material needed for the prevailing clinging, closely molded style of gown is the most exquisitely thin, soft and yet substantial cloths have been manufactured. These are to be obtained in various grades and compose gowns of differing degrees of elegance, from the plain tailor made costume to that intended for occasions of great ceremony and magnificence.

Usually the bodice is neither draped nor plaited, but is fitted with great accuracy. Either the princess style is adopted or else there is a point at the back and front which adds apparent length to the waist and gives a slender aspect. The edge is simply corded. If trimming is used it takes the form of arabesques or large medallions, perfectly flat, of application of velvet, silk or lace. Colarases of guipure embroidered with jet, spangles or chenilles are a favorite form of application for cloth gowns and although a little stiff in effect are considered very smart.

The picture shows a walking costume. The skirt is of gray cloth and has near the foot two rows of black fringe arranged to form scallops. The tunic, which closes at the side with small steel buttons, is bordered with a band of jeweled braid of cloth. The black astrakhan jacket has a short, round basque, longer in front and rounded at the side with three large steel buttons. The velvet collar is lined with chinchilla, and the fall revers and the cuffs are also of chinchilla. The hat of gray felt has a soft crown of black velvet and is trimmed with black velvet choux, a steel ornament and gray quills.

Division of Time.

It is probable that time was first divided into the year by observation of the movement of the sun among the other heavenly bodies; that the revolution of the moon about the earth divided the length of the months, and the rising and setting of the sun marked the duration of the day.

OUT OF DOOR STYLES.

Winter Fashions in Coats and Millinery.

The little coat, half jacket, half bodice, is this winter's first favorite in Paris, and for a youthful figure nothing can be smarter.

Gauze, tulle and lace are the preferred trimmings for lace, velvet and fur hats, add as it seems. There is no longer any hesitation about combining materials of texture with those once considered sacred to winter. A new model of a toque, for example, is of rare pink tulle, and it is trimmed with sealing tails, which nestle in the tulle as if they belonged there. Sable, mink and other furs are also seen on tulle hats.

Felt sailor hats, trimmed with choux of ribbon and quills, are used for morning wear and to accompany tailor made gowns.

Draped toques of felt, velvet, fur or this, transparent fabrics are a feature of the season. The heavier ones are for the street, the more delicate ones to accompany elegant visiting gowns or for the theater.

Muffs usually match the costume with which they are worn. As although is being made to revive the enormous muff of olden time, but it shows no sign of succeeding, the universal verdict being in favor of the small, ornamental kind.

The cut depicts a long redingote of garnet cloth, ornamented with applications of black velvet and closed at the left side by three large pearl buttons. The round collar and the revers are in one and terminate at the left side under a bow of black velvet. The sleeves are plaited at the top by stitched darts and are bordered by black velvet at the wrists. The lining is of broche silk.

ACCESSORIES.

Attractive Details of the Fashionable Toilet.

The latest thing in theater bonnets is an immense pansy, six inches across, with ruffled petals. From this rises a tuft of loops lately tipped with crystal.

Soft, turned down collars of lawn, lace and embroidery are much worn. They are very narrow and are folded over the high collar of the gown. Some are plainly hemstitched; others form a series of points or square tabs.

Draperies of butter colored lace are much used on winter hats, both of tulle and fur.

Lace, gauze and net ties are in great demand. They are to be had in all degrees of elaboration, from the simple scarf of dotted net with tucks or a plait-ing across the end to bands of finest mousseline de soie enriched with applications of real lace.

A new design in fancy headkerchiefs has a deep border of blue, pink or lavender, embroidered with white flower-debris. Above the border, on the white part of the handkerchief, are scattered flowers-de-lace matching the color of the edge.

The hat illustrated is of gray felt. It is tilted at the left side by a tuft of red velvet placed next the hair. The crown is encircled by two folds of black velvet and a band of gray velvet passed through a steel buckle in front. At the side is a cluster of black ostrich tips rising from coques and ends of gray velvet and black moire.

A RAGE FOR VELVET.

Many Stylish Gowns Now Made of This Rich, Heavy Fabric.

Velvet has taken hold of feminine hearts with a vengeance after long neglect, and now very many rich and festive gowns are of that superb fabric. Even the young want velvet gowns, however unsuitable they are for their age. Velutina, both ribbed and plain, however, is suitable for young ladies for full suits and for skating costumes. Velutina is also much used for handsome tea gowns for winter, and I can hardly think of anything richer or more pleasing to the eyes than to see a lady in a rich red tea gown on a cold winter day.

There was a royal blue velvet gown worn for a swell theater party by one lady who does not care to wear low cut dresses even to the opera. This had the waist of silvery white satin overlaid with black silk guipure lace. The sleeves were of velvet, and so was a little figaro. Around the bottom there was a facing of the white satin covered with lace and edged with a narrow jet trimming.

Skating suits made of cloth, cheviot or the ribbed velutina are trimmed appropriately with fur. Those where there is no fur, Eton or other jacket are lined with chamois skin or worn with an under jersey made of elder down flannel. They are light, flexible and porous and very warm and comfortable. All skating suits are made to fit closely, as any skirt or jacket flying in the wind not only impedes progress, but is unsafe.

The moment the holidays are over all the fancy things intended to beguile people into spending more money than they can afford are held aside or maybe are sold; I do not know for certain, but this I do know—that whole blocks of stores have suddenly blossomed out into white.

There are thousands and thousands of white garments, skirts, nightrobes, drawers and corset covers and all frilled and ruffled with lace and this in turn set off with light and dainty ribbons, pink or blue. This season valenciennes and lierre are the favorite laces, and nearly all the nightrobes and chemises and also the corset covers are V shaped in front. That would seem to indicate that dresses may have lower collars in spite of shirt waists.

DINNER GOWN OF ROYAL BLUE VELVET.

Shirt waists of cotton and other washable stuff are now ready for the spring trade. The trend is a marked leaning toward polka dotted designs in all sorts of material, surah, taffeta, percale, pique and lawn, as well as some soft, light wools. These are very strong and semi-transparent.

The form of the shirt waists differs very slightly from those of last season, the principal change being in the front, where there is scarcely any bagginess at all. The backs have yokes and plaits or gathers all converging to a narrow place in the center at the waist and spread on the shoulders.

The silk shirt waists are made with cording and featherbone piping, and some have insets of lace run with ribbon. There are so many different styles that it is useless to mention more than the salient points. I might add that the silk waists and some of the finest of the others have dress sleeves with chatelaine cuffs instead of the shirt sleeves fashionable so long.

As to the white underskirts one can only say that they are marvels of daintiness to look at, but how much they would cost in January bills before the season is over I cannot tell. Silk, cotton, sateen and the whole line of oriental silks—which are really cotton, though simulating silk so closely that it is not easy to tell the difference—are used in the skirts for out of doors. Few ladies wear white skirts in the street, but for dancing and for dressy home and visiting purposes the delicate fabrics are much favored, and, in fact, any other kind of skirt would be very much out of place.

A favorite way of using lace upon a skirt is to have two rather outside and one on the underside of the hem and then a deep ruffle of batiste with festoons of lace frills set upon this, each apex having a tiny rosette of pink or blue baby ribbon.

INFANTS' CLOTHING.

Flannel Winter Dresses For Little Babies.

White is always preferable for babies' wear, both from the point of view of elegance and economy. Tinted dresses have to be laundered as often as plain white ones, but colors do not bear washing and soon look dull and shabby, whereas white looks well as long as it lasts. Lavish embroidery and lace are not essential; indeed many of the daintiest babies' outfits have very little trimming of any kind, the expense being put on fine material and delicate sewing. White nainsook and lawn and finely corded dimity are pretty for long dresses, and careful mothers are now using very thin wools for winter clothing for infants. White nun's veiling or fine Scotch flannel is admirable for delicate children who are susceptible to the slightest chill. Cotton dresses are usually made round or square yoke, upon which the body of the gown is plaited or gathered, but for woolen wear, which are thicker, the yoke is usually deepened so as to form a little, straight bodice, into which the fullness is gathered and to the edge of which the skirt is gathered.

The cloak in which the baby takes an airing must be warm, but not light. It should have a capuchin, which may be drawn up over the head when the air is cold or the day windy. The sleeves should be long enough to cover the hands.

The girl's gown illustrated has a skirt covered with narrow, scant circular ruffles of gray velvet. The table of gray cloth is embroidered all around with gold buttons and silk cords in front and down the outside of the sleeves. The yoke of gray velvet is laid in fine plaits and covers the top of the arms. The collar also is plaited.

THE MUFF QUESTION.

For Muffs Versus Those of Other Kinds.

Fur muffs have the disadvantage of demanding that all other fur used about the costume shall match them, so for a woman of moderate circumstances the less expensive fancy muffs, of which she may easily have several, are better. The muff is expected to match the collarette or the hat or at least the trimmings of the gown, but otherwise it is not necessarily troublesome nor particularly costly.

A pretty design is of black velvet, shirred in the middle, with ruffles at the end, lined with violet satin. On the side is a large cluster of violets. Another model is of cream velvet, with bands of chinchilla at the edges. On the side is a drapery of yellow lace with a bunch of holly leaves and berries. For young girls there are muffs of velvet trimmed only with choux of baby ribbon, a cascade of loops of the ribbon falling from one side.

The shirred velvet muff has plaits at the back should be worn by slender persons only. Those inclined to plumpness should have two plaits at least.

A pretty design of an evening gown having a sanglière skirt of pink crepe de chine. Over this is a princess tunic of black chenille, open at the side and having deep revers of velvet trimmed with jet. The shapely sleeves are vailed. The square decollage is bordered by a drapery of pink crepe de chine, and a cluster of flowers is placed at the shoulder.

FASHION NOTES.

Out of Door Garments For Big and Little Girls.

The made selections simplicity is the growth for young girls. Many attractive gowns are made with trimmings of narrow black velvet.

The circular ruffle is at last beginning to retire from favor. It is the ugliest, as well as most of the new models quite ignore it. This is especially the case with wraps. Rich applications or elaborate scheme of stitching appear, but no ruffles. A new model of a loose, full length coat is open at the seams for about a foot from the edge, thus allowing for the flare of the gown, which has hitherto been accommodated by a circular flounce around the lower edge of the wrap.

The long, straight coat is or should be worn only by slender figures, and it must be properly trimmed, and the wearer must have a dignified carriage if it is not to appear like a sporting model. One of these coats seen the other day was of bright red cloth made perfectly plain and was irresistibly suggestive of a red Zouave jacket.

The girl's coat illustrated is of plain gold cloth. It is loose and has wide revers of gold cloth faced by frost embroidered by stitched straps of plain cloth with buttons. The large capuchin is lined with silk and bordered with plaid, which forms a little knot in front. The sleeves have plaid cuffs. The felt hat is trimmed with a choux and drapery of velvet and a curved feather.

FASHION NOTES.

Out of Door Garments For Big and Little Girls.

The made selections simplicity is the growth for young girls. Many attractive gowns are made with trimmings of narrow black velvet.

The circular ruffle is at last beginning to retire from favor. It is the ugliest, as well as most of the new models quite ignore it. This is especially the case with wraps. Rich applications or elaborate scheme of stitching appear, but no ruffles. A new model of a loose, full length coat is open at the seams for about a foot from the edge, thus allowing for the flare of the gown, which has hitherto been accommodated by a circular flounce around the lower edge of the wrap.

The long, straight coat is or should be worn only by slender figures, and it must be properly trimmed, and the wearer must have a dignified carriage if it is not to appear like a sporting model. One of these coats seen the other day was of bright red cloth made perfectly plain and was irresistibly suggestive of a red Zouave jacket.

The girl's coat illustrated is of plain gold cloth. It is loose and has wide revers of gold cloth faced by frost embroidered by stitched straps of plain cloth with buttons. The large capuchin is lined with silk and bordered with plaid, which forms a little knot in front. The sleeves have plaid cuffs. The felt hat is trimmed with a choux and drapery of velvet and a curved feather.

Plaited skirts are a novelty, but they do not depart from the clinging order, as the plaits are stitched down, pressed and the stitching is then taken out and away. The picture shows a gown of this sort. The skirt of plaited peau de lisse stitched bands of cloth around the bottom. The close bodice is of the same cloth, and over it is a short, plaited bolero of the peau de lisse, trimmed with stitched cloth bands. WINTER FASHIONS.

The Princess Gown and Its Various Modifications.

The princess form is becoming more emphatically the model for fashionable gowns, yet all are not cut in one piece, although that is, of course, the true princess characteristic. Even in two piece gowns the junction of the waist and skirt is now rendered as inconspicuous as possible, the belt which has hitherto marked the division so decidedly being replaced by an extremely narrow article of cloth made of the material of the gown itself and invisibly fastened. Another and yet newer idea is to sew the skirt and bodice together, as children's gowns are sewed. The seam which unites them is pressed open and is rendered practically nonexistent, no trimming or belt being employed to cover it.

Linings of satin for covering wraps are covered with ruffles, plaitings or pufings of mousseline de soie of delicate colors.

Tiny ruches of ribbon continue to be highly favored as trimming. They often entirely cover silk or satin bodices, being sewed on so as to form stripes, checks or serpentine lines. Chenille net-work is another fashionable decoration and is used chiefly in black over light colors.

The cut shows a princess gown of black broche silk. It has a long train formed by two flat plaits starting from the waist. The rectangular front opens over a plastron and tabliers of white satin, crossed by diagonal bands of knotted silk fringe. There are fringe epaulets over the tight bodice sleeves of silk. The ends of fringe are fastened by a chou of black moiré ribbon de soie, with plaited ends. The collar and sleeve frills are of black mousseline de soie.

THEATER BONNETS.

Trifles Light as Air Which Take the Place of Hats.

The newest theater bonnets are a mere nothing, but they simplify a vexed question. No woman likes to put her hat on or off in a crowded box without the aid of a mirror and with her hands encumbered by gloves, nor does she enjoy holding her hat in her lap during the course of the play; hence the large or called bonnets are a welcome resource. They consist sometimes of a cluster or diadem of flowers, sometimes of a fan, a bird here, sometimes of a jewel or lace butterfly or a chou of tulle. The wearer feels that she has a hat, yet it is so small that it does not obstruct the view.

The color of gloves to be worn depends upon the sort of costume they are to accompany. Dark or medium shades are general and for ordinary wear, but for social occasions white continues to be considered the most elegant. Perfect freshness is a requisite, and tight gloves are much worn, as the hand must never be pressed out of shape by its covering.

The costume illustrated is of garnet brocade. The skirt is closed at the side under a band of feather trimming, the front being slightly draped by three rosettes of garnet panne. The front bodice has a jacket of garnet velvet, cut away and trimmed in bands of white satin, embroidered with black velvet and edged with black feather trimming. The collar and belt are of garnet panne, the close sleeves of brocade, plaited at the top and bordered with feather trimming at the wrists. The directoire bonnet of garnet velvet is trimmed with black plumes and black velvet. The strings are of black velvet, and there are two roses under the brim.

Items of Interest Concerning Fascinating Styles.

White enamel necklaces with silver trimmings are still carried.

Among the variations of white now so much worn by elegant women are a white jet finely linked with rose and another equally delicate with turquoise. Pearl is often used as the trimming for these pale gowns, preferably rhinestone, otter or duvet silvery beaver.

The crepes draped in the Spanish fashion which were worn in the fall have instigated the idea for a similar drapery of the straight sort, which is now often caught up at the left shoulder by a buckle or other ornament.

Some of the newest skirts have a flat box plait in the middle of the front and back, both plaits being ornamented with applications or left plain. A picture il-

The bodice, fitted plainly at the back, has three large plaits in front, the middle one appearing a continuation of that of the skirt. The pointed yoke, which forms sleeve caps, is covered with black applications of passementerie. The belt and the wrists of the sleeves are ornamented to match. A hat of spangled black chenille is worn, trimmed with black ostrich plumes and a jeweled ornament.

HOMAGE TO THE CZAR.

One Place in New York Where Even Americans Must Doff Hats to Him.

Although the United States is a republic and its metropolis one of the most democratic cities in the world, there is one place in New York city, U. S. A., where even American citizens must take off their hats to the czar.

This place is a pleasant, well-lighted suite of offices on the sixth floor of the handsome new structure at No. 17 State street, facing Battery park. Alongside the door on the corridor wall, are emblazoned the imperial arms of Russia. The officers themselves are occupied by the Russian consul general and his attachees.

A man not yet initiated called at the Russian consulate a day or two ago. Two or three clerks were seated at desks behind the railing. The visitor asked for one of the clerks and began to state the object of his call. The clerk listened a moment courteously. Then he stopped the speaker with an eloquent gesture.

"Your hat!" he cried. "Will you not be kind enough to remove your hat at once? I cannot allow you to remain here with your hat upon your head."

"Why can't you?" queried the visitor.

"Because, sir," responded the clerk, "you are in the presence of the czar. Do you not see his portrait and also the portrait of the czarina?"

As he spoke he waved his hand in the direction of the portrait hanging high on the wall over a rather tall bookcase. The visitor saw, but did not remove his hat. He said if he were ordered or only requested to remove his hat. The clerk began to protest volubly.

"If you will make it a request," said the visitor, "I will gladly remove my hat."

"I can have nothing whatever to say to you," the clerk asserted, "until you remove your hat."

A gentleman entered the office from *an inner room, and to him the clerk ex*plained the situation. He was Vladimir Teploff, the Russian consul himself. As he listened to the story he stepped forward to repeat the statement that the visitor's hat must be removed before any questions could be answered.

"Suppose I decline positively to remove my hat," asked the visitor, "would you put me out of the office or have me arrested for lack of respect to the czar?"

"I could at least treat you as if you did not exist," was the reply. "If you have not the manners to remove your hat, I request you as a gentleman to remove your hat. In the presence of the czar and czarina I am not at liberty to transact any matters with a person whose head is covered."

The visitor's hat came off instantly—as a concession to the custom of the office, however, and not as a sign of deference to the czar and czarina. In the conversation which followed M. Teploff expressed surprise because of the general disregard which seems to be discovered not only "in the presence of the czar" as represented by his portrait, but also in public offices generally.

The portraits which M. Teploff insists should be reverenced are large, brilliantly colored affairs, displayed behind glass, in plain oak frames. It is held by some who are conversant with the circumstances that M. Teploff would be well within his legal rights if he should cause the arrest of anyone who may refuse to remove uncovered before the pictures.—N. Y. Herald.

WANING OF THE GRAND ARMY

Veterans of the Civil War Will Soon Have Marched to the Other Shore.

One of the bravest "standing armies" in the world is dying out. The Grand Army of the Republic, that band of gray-haired warriors whose pride and dearest recollection it is that they once served their country, is shaking with appalling swiftness to the point where it will be only a memory of good deeds and brave men who have done them.

Statistics as to the membership and death rate of the organization tell the story as touching as the tenderest funeral sermon. They show that in a few years more the roll call will be an empty ceremony—the summons to the national encampment a vain appeal to the heroes of 1861.

Within 12 months—the year of 1898 —according to a report just issued, more than 17,000 members of the grand army died. This death rate was more than double that of the previous year. If the past year (1899) has shown a correspondingly terrible relapse, only the friends of the organization have ample ground for the concern they express as to its future.

The high-water mark of the grand army's prosperity was not reached until more than a decade after the death of its founder, Dr. Benjamin F. Stephenson. The army's excellent organization, however, is due to Dr. Stephenson's genius as a founder.

It is set down to the eternal credit of the army that its originated one of our most inspiring holidays—Memorial day. This is the most interesting act in the history of the army and by all means the most popular act of Gen. Logan's administration.

This holiday, which has been celebrated with such fervor for 30 years, was originally the suggestion of a citizen of German birth, whose very name has been forgotten. It was established by Gen. Logan, and the leaders of the army for a few years later secured by congress a legal holiday.—N. Y. World.

Pretty Gowns for Evening Wear— Latest Hair Dressing—Coats and Sleeves.

The old-fashioned box plaits are to be seen as the trimming of underskirts. The box-pleated ruffle is four or five inches wide. There are one or two-inch wide box plaits separated by much narrower space, and the pleating is stitched on an inch or so below the upper edge, and the top of each plait is caught down.

A pretty dinner gown is made of alternate narrow stripes of accordion-pleated crepe de chine and lace. The plaits are set close together at the waist line, and gradually widen to the lower edge of the skirt. The narrow panels of lace are slightly narrower at the waist, and also widen gradually at the edge of the skirt. The bodice is made of alternate horizontal rows of the lace and pleated crepe also.

Velvet ribbon in the crowns and brims of mirror velvet, trimmed with metallic flowers, are a feature of millinery. Roses are the special kind and the smaller sizes are much used, a wreath of the same roses being the only trimming on a sable hat.

Long coats of velvet, a half-fitting loose sacque, in shapes without any seam in the middle of the back, are one of the specialties in winter garments. White beads and stitched panne are the trimming and distinguishing feature in this style of garment, whether of cloth or velvet, and triple revers, one of cloth like the coat, one of white satin embroidered with lace on the edge, and one of colored cloth covered with stitching.

For evening a pretty way to dress the hair is first to wave it with hair curlers, if nature has not done this for you. Arrange the hair in the revived Frenchtwist style, rolled, loose, low, very low, and softly puffed at the top in front; save out a strand that you roll a la pompadour, and if you wish this effect accentuated, twist the hair over night in rather large pins. Curl little tendrils of short hair about the forehead, fasten a half wreath of pink or damask roses, with a delicate rosebud aigrette, and one or two effective loops of black velvet ribbon, just back of the pompadour roll, and the effect is charming.

Effective evening gowns have net overdresses worn over contrasting silk foundations, and small silk flowers, such as are used in millinery, are tacked to the net. Here is a color to match the goods beneath or in a contrasting color, as red flowers on black net over white satin.

Applique effects and cutwork are always in vogue when braiding is fashionable. Any of the "rich satin, velvet or Indies' cloth, the elegant pieces of lace or silk passementerie en applique show to distinct advantage, but it seems a pity to see these handsome patterns laid over gowns or jackets of inferior cloth without the contrast. Nothing is always so beautiful that it seems a waste to utilize it for many of the everyday uses, for which any amount of it is ruthlessly applied this winter.—Boston Budget.

CHILDREN AND THEIR STUDIES

Five Hours' Brain Work, the Maximum; Two Hours' Play, the Minimum.

The cramming system and its accompanying evils are a national crime at the feet of American parents. No child under 15 years of age should be given any home study whatever by his teachers. He should have not more than from one hour to four of schooling each day, the hours increasing with his years. Outside of school hours he should have at least three hours of play. After 15 the brain has another period of rapid development, and special incentive of the higher faculties. Four hours of schooling, then, is not too much, provided the child's physical being is capable of it, and in time an hour of isolated study may be added. But that is enough. Five hours of brain work a day is the most that we should ask of our children, and the child should pass at least two hours a day in the open air. Our boys and girls do not get enough fresh air and sunshine in their bodies and minds. The higher institutions of learning understand the need of physical development for brain growth far better than do our lesser schools and our homes—and as it is to school it.—Edward W. Bok, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Child's Sleeping Hours.

The baby should be taught to sleep at regular hours. At first he will sleep most of the time not occupied in feeding. At the age of six the child should sleep 10 or 12 hours at night and two hours during the day. Between these ages the amount of sleep should gradually diminish. The method of training babies to sleep is simple: Be sure that they are comfortable as to externals, give them food, then leave them alone in a properly guarded crib. After several months' humoring it may be dangerous to leave a child alone, as the little tyrant may work himself into such a rage as to bring convulsions or do himself physical injury, but the young infant may be trusted to "cry it out" in safety, and after the first disappointment is over he will be happier and more contented to take the ups and downs of life uncomplainingly.—Dr. L. Emmett Holt, in Woman's Home Companion.

FASHION'S MIRROR.

Some of the Pretty Things for Fabrics Worn That Are Recommended There.

The most appropriate of the extensive array of hats for holiday wear are the graceful Dutch Fresnch toques of dark moss-green velvet, trimmed with bally berries, a cluster of leaves and a cluster of shaded green ostrich plumes.

Collar bands are higher than they have ever been, but are made without any boning or pliable strips at the sides and back which have been used for several years. Bands and other appliances of nonrotating collars at the top of the collar are much used. Soft bouillonnes in front of the collar are made sometimes of chiffon, crepe, peau de soie and peau de cygne.

Stocks are a very important factor in the success of a shirt waist. Linen collars have been losing favor for some months, and it cannot be denied that they look wiry and unbecoming with flannel. A stock of ribbon the same shade as the shirt waist, finished with two white lines or mull hemstitched tabs, is the proper neckwear.

A number of the latest waistcoats for men now shown in the smart shops are exceedingly pretty and are most serviceable for all country sports. An overcoat is heavy and cumbersome for skating or tramping, but still one must have the protection of a coat, and the waistcoat, or jacket, as it is also called, is the best of all protections. For milder weather the sweater cut away at the neck so as to show the collar and tie is also very pretty and rather smart-looking. These sweaters are not commonly seen, and they might be found ready-made except at a few of the best shops.

The newest buttons are much less jeweled than formerly, and taken upas gown trimmings the small and medium sizes are far more in demand than the larger variety. Enameled color tones are given to button surfaces with some delicate design thereon. Blister pearls form the latest novelty button in white, the size usually sold is termed a black pearl, as well as in all the pale shades of evening silks.

The warmest things in skirts not flannel are made of a soft elastic silk material called Italian cloth, and are edged with embroidered silk ruffles. They are very pretty, but in the French underwear they are not inexpensive.

New are the tulle bats with wreps flowers exquisitely harmonized in pale shades of tint. It is said that these hat structures will be very modish next summer, *as well as smart for dress oc*casions now.

A handsome gown of tan velvet has the overdress outlined with a design in cut-steel beads applied over it with gold thread, the design edged with a tiny *gold braid. The body of the over*dress is covered with a small all-over pattern of the cut cloth, each design set under the beads and stitched on with the gold thread.—Boston Budget.

ERRORS IN SPEECH.

Some That Are Commonly Made by Those Who Know Better.

Errors in speech are not made by the uneducated alone. Many a well-educated woman allows herself to use expressions which in her secret thoughts she will confess her are incorrect.

Among the most glaring solecisms are the use of the wrong conjunction to express one's meaning, for instance, "like she was," instead of "as she was;" the too frequent employment of contractions, "ain't I?" "aren't you?" "won't you?" etc., for "am I not?" or "am not I?" or "will not you?" etc. The use of the objective case of the pronoun for the subjective, apart and detached from the verb, as "it is to accompany her," instead of "she asked Jessie and me."

These are but a few of the commonest errors practiced by educated and uneducated alike, but there is no excuse, to self at least that they should not convince her are incorrect.

Kicking Democrats Rewarded.

The organization of the so-called Jefferson Democracy of Middlesex county, which cut somewhat of a figure in the campaign last fall, was undoubtedly the result of some sharp practices on the part of G. O. P. leaders. While the leaders in the rump movement proclaimed with great gusto that it was their loyalty to the party and its principles that impelled them to forswear allegiance to the regular organization, it is evident that the so-called Jeffersonians were simply doing the bidding of the Republican politicians, who appreciated the truth of the saying that a house divided against itself must fall—and so of the Democracy.

The reward of the kicking Democrats was to come in for appointments to political jobs. That was evidenced a very few days after election when Patrick Mulvey, chief disturber in the Democracy, was appointed to a position on the capitol police force in Washington. Now another Democrat of the same brand as Mulvey has been rewarded. He is Edward R. Hayes, who was Thursday appointed court crier of the Middlesex County Court. This position has been coveted by men who have been Republicans through thick and thin, and they are not only surprised but wounded at the selection of a disgruntled Democrat over their heads.

The fine Tinsley hand of Robert Carson, collector of the Port of Perth Amboy, and who is now regarded as political boss of the Middlesex G. O. P., is supposed to be responsible for the reward of Mulvey and Hayes, who will hereafter be summarily kicked out of any Democratic affairs in which they attempt to participate.

What Will Carnegie Do?

Those who follow American politics closely have looked upon Andrew Carnegie as one of the most liberal contributors to Republican campaign funds for a number of years, but since the iron maker and philanthropist has differed so violently in his views with the McKinley administration over the question of what shall be done in the Philippines, it has come to be regarded as an assured fact that in coming Presidential campaign will find the bank account of Mr. Carnegie closed to Republican appeals.

This position of Mr. Carnegie has been looked upon by some optomistic Democrats as equivalent to saying that he will offer extensive financial aid to Col. Bryan's candidacy because of the latter's anti-imperialistic programme. Jumping at hasty conclusion, a report has been widely circulated and accepted in an apparent credulous manner by the Democratic leaders—that Mr. Carnegie will contribute the very generous sum of $500,000 to the Democratic campaign fund in the hope of defeating President McKinley for re-election, and thus euchre the present policy of the Government in dealing with the Philippines.

The matter has been given such wide and persistent publicity that Mr. Carnegie has decided that he should take some recognition of the rumors, and he does so in a letter to the New York Sun today. Quoting the newspaper article of his alleged friendly feeling for Mr. Bryan on the ante-campaign issues, Mr. Carnegie says:

> The issues of the coming Presidential election are not yet defined, and what course duty may be cannot be known until they are. If a choice of evils be presented one will have to choose the least as was in November last.

The Iron-master's words allow of a wonderfully elastic understanding of what he proposes to do, for his words a "choice of evils" leave plenty of room for argument. Republicans, of course, will claim that if there is any distinctive effects to be the outcome of the Presidential choice, they represent the minimum; and, naturally, the Democrats argue the same thing in respect to themselves.

By his own formal words Mr. Carnegie does not fasten on either party the particular brand of political sin that he regards as most harmful. Unless there is a great change, which is improbable, his qualification "as seen in November" is significant of "cutting loose" from his former party affiliations.

Calculating on the basis of results of previous exhibitions at Paris, it is assumed that 83,582,380 people may reasonably be expected to pass through the turnstiles, and it is not impossible that the total number may reach 65,000,000.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK ?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried Grain-O? Ask your friend, druggist or grocer for a 15 cent package of Grain-O. It is a delicious, healthful drink that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress. One teaspoonful to a cup of coffee strength gives it a rich seal brown color, resembling coffee. It is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the finest grade of coffee. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. All grocers sell it.

Independence in Somerset.

"One result of changing the township elections from spring to fall and holding them with the county and State elections," says the Bound Brook Chronicle, "would probably be to change the complexion of the Somerset Board of Freeholder. There are several screws loose in the present condition of affairs." It continues: "when the Republican can get overwhelming majorities in the fall and yet fail to carry the individual townships in the spring."

The Newark News takes the Chronicle's comment for a topic and editorially preaches the following strong political sermon:

> "Here is revealed the impelling influence for the action of the Somerset county Republican committee in indorsing consolidation of spring and fall elections. They want to ticket those loose screws so as to fasten the fatters of party fealty so firmly that independent action will be impossible. Up to a few years ago Somerset was almost as certain to give a Democratic majority in the fall as in the spring. Of late, however, the independent vote has been cast at State and National elections with the Republicans, while in the spring it has continued to assert its right to support candidates for township offices on the strength of their personal character and fitness qualifications, regardless of what their views may be on the tariff or currency. It may be wise party policy to attempt to dragoon this element into voting for local candidates, but certainly it is open to doubt. The independent voter is jealous of his privileges, and balks at anything which smacks of coercion. So long as he is willing to support the Republican ticket in the fall, the managers of that party would best consult their own interests by letting him alone."

The confusion and panic that resulted in a Trenton public school a few days ago while there was a fire in the building, during which several pupils were severely injured, emphasizes the need of constant drill of scholars for just such emergencies. President Probasco, at the meeting of the Board of Education, wisely cautioned Superintendent Maxson about maintaining such drills in the local school rooms so that such an unfortunate and horrible result might be avoided if the fire fiend, or any other incentive for a panic, should visit the school buildings in this city. By thorough and constant drilling every pupil in the city schools ought to be taught to participate in a series of manoeuvres that will empty the rooms in rapid and orderly manner, thus reducing to a minimum the chances of injury during an excitement such as a fire will bring about.

The retirement of Henry Abbott Steel from the editorship of the Newark Evening News is a distinct loss to the world of newspapers of New Jersey. Mr. Steel has been associated with the Evening News from the day it first made its debut to the public, and it has been due principally to his talent and good judgment that the paper has reached the position of not only being the leading journal of the State but one of the recognized high-class newspapers of the country. The intelligence and the energy that Mr. Steel has given to the News has finally resulted in impairing his health, and he retires in order that he may take a long vacation and recuperate his exhausted physique. The success which has attended the career of the News, however, has brought an independent competency to Mr. Steel, and he will be able to follow his inclinations in the future in a liberal and pleasant way.

The Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain delivered an impressive speech in the House of Commons yesterday in which he defended his war policy towards the Boers. The Honorable Joseph is very clever in the art of oratory and established his side of the question in pretty words, but he has got to do lots of explaining before he can convince the world that he acted the right spirit in the attitude that he compelled the British to assume towards the Dutch Republic.

The Union county constable who arrested a white man on an indictment meant for a colored individual, thereby committing a grave blunder which may subject the county to a suit for heavy damages, will undoubtedly explain his mistake by claiming that it was a case of "Too Much Johnson," but with none of the humor which that dramatic title conveys to ordinary beings beyond the realm of the constabulary force of the bailwick.

What business the United States loses in one way is generally more than made up in some other avenue of enterprise. During the year 1899 there was a decline of nearly $70,000,000 in the amount of agricultural products exported, but this loss is more than offset in the value of the manufactured articles which Yankee ingenuity and enterprise has found a foreign market for.

Governor Taylor and Aguinaldo are the champion capital-movers of the world.

The North River Bridge.

The promoters of the bridge which it is proposed to build from New York city to the Jersey shore appreciate the fact that there has been a great change of sentiment among the people in respect to the use of public privileges, and that where a few years ago such an enterprise as they were striving to consummate would be accorded every convenience and privilege from the public without expectation of financial returns, a different basis of finance must be figured on now.

The construction of a bridge across the North river would be of paramount importance to New Jerseymen, and there is a consequent contemporaneous interest in what terms will probably prevail for the use of necessary public privileges for the success of the project. It stands to reason, of course, that the benefits that will be exacted from the New York side will be much greater than on the Jersey shore because of the immense value of Manhattan land which will be requisite for a proper approach to the water front.

It is the opinion of Comptroller Coler, of New York, that the city should receive a percentage upon the gross receipts, arranged upon an advancing scale, as has been required in the granting of some recent street railway franchises. The bridge companies submitted two offers. One is that in lieu of any direct payments the bridge at the end of seventy-five years should become the property of the city free from debt, upon a payment by the city of $20,000,000. The other provides for a ninety-nine year franchise, at the end of which time the city shall have the whole property free of any cost.

The estimate that New Jersey officials put upon the value of the privileges that it will be necessary to secure in this commonwealth in order to complete the bridge project has not yet been made public. Naturally, there will have to be an adjustment of some sort that will be just and equitable to both sides, for without joint action that will safeguard the interests of both the governments that control the approaches, the construction of the bridge can never be undertaken.

Effect of Bryan's Visit.

As had been anticipated the visit of Col. Bryan to this city drew out an immense crowd and made the occasion the most notable political event in the history of the local Democracy. The greeting to Col. Bryan was spontaneous to a very great degree, and was typical of the ovation that he meets with wherever he goes—be it in Democratic or Republican sections.

The effect of Col. Bryan's visit to Plainfield will probably not be in the conversion of Republicans to his political ideas by the exploitation of those particular principles in his speech at Music Hall yesterday afternoon, but it would be denying what was plainly evident to even the most casual observers to say that the enthusiasm evidenced yesterday will put quieten Democrats themselves, and make them more vigorous and aggressive along lines of policy which have heretofore been discounted by many of their own political class.

The appearance of Bryan in their midst will undoubtedly inspire persons who have been lagging since the infusion of new men and radical ideas into the party organization, and have been lost to benefit the Democratic party, which, of course, means a proportionate lessening of Republican good luck in this section.

Assemblyman King is the father of a Legislative measure which will probably be known as the "embalmed beef bill" before the session adjourns. Its purport is to compel every individual or firm engaged in canning food products to stamp on each can filled the date on which such can is sealed. At present it is charged that food products of various kinds are sold in cans that have been filled in some instances for two or more years.

Senator Reed has introduced a bill providing for the compulsory attendance of witnesses summoned to appear in cases heard by the State Board of Arbitration. The act emanates from the State Federation of Trades and Labor Unions, and was brought to Trenton by Henry J. Gottlob. The latter had another bill providing for the appointment of two deputy female factory inspectors.

A tiny piece of lead is an insignificant looking thing, but its swift course across a short space of ground in Kentucky has resulted in making one of the most sensational and tragic chapters of political history in the United States.

Hurt Playing Hockey.

A young colored man, named Peterson, fell on the ice at Tier's pond Friday afternoon, while playing hockey. His wrist was hit by a hard and was unconscious for half an hour. Dr Hallock attended him. He finally recovered sufficiently to walk home.

Cutting Down Expenses.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company Saturday discontinued the office on Watchung avenue and has disposed with Car Starter Charles C. Lister. The reason assigned is that the business of the road would not warrant the expense.

WORK OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL

FIRST MEETING OF THE LOCAL UNION HELD LAST NIGHT.

Addresses by Captain Pierson, President of the State Association, Who Dwells on Phases of Sunday School Work.

The first public meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Union was held Monday night in Vincent chapel. The large audience present included representatives from many of the schools which compose the union, and number of the clergymen and Sunday-school superintendents of the city were present.

The song service, with which the meeting opened, was conducted by D. E. Tilsworth, of the Seventh-Day Baptist Sunday-school. Rev. Arthur E. Main, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, and president of the union, then took the chair. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. G. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church.

Mr. Main then introduced Captain Pierson, president of the New Jersey State Sunday-school Association, who spoke briefly of the wide spread of the Sunday-school movement, of its great influence for good, and of the importance of each person's helping it along in some manner

The principal feature of the evening was the address by Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, Ohio, general secretary of the International Sunday-school Association. Mr. Lawrence said, in beginning his talk, that the Sunday-school was the greatest agency for good in the world. It is the one school where the Bible is the text book, and twenty millions of people every Sunday study the same lesson. He showed an old-style Sunday-school lesson book, and compared it with the magnificent modern literature on the international lessons. The speaker went on to show that the Sunday-school is for all, fitted for the little child and the adult alike. It is not a denominational affair, but in the Sunday-school convention all denominations come together in perfect harmony.

The Sunday-school is also a training school for workers. Those who learn to work there are those who go out to work in wider fields. It is also an evangelizing agency. Even when conversion does not take place in the school, seed is often sown which bears fruit later. Mr. Lawrence spoke, too, of some of the modern accessories to Sunday-school work—the libraries, lesson boards and maps; the bright music, the cradle roll, the home department, normal classes, conventions, boys' brigades, the uniform lesson system, "Sunday-school week," with its meetings for all classes, closing with "Decision Day," is a most successful evangelistic effort. House-to-house visitation, another modern plan, brings the school into closer touch with the people. In conclusion, he told something of the international work and the great field in the western States. He then entrusted all present to help in Sunday-school work with their presence, their money and their prayers.

An offering for the State and International Associations was received, and closing prayer was offered by Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

NEW MOVE IN ATHLETICS

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION TO BE RE-ORGANIZED.

Troubles in the Old Association Practically Ended Its Career Last Fall—Meeting Held Monday and Committee Appointed.

The first steps were taken Monday afternoon toward the re-organization of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association. The association has accomplished much since it was organized several years ago and held many successful athletic meets and conducted successful football and baseball teams.

Last year the association had trouble in its own ranks and no attempt was made during the past fall to revive that organization. A meeting was held at the High School yesterday afternoon and the first steps taken to completely re-organize the association. A committee of three was appointed to draw up a new constitution based on the same plan adopted by the colleges.

The new association will include all the boys of the High School in its membership and is expected to infuse new life into High School athletics. Any troubles of the kind that disrupted the existance of the old organization will be provided against and a flourishing association is expected.

Dr. Lewis Will Speak.

The many admirers of Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., of Plainfield, will be glad to learn that he has been secured to address the Washington Camp Ground Association, at its annual meeting February 22, next. His subject will be "The Birth and Evolution of a Great Nation." Rev. T. E. Davis, the association's historian, will talk on "Bound Brook Women of the Revolution."—Bound Brook Chronicle.

A GREAT DAY FOR THE DEMOCRATS

and Daly seated themselves in the carriage and were driven to the North Avenue station. On their arrival there, it didn't take a minute for another great crowd to gather and in numbered two thousand people before the train came in that carried the party to New York. Everybody crowded round trying to shake hands with Mr. Bryan, while small boys were lifted to their father's shoulders so that they might see him too.

When the 4.17 local train for New York came into the station the crowd swarmed over the platforms and into the cars. Mr. Bryan and his companions had difficulty in getting in. Then the train pulled out amid the cheers of the crowd, the boom of the Democratic cannon and the music of the band.

The visitors roamed the streets until train time and then departed to their respective homes.

NEW BRUNSWICK PARTY.

Delegation of Middlesex County Democrats Who Came to Hear Col. Bryan.

The Jeffersonians of New Brunswick came to Plainfield Wednesday a hundred strong to attend the Bryan mass meeting. They came in all sorts of conveyances that could be procured in Brunswick. They had expected at first that the meeting was to be in the evening and had made arrangements to have a band with them. Many of the members were unable to get off for the afternoon and so the delegation was not as large as it otherwise would have been.

The committee in charge consisted of Former Assemblyman John F. Mulvey, Former President of the Board of Alderman James H. Fleming, Thomas H. Howley, James A. Lyons, David F. McCloskey, Captain John Smith, Tax Valuer James Poole, Rev. Dean O'Grady, Court Crier E. R. Hayes, John Harkins, William C. Jaques, Edward R. Badel, William Harkins, Julius Heidenfield and Former Assemblyman Luther H. Tappen.

BRYAN WAS PLEASED.

The Nebraskan Felt Very Gratified at the Reception Tendered to Him.

Mr. Martine accompanied Mr. Bryan to Elizabeth on his departure from here. Mr. Bryan expressed great gratification at his reception here. It was the largest afternoon audience, he said, that he had addressed in the eastern states. He had been told that the strong Republican influences in Plainfield would keep many away and that he would talk to a small house so he was pleasurably surprised. He also thanked Mr. Martine very cordially for the warm hospitality shown him at "Cedar Brook" and all through his visit in Plainfield.

MAYOR FISK'S VISITORS AND HIS MANY LETTERS

stereotypers, linotype operators, advertising agents, etc., all anxious to secure situations on Mr. Fisk's new paper. He thought all the newspaper fellows in the country must be out of a job.

That night at the ex-Mayor's home another batch of letters confronted him. He amused himself for a time opening them and reading their contents. The suggestions in them were as amusing as they were ridiculous. Some of the letters contained samples of papers, styles, etc. The joke became serious and the work of opening his heavy mail arduous. He finally gave up in despair and put the letters on one side until such time as he can consider and place them in his scrap book.

That night Plainfield's former Mayor had a nightmare. He saw a huge newspaper. In the background was visible the outline of a nervous little man holding aloft an immense letter upon which he plainly read the initials S. D. D.

Help for Congress Pond.

The plan inaugurated by some of the women associated with the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital to raise a certain amount of money to send William Cosgrove to his home in California, is meeting with good success and there now seems to be no doubt but what the scheme will be carried out successfully. Contributions of small and large amounts are constantly being received for the worthy purpose.

TO RUN ALONG THE SHORE.

Ribbon Cut Opening of the Railway Elizabeth Railway, Which Will be Greatly Developed.

The Union and Middlesex Traction Company line in Rahway has passed into the control of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, which corporation holds the franchises between Elizabeth and Plainfield. The Rahway line extends from St. George's avenue, in Rahway, through Woodbridge, Sewaren and Boynton Beach.

For some time past it had been known that the Westfield and Elizabeth Company was, through its representatives, endeavoring to secure control of the Union and Middlesex line, which, if all reports be true, has been on the market for many months. The deal, it is understood, was concluded Saturday.

The line just purchased connects with the new line on St. George avenue at the head of Grand street, in Rahway. The new line, as yet, only extends a short distance westward beyond the city limits. Colonel Hine, the secretary of the road, has assured the Common Council of Rahway that the road will be opened through to Westfield in the shortest time.

The Union and Middlesex line, so far as can be ascertained, has under its old management been anything but a paying investment, except perhaps during the summer months, when as a rule travel to Boynton Beach is heavy.

Now that the Bikers have control of the Rahway line, it is probable that in the very near future there will be a connection direct between Elizabeth and Rahway.

It is probable that at an early date an application will be made to the Elizabeth City Council for franchises. As has been stated, the project of the trolley company is to get the right of way to the lower section of Elizabeth. The route that has been proposed is through East Broad street, Magnolia avenue, Division street and Court street; and another route on the south side of Elizabeth, through Rahway, to connect with South Front street. This latter route is apparently for the purpose of making a short road that would run to Westfield, Cranford and connect with the Union and Middlesex line, and so make the route continuous between Elizabeth, Woodbridge, Sewaren and the Amboys.

Inquest Not Necessary.

The funeral of Chris Peterson, who was found frozen to death near New Orange was held at his late residence in Cranford Saturday. The County Physician has decided that an inquest as to the manner of his death will be unnecessary. It was stated yesterday that he had not collected the money due him at New Orange.

WEST FIELD BILL CUT IN TWO

PROMISE THAT CARS WILL SOON BE RUNNING TO ELIZABETH.

One Now Runs Between This City and Cranford Every Fifteen Minutes and Are Well Patronized—Overhead Bridge at the R. & O. Railroad Crossing Will Be Built in the Near Future, Says Col. E. W. Hine, secretary of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, has asked the Westfield Township Committee to relieve the company from paying $151, the amount of the first year's bill on account of franchise privileges granted the Rikers to build their road through Westfield.

The bill was sent to the railway company by the Township Committee and dates from the first day of January, 1899, to the first day of January, 1900. Col. Hine explained that the road had not been running for a year; in fact, only for a few months, and therefore he considered it only fair that the Committee should not charge the company for toll when it had not been doing business.

Colonel Hine wanted the Committee to remit the bill entirely, saying that other townships along the line were considering the question in that manner, and one township has already remitted the bill.

After considerable discussion the committee decided to charge the company for only half the year, which made the bill $77. Colonel Hine thanked the Committee and said that some day in the near future cars would be running to Elizabeth, and then he hoped the company would be rewing the benefit it was striving for.

Cars are now running between Cranford and Plainfield under fifteen-minute headway, and, notwithstanding the extreme cold weather, the road is being well patronized. The crossovers for the Lehigh Valley crossing at Allen street are expected to arrive the 10th instant, and then cars will be running to Lorraine.

The Rikers will build an overhead bridge at Cranford to cross the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. The bridge will be built south of the railroad crossing on South avenue, and the trolley line will be run in the shape of a crescent over private right of way from South avenue, and will cross over the railroad tracks about 200 feet south of the grade crossing. This bridge will be built for the trolley line especially, and it is understood the officials of both roads have come to a mutual agreement on the question, and just as soon as the weather will permit the bridge will be constructed.

BAD GANG ROUNDED UP.

Detective Totten Succeeds in Capturing the Man Who Have Been Burglarizing Horseheads.

Detective George D. Totten, of Somerville, succeeded Sunday a capturing three alleged burglars, whose track he had been on for several weeks, for numerous robberies committed along the line of the New Jersey Central Railroad in this district. The capture was made in a bad resort in Ferry street, Newark. The men gave their names as Frank Williams, Charles Lee and Frank Herbert. They were armed and made a desperate resistance. Williams made an attempt to brain Totten with a "jimmy," but he was finally knocked down and subdued at the muzzle of a revolver. There were found in the band of Weis's hat a number of small steel files and saws, and Williams had in his possession a chisel and other burglar's tools. On January 26th the shoe store of Louis Feldman, of Bound Brook, was robbed of almost its entire stock of shoes.

When arrested the men had eleven pairs of shoes in their rooms. Feldman identified the shoes as part of the stock stolen from him. A large number of pawn tickets were found on the burglars.

ENDEAVOR NIGHT.

Service for Young Christians at the Congregational Church.

Despite the rain, there was a good attendance at the special Christian Endeavor Day service, held in the Congregational church last Sunday by the Endeavorers of that church. Short addresses were made by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, I. Winthrop Travell, Miss Florence G. Hawkins and Miss Emma V. Fish. An "open parliament" followed under the charge of the leader, Miss M. G. Morse. The singing was led by the Sunday-school choir.

FUNERAL OF F. E. MARSH

MANY GATHERED TO PAY THEIR LAST RESPECTS.

Services Conducted in an Impressive Manner by Rev. D. J. Yerkes—Touching Tributes to the Life of the Deceased.

The funeral services of the late Francis E. Marsh were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home, 215 Central avenue, when a large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects. Included among the mourners were most of the legal fraternity of this city, and some from out of town, who had known the deceased for many years.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, where Mr. Marsh was a member and an attendant. After Dr. Yerkes read appropriate Scripture selections, a quartette, composed of Mrs. M. F. Ward, contralto; Mrs. Samuel Case, soprano; C. W. McCutchen, tenor, and William Holmes, bass, rendered effectively "Abide With Me." Dr. Yerkes then spoke at some length on the uncertainty of life and of the necessity of being prepared for the last call. He paid deserving tribute to the life of the deceased, and told something of the sorrow that had entered his life in the loss of his wife and four children. He spoke of Mr. Marsh as being a whole-souled person, very generous and with a loving and kind disposition. He referred to his life in his home and of the highest expression of love there manifested towards his sisters. All of these expressions were re echoed in the hearts of those present who knew such to be true in every particular.

At the close of the above remarks the quartette sang "Hiding in Thee," in an impressive manner. Then an opportunity was given those present to view the remains. The floral tributes were very beautiful and were expressive of the high esteem in which the deceased was held by those who knew him. After the service at the house interment took place in the Baptist cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

NOT REPORTED PROMPTLY.

Borough Board of Health Says That a Physician Did Not Act in Accordance With Law.

A regular meeting of the Borough Board of Health was held last Monday when it was reported that the new law requiring all physicians to report at once any and all suspected cases of contagious disease is now in operation. It was also reported to the borough that there was a case of contagious disease in the borough which had not promptly been reported by the physician. This sort of thing has occurred before and the Board do not think that is excusable. In the latter case the new law was not in operation and nothing could be done with the physician. Now it is possible to secure the imposing of a heavy fine on all physicians who do not report these cases, even in the suspected class. There was nothing else considered at the meeting.

VERDICT FOR RUNYON.

Central Railroad Had Refused to Let Him Board a Train—He is Awarded $1,100.

The jury in the case of Elmer Runyon against the Central Railroad for damages for being denied permission to board one of the company's trains at Jersey City during the trouble over carrying packages in 1895, brought in a verdict of $1,100 for the plaintiff.

The case has been tried twice. The plaintiff was non-suited once, and awarded $1,000 the other time. It was appealed by the defendants, and the Court of Errors granted a new trial on exceptions.

Union School May be Built.

It looks now as though the question of school accommodation for the children at New Orange will be settled by a union school being built, and supported by the townships of Union and Cranford, in proportion to the number of children attending from each township. A similar plan is working with entire satisfaction between Westfield and Cranford, at Garwood, and Westfield and Springfield at Branch Mills.

Hard Times Gun Club.

The "Hard Time Gun Club," composed of all the well-known sporting men in the borough, and some from this city, has just been organized. They will meet frequently in the borough, and when the hunting season arrives they will arrange to enjoy hunting trips about the State.

Nearly Severed His Thumb

While George Jones, of West Front street, was cleaning his wheel Sunday his thumb caught between the sprocket and chain and the member was almost severed. Dr. Pittis was called and he was obliged to take several stitches. Jones will not lose the thumb.

Raritan Over Its Banks.

The heavy rains Sunday night caused a flood in the Raritan River and its branches. The North Branch was never known to be higher. The Raritan itself is flowing over the meadows, and most of the bridges cannot be crossed.

WALKED INTO DEATH ON CENTRAL TRACKS.

Charles Perrine Was Instantly Killed Monday Night.

NEAR RICHMOND ST. BRIDGE

STEPPED OUT OF PATH OF AN EXPRESS TRAIN.

Did Not See Locomotive and Caboose Approaching on Another Track—Fireman Struck Him in the Back of the Head and Crushed His Skull—Frank Burke Was With Him at the Time.

Death came suddenly and instantaneously to Charles Perrine last Monday night. He stepped out of the path of an express train on another track coming from the opposite direction. He stood too close to the westbound track and a projection on a passing locomotive and caboose struck him in the head. His skull was fractured and a deep gash cut in his head. The fatality occurred on the tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad, near the Richmond street bridge.

Perrine was, until lately, a special detective in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Of late he has been out of employment. He lived with his wife in one of the row of cottages on Watchung avenue, between Front street and the bridge. He was a man of forty-five years. He had two children.

Shortly before 6 o'clock last evening Perrine and Frank Burke, a paperhanger living on North avenue, started to visit a friend on Cottage place. They walked down the track together. They became so interested in their conversation that they passed Cottage place without noticing it and almost reached the Richmond street bridge.

"Look out, Charlie," exclaimed Burke, "there comes the cars." They stepped to one side to allow an express train to pass. Perrine was quite close to the westbound track. He did not see a locomotive with caboose attached that was going west.

It is not known exactly what struck Perrine. There was some projection that caught him in the back of the skull crushing it. With a groan he fell to the ground. He was dead when Burke reached his side.

It was 6:20 o'clock when Burke hurried to the freighthouse and told the men there of the horrible death of his companion. The body was carried to the freighthouse and soon afterwards transferred to Cole's undertaking establishment. A physician was summoned to the freighthouse, but death had been instantaneous. Coroner Physician Wescott arrived during the evening and granted a burial permit.

THE COMPANY SETTLED.

Mrs. Cairns Hurt Through the Negligence of Those in Charge of Trolley Car.

Thursday night, January 18th, Mrs. Cairns, of 210 West Fourth street, was on her way home in a trolley car, and in attempting to get off the car near her house the conductor started the car before she had stepped on the ground. As a result she was dragged a considerable distance, and quite severely injured. The car proceeded on its way, the men in charge making no effort to learn whether Mrs. Cairns was injured.

She was assisted by some friends to her home, and the Plainfield Street Railway Company notified. The company's physician, Dr. Fritts, responded and since then he has been treating Mrs. Cairns. At the same time the company has paid Mrs. Cairns a sum of money which was satisfactory to her.

Miscellaneous Sunday's Fine Pictures.

At the sale of paintings from the collection of Wm. T. Evans, held in New York last week, the following pictures were purchased by Charles W. McCutchen: "Moonrise in Swannance," by Mazia a Becket; "The Sonnet," by W. Shirlan; "Autumn," by W. St. J. Harper; and "Rocky Farm in Autumn, Newport," by S. Coleman.

Bought Town Property.

Abram Van Cleef, of Boyceville, has purchased the proportion on Rte Place. One is occupied by C. V. D. Corle and the other by J. E. Townsend. Mr. VanCleef has sold his farm to J. B. Duke, of Raritan, and as soon as some minor details are looked after he will take up his residence in this city.

Patrolmen Longer and Vanderveer are now doing duty in the business part of the city, as per arrangements made February 1st, when the patrolmen were changed about. Roundsman Flynn has returned to night duty, and Roundsman Fredericksen is doing day duty.

May Quit Railroading.

Rumors say that Conductor William Clark, one of the oldest and a very popular conductor on the Central Railroad, now running between Easton and New York, has the hotel fever and will soon resign his position and go into the hotel business at Somerville at the brick hotel.

DEADLY PARLOR MATCH.

THREATENING FIRE AT HOME OF DAVID E. CROWELL.

Stand-Cloth Catches Fire and the Inflammable Material Also Ignites—Graphic Fragment of Mind Averts a Conflagration.

The snapping match again asserted its position as being the most dangerous of its kind. The aforesaid match got in its work early last Monday at the residence of David E. Crowell, 10 Craig place. One of the members of the family struck a match to light the sitting room lamp. Instantly the fire flew off and directly to the stand-cloth. A blaze shot up and in a second there was a sheet of flame that struck terror to the hearts of the women members of the family. From an intelligent idea to what threatened a serious fire at once confronted the inmates of the house.

With commendable presence of mind Mr. Crowell snatched the burning coverlid from off the stand and made vigorous efforts to smother the flames which were rapidly licking up the inflammable material. Mr. Crowell was only partially successful, however. The fire was so hot that he was compelled to drop the cloth, which falling upon the carpet soon had that in a blaze. At this juncture Edwin H. Bennett, a boarder, hastened to the assistance of Mr. Crowell and together they succeeded in stamping out the fire. The stand-cloth, a sofa pillow and the carpet suffered considerable damage.

But for the promptness and energy displayed by Mr. Crowell and Mr. Bennett it is possible the services of the North Plainfield fire department would have been in demand. The damage will not exceed $25, and the loss is covered by insurance.

SET ON FIRE FOR CHRIST.

Figuratively Speaking, That Is What Rev. W. H. Hamilton Would Like to See Happen to Endeavorers.

"Christian Endeavor Day" was appropriately observed last Monday at Trinity Reformed church, under the auspices of the society of that church. Prior to the regular meeting there was a short business meeting when the various reports were received. Two new members were also received. An enjoyable feature of the celebration was the vocal solo by F. S. Cutler, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lizzie A. Force. Following this, Edgar Sheppard, president of the society, who was in charge, announced as the speaker of the evening Rev. William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth.

He spoke particularly along the lines of Endeavor work, and said that when God has a work to be done he has a man to do it. He contended that what the church needs today is the Christian Endeavor Society set on fire for Christ, that is willing to do the small things and anything for Him. He said that the society was organized to last because it was built on love and unity and these qualities make a church and society a power for good. He placed stress on individual responsibility on the part of Endeavorers, and urged all to frown in a Christian way upon any who say that the society is dying or going out of existence. In conclusion Mr. Hamilton gave some excellent advice to the Endeavorers. After a collection was received for the "Endeavor" church fund, the meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and the benediction by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

A Unique Entertainment.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 16th, there will be given at Bethel chapel, corner Fifth and Washington streets, a unique entertainment, entitled "Scenes from Uncle Tom's Cabin." It will consist of a series of tableaux in which members of the school will take many of the chief parts, and there will be short readings from Mrs. Stowe's famous book to explain the scenes. Great interest has already been manifested by those who are familiar with the enjoyable entertainments given from time to time at the Bethel. The affair is being arranged on the same plan as the "Pride and Prejudice," and "Cranford" tableaux which were such a success at the Crescent Avenue chapel a few years ago.

Removed a Severe Cataract.

The monthly praise service was held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last Sunday when selections from the sacred cantata, "The Daughter of Jarius," was given by the regular quartette choir assisted by five others. The service was well attended. All the selections were well rendered.

MENTORS OF CITY PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Board of Education Transacts Important Business

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED.

TWO NEW TEACHERS APPOINTED TO FILL VACANCIES.

Prof. Griggs Engaged to Deliver a Course of Four Lectures at Franklin School—He is Also to Speak at Commencement—The Matter of Fire Drills Discussed—Several Reports Received.

The first meeting of the Board of Education since its reorganization this year was attended by every member Monday, President Probasco named the standing committees for the year and they were approved by the Board. They are as follows:

Committee on Finance, Messrs. Lovell, Abbott and Lounsbury; fuel, Messrs. Abbott, Lounsbury and Richards; buildings and repairs, Messrs. Lovell, Probasco and Lounsbury; stationery and supplies, Messrs. Richards, Lounsbury and Probasco; teachers and text books, Messrs. Probasco, Richards and Abbott.

Upon motion of President Probasco, the committee on teachers recommended the appointment of Miss Ethel A. Haven as teacher in the Whittier School in place of Miss Tomlinson, who is ill. Also Miss Florence Churton as teacher in the Franklin School to be in charge of the overflow class. The recommendation was unanimously adopted.

Miss Haven is a graduate of the Genesco Norman School, and for four years was the critic in that institution.

Miss Churton is a graduate of the Cortland Normal School, and for the past month has been efficiently supplying the place of Miss Louise Runyon, at the Bryant School, while the latter teacher has been ill.

At the request of President Probasco, the suggestion made at a previous meeting to engage Prof. E. H. Griggs, of Brooklyn, to deliver a course of four lectures for the benefit of the teachers, at a cost not to exceed $50, was taken from the table.

It was the opinion of the Board that it would be wise to engage Prof. Griggs and it was so ordered. These lectures will be on educational subjects for teachers and will be for the benefit of all teachers who desire to attend them. They will be delivered at the Franklin School on the afternoons of April 11th and 25th and May 2d and 9th.

Upon the recommendation of Superintendent Maxson the Board also decided to engage Prof. Griggs to deliver the address at the commencement exercises of the High School at graduation. Prof. Griggs is highly recommended by Superintendent Maxson and many of the teachers of the school who have heard him lecture in Brooklyn.

Owing to the crowded condition of the Whittier School, upon the recommendation of Superintendent Maxson, the Board gave permission to place one of the classes temporarily in the chapel.

President Probasco asked Superintendent Maxson if the fire drills in the various schools were still kept up. He said the recent frightful accident in one of the Trenton public schools had suggested to him the necessity for having the drills maintained.

Superintendent Maxson replied that he believed that the drills had been kept up in the fall, but that they had been omitted during the cold weather. They would be resumed again in the spring. President Probasco cautioned Superintendent Maxson that they were very necessary.

Superintendent Maxson's report showed that he had received $222.20 for tuition; $140 66 for books, etc., and $30 for the library fund for the Irving School. The report was received and ordered placed on file.

The report of the tax collector showed that $1,166 09 had been collected and deposited in the City Bank to the credit of the Board.

The medical inspector's report showed he had examined 80 pupils during December and 101 during January.

The above reports were also received and ordered placed on file.

A large number of bills were also audited and ordered paid.

No further business being at hand of which the public was allowed to have cognizance, President Probasco moved that the Board go into executive session.

Leaves One Big Firm For Another.

J. J. K. Coard, of East Ninth street, has resigned his position as manager of Rogers, Peet & Co., the well-known clothing house of New York, to accept the position of general manager of the firm of Smith, Gray & Company, of Broadway and 31st street, New York. Besides that position, Mr. Coard has been elected a director and vice-president of that firm. Smith, Gray & Company, are among the leading uptown clothing merchants.

NECESSARY TO HAVE COMMISSION NAMED.

Objectors to Somerset Street Widening Make it Imperative.

NOMINATIONS WERE MADE.

THE APPROVAL OF THE COUNCIL WILL BE GIVEN.

Steps Taken to Collect Large Sums of Delinquent Taxes That Are Outstanding—Collector to Receive Commission of Five Per Cent. on the Sums That He Collects for Borough.

Now that all the interested property owners along Somerset street are not prepared to deed the necessary land to widen that thoroughfare according to the ideas of the Borough Council, Mayor S. B. Smalley signified his position in the matter at the regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening by nominating three commissioners to assess benefits and damages for the widening of the street. The approval of the Council will be given to the appointments as soon as it is ascertained that the men mentioned by the Mayor are properly qualified.

The Council did not convene until 8:30 o'clock, but there were numerous conferences before that time that settled various important matters. Mayor Smalley was there and called the meeting to order. All the Councilmen were present except Mr. Swackhamer. Borough Counsel C. A. Reed was also in attendance.

After the usual preliminary business resignations were read of Dr. Justus H. Cooley from Warren Engine Company and George Kliner from the West End Hose Company, and referred to the fire committee. Then came the usual batch of bills.

Mayor Smalley had something to say officially to the Council. He had found, he said, on circulating the map of the proposed changes for the widening of Somerset street, that there were a few interested property owners who objected. He therefore suggested that the Council should conform with the law and appoint commissioners to assess benefits and damages. For such commissioners he nominated B. A. Hegeman, Jr., Dr. J. H. Cooley and Wm. B. Smith.

He had hoped to find no objection from property owners to the proposed improvement, so that the work might go on without the loss of time and incurred expense necessitated by the appointment of commissioners, but Vallant called to mind the troubles over the Watchung avenue improvement, and thought that in this case some arrangement should be made whereby the damages and benefits might balance.

Then came the reports of the Collector and the Clerk.

The report of Collector and Treasurer Brown, was as follows: Taxes, $3,236.97; interest, $113.50; Board of Health, $32.26, special school, $1,353.67; Watchung avenue, $35.10; bills payable, $3,000; licenses from county clerk, $437.50; rent, property sold for taxes, $36; Frank Rowley, clerk, fines, $41; Street Railroad Company, $900; well fire top, .50; sale of dirt, $4.50; cash on hand, Jan. 2, $11,187.70; total, $19,718.82; disbursements, $16,487.79; cash on hand Feb. 1st, $4,288.35, having a balance of $32.26 to the credit of the street department.

The attention of the Council was called to the fact that there were large sums of delinquent taxes on the Collector's books, owing from as far back as 1885 for personal property. This could not be collected, and Collector Brown suggested that it would not be well to include them in the borough accounts when making out the yearly report. Immediate action on the subject was wanted.

Mr. Vallant's resolution to the effect that all items, beginning in 1885 and running up to and including 1896, charged as taxes, where there was no real estate or other security, be placed in a suspense account, was passed without objection.

Mr. Rogers made the report for the laws, ordinances and taxation committee in the absence of the chairman, Mr. Swackhamer. The books of the clerk had been compared and found correct. He introduced a resolution that the collector receive 5 per cent. of all rents he should collect on property owned by the borough, and that such amounts should be charged against the property. This was carried.

He also introduced a decidedly important resolution, which was afterwards carried without debate, that the Borough Counsel should take proceedings to obtain possession of property purchased by the borough for delinquent Watchung avenue assessments.

Mr. Rogers reported favorably on the election of Frank Gunning to the West End Hose Company and advised that the resignations of Dr. J. H. Cooley and George Kliner be accepted.

In the interval that followed, the Mayor remarked that the map of the proposed Somerset street improvement would hereafter be found at the Clerk's office and asked those who were willing to dedicate the property to visit the office and sign for their shares.

Mr. Rogers added that the taxation committee had also to report adversely on the claim of Chas. Bock. At 9:30, the Council adjourned for two weeks.

NEW PRESIDENT CHOSEN

MRS. WOODRUFF HAD SERVED LIMIT ALLOWED BY CONSTITUTION.

Miss Lillian A. Force Elected as Chief Officer of Mission Band of Trinity Church —Miss Anderson Unable to be Present.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, was held Friday afternoon in the parlors of the church, when it was expected that Miss Anderson, of New York, would be present and make an address. She was unavoidably detained and the members and friends present were very much disappointed. This disappointment was lessened to a large degree when those present had the pleasure of listening to a few remarks from Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor, who gave the members some excellent advice about the work for the coming year. He praised the members for their earnest efforts in what they had already accomplished, and urged them to do greater things.

The annual business was then transacted by the members, which included the election of officers. Mrs. F. E. Woodruff had been president for two years, which time is the limit as prescribed by the constitution, and she therefore had to retire much to the regret of all, as she has made a most efficient and capable officer. In electing her successor, Miss Lillian A. Force was chosen for the place, and she received much encouragement from her fellow-members in entering upon her duties. Miss Lillian Reeson was elected vice-president; Miss May Griffen, corresponding secretary; Miss Nevius, secretary; Miss Anna Searing, treasurer. The president will announce her committees at the next meeting. As an assistance in selecting the committees, the president asked those present to write on a slip of paper the committee upon which they would like to serve, and this will guide her largely in her selections.

The various reports presented showed the band to be in a most excellent condition financially and otherwise, and the new year is started under the most favorable auspices. The members hope to be able to have Miss Anderson present at a meeting in the near future when she will make an address.

Case and Comment.

The solemn air of judicial gravity and dignity of the supreme court is sometimes disturbed by a flash of humor. On one occasion there was an argument going on, and the attorneys were using a map to illustrate the case. One attorney, in the course of his presentation of the case, pointed to the map in question and was proceeding to dilate upon the same, when Justice Gray asked him what the map was.

"Why, your honor, it is just a bird's-eye view of the land in controversy," answered the counselor.

"Well," said Justice Gray, "I wish you would bring the map a little nearer; I haven't got a bird's eye."—Washington Times.

American Physique.

Prof. Angelo Mosso of Turin, a celebrated Italian savant, who recently visited this country, was greatly impressed by our gymnasiums and athletic sports. He thought it especially admirable that physical education was carried to so high a degree here without any military object. The American boys and girls in point of physique, he says, are far superior to those of Italy, and he confessed that he had to "study a look at the passers-by in the street" to be convinced how much more developed and strong they were than his compatriots.—Youth's Companion.

Not Necessary to Talk Much.

"You know," she said, "I am not much of a conversationalist."

He assured him that the opportunity for which he had been waiting.

"Well," he returned, "if I do the preliminary talking your conversational ability will be sufficient to enable you to say 'Yes' or 'No.'"

After all, in courtship there is nothing like getting your answer before you ask the question.—Chicago Post.

A Lawyer's Promise.

"What hurts me the worst of all," said the stricken millionaire, "is the disgrace of dying rich."

"Don't worry about that," said the family lawyer, soothingly; "I promise you that I'll fix things so that in a year's time neither the public nor your heirs will have any proof that you ever left a cent."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEAL SKIN POPULAR.

Many Varieties of the Fur-Bearer Now Fashion Has Placed It in Vogue.

Let him who thinks he knows a thing or two about seal skins take heed lest he fall. There are 21 different grades and qualities of the fur, and only an expert is able to tell the value of a seal skin at sight. The average buyer knows what quality of fur he has bought only after he has discovered how long it will wear. Up to that point he must accept the word of the firm that sells him the goods. For two reasons the market is now flooded with the poorer grade of seal skin. The falling off in the Alaska seal catch has made the first quality skins scarce and high in price, and the fashion in demand for the fur has caused the use of the inferior grades, since enough of the best skins cannot be supplied. Some of the larger fur houses foresaw the jump in prices and held in large stocks of seal skins before December 15 last, when the fur rose 30 per cent. in value. All dealers affirm that next season the price of manufactured goods will be higher by 40 per cent., and the raw material by 30 per cent.

When the scarcity of seal skin makes it costly and rare, fashion decrees a new lease of favor for the fur. Everything appears to threaten the life and peace of the fur-bearing beast. Seal skin has always been a serviceably popular. It is one of the most durable of furs. will stand any amount of water, is immune from moths, is universally becoming, and, being one of the most pliable furs, is readily moulded into any sort of garment. In spite of all this, seal skin has not, for several years past, been the fashionable fur. Persian lamb has been its successful rival, and sealskin has made a good second. Sable, of course, has always outranked all other furs.

Now, seal skin has taken a new hold upon public favor, and the leading furriers of the city say that they are busier than ever at any time within ten years. Within that time the price of the fur has more than doubled, and few of the long cloaks and mantles that used to be fashionable are seen today. The cost of such a garment is greater than most persons, save the very wealthy, care to pay; but the short seal skin coats sell by the hundreds, and are the most practical fur garment on the market. A 24-inch coat to-day costs from $250 and each additional inch adds perhaps $25.

The Alaskan seal is, of course, the most valuable grade of the fur. Its only rival, the Shetland seal, which was wonderfully beautiful, has been so nearly killed by the Alaska fur, is now almost unknown. After the Alaska fur comes that from the Aleutian islands, off Kamchatka. All of the other varieties are decidedly inferior in quality, but are frequently sold as Alaska seal. It seems rather a curious fact that the curing and coloring of seal skin is properly understood and accomplished only in England. Efforts have been made to start the industry elsewhere, but results were most unsatisfactory, and a sealskin prepared anywhere save in England is not worth buying, and will not keep its color six months.—N. Y. Sun.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Fanciful Trimmings and Ornaments Are Now in Favor with the Ladies.

Quills are now clasped with diamond buckles having very visible prongs.

There is a disposition in toques to adopt once more the turbanlike form which Marie Antoinette wore when La Dea painted her.

The brims of hats only seem to exist at the sides, to form a foundation for either a feather or a bouquet. Fashion runs riot between the Trelawny, the directoire shapes and the modified empire headgear.

Brims are becoming more and more flexible, and no hat of a certain class would be a la mode without ends falling at the back and fringed, and this fluffy drapery is peculiarly becoming.

Metallic effects in feathers are being largely patronized by the best milliners.

Ribbon embroidery on this material, the ribbon gathered, is to be seen in many of the crowns and as linings to the brims, and this treatment has also found acceptance on the materials employed for blouses.

We are indebted for a great many ideas to the revolutionary period in France, and the picturesque would seem to be the most important element. Light blue headgears have the preference over all others; indeed, every fashionable hat, bonnet shows a dash of sky blue somewhere in her composition.

Even with winter here chiffon and silk tucked are considered an essential element in dress.

Turquoise and steel are employed together in much of the embroidery for fashionable millinery purposes.—Washington Star.

New Dress Styles.

Many skirts are almost covered with stitched bands of the material, trimmed with satin, and these bands occasionally form a latticework round the skirt either at the hem or at the waist. The bending on many of these gowns is truly wonderful, interlacing with sable, generally employed as panels and as a bordering to the revers or round cape trimming on the bodice, much of the beauty of the dress depending on the contrast and the in some delicate tone of chiffon. Many of the new dresses are of some shade of gray, and cloth is frequently trimmed about the bodice with gray chiffon, accentuated by sable.

A gray satin, veiled with chiffon, covered with pailettes forming an embroidery of silver dewdrops, is quite a new style of dinner gown.—Washington Star.

WOMEN WANT LAW TO COMPEL EDUCATION

Difficulty is Said to Be Due to Imperfect Census.

COMMISSION TO CONSIDER

ADVOCATES SAY THAT COMPULSORY EDUCATION WOULD BE POPULAR.

Chairman of Committee, Representing State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. St. John McCutchen, Hold at the House of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall—School Bill to be Ready Feb. 17.

The educational committee of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall and discussed the report of the commission appointed by the Governor to codify and revise the school laws. Mrs. St. John McCutchen, a member of the commission, was present, and went over the various provisions of the bill with the women, explaining what objections had been made to certain clauses and how they would be met. He partially explained how the commission proposes to amend the bill before reintroducing it in the present Legislature.

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, president of the federation, and the other members of the committee, called the attention of Mr. McCutchen to the great need of a more compulsory education law. He said, in reply, that he recognized the need of such a law and was in favor of a radical measure to cover the ground. Mrs. Williamson declared that it was her opinion that a compulsory education law would receive the hearty support of the members of the Legislature and would meet with popular favor.

Mr. McCutchen declared that the great difficulty in securing a compulsory education law lay with the school census. It was well-known, he declared, how imperfect the school census was, and that because of its inaccuracy it was a difficult matter to properly apportion the school funds. He said, however, that the commission was considering a compulsory education law, which would be amended so as to meet the views expressed by the members of the educational committee.

The commission will have its new bill ready by February 17. When it is prepared the educational committee of the State Federation will have another conference with Mr. McCutchen and possibly with the other members of the commission, J. B. Betts and Senator E. C. Stokes.

TO SEND COSGROVE HOME.

Mrs. Hyatt at the Head of Movement to Raise Money for Afflicted Young Man.

Mrs. Hyatt, of West Ninth street, and a number of the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Board of Governors of the Hospital, are interested in a plan to raise a sufficient amount of money to send William Cosgrove to his home in California. Cosgrove is the young man who had his spine fractured some time ago while riding on the railroad, and since then he has been helpless. The interest of the women were enlisted in his behalf and the movement started to send him home has almost been raised.

The physicians cannot give Cosgrove much hope that he will ever be any better than he is, but it has been considered a wise idea to try if possible to get him to his home, where he can be with his parents, whom he has not seen in a long time. There is no change in his condition and he continues from day to day about the same. He enjoys himself and is always in a happy frame of mind.

Thanked by the Y. M. C. A.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. a vote of thanks was tendered to Former Councilman Harold Serrell for several bound volumes of Harper's Magazine and other periodicals. The thanks of the board were also tendered to Mrs. William D. Murray for handsome curtains for the parlor.

Social Club Entertained.

The Thursday Night Euchre Club was entertained last Thursday at the home of Miss Ella Titsworth, of West Sixth street. The prizes at euchre were won by Miss Grace Teller and Charles Haseltine. The club will be entertained in two weeks by Miss Mary A. Luckey, of Lafayette place.

Contributors Thanked.

At the monthly meeting of the Children's Home Board held Thursday it was unanimously voted that cordial thanks would be offered to all the friends who so generously contributed money for the purchase from Mr. Hyde of a playground for the children.

Realty Changes.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded from North Plainfield during the past week: Selah Schoonmaker, sheriff, to George Weiss, $1,800; William M. Rice to Henry Hannington, Jr., $1; C. P. Rider et ux. to Walter B. Lesher, $1.

TOM THUMB AND THE QUEEN.

The Diminutive General Tried to Hack Out of Her Presence, But Failed.

The American minister, Hon. Edward Everett, was very kind to his countrymen, and it was at his house that Mr. Barnum met a certain Mr. Murray, master of the queen's household, says St. Nicholas. On the day following one of the queen's lits guards appeared before Mr. Barnum with a note containing an invitation from the queen to Gen. Tom Thumb and his guardian, Mr. Barnum, to appear at Buckingham palace on a specified evening.

In retiring from the royal presence, Mr. Barnum attempted to follow the example set by the lord in waiting by backing out. The gallery was of great length, and the gentleman with long strides made rapid progress; but Tom Thumb's short legs left him far behind—or before. Seeing that he was losing ground, he turned and ran a few steps, then resumed the method of backing. Again losing ground, he repeated the performance, to the great amusement of the royal spectators. The queen soon sent another summons, and the general, with his guardian, made a second visit to the palace, being received in the yellow drawing room.

A third visit was soon paid to Buckingham palace, and this time the queen's uncle, Leopold, king of the Belgians, was present and was greatly pleased with the little man. The queen Victoria, desiring the general to sing, inquired what song he preferred. "Yankee Doodle," was the prompt reply. All present laughed heartily, and her majesty said: "That is a very pretty air, general; sing it, if you please," and he did.

ESCAPE GIVING TIPS.

There Are Many Men Who Shun Their Regular Barbers in Christmas Season.

"Say, I want to tell you something that is dead straight," said the beholder, the calculating barber, according to the Philadelphia Record, as he hurried his razor over the face of one of his victims. "You notice this crowd here waiting to get shaved? Well, you will observe that when I tell you that there are only two of my regular customers among the entire men there. What does that mean? Well, not that there has been an influx into town or that the activity in the social life of this city is the cause of it. Both of those are contributory, but the main reason is that double quarter is made up of men who are regular customers at other barber shops, but who have come here to get out of giving Christmas presents to those who wait on them.

"Oh, you'd be surprised at the number of people who every year perform the change-of-barber-shop act. We don't do any more business here, as for every strange customer who comes in there is one or more gone to some other shop at this season of present-giving. When they again get back to their regular shops after Christmas is over they carelessly remark that they have been out of town. Oh, don't talk so loud, for I don't want any of my once-a-year customers to hear you; they might go somewhere else next year. Next grant," with emphasis on the grant, the individual being one of the strangers.

WINE FROM APPLES.

It Is Made So Cleverly as to Deceive Even the Most Knowing Experts.

Science has lately made it possible to obtain good wine from the apple, which has always been devoted to sparkling cider. Experts have been deceived in every instance, and the wineries which came from apple juice tasted of grapes.

Juice from the apple is fermented with yeasts of different kinds brought from the grape-growing districts of Europe to this country. For instance, the yeast which is used to make the grape, but to the infinitesimal fungus germs that cause its fermentation. The American companies import these germs from the districts in Spain where they flourish. Inoculate the apple juice and bright as the diadem. It will be independent of the regular series of Assemblies but the subscribers for it will probably be much the same as those who have supported the other dances.

INSPECTED SEWAGE BEDS.

F. W. Farquhar Believes That Finlay-Reid's System is a Satisfactory One in Cold Weather.

F. W. Farquhar, who was consulting engineer on the sewers and disposal beds, visited Westfield and Plainfield Friday. Mr. Farquhar has been called upon to design and construct a system of sewers and disposal beds for a town in Nova Scotia, and is examining the operation of filter beds in cold weather. He is of the opinion that in this latitude there is no trouble in carrying upon plants successfully through the cold weather, but so far north as Nova Scotia long, narrow beds, with special covers to keep off the snow, will probably be considered advisable.

Double Hanging in Jersey City.

All efforts to save the life of Edward W. Clifford, the murderer of William O. Watson, superintendent of the West Shore Railroad, have been abandoned and he will die on the gallows in Jersey City next Friday. The last move in Clifford's behalf was made yesterday when Counsellor Warren Upton applied to Justice Lippincott for a writ of certiorari in the insanity proceedings. The application was denied. James K. Brown, who killed a Hoboken policeman, is also to be hanged next Friday.

MUST QUIT OR PAY RENT

BOROUGH WILL SEIZE PROPERTY SOLD FOR TAXES.

Borough Council Authorizes Somerset Road to Start Proceedings to Secure Control of the Tenement Property.

One of the most important acts of the Borough Council at its monthly meeting Friday evening was to instruct the Borough Counsel, Senator Charles A. Reed, to start proceedings to secure possession for the borough of certain property that was purchased for delinquent Watchung avenue assessments. This act was merely a continuation of the policy of the present Council to collect these assessments or acquire the property.

It will be remembered that there were a number of properties along Watchung avenue that were sold to pay the assessments. Some of the houses were occupied by the owners and some by tenants. The tenants have simply turned their rents over to the Borough Collector and have gone on living as if nothing had happened.

In cases where the erstwhile owners lived on the property, the borough has been deriving no revenue at all from that property. The action taken last evening was simply to compel those former owners to give up possession or else pay rent to the borough. There are a number of cases that the proposed action will affect, but they are all small houses and occupied by persons of very moderate means.

Some of the old owners, in anticipation of such action, have been to see the Borough Collector concerning rents. Others have declared that they will never pay the borough a cent of rent. They will have to do so, however, or be evicted from the premises.

TWO SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.

SOCIETY HAS TWO BIG EVENTS BEFORE LENT BEGINS.

The Last Assembly on February 16th—Another Will be Arranged Easter Monday Night Independent of Regular Series.

Aside from a few luncheons and dinners, there have been but little activity in the social life of this city the past week but two events of importance are planned for the next two weeks. The Cotillion Club, which is composed of a number of the younger society set, has been entertained at the homes of members on several occasions this winter. Friday evening of this week, the club will be the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beinhart on Belvidere avenue. The affair promises to be unusually elaborate and will doubtless be one of the most enjoyable of the series.

The third and last of the series of Assemblies will be held in the Casino, Friday evening, February 16th. It will be the most important event in society circles before the beginning of Lent nearly two weeks later.

There is not the slightest doubt now of the success of the Assemblies. It has been demonstrated that no mistake was made when those formal functions were revived this season. The attendance has been remarkably good, the Casino being well filled at the two that have already been held. There is no reason to expect anything different for the last one.

The great success of these dances has led to the general request among the young people that another be arranged for after Lent. Much pressure was brought to bear on Charles E. Brooks, who has been in charge of the Assemblies, to hold another some night Easter week. Mr. Brooks has at last consented to arrange another of the fashionable dances on Easter Monday night at the Casino. It will be independent of the regular series of Assemblies but the subscribers for it will probably be much the same as those who have supported the other dances.

WANT NEWARK FIRM TO PAY BIG DAMAGES.

Mrs. Annie Mathews Brings Suit For $3,000.

AGAINST MULLENS & SONS.

ALLEGES HIGH HANDED ACTION BY THEIR EMPLOYES.

They Attempted to Seize Certain Property in Her Home and When She Interfered it is Alleged That She Was Assaulted—Mrs. Mathews Is Now Said to be Under Doctor's Care.

The home of Mrs. Annie Mathews, of Liberty street, was visited by three men, supposed to be in the employ of Mullens & Sons, of Newark, a few days ago. Mrs. Mathews, who had been out in town shopping, had just returned home as one of the men appeared at the door. As she unlocked her door to enter the man inquired if Mrs. Mathews lived there. She replied that she did, and that she herself was Mrs. Mathews. She walked in her home and asked the man to be seated. After laying aside her parcels she inquired his business.

It is alleged that he thereupon got up and seizing a valuable lamp and stand said that he was going to take them. Mrs. Mathews forbid him taking them, as they had been presented to her by a friend. While they were parleying two other men, it is said, rushed in the room. One grabbed Mrs. Mathews, pulling her over backwards and holding her while the other two men seized the lamp and stand, throwing the album and books on the floor, and hurried from the house.

In the scuffle Mrs. Mathews was seriously bruised and injured in her back, the marks of the fingers of the man who so roughly handled her still being plainly visible upon her body and arms. She has since been confined to the house under the doctor's treatment. The result of the injury is not yet definitely known.

Upon the return of her husband, who works at Lincoln, from his work, he investigated the matter and found that they had a wagon and that they had driven rapidly away after securing the goods. Mr. Mathews has consulted his attorneys, Codington & Swackhamer, and directed an action to be brought against Mullens & Sons for the recovery of $3,000 damages.

HOPE FOR JENNIE M'LAREN.

Bruce A Banyon, of This City, Says They Can Get Her Father Out of Prison.

New evidence has been found by the attorneys for little Jennie McLaren, who asked Gov. Voorhees, of New Jersey, and the Board of Pardons to release her father, now in prison for shooting her mother.

Bruce A. Banyon, of this city, have taken up the case.

When the child, unassisted, presented her case to the Board of Pardons, the Board ascertained that McLaren had not been married to Jennie's mother, and for that reason might have had a motive for getting her out of the way. Bruce & Banyon have found that McLaren wanted to marry Jennie's mother, and the marriage was to have been performed by Rev. Mr. Weller, of Hoboken. The woman known as Mrs. McLaren, however, did not appear. The reason given was that Mrs. McLaren loved the woman for his children's sake, and would not purposely have killed her. This, it is believed, will break down the barrier.

They have secured evidence that McLaren shot his wife in attempting to wrest from her a pistol which she had turned on him.

The Board of Pardons will meet again in March.

The counsel feel they can show the strongest possible case calling for clemency from the Court of Pardons.

FOR THE HAMPTON INSTITUTE.

Interesting Meeting at Crescent Avenue Church Thursday Next.

The work of Hampton Normal Institute of Virginia, will be the theme of a public meeting in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this Thursday evening, representatives of the school being present to speak of the interesting and inspiring work which is being carried on there. Rev. H. B. Turner, chaplain of the school, will give an illustrated lecture on the "Story of the Hampton Institute." He will show some 85 new stereopticon views, which have been specially prepared for this lecture. The work among the colored people of the south will be described by Thomas C. Walker, a negro graduate, who has been traveling in Virginia for the past few years as a special agent for Hampton. The Indian work will be represented by John W. Wise, a Sioux Indian.

An attractive feature of the evening will be the singing of the old-time plantation songs by the Hampton quartette. There will be no admission fee and the public are cordially invited to this meeting.

LIVED HERE ALMOST THREE SCORE YEARS.

Former Councilman F. E. Marsh Died Thursday.

PRACTICED LAW IN NEWARK

IDENTIFIED IN A PROMINENT WAY WITH THE CITY.

Bright's Disease Was the Cause of His Death—Influential in Local Republican Politics for Many Years—A Graduate of Princeton University—Studied With Late Judge Titsworth.

A career begun and continued in this city for nearly three-score years came to an end Thursday, when Francis E. Marsh passed away after a lingering illness at his residence at 225 Madison avenue. There have been few men in Plainfield who have had a more genuine acquaintance throughout the city and his death will be mourned by a large circle of friends.

Mr. Marsh has been ill for several months with Bright's disease. It was known that it must result fatally, but he lived many weeks after it was believed that the end was close at hand. Thursday he failed slowly and passed away at 10:20 o'clock.

Mr. Marsh was born in this city November 2, 1845. He was the son of the late Former Assemblyman Elston Marsh, who was at one time a prominent clothing merchant in Plainfield. He received his early education in Plainfield private schools and prepared for college at Flushing, L. I. He entered Princeton College and graduated with the class of 1867.

He entered the law officers of Judge Caleb Titsworth, in Newark, and studied law there. He was admitted to the Jersey bar and was then taken into partnership by Judge Titsworth, the firm name being Titsworth, Francis & Marsh. Judge Titsworth afterward drew out of the partnership and the legal business was continued under the firm name of Francis & Marsh. Finally Mr. Francis went west and the business passed into the hands of Mr. Marsh who continued to practice alone. Mr. Marsh continued to practice in Newark until ill health kept him at home.

He was always a Republican and took an interest in politics when a young man. He became quite prominent in city affairs and was elected to the Common Council for a number of years where he was well known. He had much influence in the Republican circles, and served on the city executive committee besides attending many conventions as a delegate.

In 1875 he married Miss Stelle, of Jerseyville, Ill., and four children were born to them. Mrs. Marsh and all the children have since died, and Marsh has made his home with his sisters. He leaves five sisters, Mrs. O. B. Leonard, of Perth Amboy; Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, of North Plainfield; Miss Anna M. Marsh, Miss Florence I. Marsh and Miss Minnie S. Marsh, all of this city.

He was a regular attendant during good health at the First Baptist church and was a member of that church.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Subject Made an Interesting Lecture to Trinity Reformed Church.

Major W. D. W. Miller, of LaGrande avenue, is enthusiastic on the subject of foreign missions and is chairman of the missionary committee of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school. Having an acquaintance with Rev. A. A. S. VanDyke, of New Brunswick, he secured that gentleman to come to Plainfield Thursday and give a free illustrated lecture on China, Arabia and Japan. Mr. VanDyke was several years ago a missionary in Amoy, China, and thus had a personal knowledge of the one hundred pictures thrown on the canvas and gave a very interesting description of the places shown.

John S. Nangle operated the stereopticon light and slides to the satisfaction of all. The attendance was not as large as it could have been had the weather been milder, the intense cold keeping many at home, but those who did attend were well repaid as the lecture was very interesting and the pictures excellent. An offering was taken after the lecture which will nearly pay the expense incurred by the committee having the entertainment in charge. Before the lecture was over, Mr. VanDyke was obliged to leave in order to take a certain train to his home. Major Miller then took charge and explained the rest of the views, chiefly of Arabia and Japan.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Vanderhoof, of 815 West Front street, were most agreeably surprised Friday night by a number of their neighbors and friends who without previous notice invaded their handsome home at West End Park. The surprise was thoroughly complete, and the affair proved a pleasant social event in the lives of those who were participants in the festivities of the occasion.

MACADAM WILL BE LAID.

IMPROVED ROAD DIRECT FROM PLAINFIELD TO NEWARK.

Board of Freeholders Has Decided to Accept That Part of Mountain Avenue That Runs Through Union County.

Mountain avenue from Stansbery's corner, Scotch Plains, to the North Plainfield line, a distance of about one-half mile, has at last been accepted by the Board of Freeholders as a part of the county road system and will be graded and macadamized, making a continuous macadam road from Newark to Somerset street, North Plainfield.

Efforts have been made for several years to have the Board accept this strip which has been the only break in the good roads from Newark to Plainfield. During the past summer those interested prevailed upon the Board to inspect the proposed improvement, and the members and property owners met on the ground, but the committee reported unfavorably as they claimed it would establish a bad precedent if accepted.

Freeholder John Robison could see the necessity of having the road macadamized, and he has been working quietly, but energetically, among his fellow members ever since the committee made the unfavorable report. His efforts were at last crowned with success, and when the matter was brought before the Board of Freeholders again at their meeting Thursday the piece of roadway was accepted and plans will soon be made for improving it so that it will be a credit to the county. The improvement will take a great deal of driving away from Scotch Plains, but will open up some very desirable real estate in return.

GIVEN SOLID GOLD BADGE.

A. O. U. W., at Elizabethport, Honored Grand Guide V. W. Nash Thursday.

Justice V. W. Nash, who holds the office of grand guide in the Ancient Order of United Workmen, paid an official visit to the local A. O. U. W. Lodge at Elizabethport, Thursday and was presented with a solid gold badge for securing a certain number of new members to the order. The badge is suitably and handsomely engraved and is in the design emblematical of the order, the shield with anchor being of white enamel suspended from a bar upon which appears "Vincent W. Nash" in script lettering. The badge is very handsome and highly prized. The presentation was made by Grand Master Workman McCollough.

THOSE WHO USE THE 'PHONE.

Many New Subscribers to the Local Telephone Exchange.

There is no better evidence of the prosperity of the city than the remarkable and steady increase in the number of telephones to be found through the city in residences, stores, factories and offices. The number of subscribers to the local exchange of the New York and New Jersey Company is now well past the five hundred mark and Manager Charles W. Bunyon expects to see it reach six hundred before the end of the century.

Owing to the difficulty Manager Bunyon has had in securing instruments fast enough, there is still a number of would-be subscribers who are not yet connected. Among those who have just had telephones put in are Frank Curtis, residence, 93 Mercer avenue; Charles Mayo, residence, 1107 Eighth street; Stephen Cahoone, residence, 1126 Watchung avenue; James W. DeGraff, residence, 926 Central avenue; George Egel, butcher, 198 Somerset street; Edward V. French, architect, Babcock building; George W. Goddard, residence, 205 East Ninth street; I. M. Horster, wholesale liquors, 98 Somerset street; John E. Large, residence, 400 East Front street; David M. Moore, residence, 1,009 Central avenue; Dr. H. V. Merrill, residence, 430 Central avenue; Miss Grace Palmer, trained nurse, 19 Albert street; Rushton & Hansen, painters, Sycamore and Fourth streets; Miss Emilie Schipper, residence, 705 West Seventh street; William M. Stillman, lawyer, 212 West Front street; Naylor Paint, Color and Varnish Co., Book avenue and West Front street; A. E. Park, residence, 942 West Sixth street; William M. Stillman, residence, 426 West Seventh street.

An Injury to His Hand.

Walter Smalley, an employe of the Paul T. Norton Co., while assisting to unload baled hay Saturday, sustained a severe injury to his right hand by one of the heavy bales forcing it against the side of the store house. The knuckles were crushed and the fingers and back of his hand lacerated. Mr. Smalley lives on Somerset place.

Perth Amboy's Luck.

Perth Amboy may have another mammoth copper works. It was said there Friday that Florida Grove had been purchased by a syndicate and a great copper plant will be constructed similar to the Raritan Copper Works. When this will be done or just how large a plant it will be is not yet known.

LITTLE ROSE CRAIG.

Ellen Terry is Bringing Up Her Grandchild to Be the Actress of the Future.

Miss Ellen Terry, who is now playing in this country with Sir Henry Irving, is trying an interesting experiment. In her theory that a girl can be so educated that she cannot fail to succeed as an actress; that if a parent will begin to teach his boy to act at the very moment when the first inkling of life into the mysteries of the alphabet he cannot fail to win fame and fortune on the stage.

In other words, while she does not entirely disregard the old theory that men and women were born players, just as they are born poets, she is of the opinion that early training is even more important, and she is now engaged in making a practical application of her theory.

Now who has seen Miss Ellen Terry play the youthful Charisse de Mauluces would ever imagine that she was a grandmother, and yet such is the fact. Moreover, unlike many actresses, Miss Terry is not ashamed of her age. She is proud of the fact that she has been able to defy the ravages of the years so well, and she openly boasts of the little grandchild who is to be the great actress to whom the world will pay its homage when Ellen, the grandmother, shall have ceased to play her parts.

The name of the little child who is being educated up to this ideal is Rose Marie Craig, and she is the daughter of Miss Terry's son, Gordon. At present little Miss Craig is but four years of age, but in spite of this, her training has already commenced.

When she still lay in her cradle her charming young grandmother dedicated her life to the stage, and her father and mother are anxiously assisting Miss Terry in carrying out the experiment. They have full confidence in her theory. They believe that she can do what she says she will do, and that their little girl will yet be the greatest actress the world has ever seen.

ROSE MARIE CRAIG.
(Ellen Terry's Talented Young Granddaughter.)

To begin with, the child shall be so educated that she will have no self-consciousness. To Miss Terry's mind this is the gravest of all faults, and is the cause of most of such failures on the stage. Already she is learning to have confidence in herself, and on her seventh birthday she will make her bow to the public.

Miss Terry believes that the period of self-consciousness begins soon after a person has attained this age, and she proposes that her grandchild shall be come used to seeing vast audiences before she has become old enough to be tainted with this one great fault.

She herself appeared upon the stage when she was eight years of age, and that, she believes, is the reason why sh has never realized that a crowd of people had their eyes fixed upon her. When she was before an audience, and the vast sea of faces that so terrifies many players has no effect upon her. Little Miss Craig is to be given the same advantage.

After she is ten years of the child's life will be spent in the theater. As often as possible she will be upon the stage during the progress of the plays. At first she will be given no lines, but she will have her place, and she will be expected to fill it excellently. She will also be permitted to play about in the wings. She will become well acquainted with the uses of scenery and props. She will learn all about wigs and paints. Costumes will become an old story to her.

During this time no one will be allowed to flatter her. Judicious praise may be given, but little of it, and she will be taught to believe that the only way to do a thing is to do it well. While she is undergoing this training, however, her physical training will not be neglected. She will have plenty of fresh country air. She will play in the fields. She will wear loose clothing. Everything will be done to make her a perfect specimen of healthy womanhood. Whether she is at home or on the stage, she will be surrounded by the best of people only.

When little Miss Craig is nine years of age attention will be paid to her ordinary education. She will learn to read the best books. She will be taught to see the beauty in blank verse. She will study the dramatists. She will become familiar with the people and customs of all ages. She will learn to play upon musical instruments, to sing, but above all, she will be taught to observe people. When all this has been accomplished she will be ready to go back to the stage.—Chicago Democrat.

Divorces for Talking.

In China a woman may be divorced for talkativeness.

LEFT WITH SIX CENTS TO PAY THE BILLS.

Disastrous Ending of Glass Eating Exhibition.

FULLER FLED WITH FUNDS.

DEACONS HOLD JOHNSON RESPONSIBLE FOR THEIR LOSS.

Entertainment at Calvary Baptist Church Was in Progress When One of the Entertainers Disappeared—Johnson Had Just Six Cents Left—Offered to Deposit—Judge Nash Would Not Issue Warrant.

The departure of Prof. J. Whitney Fuller with all the funds was a part of the entertainment at the Calvary Baptist church Thursday that was not down on the programme. Furthermore Prof. Fuller left his partner, Prof. Rose Elmore Johnson, behind with an available capital of just six cents with which to settle the demands of the indignant congregation. Since then, Prof. Johnson has had a rather hard row to hoe.

Messrs. Johnson and Fuller are two young colored men who travelled about the country eating glass and fire for a living. At least, Johnson ate the glass and fire and had taken Fuller in as an assistant and the humorist of the company.

Thursday they were to give an entertainment at the Calvary Baptist church. One-half of the proceeds were to go to the church and the other half to the entertainers. Fuller covered the box office and sold the tickets while a representative of the church collected them at the door.

The church was well-filled and some $10 was collected at the door. Prof. Johnson chewed up the glass with evident enjoyment, and took a mouthful of fire to wash it down. He washed his face and hands in broken glass.

When the time came for Prof. Fuller to take the stage, he told his partner that he was not quite ready and took the box office to the table. The audience rose up in its excitement as Johnson performed his stunts with the broken glass while Fuller carefully departed by the back door.

Johnson was the first to call attention to the disappearance of the other and there was immediately great excitement. The police were notified and Spencer Conway with the other deacons hastened for the railway stations to head off the absconder but all in vain. Then Rev. Scott Wallace and his chief deacon, Spencer Conway, turned upon the remaining professor and declared that it was a scheme to rob them. They demanded that he should make up the loss to them.

Johnson explained that six cents would not go far in setting matters right and offered to repeat the entertainment and let them keep all the proceeds, less his expenses to Trenton where he is to give an entertainment next week. Finally he telegraphed to his mother in Savannah to send him $10 but no answer has yet been received.

Rev. Mr. Wallace and Deacon Conway would not listen to his protestations of innocence but demanded his arrest. They appeared before Justice Nash Friday morning but the Judge refused to entertain a complaint against Johnson and he was given his liberty, the police having taken him in charge. The Judge said that there was no evidence to show that the man arrested was implicated in the robbery.

EARLY ANIMAL LIFE.

S. A. KROM LECTURED TO PUPILS IN PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

Told Them Something of "The Extinct Monsters of Prehistoric Times"—An Interesting Address and Well Illustrated.

A little glimpse at the creatures of prehistoric times was enjoyed by the pupils of the Plainfield High School Thursday afternoon. The last period of the session, from noon until 1 o'clock, was given up to an illustrated lecture by Stephen A. Krom on "The Extinct Monsters of Prehistoric Times." The lecture was given in the Assembly Hall of the Franklin school building.

Mr. Krom avoided the dull phase of the subject and kept his audience most interested in the queer reptiles, beasts and birds, the only trace of which is now to be found in a few scattered bones with here and there a fossil evidence. His views showed the latest ideas of scientists on the subject.

There was no attempt made to cover the ground comprehensively but just to give a popular view of the interesting topic. Mr. Krom had some funny things to tell about the huge monsters and brought out frequent laughs from his audience.

Found Many Aboriginal Relics.

Mrs. Herbert Burdick, of Graceland, mother of Miss Burdick, who was married recently, has written a letter to this office requesting that a statement be made regarding the marriage of her daughter to Mr. LeMaire. She says that those who were most interested know about the marriage, and that it took place on Thursday, January 26th, and not the next day as reported.

EIGHTY YEARS OLD.

Miss Susan B. Anthony Has Reached the Four-Score Mark.

Suffragists Will Observe February 15, 1900, as a Day on Which to Pay Tribute to Their Distinguished Leader's Work.

The National American Woman Suffrage association will celebrate the eightieth birthday of their great leader, Susan B. Anthony, by a manner befitting her grand work for humanity. A committee appointed for this purpose is making preparations for a public meeting in honor of the event which will take place on February 15, in Lafayette opera house, Washington, D. C.

In the evening of the same day there will be a card reception for Miss Anthony, at which she will receive with members of the birthday committee. The occasion will be one of interest in many ways. Those having the arrangements in charge are:

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman; Rachel Foster Avery, secretary; Harriet Taylor Upton, Ohio; May Wright Sewall, Indiana; Mary B. Clay, Kentucky; Emily M. Gross, Illinois; Miss Susan Fitzgerald, Michigan; Mrs. Senator Warren, Wyoming; Lucy E. Anthony, Pennsylvania, and Harriet Stanton Blatch, of England.

Prominent women representing all phases of the woman suffrage conference will present to Miss Anthony their greetings, and express their sense of recognition of what her labors have meant to their respective efforts. There is not a woman to-day, no matter what her position, who has not touched any of the really vital issues of life, who has not been helped to some degree by the efforts of Miss Anthony and her compeers.

This celebration will follow the close of the National Woman Suffrage convention, which will be in session in Washington from February 8-15.

When Miss Anthony began her work woman was a chattel in the eye of the law; shut out from all advantages of higher education and opportunities in the industrial world; as utter dependent on man; occupying a subordinate position in the church; restrained to the narrowest limits along social lines; legally nonentity in the state. To-day American women are envied by those of other nations, and stand comparatively free individuals, with the exception of political disabilities.

During all these years of slow but wrought this revolution, Miss Anthony is the one woman in all the world who has given every day of her time, every dollar of her money, every power of her being, to secure these results. She never rested in this work from no personal grievance, but solely through a deep sense of the injustice which, on every side, she saw perpetrated against her sex, and which she determined to resist. Never for one short hour has the cause of woman been forgotten or put aside for any other object. Never a single tie has been formed, either of affection or business, which would interfere with this supreme purpose. Every dollar she has earned, a trip taken, a visit made, a letter written in all this half century of her efforts that has not been done directly in the interest of this one object. There has been no thought of personal ease, advancement, glory? the self-abnegation, the self-sacrifice have been absolute—they have been unparalleled.

Future generations will wonder what manner of people those were who not only permitted this woman to labor for humanity for 50 years almost unaided, but also compelled her to beg or earn the money with which to carry on her work. Too often these facts are forgotten or ignored by those who have been most benefited by her labors. They see glory in the fact that money is entirely their own now to do with as they please, but do not know, or will not stop to think, that the years which guarantee this independence were passed by the efforts of Miss Anthony and her compeers.

That they may express in some small degree their appreciation of this great work of self-sacrificing labor, in their behalf, the women have arranged this celebration to take place upon her eightieth birthday.

Women Making Uniforms.

Over 1,500 women are at present making uniforms for English soldiers. Khaki is a dyed cotton, but what it is dyed with the government officials themselves do not know. The firm that discovered it keeps the secret very much to itself. To guard against misfits the English army clothing stores make the uniforms in no less than 36 different sizes.

THE BOROUGH ELECTION.

BUT LITTLE INTEREST IN IT HAS BEEN MANIFESTED.

The Terms of Councilmen Jarvis and Cuddington Expire, and It Is Thought That They Will Be Renominated.

A matter of interest to horse... that has received but little ... tion, thus far in the election ... ch comes off in March, at which ... there are to be elected two councilmen to take the places now occupied by Messrs. Burtis and Cuddington. The latter was elected for one year, Mr. Burtis has been in office three years, and is completing his first term. Just who will receive the consideration of the voters at the election is a matter, as stated, that had been thought of very little. Mr. Burtis has made a most excellent member and has attended to his duties in a thorough manner. He has been in line for that which is best for the majority. His colleague, Mr. Cuddington, although a new man, has shown himself to be fully capable, though at the death of a father in council meeting. So far as can be learned there is no expressed dissatisfaction with either one of the retiring members, and it would not be surprising if they were returned. According to precedent Mr. Cuddington should be elected for a full term.

Along this line nothing has been heard from the Democrats, and it is not known whether they will nominate candidates or not. No doubt there are many Democrats in the borough who would like to take a hand in the contest if they had a chance, and they may have one next month. According to custom the boroughites always wait with considerable interest for the annual report which will probably be presented two weeks from this evening, when it is expected that the annual meeting will be held. At the meeting tonight it is expected that an adjournment to that time will be made.

The election which takes place early in March will not be a very exciting one from all accounts as there are so few persons to be elected. It is an important one and if the Democrats should elect two persons for the vacancies some interesting times may be looked forward to.

CHOSEN BY THE GOVERNOR.

Dr. W. H. Murray Made a Member of the State Board of Health.

Governor Voorhees has just appointed Dr. Wm. H. Murray, secretary and executive officer of the Plainfield Board of Health, to be a member of the State Board of Health of New Jersey.

The State Board has had a good opinion of the Plainfield Board for a long time, considering it an up-to-date *energetic one, particularly in the mat*ter of handling contagious diseases and preventing out the causes of epidemics, etc.

Plainfielders will rejoice at this evidence of appreciation of their home Board, and will extend their hearty congratulations to Dr. Murray for the well-deserved honor which has come to him.

It is understood that the appointment was made at the special request of members of the present State Board.

Dr. Murray was a member of a number of the Plainfield Board, his term not expiring until next year.

UNCLE SAM'S CARRIERS.

Postal Clerks Pay Added Their Mail Sacks and Rejoiced as Even ... ning's Pay.

The letter carriers attached to the Plainfield postoffice, and known as branch No. 206 of the National Association of Letters Carriers, had a lively time Jan. 31st at the monthly meeting held in an upper room in the Babcock building. The branch has recently been re-organized and is now in flourishing condition. The principal business transacted at last night's session was the initiation of five representatives of Uncle Sam's into the mysteries of the order. The degree work was quite impressive and those upon whom they were conferred will not soon forget the ceremonies that attended the initiation. P. J. Reville, president of the branch, presided at the meeting. After the business and initiation the carriers and mail clerks, who were present to the number of 14, enjoyed a collation and smoker.

Head Severed by Electricity.

William Spencer, of East Third street, who is employed in New York by the Edison Electric Company, a few days ago burned his hand severely. He was cutting a live wire and the handle of the pliers he was using, in some way formed a "ground" and the flame burned the hand. The accident kept Mr. Symons at home for several days.

Over a Falls in the Valley.

Relatives of Mrs. Phoebe Osborne who has just become the fifth wife of Archibald Campbell, of S. F. C. A. fame, have been found in the next neighborhood of Plainfield. They are living on the Allen farm in Washington valley which was purchased some time ago by Mrs. Osborn and is now held in her name.

PROJECT FOR NEW BUSINESS STREET.

Would Relieve Traffic on Park and Watchung Avenues.

TO TAP EAST FRONT STREET.

WILL PRACTICALLY BE CONTINUATION OF SYCAMORE AVENUE.

The Opening of the Street Will Directly Affect Ten Five Property Owners—Would Make a Corner Lot for New Department Building, and Start a Proposed Site for the New City Hall.

A project is now on foot to open up a new thoroughfare through the business section of the city and relieving the congestion of traffic on Park and Watchung avenues. The proposed street is to start on East Front street and divide the block bounded by Watchung and Park avenues. It is suggested that the tunnel under the Jersey Central tracks, that is to come with the new station, should be built of sufficient width to accommodate vehicles as well as pedestrians and thus connect the new thoroughfare with Sycamore street which now ends at Fourth street.

So far this project has not assumed any tangible shape. It is being generally talked of by those who are immediately interested, and there are many who believe that it would be a most excellent plan. The block between the two avenues is a long one, and a new street would greatly assist in developing property in the middle of the block which is not now used. There are no large buildings that would have to be moved. Most of the stores are little single story buildings.

The new street would pass just west of the city lot, occupied by the fire department headquarters, and by the Mrs. Thomas MacDonald property, which is one of the favored sites for the new city hall. The opening of the street would greatly improve the location as the property one for the city hall.

Park avenue is narrow and Watchung avenue is largely occupied by the trolley so that another street parallel to them would greatly relieve the pressure of traffic that is now turned into Park avenue. Drivers avoid Watchung avenue on account of the gathering place of the trolley cars and the lack of room there at the switch. The new street would open a better path to the south and, with a tunnel under the railroad, to the rest of the city south of the tracks.

The street, as proposed, would only affect a few property owners. No expression of opinion has yet been secured from them, but those who advocate the plan declare that there would little trouble in getting the property needed, owing to the benefits they would derive from the opening of the street.

THE FIFTH ONE.

Woman Sold in Court From This City is the Wife of Man Who Was Married Four Times Before.

From Greenwich, Conn., comes the report of the marriage of a Mrs. Phoebe Osborn, said to be of this city, and Archibald Campbell, of Brooklyn, who was the founder of a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and who was for more than a quarter of a century its superintendent. This is Mr. Campbell's fifth wife and he has known her since childhood, he being 74 years of age, and she 58 years of age. The account of the marriage states that Mr. Campbell married the woman, who as a child he admired for her beauty and trotted upon his knee. She was formerly a resident of Port Chester and lived at Glen Cove, L. I., and Mr. Campbell being a distant relative, often called at the house. The newly-wedded couple have taken up their residence in Brooklyn. A diligent search has failed to disclose the identity of the bride in this city or borough, as no one seems to know who she is.

Y. M. C. A. OFFICERS.

Board of Directors Organize by Electing Stephen Cahoone President.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. was held Thursday. The following directors were present: E. R. Ackerman, A. B. Beers, Stephen Cahoone, J. H. Case, Alex. C. LaBoyteaux, Henry M. Maxson, W. D. Murray, H. O. Newman, Nelson Runyon, Curtis M. Thorpe. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Stephen Cahoone; vice-president, E. L. Boney; secretary, A. B. Beers; treasurer, Curtis M. Thorpe.

To Spend Next Vacation in Europe.

Miss Moss, superintendent at Muhlenberg Hospital, is making arrangements to spend her vacation next summer in Europe. For a long time she has been desirous of crossing the water, and the approaching Paris Exposition has proved such an attraction that she has decided to visit it. During her absence the hospital will probably be in charge of Miss Meeker, the assistant.

LEGISLATIVE WHEELS ARE TURNING SLOW.

Four Hours' Hard Work in Four Weeks' Legislative Session.

STILL PLUMS ARE FALLING.

GOVERNOR DOES NOT KEEP OFFICE SEEKERS WAITING LONG.

Mr. Voorhees Has Disposed of All But a Few of the Important Offices Which He Controls by Appointment—Bill to Abolish Spring Elections is Dead.—The Hobart Memorial Services.

The Legislature has been in session four weeks, although in that period of time not over four hours have been devoted to business. But 113 bills have been introduced in both Houses, not even one of which has become a law. This record is nothing new in view of the performances of previous Legislatures on similar lines. It is not expected that active business will be commenced for two weeks yet. Another interruption to the regular proceedings must necessarily take place when the Hobart memorial services will be held. That will be an event of almost unprecedented importance, and, of course, will attract widespread attention. It will be a treat, indeed, to listen to the oratory of Attorney-General Griggs on that occasion, and there will be a great demand for seats in the Assembly chamber, where the services will be held. Should President McKinley and his Cabinet be present additional interest will be given the affair. When this event has been accomplished and handed down to history then it is expected that the Legislature will make an earnest effort to wrestle with the problems which have been submitted for its consideration.

Corporation matters, as usual, will occupy much of the time of the lawmakers. Senator McCarter's bill for the elevation of railroad tracks in the upper end of the State is already arousing some attention, and the indications are that if it is pushed in its present shape there will be some exciting episodes over it. The assertion is made that the bill discriminates in favor of the Lehigh Valley and other roads as against the Pennsylvania. To ward off all opposition and thus insure the passage of the measure it must be amended in several important particulars. This will keep the railroad lawyers busy, and the lobbyists too, because the latter will, as a matter of course, take a leading part in the proposed legislation.

Some of the leading politicians from the upper end of the State were here during the week trying hard to create sympathy and to enlist support for the scheme for the abolition of spring elections. They interviewed several Senators and Assemblymen, but did not meet with the success for which they had hoped. If the scheme concerned only the cities of Newark and Jersey City, and in that respect was constitutional, there would be no difficulty whatever in putting it through the Legislature. But as it relates to the smaller cities, boroughs, towns and townships as well as to the larger cities, there is considerable opposition to such a radical change in the election laws.

But perhaps the Republican leaders of the big cities are counting without their host in this matter. While every machine man would vote and work for the ticket at the fall election as a matter of course, much uncertainty might prevail as to the action of the independent element at the polls. Without the support of this element a Republican victory could not be achieved. In the event of such legislation perhaps the Republican manipulators would be hoisted by their own petard. And the danger of such a thing happening is the reason why the prominent Republican leaders are holding themselves aloof from the scheme on foot.

The Governor is showing a good example to the legislators, which, of course, is not followed, by doing all his work in the way of nominations for office early in the session; and besides, by doing so, he is relieving himself of a head of trouble from the office-seekers and their supporters who would make raids on him all through the session had he not filled the berths which they sought. There are three or four important offices yet at his disposal. The new Monmouth County Judge has not yet been named. Prosecutor Wilber A. Heisley, who is a candidate for that place and has the support of Senator Francis, will probably be favored by the Governor.

Some disappointment is manifested in Essex county at the hesitancy of the Governor to re-nominate Circuit Court Judge Francis Child for another term of office. Nearly all the lawyers in that location have signed a petition for his re-appointment. It is true that Judge Childs is a Democrat, but then it has been understood all along that a Republican would not get the place. Recently the name of Judge Fort has been mentioned in connection with the appointment, but still it is not believed that he seeks it.

Other appointments yet to be made by the Governor are two members of the State Board of Assessors, to succeed Robert S. Green and Stephen J. Meeker. Both are Democrats and will likely succeed themselves. Mr. Green is a son of the late Governor of that name.

For Benefit of Soldiers' Home.

The Woman's Relief Corps of this city has about raised the amount of money pledged toward the soldiers' home at Vineland, N. J. Each corps in the State promised to give a certain amount and thus assist in furnishing the rooms in the home. This institution is for both veterans and their wives.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for January were: VanWyk Brooks, Albert Yaeger, Herbert Smith, Miss M. Ulrich, Miss J. Little, Miss M. Yaeger, Miss L. DuChanu, Miss I. Tallamy. Master Albert Yaeger received the Grace church cross.

SAT DOWN BY REQUEST.

GO MRS. WYCKOFF CHARGED SAMUEL WILSON WITH ASSAULT.

He Explained That She Had Only Assisted Him To Sit Down—The Judge Believed Wilson's Side of the Story.

It took the combined efforts of City Judge Runyon, Chief Grant and Patrolmen Totten and Saffron to keep order in the city court Monday a. m. Mrs. Wyckoff, colored, had a story to tell about her boarder, Samuel Wilson, also colored, and all the majesty of the law could not prevent her from telling it at her own time.

Wilson had been arrested by Saffron on the complaint of Mrs. Wyckoff. She declared that he struck her and knocked her down. Wilson, who has always had a blameless reputation with the police, explained that she had been talking unpleasantly to him. He had begged her to sit down and finally assisted her to take a seat.

Mrs. Wyckoff interrupted the proceedings with "It's a lie" and "He's a liar." The Judge favored Wilson's story and suspended sentence.

Andrew Ryan was also arraigned. He had been arrested by Patrolman Totten on complaint of Ryan's wife, charged with beating her and knocking down his crippled mother. Mrs. Ryan did not appear in court, so the Judge dismissed the complaint.

NEARLY 100 YEARS OLD.

Miss Amelia Thompson Passes Away at the Age of 97 Years—A Native of New Jersey.

The death of Miss Amelia Thompson, aged 97 years, of 90 Mercer avenue, occurred last Sunday. She was one of the oldest residents of the borough, where she lived the most part of her life. She was a member of the First M. E. church and was an earnest Christian woman. She had a host of friends who loved and admired her for her many excellent qualities. She was a native of this State and came to Plainfield early in her life. She leaves two sisters, who reside in this borough. The funeral was private. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

EVANGELIST CAN'T ADVERTISE.

At Least With Posters Pasted Up Around Westfield.

At a meeting of the Westfield Township Committee the town billposter, Edward Edgar, was ordered to take down the posters tacked on trees or telephone poles announcing the services of Evangelist Davidson, who is now conducting a revival in the town.

There is a township ordinance which says that a fine shall be imposed for violating the same by posting bills on trees or poles in the township. Bulletin boards have been placed about the town by the Women's Club for all public notices.

The Committee did not want to place those connected with the revival in a bad light, and therefore ordered the billposter to remove the signs.

COUNCIL TO GIVE OPINION.

New Township Law Not Clear to Springfield Committeemen.

The Springfield Township Committee has decided to ask counsel for an opinion regarding the new Township act which goes into effect February 20th next. It is generally understood that the law will increase the list of office all the present officials, and requires an election of new officers in the spring, but some of its provisions are not clear to the members of the Springfield Committee. The Committee has received no official notice or interpretation of the law, and so it was decided to get an opinion from counsel.

GREAT "HORSE SHOW" IN MR. FISK'S STABLE.

Unique Affair in Fashionable Society Circles.

BARN FINELY DECORATED.

LEWIS E. WARING PERFORMED FUNCTIONS OF RING MASTER.

Odd and Funny Signs Tacked up Here and There for the Amusement of the Human "Horses"—Collins Showed Several New and Pretty Figures—Those Present Included the Elite of Plainfield Society.

Memories of the Assemblies and other pleasant features of the present social season in Plainfield, may fade away, but not so the recollections of Plainfield's "Horse Show," held in the stable of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, Tuesday. True, there were no horses there, but that was of little moment. Society found there an old form of amusement in a novel guise that proved a great success.

This unique social event, given by Mrs. Charles J. Fisk and her daughter, Miss Louise G. Fisk, was termed by some a "dance in the barn." But it differed from the customary "barn dance" in many respects. There gathered some four score of the young society set while a few of their elders sat around to watch the fun. Dancing was the order of the evening with a cotillion, but under circumstances that were far out of the ordinary.

Some extensive repairs to Former Mayor Fisk's large stable and carriage house have just been completed. The two rooms of the carriage house, with the brick flooring covered with a temporary board floor, were used for dancing. The walls were covered with evergreens and great shocks of corn while similar decorations were suspended from the ceiling. Grotesque "jack-o'lanterns" illuminated with electric globes, grinned on every side. The stable was provided with a like dress of the harvest. From the stable a ladder led to the loft above utilized for the evening as the men's dressing rooms. The ladies left their wraps in the rooms on the second floor of the carriage house.

One prominent feature of the decoration of the rooms was the score of signs of rather startling nature that were to be found on every side. One of these, visible from the entrance, was suggestive. It read, "Maybe you don't better had loaf round here when you don't got some business, ain't it?" Another was "Gentlemen will please leave their guns outside."

"All children under thirty years of age unaccompanied by their nurses will be sent home promptly at 10 o'clock. By order of the City Judge," a hint at the Curfew ideas of the city magistrate who happened be among the guests. Another important notice was "No gentleman allowed to dance with more than two ladies" at the same time.

Close to the place were two signs, "Music by John L. and Arthur Sullivan," and "Dont throw bricks at the orchestra, they are doing their best."

An interesting item of general information was prominently posted, "All animals in the stable are sound, kind and all right and warranted to drive single or double." Several hints regarding the conduct of the guests were "Don't bother the stags. They are ugly," and "Please talk in whispers. The horses are asleep." "If you don't like your partners, notify the coachman." The only musical quotation was "My kingdom for a horse."

In another corner were to be found more choice bits of advice. "Any person caught stealing will be shot," "Any lady who splits dances is a lobster." Over the entrance to the stable was the bright saying, "Don't kick, you are in a stable."

Several hints regarding the health completed the collection. "Don't eat while overheated, you may be foundered." A touching tribute to the skill of a worthy physician was a sign, "After eating, use Dr. Ben's Certain Colic Cure," one huge C being utilized for all three words.

But the greatest work of art was the programme of the "Horse Show," which read as follows:

"Notice.

"All entries must be handed to the Ring Master before 9 p. m. or exhibitors may be barred from the grand high stepping competition.

"Lewis E. Waring, Ring Master."

Programme.

8:30 p. m.—Show begins.

9 to 10—All thoroughbreds may be shown in the ring in their various gaites.

Judging by Ring Steppers.

Class 1st.

10—All horses entered in this class must be genuinely sound, have good manners and good natural action, and be able to trot a mile—must to be shown in single harness; ladies to drive.

1st, $5 and $2 prizes.

Any horse showing lameness or bad manners will be excluded from the ring.

10:30 to 11:30—Exhibition of green hunters over hurdles for special prizes.

11—Intermission and light refreshments.

11:30 until close of show—A Baptiste Shakefile and Countown Cadets, under the direction of the Ringmaster.

By 9 o'clock, the guests were beginning to assemble while an orchestra composed of three banjos and a piano, led by the well-known banjoists, Brooks and Denton, started a familiar two-step. There was general dancing until 10 o'clock, when Ring Master Waring cleared the floor for the judging of the high steppers and green hunters which, being translated, meant that the cotillion began. It was led by Miss Fisk and Mr. Waring, thirty-five couples taking part. Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker and Miss Bisbey, of Trenton, presided at the favor table.

The cotillion showed several new figures arranged particularly for the "Horse Show" and pretty favors were distributed. The "Pool and Water" of the programme proved to be a real old fashioned supper, served out in the stalls of the stable. Then dancing followed until Ring Master Waring declared that the show was over.

Among those present were Former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Mrs. S. L. GOLF CLUB ELECTION.

George W. Chapman Re-elected President—New Trustees Were Also Chosen.

The annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was held Monday evening at the Casino, when much business was considered, including the election of officers for the ensuing year. There were three trustees elected, Jan VanHerwerden, Dr. F. C. Ard and G. W. Chapman. Dr. Ard was selected to take the place of John Doul Miller, who resigned, and the other two were re-elected. There was an amendment to the constitution which provides for the selection of a nominating committee which shall select candidates to be elected at the next annual meeting. Those selected for that committee are William T. Kaufman, R. M. Shepard and H. W. Beebe.

The election of officers for the club resulted as follows: President, George W. Chapman; vice-president, Charles J. Fisk; secretary, Albert H. Atterbury; treasurer, Jan VanHerwerden; chairman house committee, George P. Mellick; secretary for golf, Lewis E. Waring.

The club decided to engage Steward Ivany and M. R. Brown, professional golfers, for another year, as their services have been very satisfactory. The balance of the evening was devoted to discussion about the popular game for the coming season. Of course, it cannot yet be decided upon when the links will be opened, but the prospects are that there will be an early opening if the present kind of weather continues. The club's finances were reported to be in a good condition and everything about the club's affairs were found to be equally so.

ICE CROP RUINED.

Dirt and Sand Was Washed on the Ice at the Washingtonville Pond and Practically Ruined It.

The present crop of ice on the big pond of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company at Washingtonville is practically ruined. The heavy rain of Sunday night is responsible for it. Before that time the ice was eight inches thick and was as clear and smooth as could be wished for. The rains, however, washed the earth and sand down from the banks on the ice, flooding and covering it with a deposit of the dirt and sand. More cold weather will only freeze the deposit into the ice and thereby ruin it for most purposes. A heavy thaw which will melt away the present ice, followed by another cold wave, is what the icemen are now hoping for.

REDNESS OF THE NOSE.

The Disfiguration Is Very Frequently Caused by the Wearing of Veils in Cold Weather.

Rosenbach (Berliner Klinische Wochenschrift), calls attention to the development of abnormal redness of the nose with consequent disfigurement of a veil is worn. The disfiguration is most pronounced at those points where the veil is most intimately applied to the face. The effect is partly due to the mechanical action of the sharp and rough texture upon a sensitive skin, and partly to the influence of the watery vapor that collects within its meshes and prevents evaporation. Blood is thus driven from the tip of the nose to adjacent parts, whose blood vessels become congested. The condition is exaggerated if the use of the veil is persisted in on passing from a cold to a warm atmosphere. The alterations tend to become permanent the longer the veil is worn without airing, and if proper its injurious action is maintained by compression, the colder the season, and the greater the exposure. Sometimes the cheeks are also affected similarly. The treatment of the condition consists in discarding the veil, avoiding for a time sharply winds and great cold, and, when exposure to cold air is unavoidable, sudden changes from a cold to a warmer temperature. Gentle massage should be practiced, and applications of a thin layer of lanolin, vaseline or cold cream may be made, followed by the use of some simple powder such as talc or chalk. When the use of a veil is necessary, it should not extend below the nasal orifices, so as to permit the escape of watery vapor. Further, it should not be too heavy, nor should it be too tight.

WOMAN'S INVENTION.

Woven Bandage, Well Indorsed by Eminent Medical Men, Has Not Been Protected by Patents.

The latest invention tending to diminish the suffering of humanity is that of Mrs. Theresa Eickens, a German of considerable energy and ingenuity. It is nothing more or less than a woven bandage for the use of those who have broken or sprained a limb. It is approved by many physicians because it conforms so perfectly to the shape of the limb, supporting it at all points and at the same time is not so stiff as the usual splints or wrapped bandages. In addition, its meshes permit the free circulation of the air, and this is very essential to the speedy healing of the injured member. The support afforded by this naturally elastic bandage is such that it obviates the necessity of remaining in bed with some injuries which were thought heretofore to require such confinement. It is made of strong, heavy wool, or in some cases of heavy flax cord.

Mrs. Eickens regards her invention not only as a benefit to the injured, but is also trying to introduce the knitting of these bandages as a new occupation for women, especially for the blind or decrepit, who cannot engage in more active pursuits. She has not patented her bandage, but is now traveling all through Germany teaching every one who wishes to learn how to knit the bandages properly. There is a special stitch required, and it makes them both strong and elastic, and the value of the invention is being more and more appreciated daily. The inventor suggests that her bandages will also prove serviceable as strengtheners of the wrists for tennis players, as well as belts for mountain climbers, being light and strong, and far better than the stiff leather belts usually worn. For bicycle riders, too, who wish to have a free use of their limbs, and at the same time not look "dowdy," they are especially worthy of consideration, for which it is notably difficult to find a support that will stay in place. This bandage stays exactly where it is put, and this is one of its great advantages. It might be a good idea for some American woman who is in Germany to take a few lessons in this bandage-knitting, that she might teach it over here.

How to Clean Knives.

They should be held in a straight position on the knifeboard and moved backward and forward in an direct a line as possible, which will prevent the scratches so often seen on them. Do not put too much powder on the board, as that is liable to scratch the blades. The board should be in a slightly position, one side slightly higher than the other. The ivory handles must by no means be dipped (or left to stand) in warm water and washed with a soapy flannel, and then wiped clean and dry. Blades and handles should be washed separately. Ebony handles may be cleaned with a piece of lines dipped in sand and then well dried. Keep a set of cloths of a coarse, strong texture for use for the knives only.

SPECIAL LAW FOR CITY HALL

Proposed Measure Received the Approval of the Common Council.

MAYOR ROCKFELLOW MAKES MANY APPOINTMENTS.

CHANGE MADE IN THE MAKE-UP OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Former Mayor Fisk and Herman Weber are Named for New Members—President Newhall is Retired—Corporation Counsel Marsh to Examine Legislative Bills.

There was a great amount of important business considered at the regular February meeting of the Common Council held last Tuesday, and it was late when the session came to an end. All of the members were in their seats and promptly took up the business of the evening.

A petition was received from Henry Windham asking to have a transfer made of the license held by Hans Hanson to himself. This is at what was known as Caspar's Hotel. A number of Jewish people complained to the Council that they had been constantly annoyed at various times by small boys who use vile language and throw stones, missles, etc., at them at Front and Somerset streets and near the hospital. They had repeatedly called the attention of the police to the matter, but with no result. The matter was referred to the police committee.

Ethan Lanphear recited at length the fact that in 1877 he paid an assessment of $61.91 on the New street sewer, and that another assessment for $95 had been levied. The latter he refused to pay, but the first amount he paid. He asked the Council to cancel an assessment of $20.10 against him as interest.

A protest was received from the members of the W. C. T. U. against the granting of liquor licenses, and another similar petition was received from the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion.

President W. C. Smith, of the Reform Club, in a communication, asked that the assessment for taxes on the Reform Club building for 1898 and 1899 be remitted, as the place was used for religious purposes. Accompanying this petition was a letter from Assessor Hubbard, in which the latter urged that the property be released from taxation.

A communication was received from Smalley Bros., in which they asked that a street be opened from North avenue to Front street adjacent to the property formerly owned by A. D. Thomas and recently purchased by them. They agreed to give $2,000 toward the project. The matter was referred.

At this time Mayor Rockfellow made several appointments. He first appointed C. A. Marsh as corporation counsel for one year. Then followed the appointment of members to fill the expired terms of Henry B. Newhall and J. A. Smith in the Board of Health. The new members selected were C. J. Fisk and Herman A. Weber. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges was re-appointed. The Board now stands W. H. Murray, M. D., B. VanD. Hedges, M. D., F. W. Dunn, C. J. Fisk and H. A. Weber.

A. J. Gavett was re-appointed street commissioner, and W. W. Corlell was re-appointed a commissioner of appeal for a term of three years. Dr. J. H. Carman, as city physician was displaced and Dr. A. F. VanHorn was put in his place. The Mayor appointed J. B. Young as a call man in the fire department to take the place of P. D. Marsh, resigned, but as the fire and building committee was not fully posted on the change the matter was referred to that committee for investigation.

The following special policemen were appointed: School janitors, Thos. Clarkson, S. B. Hope, Chas. Harris, Henry Pugh, Jesse Scull, Joseph Morrison, Frank Helson; church sextons, Isaac Kennedy, Edward Maynard, George W. Dean, Edgar Brokaw, Chas. J. McCarthy, Lewis Peterson, William Downs, J. C. Carney; general special policemen, Arthur McGinley, Edward Martin, James Schultz, Jos. Belcher, Wm. Dagnall, Jacob Krisey, Elwin Dobbs, Charles Gisse, Harry W. Fraleigh, Dennis Carney, George Rockefellow, Jacob Wagner, Robert McCormick, Nathan Pollard, J. J. Gallagher, Thomas Martin, Samuel Robinson, Wm. Forrestel, Aaron Mattox, Alfred N. Jacobson, Elwood Hoppock, W. J. Monnell, Frank Vanderhoff, Chas. Flynn, Isaac E. Houston and W. J. Eakens.

The Board of Health petitioned for the sum of $651.46 as the regular appropriation for 1900. It was granted.

Chief Doane reported that thirteen building permits had been granted during January. Overseer of the Poor Hansen reported that eighteen applications had been received since last report for aid. There are now twenty-eight beneficiaries.

The eleventh annual report of the Board of Health was received. It showed the city to be free from any epidemic of contagious disease. During the past year there had been 339 deaths. Of this number many were persons 70 years of age and upwards. There were 123 marriages and 949 births. The health inspector had made 1,928 house inspections, and five persons were prosecuted for violations of the health laws. There is now a balance of $166 41 in the treasury. The Board recommended that the Council take up the question of garbage disposal and adopt some method. Regarding the burning of leaves the Board had decided that such a practice is not a menace to health, but to maintain the fair name of the city it should be stopped.

By a unanimous vote the assessment against J. Graham's property on Woodland avenue, under the Martin Act, for $39 92 was marked "assessed in error." The same action was taken regarding the following: On the property occupied and owned by H. Dunenbury, Hillside avenue, for 1898 and 1899; Thomas Currin, property, East Second street, for $3.98; Francis McVey, Manson place, $10.12; William Monnell, Manson place, $4.78; Preston B. Goodfellow, Netherwood avenue, $9.93.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered a resolution fixing the salary of Corporation Counsel Marsh at $1,250, and an extra $750 for additional work in connection with the enforcement of the Martin Act. He stated that during the coming year there would be considerable extra work. He will be obliged to examine property titles and this means a great deal of work.

Mr. VanHerwerden spoke of having Assemblyman Chas. S. Foote forward a copy of every bill passed in the Legislature to the Council so that if any bill affecting Plainfield should become a law the officials would know something about it. He offered a resolution that $20 be appropriated to pay the expense. The bills will be sent to Corporation Counsel Marsh, who will examine them.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution that the city clerk request the Jersey Central Railroad Company to place a flagman at the Rock avenue crossing of the road.

Mr. Corlell offered a resolution that the sum of $800 be appropriated to purchase one thousand feet of hose for the fire department.

Mr. Buckle offered a resolution fixing the salary of the Mayor for the present year at $300.

Mr. VanHerwerden gave notice that at the next meeting of the Council he would move that the regular meeting be held on the first Monday instead of the second Monday in the month. This change back to the former time of meeting is done owing to the numerous complaints made on the part of the city employes who are required to wait for their money.

President Smith announced that the Mayor had asked him to appoint a committee to meet with the sanitary company to discuss garbage disposal. The Council was not willing to have the president take such action until something definite should be presented and the matter was dropped.

He also moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet Wednesday evening, February 28th, when the liquor licenses will be acted upon.

At this time Mr. Buckle presented resolution which authorized the corporation counsel to prepare the necessary bill to be presented to the Legislature authorizing the purchase of a site of ground upon which to erect a city hall.

To the above Mr. Dumont objected strongly, as he said he would be bound to vote for a city hall if such action was taken, whereas he might not deem it wise to do so.

Mr. Buckle stated that it was necessary to have a special act adopted by the Legislature giving Plainfield the proper authority to go ahead and build a city hall. This they could not do now as there is no act under which they can move in the matter. Mr. Dumont still objected, and Mr. Buckle then presented a bill drafted by Mr. Marsh which is intended to apply especially to Plainfield. This bill provides for the purchase of lands and the erection and furnishing of a city hall, and for the issuance of bonds in the sum of $100,000, and allows the city to borrow money, issue notes from time to time and raise by tax the necessary amount. The notes are not to mature inside of forty years, and it also provides for 5 per cent interest.

After the reading of the above bill Mr. Buckle moved that Mr. Marsh be requested to present the same to the Legislature and secure its passage if possible. This finished the business of the evening.

GOOD TALENT.

Musicale to Be Held Next Tuesday by Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters.

A very enjoyable programme is promised for the musicale, arranged by the members of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters to be held at the home of Miss Lillian A. Force, 13 Dver street, Tuesday evening, February 20th. The artists who will take part are P. Ludwig Conde, violinist; Miss Blanchie Fellows, soparano; Miss Emma Purdue, of East Orange, contralto; William H. Holmes, basso; E. C. Martin, baritone; Miss Helsenbuttel, of Brooklyn, pianist; Miss Aimee Emmons, elocutionist. A sale of home-made cake and candy will be held from 6 to 8 o'clock when the musicale will begin. Its object will be to raise funds for the support of a city nurse.

AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Quite a Colony of Plainfielders Quartered at Cohen Hall.

Among the many visitors seeking relief at that well known winter resort, Atlantic City, this season are a number of Plainfielders. There is, at present, quite a colony of Plainfielders established at Cohen Hall. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank, Miss Lelia M. Cruikshank, Former Mayor and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, Mr. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Kimball, Paul Kimball, Mrs. D. N. DOCTOR'S THE FAITH CURE.

Treatment Doesn't Help Her Boy, So Mrs. Saults Calls a Doctor.

Mrs. J. G. Saults, of Huntingdon street, New Brunswick, is sorry she tried the faith cure upon her three-year-old son Willard. Mrs. Phillips, a Christian Scientist, attended the boy when he was ill a few days ago.

The child failed to improve, the mother's faith was shaken and a doctor was called. He says the boy has spinal meningitis and it may prove fatal.

Disposes of His Bakery Business.

Former Councilman Henry Leifke, the West Front street baker, has sold his business to the head baker at George Voehl's bakery on West Front street, and the new proprietor will take charge in about a month. Mr. Leifke is engaged in real estate and life insurance business and this keeps his time well occupied. After retiring from the bakery business he will devote his entire time to his other business.

Euchre Was the Attraction.

The members of the Tuesday Night Euchre Club were entertained Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Blatz, of Somerset street. As usual, euchre was the order of the evening. The first prizes went to Miss Edith Niles and Dennis Gavin. Dr. Ezglio and Mrs. Harry Coddington were the successful contestants to carry off second honors. A pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. Rodwell Ill.

Captain James L. Bodwell, well known throughout the State, is lying very ill at his home on Essex street, Rahway. He was in charge of the practice range at Sea Girt for many years and has held several Grand Army positions since the organization of that body. He is about seventy-seven years of age.

Case With New Bank.

Charles Drummond, who for twenty-five years has been in the banking business in Rahway, and who was chief bookkeeper for the suspended Union County Bank, has been offered the position of head bookkeeper in Rahway's new National Bank and has accepted. Mr. Drummond resides at Woodbridge.

LIQUIFIED AIR AND ITS MYSTERIES.

Interesting Experiments Witnessed at the Casino.

WAS VERY INSTRUCTIVE.

ENTERTAINED BY FORMER MAYOR W. L. SAUNDERS.

He Explained the Many Purposes for Which Compressed Air Can be Used in a Practical Manner—With Him Assistants He Gave Several Illustrations of the Wonders of Liquified Air.

The lecture given last Tuesday by Former Mayor William L. Saunders, under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, drew a fair-sized audience that comfortably filled the Casino with representatives of the best families of the city.

Mr. Saunders' lecture was on the subject of compressed and liquified air and the many uses to which they are being put. Previous to showing some views by use of a stereopticon, Mr. Saunders entertained his audience with a brief history of the discovery of compressed air, which he said had been put to use long before the Christian era.

It was not until 1650, however, that compressed air was used to any great extent when a German invented an air pump. One hundred years later Dr. Paton made use of air for various purposes. In the early days of Hero of Alexandria compressed air was used by him to manipulate a fountain jet. But the secret of its use was lost sight of until about 1,000 years later when it was again put to practical uses. It was not until 1828 that Besemmer made use of compressed air to manufacture steel which has been the means of revolutionizing that industry.

Mr. Saunders then explained the stereopticon views which illustrated some of the many purposes for which compressed air was being used at present.

With the assistance of Walter Dickerson, of Orange, and S. O. Ball, of New York, he gave a practical illustration with explanations of the peculiarities of liquified air. This was the most interesting part of the evening's entertainment. A large-sized tank, said to contain about ten gallons of liquified air, was placed upon the platform. With this liquified air all kinds of experiments were successfully tried. The air was dipped from the tank, and while giving off a vapor like smoke was thrown on the floor. The wood dipper was afterwards broken into pieces by pounding it on the platform. The liquified air was used to freeze alcohol into a small ball, while a quantity of mercury was frozen sufficiently hard to be used to drive nails into a block of wood.

A link of sausage was frozen also so hard as to be thrown into the aisle where it broke from its brittleness. A tea kettle was then made to boil while sitting on a cake of ice and many other remarkable things accomplished by the aid of liquified air that completely mystified the audience. But there was no trick in the exhibit. It was a fact and so demonstrated before the eyes of the audience.

GIFT OF $40,000 TO Y. M. C. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Stickler's Offering to the Orange Association.

Charles T. Kilborne, of the Orange Young Men's Christian Association, has received an offer from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Stickler to give $40,000 to the association for building an addition to the Y. M. C. A. building. It is stipulated that $25,000 must be raised.

The board of directors of the association will consider Mr. and Mrs. Stickler's offer at its next meeting.

Only recently Mr. and Mrs. Stickler agreed to subscribe for a free library building in Orange, in memoriam for their son, Dr. Joseph W. Stickler. Last week they sent a check to the Orange Orphan Home of East Orange for $5,000. This money is to be added to the endowment fund.

Railway Hospital of New Industry.

The option on the property at Scott avenue, Rahway, which the Chemical Company has held for several months, has been extended thirty days to default of the perfecting of the title. In order to do this the property owners along the proposed streets through the grounds must sign a paper giving the city Council the right to vacate the streets. Signatures are being obtained rapidly, and the general feeling in the city is that this concern, which employs several hundred hands, will soon be busily engaged erecting its buildings. The tract of purchase consists of 115 acres.

THREE NEW APPLICANTS

PETITIONS FOR LIQUOR LICENSES PRESENTED TO THE COUNCIL.

Scheuer & Company Ask for a Wholesale License—Two Applications for Fierce Inn by Same in the West End.

There was the usual batch of liquor licenses presented at the meeting of the Common Council Tuesday, and in addition there were three new applications. S. Scheuer & Co., the grocers, applied for a wholesale license, such as they have for all of their other stores. Patrick Galbraith asked for a license for 201 Grant avenue, and the omnipresent Michael Watson asked for a license for 311 Grant avenue.

These are the three new applicants, but it is not likely that the Council will grant licenses for two saloons so close together on Grant avenue. It seems quite likely that S. Scheuer & Co. will get a license, as there is a sentiment in favor of dividing up the wholesale business and not allowing one man to do it all.

The regular applicants for licenses are as follows: Daniel Galbraith, 311 West Third street; Jakob Bimm, 20 Somerset street; J. H. Staats, 107 111 North avenue; Henry Haurand, 115 East Front street; Bernard Clark, West Third and Liberty streets; J. H. McVey, 121 123 North avenue; J. E. Beerbower, Park avenue and Second street; John Bafferty, 213 Park avenue; Alex. D. Findlay, 123 East Second street; Eastern Bottling Association, rear 227 West Front street; Frank Linke, front 227 West Front street; Henry Windham, 143-145 East Front street; Charles Schantz, 219 Park avenue.

The application of Henry Windham is not a new one, as this place, on East Front street, has been licensed. This is a change of ownership from Hanse Hanson to Mr. Windham.

These applications will be acted upon at a meeting of the Council to be held Wednesday evening, February 28th.

STUDYING ECONOMICS.

The Plainfield University Centre Commences Its Weekly Study.

The regular meeting of the Plainfield University Centre was held at the Plainfield High School building last Tuesday. Rev. A. Hollis Miss Clark Petrie and Miss C. H. Yates read short papers on the subjects under discussion. Prof. H. M. Manson, who was treasurer and on the examining board, resigned as treasurer and Charles B. Morse was chosen in his place. It was decided to take up the study of sociology in connection with political economy and political science.

Entertained New York Policeman.

Patrolman Thomas P. Flynn, of the Seventeenth Precinct, accompanied by Morris Hannan, driver for Chief Devery, of the New York Police Department, spent Sunday and Monday in Plainfield with Mr. Flynn's brother, Roundsman John Flynn, of West End Park. They enjoyed their visit very much, Mr. Hannan especially was much taken with Plainfield. Although Mr. Hannan drives for his chief, he is a regular member of the department and is often assigned to some difficult work. He received his training in the Tenderloin district under Capt. Price.

Died in a Sanitarium.

Lieut. Ebenezer Middell, of Elizabeth, died Sunday night at a private sanitarium in that city. He was a resident of Elizabeth many years, where he was engaged as a carpenter. On the formation of Captain Chancellor Harris' company in that city for service in the Rebellion, Lieut. Middell enlisted with the Fourteenth Regiment. He was wounded, and for several years was a cripple.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker Were Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Baker gave a card party last Tuesday at their home on Stelle avenue in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Will Baker, of New York. There were sixty present. Progressive euchre was the principal event. The prize winners, who received charming little gifts, were Miss Nancy Lawson, Miss Clark, Mrs. James Sallock, Lewis E. Waring and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges.

Mayor Smalley's Message.

At the meeting of the Borough Council Friday evening Mayor Smalley's annual message will be presented for consideration. It promises to be an important one, though not a long one.

Nearly Killed by Falling Tree.

Edward Harrison, of Oak Tree, was nearly killed Friday by a tree which he was cutting down falling on him. While he was cutting a high wind twisted the tree so that it suddenly snapped and landed squarely across the breast of Mr. Harrison. Two young men released him by cutting a part of the tree away.

$100,000 FOR A HIGH SCHOOL

Big Surprise Sprung by the Board of Education Last Tuesday Night.

COMMON COUNCIL APPROVES OF THE SCHEME.

PRESENT SCHOOL FACILITIES SAID TO BE TOTALLY INADEQUATE.

The Proposition is to Put Up a New High School Building, and Then Utilize The Stillman Building for the Pupils Now Quartered in the Wadsworth School—Statement of the Board of Education.

A great surprise was given the people of Plainfield Tuesday, when the Board of Education appeared before the Common Council in a communication and asked that they be granted the privilege of borrowing the sum of $100 000 with which to erect a new High School building. To those on the inside this was no surprise, for it has been known that the Board has been planning for this action in view of the inadequate accommodations at the Stillman School. The Board found their communication to without hands, and after the Council conferred for a short time in executive session they returned to the room and voted unanimously to allow the Board to borrow the necessary amount.

According to a law passed a few years ago the Board is obliged to seek the approval of the Common Council when they desire to borrow money above a certain amount. They were before the Council years ago, when they wanted to make a High School of the Wadsworth building. Their efforts where then defeated by the law which compels them to get the approval of the Council to borrow money. This law was passed at the request of the people who opposed the expenditure of the money. The law was very effective then because the Council was opposed to the expenditure of the money, and thus the scheme was defeated.

As a culmination of all efforts a meeting of the Board of Education was held last Saturday evening when definite steps were taken to present the subject to the Council. The result of that meeting will be found in the communication which follows.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—The Board of Education of the city of Plainfield, in pursuance of the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled An act to amend an act to borrow money, issue bonds, incur indebtedness for the purchase of lands or the erection of school buildings, passed May Twenty-third, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Ninety-four, which amendment was passed March 25th, 1895, would request your concurrence and approval in the borrowing of money, and the incurring of indebtedness by this Board to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, for the purpose of purchasing land, and erecting a High School building.

We desire in erecting a building to accommodate about five hundred pupils, affording the accommodation now universally considered necessary for a High School. This will include the following features: Ten class rooms, two recitation rooms, a room for drawing, a large assembly hall, two rooms for library and reading room, a principal's office, four rooms for laboratories and science work, two rooms for offices of Board of Education. This we estimate will require a building three stories high, having the general form of a parallelogram about 80 feet by 120 feet.

It is not proposed to build upon the Wadsworth lot, there being several other good sites available.

The pressing need for a new building will be seen from the following figures of attendance. We have now in the High School 179 pupils. Judging from the figures of previous years, we estimate there will be about 45 of these pupils during the year by graduation, removal from town, etc. The incoming class next fall will number about 80, which will make the school number about 215 next year.

Even now every seat in all the study rooms of the High School is occupied, and a number of pupils have no regular seats at all, but find a place where they can.

The only relief for the overcrowding is to fit up a room in the attic or cellar of the Stillman High School, but this will be only a temporary relief, since the lower grades are now so well organized that large classes will be entering the High School each year, so the crowding will increase, year by year, and will soon accumulate in any rooms, wherever they can be found, which will not only be difficult to find but will also be unhygienic and unsuitable for such uses.

There is not a vacant room in any school building in the city except the Lincoln, and that building is nearly full. We have an overflow class in the chapel of the Franklin School, a class in the Wadsworth drawing house, and seven classes in hired rooms, the old church buildings, and the remaining vacant room in that building will be occupied by a grammar class in the fall.

Before we can go into a new building, we shall be seriously crowded for room. When a new building is ready, the present class in the High School will vacate that building, and all the grammar classes now in hired rooms, can be put in their places.

While a new building is so much needed, simply as a matter of accommodation for the public, we feel that it is also greatly needed to enable us to provide property for the work of the school. The present conditions are not adequate to the needs of High School work. Some departments of instruction are much cramped in their work, and it is impossible for the school to retain the eminent position it has held in the State, unless it shall be placed under more favorable conditions. We desire especially to provide accommodations for manual training, including wood working, modelling in clay, carving, mechanical and architectural drawing, and sewing. This will give our children a better equipment for doing their life work in these days when mechanical skill and dexterity count for so much. We feel that Plainfield is being left behind in this respect by the other cities in the State. There are already more than twenty towns and cities in New Jersey that give their children facilities in manual training, which our school does not afford our children, because we have not suitable accommodations to undertake it.

The school property now owned by the city has a valuation of about $120,000, on which there is an indebtedness of $78,000, of which $30,000 is in the form of bonds at 4 per cent. interest, and $25,000 in the form of a mortgage on the Lincoln School at 4½ per cent. interest. This debt is being reduced at the rate of $1,000 each year, the present annual levy to cover this payment and interest on the indebtedness being one and one-tenth mills.

If the incurring of this additional indebtedness by the Board be approved, provisions for its payment can be so arranged that the first installment will become payable in 1901 at the rate of $4,000, and to continue until the debt is paid, or at a reduction, say $3,000 per annum, from 1902 until 1914 (at which time the present outstanding bonds will be cancelled), making the annual payment of the bonded indebtedness after 1901, $7,000 per annum, and which if continued will cancel the proposed indebtedness in about twenty-five years; or at such other rate of payment as the circumstances of the city may make advisable.

Slot Machines in Hunterdon.

The township elections in Hunterdon county will be the warmest in many years. Reports from the townships show that candidates by the score have announced themselves for the various offices to be filled. There will be seven Freeholders elected throughout the county. The Democrats now control the Board by a majority of seven, and will make a hard fight to retain it. In Raritan township, a Freeholder, Assessor, Collector, Constable and three Committeemen are to be elected. The principal fight is for Freeholder. The respective candidates are Contractor William S. Kline, Andrew S. Lore and present Freeholder Amos Thatcher, of Flemington, and William Quick, of Ringoes. The Republicans have not announced their candidates, but it is said that the candidate for Freeholder will be George W. Fulper.

THE WINTER WARDROBE.

How to Keep Warm During Cold Weather.

Ermine, chinchilla, otter and the different fur furs are those now most fashionable. Mink is less seen, while real seal is quite in the background. Boas of ostrich plumes are still worn because they are becoming, just about stales of fur are newer. The collar part is plain, but at the ends are bunches of tails, which serve as a finish.

Many women object to long gaiters or leggings because they are so awkward and make the feet appear so clumsy, yet skirts are of little use for protection in cold weather, as they are blown about by the wind instead of clinging and retaining warmth. A very good method of solving the difficulty is to buy a pair of long, heavy golf stockings of a suitable boy's size and cut off the feet or, rather, the front part of the foot and the entire heel, leaving only a narrow strip to pass under the instep. When the stockings are drawn on over the ordinary stockings and pinned up high with safety pins, the foot and ankle are in no wise enlarged, and the usual boot may be worn without difficulty. The warmth afforded is surprising and is far greater than that yielded by a flannel or down petticoat.

The illustration shows a pretty dress for a little girl. The skirt and bodice are sewed together, the skirt being full and opening at the side, where it laps over with a scalloped edge, which is bordered with narrow velvet. The blouse also crosses and is scalloped and trimmed with velvet, having a little bertha to match. The plastron is of surah, tucked and puffed, and is sewed to a surah yoke, which is tied at the back and has fringed ends.

FASHIONS IN JEWELS.

Long Chains and Curious Little Charms.

Never has jewelry been more worn than it is now. The long chains which made their first tentative appearance several years ago have now increased and multiplied and are worn by everybody. Not everybody, however, can have them of gold and jewels, hence those of good workmanship and costly materials remain exclusive. Gold chains studded with diamonds, turquoises, pearls and amethysts are less new than those of fine enamel.

The renewed favor of jewelry, which for a long time was comparatively little worn, has brought into prominence many of the semiprecious stones which are now needed to give variety. Yellow topazes and pink ones, rose agates, aquamarines, amethysts and particularly the green chrysolite.

Little amulets are worn attached to the links of the long neck chains. Fortunately enough bells, whistles, little balls of gutta percha, ancient coins, a coral tooth, little serpents, insects, hearts and four leaved clovers are now out of fashion.

The ball costume shown in the cut has a skirt of mousseline de soie bordered with a little ruche of the same material. Over this is a tunic of point de soie embroidered with orchids and edged with three narrow plaitings of mousseline de soie. The bodice is crossed in front and at the back, the edges being embroidered and resting upon a fichu of mousseline de soie. The short, draped sleeves of mousseline de soie are ornamented with epreuve lace. The wrap is of bouche rose silk, lined with rose gauze and bordered with white marabout.

FASHION HINTS.

Separate Bodices—The Long Princess Tunic.

The bodice differing from the skirt in color is no longer used for reception costumes or formal toilets of any kind, except for the theater. In the street they are worn beneath a coat, so that they are practically only a vest.

Velvet bodices are worn with skirts of other material. The most elegant ones are quite plain, jeweled buttons forming the only decoration.

Very tight, long princess tunics are adapted for elegant gowns. For a graceful figure not overplump nothing can be more becoming.

An immense amount of embroidery is worn. Jet and spangles or net, gauze and lace are a feature of the season's evening costumes and theater bodices, and spangled black net composes some very elegant toilets.

Black skirts of satin, velvet, taffeta or fancy woven silks are used for general service with theater waists and velvet bodices.

The illustration given today shows a gown of sky blue peau de soie. The foot of the skirt has seven small, flat ruffles, above which is a deep flounce of guipure de venise. The long princess tunic is cut in vandykes, which are outlined with spangles, and the top of the tunic forms a pointed corselet, similarly embroidered. The chemisette is tucked horizontally and has a bolero of guipure de venise. The sleeves are also tucked and have deep cuffs of guipure. The collar is tucked and finished by a frill of lace.

ADVANCE FASHIONS.

First Preparations For Next Summer's Wardrobe.

The fashion of transparent yokes and sleeves for elaborate costumes is growing daily in favor. A long sleeved, high necked vandyke bodice is made to match, so the gown may either show the neck and arms through the transparent material or may serve for day wear over the high, sleeved underbodice.

Already the first importations of summer materials are being shown. Judging from these, warm weather will see a continuation of white fashions, for chief among the new things are embroidered and lace trimmed robes of sheerest white muslin and organdie. These, while not fully made, are formed and prepared with elaborate insets of fine valenciennes, forming stripes, checks, vandykes, rich tablings, and many are arranged with highly ornamented circular flounces. These same ideas are also seen in sheer colored flimsies, where a design of some sort, often a tinted stripe, appears. Material for the bodice, also prepared with lace in the proper form, accompanies the skirt pattern.

The cut shows a charming gown of mouse gray cloth. The skirt is laid in stitched plaits at the top, the back forming a box plait. The lower part of the skirt is ornamented with embroidered applications and a silk fringe. The bodice, fitted at the back, is stretched in front and ornamented with applications and fringe, like the skirt. The yoke is of light gray panne, with a high, straight collar. The belt is of panne, with an ornamental buckle. The plain sleeves are tight. The hat of gray felt is trimmed with a fringed scarf of green velvet and two green metal wings.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Hints With Regard to What is and What is Not Desirable.

Velvet occupies an important place not only among ceremonious costumes, but among those intended for the street. The skirt of velvet is gradually supplanting the skirt of black satin for use with different bodices.

Middle aged women are now almost alone in the employment of silk for day costumes. Panne or velvet, however, is a different matter. The first is frequently combined with fine fur, while the latter by an odd freak of fashion is used for gowns of the tailor made style. This is quite a new idea, and such toilets, especially if the wearer is of medium height and rather plump, are most becoming in the dark shades. Combination costumes and bodices crossed and draped, if they are not fashionable, are also suitable for this class of figure. Neither round belts, yokes nor epaulets should be worn, but instead ornamentation of a lengthwise character.

Small, plump women look best in narrow stripes and small figured goods or plain material. No horizontal effects should be employed and no large designs or plaids.

An illustration is given which shows a street costume having a cloth skirt. Around the foot is a vandyke design formed by several rows of stitching. The skirt has a long scalloped tunic bordered with rows of stitching, and at the side is a stitched piece of the cloth. The astrakhan jacket has a closely fitting round basque and is fastened by two rows of buttons bottom. The smaller and pointed revers are of astrakhan. The plastron of broche silk has a high, flaring collar of the same goods, bordered with astrakhan. The astrakhan cuff is plain, as are also the sleeves. The belt is of kid, with an ornamental buckle. The toque of lapis lazuli panne has bow of the panne bordered by little ruches in front and a cluster of white feathers.

THE TABLE.

Decorations For Luncheon, Tea and Dinner.

Tea cloths enriched with insertions of white guipure are laid over a tinted lower cloth. The floral decorations consist of bouquets of natural flowers laid upon the cloth, their stems tied with ribbons. The ribbons match the color of the tinted cloth, and the flowers are of one sole variety. Russian violets, tied with orange ribbons, Parma violets with mauve ribbons, pink camellias with crimson and white carnations with willow green are some of the fashionable combinations.

For formal dinners the table scarf is abandoned, and there is a return to solid severity of style. Rich damask, heavy silver dishes and candelabra are preferred to the more frivolous and fanciful styles that have lately prevailed and that were always less suitable to so serious a function as dinner. Flowerbaskets who have a taste for the simply "pretty" for table fittings should confine its exercise to the luncheon and tea table, where it is appropriate.

The cut depicts a dinner gown in the princesse style. It is of pale pink peau de soie, with heavy applications of rose point guipure in front and at the sides. The front of the bodice is draped and crossed in the fichu style and is of crepe de chine. The corsage is sustained in position by straps of pearls crossing over the shoulders, the straps being held together by guipure ornaments and pearl buttons. The sleeves are of pink peau de soie, lined with white panne, and have a collar of white mousseline with a jeweled clasp.

DEMOCRAT IN DERBY.

American Horse May Win the Great English Race.

Successes and Losses of Sport in This Country Hope That the Yankee Gelding May Be Allowed to Run.

Democrat, the horse who by long odds is the American favorite for the coming English Derby, is certainly one of the most promising youngsters that have yet been entered for the classic turf event. Not only has he already had a sensational career, having been generally recognized as the best two-year-old of last year, but to-day there are many good English sporting men who believe that he stands as good a chance as Forfarshire, the other favorite, to carry off the honors in the blue ribbon events of the English racing world.

An examination of the record of Democrat's performances last year, says the Chicago Democrat, will prove beyond dispute that he was clearly entitled to the credit of being regarded as one of the best, if not the very best, two-year-olds of 1899. Those who have followed his work know that he was not himself in the early part of the season. As the result, he made but an ordinary appearance at his first three starts; whereas, later in the season he easily defeated such horses as Emerson and O'Donovan Rossa, all of whom had bested him at the earlier events.

In fact, it was actually not until the Ascot meeting that Democrat began to be himself, but at the Coventry stakes he commenced that series of victories that was broken only once before the close of the season, this occasion being his defeat by Forfarshire. Among his great victories were the Hurst Park Foal plates at six furlongs, the National Breeders' stakes at five furlongs the Champagne stakes at five furlongs and 153 yards, the Ilous memorial at five furlongs, the Middle Park plate at six furlongs and the Dewhurst plate at seven furlongs. In these events the least weight carried by him was 121 pounds, while the highest was 130 pounds.

As has already been stated, Forfarshire beat Democrat in the Imperia stakes at six furlongs, winning closely by less than a head. On this occasion Forfarshire had the advantage in weight and Democrat was otherwise handicapped by being ridden by Sloan just after he had had a bad fall. As the rules of the race would not allow Sloan to do his mount justice, and the American gelding was defeated. At the National Breeders' Produce stakes, however, Democrat defeated Forfarshire easily, although the latter was given an advantage of nine pounds in the weight.

Naturally, under such circumstances, the friends of the American claimant have full confidence in his ability to win against Forfarshire, and it is quite generally believed that he will win the Derby until he is debarred from the event on the ground that he is a gelding.

It is believed, however, that the English Jockey club will not take this means to prevent him from running, as they have already permitted him to appear in the Champagne stakes, an event that is run under exactly similar conditions.

It is held that if the club desires to prevent the Derby being won by a gelding, a rule should first be passed prohibiting the entering or running of a gelding for the Derby or any other classic event, but that, until such a regulation is adopted, the entrance of Democrat or of any other gelding ought to be regarded as valid.

At no time have the American racing men taken as much interest in the Derby as they have shown this year, for to them Democrat is an American horse, and a victory on his part will be a victory for the American breeder. As to the breeding of this little horse, from an American point of view none could be better, although some English critics hesitate on the opinion that the sons of Sensation have more speed than stamina. To horsemen on this side of the water such an opinion seems very strange and there is no doubt that the history of the modern turf offers many arguments against such a belief.

Both Acrobat and Hunter's Lexington, full brothers to Sensation's dam, were stayers of the best type. Moreover, Democrat, as a son of Sensation, has the blood in the Pantaloon and Whalebone families as well as the Glencoe, Sir Archy and Diomed. Through Equality, by Enjoy d'Or, Democrat carries the richest and most fashionable blood in the English stud book, having a double cross of Pantaloon and a single cross of Diomed and a double cross of Touchstone, fortified by the blood of Whalebone.

BODICES.

Materials For the New Shirt Waists Now Shown.

The first importations of wash goods are now displayed. Among the pretties intended for shirt waists may be mentioned a style that was new last year —a plain ground of lilac, blue, pink or sea green with printed designs in black and white. The designs take the shape in the form of geometrical motives or conventional wreaths, and this class of pretties is very attractive. In negligee, which are well represented and are of a solid, firm texture, the newest patterns are moderately wide stripes of contrasting colors, bordered, but not striped. Red and suede, green and lilac, green and red, lilac and yellow, are among the combinations. In printed lawns, plain, corded or with a thicker stripe of plaid, there are rather close floral designs treated in the natural manner. The use of these patterns for shirt waists is something new, and they are less appropriate than the more conventional stripes, checks and motives.

The illustration given today shows a novel bodice for an evening gown. It consists of a cuirass of tulle closely embroidered with "moonlight" spangles—a pale greenish blue—over which is bordered pale blue liberty silk which divides into three scarfs in front which fasten in the middle with little chous. The cuirass is held over the shoulders by two strings of sapphires classed together at the top. The tight sleeves of spangled tulle are long and fall completely off the shoulder, being a drapery of blue liberty silk over the upper part.

STYLES OF DRESS.

Different Fashions Suitable For Different Women.

A woman with a fine figure has much to learn by exactly following the general fashion. She should wear only plain, soft materials and should eschew all fanciful and fluffy trimming, dressing in such a way as to give the quiet poise to the fine lines of her form. Small and medium sized women of the "smart" type appear to advantage in tailor made styles, with masculine sleeves, whose outlines all in the perfection of correctness. Large, stout women should adopt rich, dignified materials and ornaments, such as damasks, velvets, fine lace and elaborate embroideries, cheap and ordinary stuffs being most unsuitable for a full, majestic figure.

In spite of the success of cloth, which is still pre-eminent, there is a return to stiff silks, the damasks and thick stripes of past times. Gowns of moire antique, silk and wool, are much worn by middle aged women. The material composes very attractive toilets, and its folds are better suited for these than those of the all silk moire. Violet, amethyst, periwinkle blue, plum, French blue, almond green, puke and straw are the favorite colors for this class of goods.

The picture shows a costume of black beaded tulle over black satin. The skirt, which has a train, is open in front and over a plaited panel of satin, the open sides of the tulle skirt being held together by bows of satin at the top. The tight fitting waist is completely covered with the beaded tulle and has a yoke of plaited black satin, around which is a berthe of beaded tulle, adorned with bows of black satin. The elbow sleeves are of tulle over satin, and the sheers and wrist frills are of beaded black lace.

MRS. LETITIA SEMPLE.

Daughter of President Tyler, Who Once Was Mistress of the White House, Still Living.

Living in the big brick building known as the Louise home in Washington is a white-haired woman who was the mistress of the White house more than half a century ago. By the world at large her existence has been forgotten, nor would the mention of her name, Mrs. Letitia Semple, recall any memory to the ordinary people. She was the daughter of President Tyler, and she was a Virginia belle in the days when that was the closest title to beauty that could be bestowed in this country. Tyler's administration covers a long way back to most of us. It seems strange to think that this serene-faced old woman, who is still active and vigorous, knew and talked with Webster and Clay and Calhoun and the other leaders of that period which was the prelude of great men. Webster she saw often, and describes him as a man of imposing presence which made its power felt in any assembly.

"At the time of our coming to Washington," said Mrs. Semple, in recalling her white house experiences of 50 years ago, "my mother's health was too poor to admit of her taking active charge of the duties naturally devolving upon the wife of the president. My elder sister and I had our newly-made homes in Virginia to supervise, and my youngest sister was only a child. Therefore by common consent the wife of our brother Robert became the mistress of the white house so far as the public side of the life there was concerned. However, my other sister and myself were there a good part of the time. This arrangement continued until after my mother's death, which occurred in the white house. Then my brother established himself in law practice in Philadelphia, and his wife wished to make her home there. Meanwhile my husband had been appointed a paymaster in the navy, and as that led to his being away from home a great part of the time I came here to take charge of my father's household and remained until 1844.

"There were no great social entertainments in the white house during my father's term. My mother's ill health and later her death forbade that. For the most part we lived quietly, hospitably and unpretentiously; in fact, just as we had been accustomed to do at home in Virginia. I remember that it was customary during the sessions of congress to entertain guests at dinner in the white house twice a week. The first dinner was usually attended by about 20 prominent public men, the personal and political friends of my father. The second was on a somewhat larger scale. It usually included members of the diplomatic corps, and the number of guests was generally about 40. But these dinners were always very simple affairs, and they ended at what would be considered now a remarkably early hour. Then on other evenings it was customary for the president's family to be informally at home—that is, to receive calls from friends and acquaintances. But even on these occasions the visitors were always dispersed before ten o'clock. At that hour the white house was closed and the family retired."

Although Mrs. Semple is nearly 80 years old she takes an active interest in all current affairs. She receives many invitations from people in public life in Washington.—N. Y. Sun.

Mock Pate de Foie Gras.

Boil in separate vessels a nice calf's liver and a tongue in slightly salted water. When very tender let them stand in the liquor until the next day. Then rub the liver to a paste, moistening with melted butter, and pounding with salt, pepper, cayenne, grated nutmeg, grated onion, a teaspoonful of made mustard and as much of Worcestershire sauce. Mix thoroughly and pack in little jars, buttering the inside well with melted butter. Cut there the tongue cut into small bits. When the jar is packed cover with melted butter. Keep in a cool place, and cut into slices for sandwiches or sandwiches. It is very pretty laid on a leaf of lettuce with a spoonful of tartar sauce beside it.

Honey an Excellent Food.

Scientific men say that honey is a much more valuable food than sugar, and has many valuable properties. It is nutritive, and when used freely with bread makes an excellent food for children. It is a laxative, and may be used advantageously in place of medicine by persons of sedentary habits. Being also the disinfect and most delicious of sweets—an extract of blossoms—it is hardly possible to call it to an injurious extent. It needs no digestion, no sugar does, and even acts as a digestive aid.

GIRLS' CLOTHING.

Difficulties of the Wardrobe at the Awkward Age.

The problem of successfully dressing half grown girls is difficult. They have lost the roundness of childhood and have not gained the characteristics of maturity, and the task of gracefully outlining angles and meager proportions is one which perplexes many mothers.

Simple materials, but serviceable, such as cheviots, serge, cashmere and other goods of that class, are adapted for most general wear. Plaids or stripes in very fine stripes are suitable, but fancy woven weaves are usually too mature in effect. As for modes of making, the skirt may be plain or pleated, but has a little fullness at the back and is not made quite so clinging as are the skirts of women. The bodice nearly always has some sort of full trimming in front and a bertha or wide collar, which serves to increase the apparent width of the shoulders. The sleeves also are left a little loose about the elbow to conceal the thinness of the arms. The bodice should not be arranged with an open front—that is, if it is a separate jacket or of the usual garments do not look well unless held rigidly in place by pins or hooks, and no half grown girl will be quiet enough to let such fastenings remain fixed.

The cut shows a girl's costume of dark blue cloth. The skirt is trimmed in tunic style by two bands of velvet, and is fitted at the back and full in front, has a yoke and plastron of white satin pulled crosswise. A double bertha follows the line of the yoke of the bodice and is bordered, like the tunic, by a band of mink, and the wrists of the tight sleeves are also edged with fur. The collar and the belt, which back and fill the back, are of black faille. The hat of blue felt is trimmed with black velvet and a blue plume.

INDOOR GOWNS.

They Are as Light and Dainty as Those For Summer Use.

Cold weather, while it has a great effect upon the out of door costume, has little or none whatever upon those intended for indoor wear. The thinnest and most delicate of materials are chosen and the daintiest and tenderest colors adopted. Crepe de chine, mousseline de soie, tulle, lace and liberty fabrics compose dainty gowns full of puffings, plaitings and other fanciness. The extreme low cut bodice worn except for the street is much modified for the house, as transparent fabrics look better when they are dressed high, but to fall in soft folds. The sleeves are most often made on a plain princess lining, which serves as a foundation for the elaborate arrangements of the dress. Sometimes a cloth and a thin material are combined, as in the street dress, but heavy goods being used plainly, the light being draped.

The picture given today shows a costume of rose taffeta. The flower skirt, which has a train, is trimmed with several flny ruches of pink mousseline de soie glazed far apart. The tunic, which has a deep train at the front, is heavily embroidered with pink spangles and white beads and bordered with a deep fringe of rose silk. The tight bodice is of flowered velvet, embroidered and spangled, and the plastron is of taffeta laid in narrow horizontal plaits. A frill of white lace finishes the front of the bodice and the high, full sleeves are also of white lace, with a lace ruffle at the elbow. Bands of rose taffeta ornament the sleeves, and at the left side of the bodice is a large bow of jeweled velvet.

A LEAPING SWORD.

Clever Trick Performed by a Spanish Lord with One of the Famous Toledo Blades.

"Of all the cities I have visited in Europe," said R. A. Stinson, of Boston, recently, reports the New York Tribune, "I found Madrid one of the most interesting. It has a number of out-of-the-way features that appeal to one.

"While I was in Madrid I tried to purchase one of the famous Toledo blades. The sales fashionable two-handled sword was what I wanted to get, one of those that were built to cut through armor and which fulfilled their mission completely, as many a bloody battlefield in ye ancient days bore testimony. I had to give it up on account of the expense. They cost from $150 up, but while I was looking for one a shopkeeper showed me a most scientific trick. His store was very lofty, running up two or three stories, and he was descanting on the beauties of his particular sword, when, in order to prove the perfect temper of the metal, he drove the point into the floor and bent the blade until hilt and point met. He then suddenly released the hilt, and that six feet of gleaming sword sprang up into the air like a living slave. Up and up it went, attached to the lofty ceiling itself, when it lost its impetus and began its descent hilt first. It returned almost to the place whence it started, the shopkeeper catching it by the hilt with practiced ease and returning it to its case. I was crazy to try it myself, but the owner refused to allow me, as he said I would probably not only wreck the store, but perhaps injure myself as well. He told me that if I wanted to learn the trick I had better practice it in a large open lot, and that a suit of armor wouldn't be a bad thing to wear until I got the hang of it."

CHARGE OF TWELVE MEN.

Brave Feat of American Scouts Under Gen. Lawton in the Philippines.

A medal of honor—the highest compliment which can be given to an American soldier—has been recommended in the case of each member of the ten surviving members of a band of 12 scouts who performed a brave feat near San Miguel de Mayume Ori, in the Philippines, on May 13, 1899, says Youth's Companion.

These scouts were under the lead of William H. Young, a civilian who had been a famous scout on the western plains in America, and whom Gen. Lawton made his chief of scouts in the San Ysidro campaign this year.

On the day mentioned, Gen. Lawton was advancing on San Miguel. A small body of Oregon volunteers came suddenly upon the enemy, drawn up in an advantageous position in front of San Miguel, the right flank resting on a river, the left on an elevation made secure by a dense thicket.

It was afterward ascertained that the Filipino force in this position numbered about 600 men.

Without waiting for the reenforcing battalion to support them, or to be in a position to do so, this squad of ten scouts, led by Mr. Young and by Private James Harrington, of the Oregons, an old frontiersman—12 men in all—charged the enemy's line, about 150 yards distant.

The line fired, then wavered, and then completely gave way, to be followed up by the reenforcing battalion, and driven from the city and environs of San Miguel, a place of great importance.

Young and Harrington, while shouting and cheering and leading the men up, were shot and killed.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Golden Flower Was Thought Worthy of a Show All to Itself in 1850.

The National Chrysanthemum society was instituted just 53 years since, in 1846, says the Saturday Review. The flower which it has taken under its patronage, upon whose aggrandizement it has labored so successfully such patient and ingenious care, has been established among us only a little over a century. The first time it was thought worthy of a "show" all to itself was in 1830. Many if one of those early patrons could have dropped in at the exhibition last week and seen what his favorites had attained to! Surely he would have thought himself translated. The very generic name of the plant, the "golden flower," its first so pertinent, has lost its distinctiveness. There are golden chrysanthemums still, it is true; yellow blossoms incomparable for purity and brilliance, but what of all these other colors not less brilliant and many these rich damasks, royal purples, flushed pinks, this dazzling white that puts a snowdrift to shame, at last actually a bloom that is just sea green?

Color size, form, growth, all have undergone a change that half a century ago it entered into no man's heart to conceive. And the end is not yet. It may be; the last wonder has not yet been revealed for us; no limitless is its possibilities such a conservatory that confronts of Men to gratify the pleasure of their Eyes, inciting them to push on things to more and more Perfection."

Paper That Will Not Burn.

It has been found possible to make a thin, smooth and strong paper of asbestos, which can be employed in the manufacture of paper lanterns and other articles which need to be of the same time light and fireproof. The asbestos paper can also be made waterproof. It is prepared with the same machinery used for making ordinary paper.

SURGICAL TRIUMPHS.

Alfred E. Taylor Deprived of a Big Share of His Body.

Yet He Lives, and Is Growing Stronger Every Day—Structure of Human Nerve Cells—New Disinfecting Methods.

[Special Correspondence.]

A GREAT hue and cry is so frequently raised over what is called the increasing propensity of surgeons to experiment upon their patients that to many of the uninitiated, whose nerves have been wrought upon by tales of doings in the operating rooms, the word hospital means only a collection of apartments each of which, in itself, constitutes an individual chamber of horrors. This idea gives rise to an impression much more prevalent than it ought to be that doctors will use the knife whenever they can find an excuse for doing so. While this may be true of a few who are a disgrace to their profession (and there are knaves in every calling), no right-minded practitioner will cut unless there is hope of curing his patient in any other manner. But the wonderful advance in surgical knowledge during the last half century has placed it in the power of the medical fraternity in numberless occasions to offer prolonged life at the cost of a limb or organ to many a man who, had he found himself in the same condition a half century earlier, would have died from the effect of his injuries. When a man dies as the result of an operation it is usually from its nervous shock, and not from the loss of the part removed. Hence, a robust man can be deprived of much more of his body and still retain life than a neurasthenic.

ALFRED E. TAYLOR.

[Diagram Showing Parts of Body Removed—Arm, Clavicle and Scapula.]

Where portions of the brain are taken away, the general health is seldom injured, although it is impossible to remove any great amount of gray matter without impairing the mental vigor. As arms and legs are a matter of convenience only, and not a vital necessity, a person often survives the loss of all these useful members. In many cases the removal of one limb causes a patient to fatten, as there is less for the vital organs to nourish. People have lived after being deprived of tongue, nose, ears, spleen, ribs, one kidney, one lung or a portion of the liver. Just how much of his body a man could lose and still exist has not been proved. It would depend largely on his vitality. But the aim of surgeons is not to see how much they can dissect away, but how much they can preserve. One of the most brilliant triumphs of modern surgery was an operation recently performed on Alfred E. Taylor, at the Pennsylvania hospital. Although no vital organs were involved, a large section of the body was cut away and the recovery has been so rapid that the man is now performing the duties of orderly at the hospital. He is 50 years old. After serving 17 years in the British navy and in merchant service he began driving wagons and had often to carry heavy weights on his shoulders. Three and a half years ago a heavy box resting on his left shoulder caused severe pain. An examination showed a bluish lump on the upper edge of the scapula. In six months this had gained the size of a hen's egg. The tumor was cut away, but immediately returned, when it was again excised, only to grow once more. He continued his work, though in constant pain, until at last he determined upon an operation which the surgeons assured him only offered about one chance in one hundred for recovery. His arm, shoulder and a portion of his side were taken away.

An incision was made, beginning on the end of the shoulder blade, carried along to its center and curved downward. The covering of the scapula was removed. The bone between shoulder and ribs was taken out and its attachment to the first rib divided and with the ends brought to a point to decrease the resistance.

WANT THE TEENS KILLED.

Why Women Prefer Their Plumage for the Decoration of Their Bonnets.

As a result of causes too mysterious for the mind of man to comprehend, fashion claimed the terms for her own, says Lloyd Lore.

Up and down the coast word went forth that seagulls, or "summer gulls," were worth ten cents each, and the milliner's agent was there to confirm the report.

It was in June when the baymen were idle and unrestrained by law, they hastened to the beaches in keen competition to destroy the birds which were nesting there.

Never, in this country, at least, has there been such a slaughter of birds. A Cobb's Island (Va.) bayman, whose conscience, even at this late date, urged him to a confession of shame for his part in the proceedings, told me recently that in a single day of that memorable season 1,500 birds were killed on Cobb's island alone, and 40,000 are said to have been there shot during the summer. The destruction at other favorable places was proportionately great.

Two seasons of this work were sufficient to sweep the terns from all their more accessible resorts, the only survivors being residents of a few uninhabited islands.

What will be the result? Is there no appeal from fashion's decree. Woman alone can answer these questions, and the case is so clear she cannot shirk the responsibility of replying.

Algerine ale decanters, quills difficult to identify, neither bespeak death, and ignorance may lead the most humane woman into wearing either. But with the term no such excuse exists, and the woman who places its always disgustingly mutilated body on her bonnet does so in deliberate defiance of the laws of humanity and good taste.

DISPATCH RIDER'S COOLNESS.

Captured by the Boers, He Saves His Precious Papers by a Shrewd Trick.

One of the most remarkable instances of self-possession on record is accredited to a gentleman who arrived here so late as October 29, writes a Transvaal correspondent of the London News. He rode a bicycle, and his dispatches were made up in a brown paper parcel, which he carried in his coat pocket, so that if he saw trouble ahead he could commend the safety of the parcel to the speed veldt. He was riding swiftly, and on turning a treacherous corner found himself face to face with a party of about 20 Boers, who had been looting, or, in their more charitable phraseology, commandeering. He at once dismounted and said "good day," and as his "get up" was excellent one of the Boers shook hands with him.

This gave a little respite, and enabled him to ascertain that Boers, he said, he was coming from Kimberley, and was looking for work. He preferred looking for work to taking up arms. Before the Boers sought to search him he brought out two hard boiled eggs, which he offered them. They refused, and then he produced his brown paper packet of dispatches, and said he had two sandwiches which they could have. His seeming kindness was his salvation, and the Boers were satisfied. They gave him plenty of advice, and told him to keep his sandwiches as they had a sufficiency of biltong.

VOTING PLACES IN PRUSSIA.

Beer Halls Are Generally Chosen for the Purpose of Holding Elections.

The practice in Prussian cities regarding the selection of voting places is in direct contradiction to American usage, says Municipal Affairs. Instead of closing all places where intoxicants are sold on election day, it is precisely the best-known and most popular beer lokals that are chosen for the purpose of holding elections. The halls which are commonly maintained in such places to be used for all sorts of social gatherings are seldom occupied during the day, and as they are well known in the neighborhood they form ideal places for holding an election.

Liquors are not sold in the room in which the voting takes place, but may be freely drunk there. Indeed, it is a very exceptional election judge who does not have a capacious krug on the table before him, from which he occasionally quenches his thirst while the tedious process of balloting is going on. A very considerable economy is effected by holding elections in such places, as rent is either not charged at all or else is fixed at a nominal sum by the proprietor, who is, however, to be reimbursed through the purchases of those who visit the polls. Any unusual amount of drunkenness on election days, or at least during city elections, which are seldom attended by excitement of any sort, is unknown.

No Gentleman Would Take It.

A member of one of the great political clubs of London recently lost his umbrella and put up a notice in the hall requesting "the nobleman" who had taken it to return it when he had done with it. The committee, in due course, desired to be informed why he had ascribed its possession to a peer. The member kindly referred them to the rule which said that the club was composed of "noblemen and gentlemen," and added that no gentleman would have taken his umbrella.

Water Cycles.

A Canadian has designed a water cycle which offers little resistance to the water, the floats which support the propelling mechanism being composed of two long cylinders of small diameter, with the ends brought to a point to decrease the resistance.

FOR FALLING HAIR.

A Massage with Petroleum Restores Life and Growth to My Lady's Tresses.

A certain head of hair possessed by a woman of uncertain (or only too certain) age began to fall in tumbrels every time her tresses were brought well upon the head, as the present mode demands. With that becoming, wavy looseness in the back, this style was too successful to be lightly given up, and, besides, if hair will not bear combing high, something is radically wrong. Mere pressure of the hair on the scalp for root of the hair and trouble she followed faithfully for a fortnight a treatment which is simple and scientific. As a result the hair not only ceased falling, but became wavy and "alive" as well.

She used crude petroleum jelly, working it into the scalp, not leaving it outside, to prove worse than useless. Here is her recipe for making this simple but rare and fortifying strike healer: Ask any physician what is the best means of conveying a food or medicine into the skin, and he will say lanolin; therefore, to convey petroleum to the roots of the hair, mix it with a like quantity of lanolin, put a little on each finger tip, sit down comfortably to this fertilizing process, and, if possible, before beginning, what is to be continued once every day for the two weeks, arrange the hair. Having hair and scalp clean, begin with the front hair, bend the anointed fingers and begin a patient, gentle rubbing, getting directly at the scalp, touching any but the roots of the hair as little as may be.

Follow all the front hair back, beginning with both sides of the crown and then working up from the base or "scruff" of the neck. At first it will be impossible to prevent the hair looking a little greasy, but rubbing will help this, and, for those who object to the brush, the hair may be well rubbed with a soft, fine cloth or large silk handkerchief.

As soon as the hair stops coming out the application may be discontinued, but a gentle massage with all the fingers will be found necessary to continue the good work.

Much of the prejudice against hair preparations arises from the fact that many people, particularly where the hair is brittle or scanty, have used them with bristles that were far too stiff. Have two good brushes kept thoroughly clean, if the hair is worn "pompadour," and use the soft one to take the brush in each hand and stroke upward, allowing on brush to surely cover the exact middle of the head. Give 50 firm strokes, the same number to each side, and the same to the back, also turned up, the long hair to be taken separately and well brushed out. If there is the slightest inclination to undulating growth, the hair will wave after a few days, for this treatment, and even in cases of this kind, where it is uncompromisingly straight, if persevered in, will give "fluffiness" and undulation, if not the actual wave. Notwithstanding the prejudice before referred to, the compliments gained by adding strength to the hair so that the lanolin and petroleum massage will but seldom be needed.—St. Louis Republic.

THE OFFICER CONCEDED.

That the Gentleman Was Justified in Smashing the Disturber of His Peace.

A haggard man, clad in threadbare but decent garments, emerged with hesitating steps from the shadow of a great carved doorway in the business district and tapped a well-dressed pedestrian on the arm. "Excuse me, sir," he began, hoarsely, "but would you be kind enough—" The gentleman he accosted was portly and prosperous in appearance and his ruddy visage betokened a jovial temperament, but as the other concluded his petition in a hurried undertone a swift and sinister change swept across the features, and without a word he whirled up a massive walking stick and struck the terrible applicant to the ground. "Hipld, there!" cried a policeman, rushing to the spot and seizing him by the wrist before he could repeat the blow. "What do you mean, you brute, by striking that poor man [not to be asked for a little charity? Have you no heart at all?

"I see you suffer for this, you old rascal!" "That's right!" "Run 'im in!" "Lynch him!" "Oh, de cowardly monster!" came from the rapidly gathering crowd. "But, gentlemen," expostulated the portly prisoner, "permit me to explain. You are greatly in error. That individual did not ask me for alms—he did not even ask me for, then?" inquired the officer, incredulously. "He asked me when the twentieth century would begin," replied the other, in a firm voice, "and I had taken an oath to have the core of the next birthday idiot who fired that conundrum at me in my direction." "Oh, that's entirely different, sir," said the policeman, cordially. "I shall arrest him at once for conduct calculated to produce a breach of the peace." And the unhappy man was by the collar he dragged him to the patrol box amidst the plaudits of the populace.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Lazy Cake.

Stir half cup butter with one cup of sugar to a light white cream; sift one and a half cups flour with one teaspoonful baking powder; beat four whites of eggs till stiff; add the sifted flour, the beaten whites of eggs, with a half cup of milk to the creamed butter and juice of half a lemon, pour the mixture into a paper lined form and bake in a medium hot oven 1 hour.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Confidence.

For all the lamentations sung popularity, his heart is right. Once the tiniest barbered fugitives from justice; but the railroad brought the sheriff, the sheriff brought the law, and law brings decency. Besides, as it was and on the plains, the open air breathes a spirit of chevalry. Suppose a man affronts a waitress, 23 desperadoes leap to their feet. Suppose a puncher is hurt, round goes the hat. What is more, two comrades will drop their work and take him 60 miles to the doctor. And, sad to tell, there is need enough for that sort of sympathy. "Woolman," says Hilton, "who in spite of my remonstrances, never verifies her quotations. "Woolman, spare that toe!" A fine hero, no doubt, is this man of the forest, a brave and generous soul; but, nevertheless, he is the slave of Mr. Burgess' Impurpled heifer, if it rather see than be one." For, roundly outdoing that sly humorist's confessed preference for "fingers rather than toes," the lumberman does his best to dispense with both. What are left by the woods are claimed by the mill.—R. L. Hartt, in Atlantic.

Taste Keener.

Mrs. Paul Kruger is said to have accepted her husband's offer of marriage with the words: "I can bake, I can cook, I can sew, I can clean, I can scrub." Whether or not this is the customary form in the case of Mr. Burgess' Impurpled heifer, it is not explained, but it is true that the wife of the president of the Transvaal has lived up to her words. Oom Paul is said to be worth several millions. Much of this accumulation is said to be attributed to the thrift and industry of his wife, who has not only shie to do the things that could help to make a man rich, but was not ashamed to. She is still a gentlemannered, blue-eyed woman, who has not changed in the least of life because the husband she married as a poor man has come to have riches and power. She still attends to the duties of which she told her husband she was capable.—Boston Globe.

A Fulfilled Prophecy.

They hadn't seen each other for two or three years and were talking about old times.

"By the way," said Carter, "you were in trouble over a love affair the last time I saw you. Some girl had declined to be your wife, I believe."

"Yes," replied Dalton, "and do you remember my encouragement? You gave me? You told me not to care; that inside of six months I would meet plenty of other girls I would think were far superior to her."

"I have a faint recollection of saying something like that."

"Well, you were right. It happened just as you said it would. She changed her mind, and I've got married after all."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Astronomical Necessities.

In recent years American readers have become so accustomed to reports of large telescopes that the impression seems to prevail widely that such instruments are the only conditions necessary for great discoveries. Need I point out the folly of such supposition that this strange impression is not justified? Is it not equally important that the telescope should be located in an atmosphere which is quiescent and steady as well as transparent? Surely so. In addition to good instruments and favorable climate, there must be an astronomer at the little end of the telescope capable of obtaining the best results which his instruments and conditions afford.—T. J. J. See, in Atlantic.

"Haven't I?" contended the modest man. "Haven't I? Well, I married her, and I've been living with her ever since."—Detroit Free Press.

PET SUPERSTITIONS.

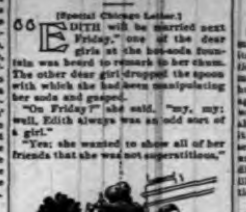
Every Known Trade or Calling Has Its Own Uniquely Signs and Tokens of Good or of Ill Luck.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

66 EDITH will be married next Friday," one of the dear girls at the hot-soda fountain was heard to remark to her chum. The other dear girl dropped the spoon with which she had been manipulating her soda and gasped.

"On Friday?" she said. "my, my; well, Edith always was an odd sort of a girl."

Yes; she wanted to show all of her friends that she was not superstitious,"



"MARRIED ON FRIDAY!" SHE GASPED.

the first girl replied. "They say that her fiance did not like the Friday wedding idea one bit, but he was too much of a coward to protest."

The two girls turned to their sodas and for some moments silence reigned supreme.

"It will be the 13th of the month, besides," the first girl began again.

"My, my!" said the other.

Truly, Edith must have been an odd sort of a character. How many of the dear girls, I wonder, would be willing to celebrate their wedding on a Friday? And who would choose the 13th of the month for such an auspicious day?

Marriage License Clerk Solomon, of Chicago, tells me that hardly any licenses are made out on the sixth day of the week; and numerous clergymen affirm that brides have never appeared before them on Friday's day. Those who are married on Friday, one of the clergymen said, are nearly always trying to bear witness before all the world that they are free from superstition.

But how about the 13th? I happen to know that she kept her promise and was duly wedded on hangman's day. Her husband informs me that she faced the ordeal with firmness, though she made one or two remarks, he says, which led him to suspect that she was weakening. As she entered the church, however, she was visibly frightened because she stumbled slightly over the threshold.

"Charley, dear," she is quoted as having said, "Charley, I hope this does not mean anything; perhaps it would have been better to wait till next Monday."

The superstition that tumbling over a threshold predicts evil is as old, perhaps, as married life, and is based upon a rather natural feeling. And the case of Edith, who, by the way, is now happily living with her hubby in one of the suburbs of Chicago, goes to show that none of us are absolutely free from superstition. In fact, it is sometimes claimed that the very people who scoff the most are the very ones who yield most readily to some absurd pet superstition.

A dark night arouses little palpitating fears in nearly everyone, fears against which a double-barreled revolver offers no protection. The sexton at the cemetery, who lives within a stone's length his theory about ghosts. He declared that when he remained awake until after 11 p.m. he could often see them flitting over the graves, but he added they were perfectly harmless, and a midnight walk in the cemetery had no terrors for him. The smart young man informed the sexton that his ghosts were only the thickly falling mists, and volunteered to go to the cemetery at that hour. He wanted a companion to whom he could prove his case, and when no one would act as escort, the young man seemed to be much less ready for a solitary errand. However, he did not wish to show his fear, and took the walk through the cemetery. When he returned, he reaffirmed that it was only the mist, and explained exactly how it came to form, but his pale lips and cold hands indicated that his fears were real and his mind had not been in accord.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

EARTH A PYRAMID.

English Scientist Advances a Theory That Is Attracting Considerable Scientific Attention.

Since the earth was first formed many theories have been advanced as to its shape and the process of its formation, but no one until our day ever maintained that its form was that of a huge pyramid. Centuries ago Pythagoras and Aristotle declared that it was spherical, Anaximander that it was shaped like a column, Democritus that it was a concave disk and very much resembled a huge parringer, Empedocles and Anaximenes that it was a plane and Leucippus that it was shaped like a tree, which spread in all directions far into the infinite.

Now comes Mr. J. Grenier, an English scientist and a government official in India, who has given to the world an announcement that all these ancient theories, as well as the modern ones, are utterly heedless, since, according to him, the earth has the form of a triangular pyramid, or, in other words, has a regular tetrahedron, with the apex at the south pole and the base at the north. An extraordinary theory this may seem to all of us who are so familiar with the earth as pictured on paper mostly globular, and yet in attracting the attention of European geologists and among others of M. De Lapparent, who seems by no means inclined to reject it hastily.

Terglion Tossetti, a writer of the last century, said: "If we can suppose all the water of the seas to be annihilated we would find that the solid earth was of a most rugged form."

According to this hypothesis, any geographical map of the old school, there ought to be a spacious sea opposite every continent. The new theory, however, as has been said, seemingly eliminates the waters of the earth altogether and centers all at or near the bottom. If we admit that the earth is now completely solidified, even in its central parts, we must, it is asserted, also admit that it was at one time in a state of fusion, and that after a crust was formed from the cooling process the interior remained in a state of igneous fusion

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor.

Republican View of Bryan's Visit.

The Elizabeth Journal, though a partisan of unusual zeal at every period of the year, takes a broad and fair view of the visit of Col. William Jennings Bryan to Plainfield as the guest of James E. Martine, and affords a pleasant contrast to the mean, snappy and low-down characteristics exhibited by another so called Republican editor—Runyon, of the News—over a political event of such importance to Plainfield. The Journal has this to say of the visit of Mr. Bryan to this city:

Congratulations to the Hon. James F. Martine, of Plainfield. The visit of Hon. Wm. J. Bryan to Mr. Martine's home was an event which ought not to be understood. It will make Mr. Martine's town—always a hospitable and attractive place—more famous than ever. In after years this visit will be spoken of as one of the notable events in the history of the county. The places visited many years ago by Clay and Webster and Calhoun, those three great political leaders who held the country in their grasp, will scarcely more famous in the years to come than those visited by Bryan. Each of the great politicians above named was greater than Mr. Bryan is or ever can be. Not one of them was greater than Mr. Bryan in the elasticity, the earnestness, the persistency and the argumentative ability with which his political creed has been presented to the people of this country. None of them had such a numerous following as that which has supported Mr. Bryan, and not one of them showed the same readiness to indemnify on his party. The great majority of the American people are opposed to Mr. Bryan's political views, but all must admit his power, his ability, his sincerity. He is unquestionably one of the great men of the day, whatever may be thought of the political policy he represented. His visit to Mr. Martine's should, then, be taken, in no sense of no trivial significance. It elevates Mr. Martine to the position of personal representative of the Democratic Presidential candidate in New Jersey. It puts him more closely in touch with Mr. Bryan than any other man in the State. The Journal, while vigorously opposing Mr. Martine politically, has always argued that he has deserved better of his party than his party was willing to give him. This new honor, conferred on him by Mr. Bryan, is a proper recognition, and no one will more heartily rejoice in Mr. Martine's liking than any elective office. With all sincerity the Journal extends again its congratulations to Mr. Martine.

The Co-Insurance Clause.

Senator Reed's bill before the Senate which aims to invalidate the insertion of a co-insurance clause in fire insurance policies, or to compel a reduction in the rate of insurance when such a clause is retained, is probably little understood by the general public, but when there is a prospect of its enactment, it proposes to accomplish the Newark News declares that it is "a bill that will be looked upon with more favor by property owners than by insurance companies." If the measure becomes a law it will be a serious blow to the advantage which the fire insurance companies now hold, but a profit to the latter which ought to be aborgated in the spirit of equity and fair dealing. The co-insurance clause is a comparatively new thing, and but few who are subject to its conditions really understand what they involve when applied by the companies. The co insurance clause is based upon the theory that a man who does not insure his property up to eighty per cent. of its real value thereby shows his intention of taking a portion of the risk himself, and consequently becomes a co-insurer with the company or companies that have issued policies on his property. Being a co-insurer, in case of loss by fire, he is held to be under obligation to bear his proportionate share.

The News contends that "from the policy-holder's standpoint there is an absolute lack of fairness and honesty in the co-insurance provision. He holds that when the company insures his property for a certain sum and accepts the premium, it should pay the sum of a total loss pay the full amount of the policy, no matter what relation its amount may bear to the total value of the property insured. He cannot understand why in case of a total loss he should be compelled to bear two-thirds of it when he has been paying an insurance company to assume half the risk. There is no doubt that most policy-holders do not understand what the co-insurance clause means in regard it as oppressive, and it is equally certain that many are enlightened as to the real purport until they attempt to collect their insurance."

It would seem as though Senator Reed's bill demanded to be passed on its merits. It is a fair and honest business proposition that a person should pay premiums only on the amount which he will receive in case his property is destroyed by fire, and not on a sum that is subjoined in the policy, but which, when a settlement is made, is scaled down one-half by the construction that is placed upon the co-insurance clause of his policy. The News makes the forceful point that if the face-value of the policy is not to be regarded as the measure of the company's responsibility, neither should it form the basis of the rate to be paid by the policy-holder.

Publishing Tax Notables.

The Trenton correspondent of the New York Herald says that there is considerable difference of opinion developing among Republican Senators in regard to Senator Reed's bill providing for the publication in the newspapers of all realty tax assessments. Senator Reed believes that such a law would result in a very large increase of the assessments, and, consequently, of taxes for county purposes and for the public schools. It would also, he thinks, equalize assessments, bringing some that are unduly low up to a fair mark, and reducing those which are found to be above the fair average. It is pointed out that similar laws in several New England States have resulted in some cases in doubling the taxes from realty.

It is objected, on the other hand, by Senator Stokes and some others that the proposed publication of assessments would be inquisitorial and offensive, and would be very unpopular with a large majority of the owners of real estate. These assessments are already matters of public record, they say, and are open to the inspection of all who want to see them. It is further pointed out that a certain privacy ought to receive proper consideration.

The objections recounted above would seem hardly strong enough to demerit Senator Reed's bill. The lawyer law strikes the tax dodger pretty hard, but that is just what it is designed for. The law would only be inquisitorial and offensive to the class that are shirking their just share of public taxes, and the feelings of this class of citizens should be considered but very little in aiming to provide a statute that will make taxation more honest and equitable.

New Jersey Is Threatened.

New Jersey must look out or else she will soon be distanced by other states seeking to afford a legal asylum for every corporation—good and bad—that comes along. Since New Jersey took the initiative and several other commonwealths followed suit in this line of business, numerous lawyers have constituted themselves into professional organizers of corporations, and make a speciality of forming corporations in states that have enacted favorable laws for such concerns.

The card of a New York promoter of this class of business gives evidence that New Jersey is being pushed hard as a favorite for the organization of big corporations, and the rates that he quotes are both interesting and instructive. For instance, he announces that he will organize corporations under New Jersey laws, up to $125,000 at $76; New York laws, up to $50,000, $101; South Dakota laws, up to $10,000,000, $109; Delaware laws, up to $133,000, $76. Heaven splits the dollar for a "first-class charter from South Dakota up to $10,000,000, book of 100 stock certificates and seal, printed by laws, record book and instructions, $61.80."

It will be noticed that Dakota and Delaware are offering much better "bargains" in the organization of corporations than our own devoted State. It follows that in the natural course of business the corporations are looking to the saving of pennies wherever opportunity affords, and such being the case New Jersey must expect to continue in the favor of the great combinations when she has competition that offers better terms. Governor Voorhees is a great admirer of New Jersey's corporation laws on the ground that they net a big revenue for the public exchequer, but if she is subjected to rivalry as Dakota and Delaware statutes hold forth, where will the end be? It behooves the Governor to be on the lookout, else he will see his cherished policy reduced to mattheeness by several state governments making a bid for the business that New Jersey alone has had the call on for some years.

By the passage of a measure which has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Wakelee, New Jersey will take a definite step towards having a Police Commission, providing the Legislature of New York acts in a similar manner. Mr. Wakelee's bill authorizes the Governor to appoint ten commissioners to be known as the commissioners of the Palisades Interstate Park, who shall be confirmed by the Senate. Terms of office to be five years and nothing but actual expenses allowed to them. The commissioners shall have power to appoint president, treasurer and secretary and appoint officers and employes and shall lay out the Palisades as a public park, having power to condemn lands, etc. The act is not to take effect until a similar act is passed by the Legislature of New York. Joint action on the part of New York and New Jersey must be secured to save the historical west shore of the lower Hudson, which equals in scenic grandeur anything in this country, and as the officials of both states have expressed themselves in high favor of the preservation of this noble stretch of ground there ought to be a thorough consideration of Mr. Wakelee's legislative proposition, and it is to be found practicable and worthy there should be no delay in putting it into operation.

Council's Precipitate Action.

The Common Council acted in an unwarrantably hasty manner last night in giving its approval to the Board of Education's proposition for bonding the city for $100,000 to establish a new high school building. Except to the select few, the plan to build a new school building at a cost of $100,000 was totally unknown, and yet in a matter that involves such great expense and has attached to it considerations of extraordinary importance we find the Council giving its approval in a most precipitate and uncalled-for manner.

The proper course for the Common Council to have pursued would have been to have received the proposition and to have promptly referred it to the finance committee for thorough investigation and consideration. We do not deny but what better school facilities are needed for Plainfield, but a little sober and honest discussion of the subject would not be out of place. Heretofore every proposition to bond the city for improvements of any kind has been accompanied by hearings at which the sentiment of the people could be expressed, and the Council's action last night was an unworthy and unpopular deviation from that rule.

Mayor Rockfellow is greatly exercised at the precipitate action of the Council, and declares that the proceeding is most unfair and indicative of an abuse of confidence which the people impose in it. We believe the general public will share the Mayor's views.

We are not opposed to better school facilities for this city if they are necessary, but we do rebel at the action of the Council in giving its approval to a scheme to bond the municipality for $100,000 before even a small proportion of the taxpayers know that it has been done.

Need of Jury Reform.

The great interest that has been taken in the Molineux trial, and the diversified views that are held in relation to the rendering of the verdict by the jury, has suggested to the Trenton True American that now is an opportune time to secure some consideration for the jury laws of New Jersey, which, it holds, are in serious need of reformation as to the gathering and selection of those available for jury duty. And the True American with characteristic energy and pointedness, takes up the subject and handles it in a manner that indicates good reasoning. The True American argues that one good effect of the Molineux verdict is to point to the fact that the New York method of selecting juries is far ahead of that employed in New Jersey, where the panels are made up by politicians, and where indictment and conviction have been entrusted to men selected by a political officer, often as a means of paying political debts."

As a remedy for the state of affairs which permits of the diversion of justice from its true channel, in order that unworthy causes may be served for the benefit of those who have the requisite "pull" with the official who has the choice of jurors left to his say so, it is suggested that a jury commission in each county, composed of two men, representatives of the two political parties; required to make up every two years lists of all persons competent in age, character and education to form our juries; and obliged to draw each jury from these lists, would secure juries to which every citizen would be willing to leave the decision of any questions likely to arise.

The spirit of the law, of course, presumes that a sheriff shall hold aloof from influences that have only selfish and dishonest ends to serve. But a sheriff is human—and it is human to err. Often times an error on the wrong side is committed unwittingly enough by the official, but once it is done the wrong has been perpetuated and all the sympathy in the world will not right it. Himself a creature of political dickering in those cases, and unavoidably subject to all the subsequent machinations throughout his administration of the office, it is to be expected that a sheriff is fallible in many respects, and none more so than in the selection of proper juries.

A decent appreciation of the very fabric of the justness and probity of the law—the jury—will suggest that the method through which the system obtains practical form, should be removed as far from politics as possible. Leaving the selection of jurors to the judgment of the sheriff contradicting this idea in a direct manner. It is manifest that a reform is needed, and we believe that the suggestions of the True American are practicable and should take firm root in the mind of the public to be agitated and demanded till a change is secured.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union feel that they have secured considerable of an advantage in their contention against the interpretation of the anti-canteen law made by Attorney-General Griggs, in the fact that they have passed over the head of Mr. Griggs and will present their grievances direct to President McKinley. President McKinley has granted a special audience to the White Ribbonners and the latter will use their most convincing and persuasive arguments to secure the prohibition of the sale of intoxicants in the army. If the temperance women persuade President McKinley to act contrary to the construction of the law arrived at by Attorney-General Griggs, they may feel highly complimented. Up to the present time Mr. Griggs' legal opinions have been implicitly adhered to by the Chief Executive, and any variance from that record would be an extraordinary proceeding.

It appears from the Common Council proceedings last night that a special act of the Legislature is required in order that Plainfield may build a city hall. There is no Legislature to be called upon to give its approval to a municipal improvement it is the rule to act favorably at the earliest opportunity if the sentiment of the community effected is partial to the plan. There is a strong and overpowering sentiment in this city in favor of a city hall—as near a unanimity on the subject as it is possible to secure—and there should be no question but that the Legislature should enact the proposed measure with as little loss of time as is possible. Meanwhile, the Council should not hesitate, but condemn's action last night was an unworthy and unpopular deviation from that rule.

When Col. Bryan described New Jersey as "a robbers' roost for the trusts" and as "a cave where the forty thieves meet to divide the swag," he spoke severely for a visitor, but his graphic epithets were none the less true and apt to the situation. New Jersey's treatment of great combinations of capital is a disgrace to the State, and will eventually prove a great source of regret to every fair-minded citizen. True, the State is profiting to some extent at the present time, but it is a gain that is being indirectly sweated out of the people and will never stand the test of time.

Senator Kean expresses himself as convinced of the fairness of abolishing spring elections, but he doubts the wisdom of it at the present time. It is evident that the Senator has no desire to offend either side of the argument in relation to the question of abolishing spring elections.

Made Enough to Buy an Organ.

The members of the Lincoln Sunday-school held a fair Monday in the school at that place and made enough money to purchase a handsome organ from Vanderbeek & Sattels, of this city. Superintendent S. D. Drake was chairman, and he was assisted by Miss Egel, Miss Gulick, Miss Powell and Miss Naylor, teachers in the school. Plans are now being formulated to hold an entertainment at Lincoln on Washington's Birthday for the purpose of raising money with which to purchase an American flag for the Liberty pole near the centre of the town.

BURGLAR WOKE UP VICTIM.

Accidental Striking of Watch Chain Against Headboard of a Bed Starts a Lively Chase.

Dr. C. B. P. Fisher, of Bound Brook, woke up to find a burglar taking a watch and chain from the headboard of his bed Monday morning. The clinking of the chain against the wood awoke Fisher, and the burglar grabbed up a pair of pants and a smoking jacket and started downstairs.

The doctor sitting a revolver followed and when at the head of the stairs turned on the electric switch, which lighted the hall below. The burglar ran toward the rear of the hall, the doctor firing two shots, one of which he believes found its mark. Fisher watched and saw the fugitive run across the lots in the rear of his house and fired two more shots, one of which must also have hit the man, as he uttered a moan and dropped a package he had under one arm. He then disappeared taking with him $17 and the watch.

SMOKE WORSE THAN FOG.

Bayonne, Staten Island and Pilots Fight Constable Hook Nuisance.

Mayor Egbert Seymour, of Bayonne, and the Common Council and Board of Health have fallen in line with the residents of Staten Island in support of Congressman Muller's bill which has for its object the abolition of the smoke nuisance at Constable Hook, which renders a good part of the Staten Island shore almost uninhabitable. Bayonne is almost as much concerned, for when the wind is from the south or east the smoke blows into Bayonne.

It is expected that the foreign steamship lines will aid in urging the passage of the bill. The Sandy Hook pilots, including the New York and New Jersey men, will work to the same end. The Staten Island ferryboat captains and pilots and captains of Newark and Elizabeth boats also favor it.

BREAK IN DAM.

Five Feet of Structure That Holds Water in Hyde's Pond Given Way.

A few days ago about five feet of the dam at Hyde's pond gave way and allowed the water contained therein to run out faster than the owner desired. There was no danger from the accident, but as Mr. Hyde wanted to repair the break he secured permission from Daniel Snyder at the City Mills to open the gates near the mill so that the surplus water would not overflow the banks along the stream. This was done Sunday. The water is now out of the pond and the break in the dam will be repaired at once.

The Memory of Mr. Mayo.

Lawyer William H. Francis, of Newark, chairman of the committee that drew up the resolutions of condolence on the death of Lawyer Francis Elston Marsh at the meeting of the Essex County Bar held in the Chancery chambers last Thursday, moved before Judge Dupee in the Supreme Court circuit Saturday that the resolutions be spread upon the minutes. Judge Dupee readily made the order, and added a few graceful remarks, saying that Mr. Marsh "deserved the trust and confidence that the public and court held him in."

Prizes Finally Awarded.

The long-standing dispute over the bicycles offered for prizes in the bicycle race at Westfield last Fourth of July has at last been settled by Chas. Embleton, who won the race, accepting the wheels offered. Ever since they were delivered they have been at Robinson's bicycle store, but Embleton would not accept them. Friday, however, he decided to take them away.

NEWARK DRAW BRIDGE

FREQUENT CLOSING OF IT DETRIMENTAL TO PASSENGER TRAFFIC.

Many Commutators to Co-operate With Central and Pennsylvania Railroads to Induce United Signal Corps to Move Raised

President Woolston, of the Plainfield Board of Trade, received a communication from J. H. Ohmsen, general superintendent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, requesting him to appoint a committee from the Board to meet with other representatives citizens who are to appear before the United States Signal Corps at Newark Monday to see that the draw bridge across Newark bay be kept closed two hours in the morning and two hours in the late hours of the afternoon for the purpose of facilitating the running of trains across the bay.

The request will come from patrons of both the Central and Pennsylvania Railroad Companies. At present all vessels have the right-of-way and the draw must be closed on signal whenever a sloop, barge or water craft of any description wishes to pass through. One of the provisions agreed upon when the railroad companies were granted a franchise to build the long trestle across Newark bay was that a draw should be constructed and opened at all times when vessels desired to pass through.

Since the railroad business has grown to such vast proportions and the train service of both the Central and Pennsylvania Railroads has increased from a dozen trains a day each way to New York and points in New Jersey, the frequent closing of the draw bridge has become detrimental to the interests of the many commuters who patronize these railroads. In many instances trains are often held for fifteen or twenty minutes, much to the inconvenience of hundreds of people who have business in Jersey City and New York.

It is understood that the Signal Corps Board has the power to give the much desired relief in the premises.

CALDWELL POSTMASTER.

Fowler Recommended Mead, and Some People Want Condit.

Representative C. N. Fowler has recommended the appointment of A. C. Mead as postmaster at the city of Caldwell, but for some reason this does not seem satisfactory to the people of that place, and the request has been made that J. C. Condit should be named for the place. To settle the matter amicably Mr. Fowler has requested the citizens to hold a meeting and to recommend a new name.

Suggests Dr. Carroll.

At the Lincoln dinner of the Methodist Social Union, held in the rooms of the Aldine Association, New York, last Monday, Gen. James F. BIG BUSINESS BLOCK TO BE CONSTRUCTED.

Smalley Brothers Buy Bank Property on North Avenue.

$10,000 PAID FOR THE LOT.

NEW BUILDING WILL BE STARTED IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

Exact Design and Size of the Building Has Not Yet Been Decided Upon, But Two Stores Will Probably Be Had—Lot Has a Frontage of 50 Feet and is 112 Feet Deep.

The ruins of the old Bard Company fire on North avenue that have confronted the crowd of Plainfielders returning from New York every evening for over a year, are to be succeeded by a block of new stores. Saturday afternoon the final negotiations were completed and the property was sold by the First National Bank to Smalley Brothers. The purchase price was $10,000, which is considered considerably below the real worth of the place.

At the time when the Bard Company's store and Corle's livery stable in the rear were destroyed by fire a year ago last October, the property belonged to A. D. Thompson. It afterwards passed into the hands of the First National Bank of this city. There was considerable talk about the erection of a new building there but nothing came out of it. For some time, the Bank has been considering various offers for the property and Saturday it was finally decided to take the one made by Smalley Brothers who conduct a meat market on North avenue nearly opposite. The Smalley Brothers are David C. Smalley, A. I. Smalley and N. B Smalley.

Although the new owners have not yet decided exactly what sort of a building is to be put up, that will be settled shortly. They intend to build there without delay. If the project for opening a new street through to Front street becomes a reality, the property will be on the corner. The new building will probably include two stores, one of which will be occupied by the owners for their meat market. How many stories there will be to the new building is not yet decided.

The property has a frontage on North avenue of 50 feet and is 112 feet deep. Its proximity to the station makes it a valuable site for a store. With the new street cut through, it would become still more valuable.

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

Net Profit for Members Union Building and Loan Association is Reported to be 13 per cent.

The annual meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association of Plainfield was held last Monday in the office of the secretary, Robert A. Meaker, on Park avenue. Four directors, Dr. O. L. Jenkins, Calvin H. Blogg, Curtis M. Thorpe, Charles H. Dunham, were elected to fill the place of members whose terms expired. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Dr. M. B. Long; vice-president, Eugene M. Laing; secretary, Robert A. Meeker; treasurer, R. J. Shaw; counsel, Nelson Runyon.

The report of the secretary showed at unusual healthy condition of affairs in the association. It showed loans or first mortgages during the past eleven months, or from February 11, 1899, to January 5, 1900, amounting to $39,450.00. The net profits to each shareholder is over 13 per cent., which is considered gilt-edged There are 90 shares now in force, 80 individual shareholders. Since the close of the fiscal year there have been received a number of new members and the business is even greater than shown by the figures given. This is one of the best associations of the kind in the State, and is one of the strongest in all points as shown by the actual figures.

Iowa Convention of Letter-Carriers.

The State convention of the National Association of Letter-Carriers was held at Moorestown Monday. Letter-Carriers Neville, Burns, Tingley, Gunther and Hines were present from Plainfield. They took part in the parade and attended the banquet that followed. The Plainfield branch is not a member of the State Association, so they were not represented at the annual meeting of that organization.

Quietly Married.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Gunn, of North Plainfield, and Charles L. Hewitz, an employe in the press room of The Daily Press, were quietly married this evening at 5:30 o'clock at the home of Rev. George Hauser, of Dyer street. They will take up their home at 33 North Watchung avenue.

PLAINFIELDER DONE UP.

THOMAS BRENNAN INJURED BY BRUNSWICK SALOON KEEPER.

Three Plainfielders Were Waiting for a Train and Decided to Get a Drink—Dispute Started, Then Serious Trouble.

According to the New Brunswick Fredonian three Plainfielders came to grief Friday night at William Hall's saloon in Somerset street in that city. As a result it required two policemen, a physician and considerable time before the affair quieted down. Hall is out on bail and one man has gone back to Plainfield in a pretty bad condition.

The men from Plainfield were Thomas Brennan, John Sheehan and Thos. Sheridan. They were at the depot waiting for a train about 2 o'clock Saturday morning and went to Hall's saloon to see what was going on there.

The saloonkeeper was behind the bar and according to his story the trio tried to do him up. The Plainfielders' story is that they got into a dispute and before they could prevent it Hall leaned across the bar and struck Brennan across the head.

Accounts differ as to whether it was a fist or a bottle used, but Brennan was taken to police headquarters bleeding profusely.

Officers Campbell and VanDuersen promptly arrested Hall and he was held under arrest, while Dr. Dudley cared for Brennan.

Then Hall was released on bail. He declared it was done in self-defense and Recorder Kuhn let him go to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The three men missed their car and had to wait around until daylight and go home in a trolley car.

PREPARED FOR THEIR FRIENDS.

Surprise of Mr. and Mrs. Stanbery Was Anticipated by the Couple.

Saturday Mr. and Mrs. William Stanbery, of Fanwood, celebrated the ninth anniversary of their wedding, and an effort was made Friday evening to give them a surprise. The invitations were prepared, however, and they received a few of their friends in royal fashion. After an evening of music and sociability an elaborate dinner was served and it was rather late when the happy evening came to an end. As Saturday was was the day for the celebration Mr. and Mrs. Stanbery remembered it and they entertained some of the older people, friends of Mr. Stanbery's father. There were several guests and all thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of the host and hostess.

City Hotel to Continue Under Beerbower.

The final negotiations between Mr. Maltby, the owner of the City Hotel, and the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company, for the rental of the City Hotel, which were to have been completed Saturday night, fell through owing to a disagreement over terms. It is now understood that John Beerbower, the present lessee, will apply to the Council tomorrow evening for a license and will continue in charge of the hotel.

Did Good Work.

The degree team and a delegation of members from Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, went to Newark Monday evening to attend the session of the council of that city. It was a large gathering of the order, members being present from all over this part of New Jersey. The team from Iona worked the initiatory degree on several candidates. Their work was highly commended.

A Showy Advertising Sign.

Charles Hand has leased the top of the Crescent Rink building to Bamberger, the Newark dry goods dealer, and two immense iron sign boards, each nine feet high and sixty-three feet long are being erected by workmen, which when painted will be the highest and most showy signs in Plainfield. The work of painting the sign will be done by the Plainfield Billposting Company.

An Early Fruit Crop Report.

The prospects for a large fruit crop in Hunterdon county next year are most encouraging. The peach-growers and truckmen report the buds in a healthy condition. Although the winter has not been severe, the growth of the buds has been retarded, so that not little uneasiness is felt for their safety.

Plainfield Cow in Bermuda.

Charles Debels, the milkman, who sold a valuable cow sometime ago to a resident of Bermuda, has just received word from the owner who says that the cow is doing better than promised. She gives twenty-five quarts of milk a day.

Veteran Railroad Engineer Dead.

Lewis R. Everitt, one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, died Friday at his home in Roselle. He was fifty-six years old, and for thirty years had been an engineer on the road. He leaves a family.

High Water Mark.

Monday afternoon there were 371 scholars and teachers in attendance at the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church, the largest in the history of the school, and the room was taxed to nearly its full capacity.

WANT $25,000 DAMAGES

CENTRAL RAILROAD SUED BY ALBERT E. PARK.

He Was Struck by Fast Freight January 25th and Frightfully Injured—Company is Summed for Accident

Albert E. Park, of West Six'h street is about to bring an action against the Central Railroad of New Jersey to recover damages for injuries sustained by his son Harry Park on January 25th, by being struck by a fast train near the Grant Avenue station. Reed & Coddington have been retained by Mr. Park to bring the action. The damages are placed at $25,000. The young man who was injured being but 20 years of age is therefore a minor under the law and the suit will be brought by his father, who is his natural guardian. It will be remembered that Harry Park was struck by a fast east bound train after alighting from a passenger train on the third track. At the time a coal train had been cut loose on the first track. He was frightfully injured and may be a cripple for life. The bones of one of his legs was broken in fifteen places between the knee and ankle and besides being otherwise bruised his shoulder was dislocated. It is possible that the young man may be laid up for many months, even though he may ultimately recover the use of his leg.

LIBERTY ON PROMISES.

Diner, of Metuchen, Pledged Himself Not to Drink, Steal or Beat Wife.

George Dines, a Metuchen peddler, recently sentenced to four months in the Middlesex county jail for stealing brass journals from cars in the yards of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Perth Junction, Metuchen, has been released by Judge Strong under novel conditions.

Dines' case was brought to the attention of the court by a petition signed by a number of the leading people of Metuchen. Rev. Dr. J. G. Mason, pastor of the Metuchen Presbyterian church, was the prime mover in securing signers for the petition. He declared that Dines was ill and that his family were suffering through being deprived of his support.

Judge Strong stated that it had come to his attention that Dines was addicted to drink and treated his wife cruelly. These things, the Judge said, had contributed to his decision to give him a severe sentence, but he declared that if Dines would come into court and solemnly promise that he would never do so again he would discharge him.

Dines was brought into court and solemnly promised that in future he wouldn't drink, he wouldn't steal, and he wouldn't beat his wife. Judge Strong thereupon remitted the remainder of his sentence, and he was discharged.

Changed His Position.

L. C. Provost, of West Sixth street, formerly of Mauch Chunk, where he was chief clerk of the coal supply department of the Jersey Central Railroad Company, has resigned his position and accepted one as manager of a general store for a Mauch Chunk firm that has brought a large tract of valuable property in West Virginia near Oakland, which they will develop. He will leave Plainfield today for the south.

Another City Hall Site.

Another piece of property has been put in the market for a city hall site. It is on West Fourth street between Arlington and Madison avenue and is owned by Mr. Fisher and Thomas Lynch jointly. These men are willing to sell this property at a reasonable figure, and it has many advantages not to be found in some of the other properties.

IDEA OF NEW STREET IS TO BE PUSHED.

Board of Trade Will Take Up the Matter.

TO HOLD A PUBLIC MEETING.

A CONFERENCE WITH RAILROAD OFFICIALS THURSDAY.

The Project is to Have the Railroad Build a Tunnel Big Enough for Street Traffic and Then Purchase Taylor Property and Open New Thoroughfare—Prominent Citizens are Interested.

With the movement to advocate a park and a new station on the south side of the tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad, the project to open up a new thoroughfare from North avenue to Front street, between Park and Watchung avenues, has been linked, and the Board of Trade, Advancement Association and citizens' joint committee will push forward both plans. A conference will be held with the railroad officials Thursday afternoon. Monday night the public will be invited to express the advisability of the new thoroughfare.

The proposed new station on the south side of the track, with passenger tunnels to connect the two stations, and fences between the tracks as a measure of safety, has long been discussed. Last fall both the Board of Trade and the Plainfield Advancement Association took up the agitation and started to make a united effort to secure the long promised improvements. The two committees met and selected a number of prominent citizens to act with them. L. B. Woolston, president of the Board of Trade, was chosen chairman of the commit tee.

When this scheme of opening up a new thoroughfare to the station from the north was first openly advocated a few weeks ago, it was brought to the attention of the joint-committee and found much favor. It was proposed tha the railroad company, instead of putting one tunnel for foot passengers at either end of the station, should make a large thirty foot tunnel opposite the end of the projected thoroughfare. This tunnel would accommodate light passenger vehicles and foot passengers as well, and connect the new street with Fourth and Sycamore streets. The change in the plans of the railroad would make but very little extra cost for the improvement.

The joint-committee held an informal meeting Monday afternoon, but all the members were not able to be present. The joint-committee is made up of former Councilman L. B. Woolston, Charles W. Runyon and School Trustee F. C. Lounsbury, from the Board of Trade, Mayor N. B. Smalley, Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., and Assessor Elston M. French, from the Advancement Association, and Mayor George W. Rockfellow as representative of the city's interests, and a citizens' committee, composed of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Henry G. Runkle, Former Councilman S. A. Dinna, J. Wesley Johnson, president of the First National Bank, Charles H. Hand and others.

A map is now being prepared for the committee by R. A. Meaker, showing the proposed route of the new street. It is intended to have it enter North avenue right opposite the little park just west of the station. It would be bounded on the west by the old First National Bank property, purchased Saturday by Smalley Brothers, and on the east by the Mulford building. The strip thus included is fifty-seven feet wide and is now owned from North avenue to Second street by Rev. J. P. Taylor.

There are no large buildings on the property, only one-story little frame stores and offices. Rev. Mr. Taylor places a value of $75,000 on the property, but some of the members of the committee believe that if condemnation proceedings were started by the city and a commission appointed, a lower valuation would be fixed.

The new street would pass just west of the city property on Second street, making the fire department headquarters on the corner. A narrow strip of the Mrs. Thomas MacDonald property would have to be acquired but the house would not be affected. The Gardner property, one of the proposed sites for the City Hall, would then be at the very head of this new thoroughfare and would be visible from the station.

The cost of this projected improvement would, it is estimated, be about $60,000, $18,000 at least, it is believed, could be raised by assessment and subscription so that the cost to the city would be $25,000, which would probably have to be covered by a bond issue.

Meanwhile the committee has arranged for a conference with the Jersey Central officials which is to be held in the railroad company's offices in Jersey City Thursday afternoon. The committee will then present its plan for the proposed improvements at the station and urge the company to build and also to acquire the Robinson property and make a park on East Fourth street extending to Watchung avenue.

The map of the new thoroughfare will be submitted to the railroad officials as showing what they will try to have the city do in connection with the company's improvements.

Arrangements have also been made for a public meeting to be held in the Board of Trade rooms in the Babcock building Monday evening when everybody will be invited to express themselves regarding the advisability of this projected thoroughfare. The meeting will be held under the joint auspices of the Board of Trade and the Advancement Association.

RAHWAY'S PEANUT CLUB

AN UNIQUE ORGANIZATION WHOSE MEMBERS ARE DEMOCRATS.

Peanut the Chief Topic of Discussion at the Annual Banquets When Grover Cleveland Is Among the Diners—Bryan Also Present.

Col. William J. Bryan, on the occasion of his visit to this city as a guest of James E Martine, was tendered an invition to attend a banquet of the Peanut Club, of Rahway, to be given in the near future. The Peanut Club is an organization of some local reputation and its membership is made up of prominent Democrats and representative citizens living in Rahway and vicinity. Among those prominent in the affairs of the club are Hon. Moses H. Acken, Commodore Silas Leonard, ex-Freeholder Samuel Halliday and ex-Clerk of Freeholders Alford D. Cook. The meetings of the club are held weekly, though during exciting political campaigns the members gather nightly to discuss the affairs of the party. Peanuts are the emblem of the organization.

Everything about the club rooms has the flavor of the indigestible "guber." Even the gavel used by the chairman when presiding over the deliberations of this august body has its handle covered with peanut shells.

At the banquet of this well-known club, held annually, but to which few outsiders are invited, a large dish of peanuts always graces the table. At this banquet the statistician of the club, A. D. Cook, is always charged with the duty of delivering an essay on the value of the peanut as a food-product, the enormous output in the United States and the part it plays as an export commodity. Mr. Cook, who is considered an oracle of the club, is called upon to answer various questions that are propounded by the members of the club with relation to the peanut. J. E. Martine, of this city, is an honorary member of the club, and will be its guest on the occasion of its next annual banquet in Rahway.

FUNERAL OF MRS. TREWIN.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck Referred Tenderly to the Little One Left Motherless

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Minnie Trewin were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rockafellow, 132 East Front street. The services were in charge of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Dr. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church. The latter read the Scripture selection and offered prayer, after which remarks were made by Dr. Schenck. He referred tenderly to the little one who is left motherless.

During the service two beautiful selections were sung by Mrs. Manley. After those present had viewed the remains interment took place in Evergreen Cemetery. Those who served as pall-bears were Frank Hahd, Bert Naylor, Samuel Terry, Jr. and Theodore Kurzhals, Jr.

WEAVER OUTWITTED BY AN INNOCENT KID.

Jumped From a Window in the Toilet Room

MADE GOOD HIS ESCAPE.

STANLEY S. CHILDS IS A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE.

He is an Incorrigible Youth Who Has Been Stealing From His Mother—Justice Moffatt Had Held Him for the Grand Jury—His Mother the Woman Whom John K. Ichle Tried to Kill Last August.

Peter V. Weaver, the well-known constable, has in possession a commitment paper to take a prisoner to the Elizabeth jail, but he cannot find the prisoner. The prisoner is only a boy, but he has proved too slick for the officer, who is making inquiries about the city for a small-sized boy wearing a cap and having an innocent expression. The boy in question is Stanley B. Childs, the fourteen year-old son of Mrs. Mary E. Childs, of 14 Clinton avenue.

The youth gives every indication of being a modern Jack Sheppard. Though small of his age and possession an air of innocence Stanley is nothing less than a bad boy, so bad in fact that his mother can do nothing with him. For some months the boy has been helping himself to what cash he could find in his mother's pocket book. Stanley's repeated stealings finally led his mother to decide to send him to a reform school.

The incorrigible lad was arrested by Constable Weaver and Saturday brought before Justice Moffett, who held him to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of petit larceny. His mother was the complainant. While the magistrate was making out the commitment, Stanley made a request to visit the toilet room. Constable Weaver took the boy to the end of the hall where he waited his return.

Now Constable Weaver is a patient man, and did not mind waiting in the hall five minutes, but when ten minutes had passed and the innocent little Stanley failed to return the constable began to investigate.

But his investigations were fruitless, as far as the boy was concerned. The prisoner was not in the closet. The innocent Stanley, in police parlance, had "flew the coop." The toilet room was unoccupied. Instantly all was excitement in the Marsh building, particularly in the justice's court.

Justice Moffett ran one way, Constable Weaver another, and ex-Sheriff Kyte and J. Emmons Henry came in collision in the hallway.

"He's gone, sure enough," exclaimed Peter, retiring from his investigations, which resulted in the discovery that the fugitive Stanley had made a window of the toilet room, and had either leaped or dropped to the alley beneath, a distance of about twenty feet.

Stanley unceremoniously eluded the law's grasp and left behind a pasteboard box containing a book and some nick-nacks that his mother had put up for him. Among the articles in the box were several envelopes, with stamps upon them, that had been directed to his mother, evidently placed in the box by the fond parent so that Stanley, who is her only child, might write to her from the Reform School. The box and contents is still in the possession of Constable Weaver.

CLEVER CHARACTER SKETCHES.

Lieut. Charles E. Scott Entertained at Franklin School Friday Night.

A good-sized audience assembled at the Franklin School last Friday and listened to a programme of recitations by Charles E. Scott, of Indianapolis. He gave character sketches from the writings of Eugene Field, James Whitcomb Reilly, Mark Twain and other popular authors, and he kept his audience interested from start to finish.

Among the selections given there was fun and pathos and Lieut. Scott exhibited rare ability in his portrayal of the various characters. He was given a warm reception and all went away well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Takes a Position as a Teacher.

Miss Ethel Hayes, of Leonardsville, N. Y., formerly critic at the Geneseo Normal School, New York, has taken a position as teacher at the Whittier Public School, filling the place of Miss Lena Tomlinson, of West Fifth street, who is confined at home with illness.

Valuable Dog Poisoned.

A valuable St. Bernards dog, the property of H. O. Bowers, of Franklin place, was taken ill suddenly Friday and at once sent down a large one and handsomely marked. It is supposed that the dog was poisoned.

Westfield Juniors Expected.

At the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., on the evening of Washington's Birthday, the members will enjoy a visit from the Juniors of Westfield. There will be some special features in the way of entertainment.

DANCED THE COTILLION.

COTILLION CLUB ENTERTAINED BY MRS J. W. REINHART.

Last Dance of the Club Before Lent—What L-d by Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart and George VanBokerck.

The activity of the Cotillion Club is now over until after Lent. The last cotillion before the Lenten season was danced Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, of Bellview avenue. As the last of this series of very enjoyable social events. It proved a more elaborate affair than most of the previous ones.

The membership of the Cotillion Club numbers sixty. There were fifty present last evening. The cotillion was led by Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart and George VanBokerck. The favors were novel and attractive while a number of pretty figures were arranged. The peculiar were the "golf" figures and the "clothesline" figure.

Mrs. J. B. Reinhart was assisted in receiving the guests by her daughter, Mrs. Edward M. VanBuren. The ladies at the favor table were Mrs. William E. Lowe, Mrs. Frederick H. Andrews, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards and Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers. The parlors were handsomely decorated for the dance. After the cotillion supper was served and general dancing followed.

QUIET WEDDING

Miss M. Agnes Blair Married to Dr. A. W. Anderson at Bride's Home Monday Night.

A quiet wedding was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, of East Second St., Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss M. Agnes Blair was married to Dr. A. W. Anderson, of Watchung avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The marriage was very simple, the couple being unattended and only the relatives being present. The bride wore a becoming travelling gown. A wedding supper followed and then the newly wedded couple left on a short trip. On their return, they will take up their residence in New York, where the groom is cashier in the banking house of J. Pierpont Morgan.

LATE F. E. MARSH EULOGIZED.

Essex County Bar Association Adopted Resolutions.

The Essex County Bar Association, at a largely attended meeting held in Chancery chambers Thursday afternoon, adopted resolutions of sympathy and regret in relation to the death of Francis Elston Marsh. The memorial drafted characterized Mr. Marsh as a man of sterling integrity, and in conclusion declared: "In his long and varied practice, by reason of his learning in the law, genial disposition, sense of justice, exemplary habits, uniform courtesy, particularly to his juniors, he won the deserved friendship, respect and confidence of the profession generally and of others with whom he came in contact."

A Pleasant Surprise.

A pleasant surprise was tendered last Friday to Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Townsend, of East Front street by a few of their friends. Mr. Townsend was just leaving the house to go down town when he met the surprisers in front of his home. He returned with them and a very enjoyable time was had. During the evening there were selections by W. C. Townsend, mandolin; Harry Stewart, piano; Ernest Wilcox, flute. Before the guests departed they were served with refreshments and added to the pleasure of the occasion.

Officers Installed.

A meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., was held Thursday night. Four candidates were initiated. Over seer Thorn sent in his resignation which was accepted and Charles Hepburn was elected to fill the unexpired term. Acting Deputy Grand Master Workman Edward M. Mosher then installed Overseer Hepburn, Financier William Newcorn and Receiver Charles H. Randolph. The two last named officers were absent when the other officers were installed.

A Muddy Crossing.

Although various protests have been made to the Mayor and the street committee, there still remains a very muddy crossing at the corner of Franklin place and Putnam avenue. There is no connection between the sidewalk and crosswalk so that pedestrians are compelled to wade through mud which is sometimes several inches deep.

Opposition Overcome.

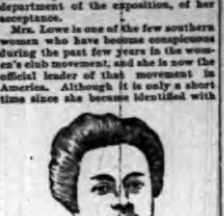
It is given out by those interested in the project that all obstacles have finally been removed and that the Plainfield Street Railway will extend its line from Somerset street up to Watchung. It is possible that the trolley line may also be built as far as Stirling before the end of the summer.

Lost $10.

Henry Miller, of Putnam and Carlton avenues, was a loser of $10 last Wednesday when Bryan visited the city. Mr. Miller was good natured over his loss, and a good deal of salt will repaid for the opportunity of hearing and seeing Bryan.

MRS. LOWE HONORED.

Georgia Lady Appointed to Represent the Club Women of America at the Paris Exposition.



MRS. WILLIAM BELL LOWE.
(President for America of the Woman's Board of the Paris Exposition.)

Mrs. William Bell Lowe, of Atlanta, Ga., president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has received notice of her appointment as honorary president for America of the woman's board of the Paris exposition, and has notified Mme. Poquard, leader of the woman's department of the exposition, of her acceptance.

Mrs. Lowe is one of the few southern women who have become conspicuous during the past few years in the women's club movement, and she is now the official leader of that movement in America. Although it is only a short time since she became identified with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, of which she is the president, Mrs. Lowe has been long known in the south as a wealthy and philanthropic woman. She has a handsome home in the aristocratic quarter of Atlanta, and there dispenses notable hospitality amid the most luxuriant surroundings.

First attracted to club life during the Cotton States and International exposition, she became imbued with the idea at once, and it was at her home that the Woman's club of Atlanta was born. From this beginning the Georgia Federation grew, and Mrs. Lowe was unanimously elected its president. In 1898 she was elected presiding officer of the general federation at the Denver convention. The work of spreading the club idea among the women of the south fell to her lot, and few have any complaint to make of the success she has made in that somewhat stubborn field.

Mrs. Lowe has crossed the meridian of life, but she is still youthful in appearance, and though not a large woman has an imposing appearance and is an excellent and impressive speaker. She is of rather slight stature, her eyes are blue, and her brown hair is tinged with gray. She wears eyeglasses, dresses with elegance and taste and has the charming, easy manners that pertain to the best type of the south. How she is held in estimation of the members of the general federation may be gathered from the fact that she—a southerner—could find friends enough to carry her to the exceptional post of this tremendously large body of American women, the vast majority of whom live in the north.

Before her marriage Mrs. Lowe was one of the most beautiful and popular belles in the south. She has a son and a married daughter.

FOR THE BRIDE-ELECT.

Linen, Book and Rose Showers Are Becoming Popular All Over the Country.

The bride of to-day is being made the recipient of many social honors. All her girl friends pay her tribute by these pretty entertainments, and the popular maid must be ready for her wedding several weeks before the event transpires, for at each of the functions she is supposed to wear one of her trousseau gowns. Most of these affairs are luncheons or breakfasts, each with a special feature. A "linen shower," for instance, consists of each guest bringing a piece of linen, a doiley, centerpiece or bureau scarf, whatever one chooses, and as the party leaves the table the pieces are thrown at the bride-to-be.

For a "book shower" each guest brings a book appropriately inscribed to her friend, with a sentiment which the giver fancies. Of course, each hostess can use her own ideas in planning her entertainment, and in her invitations puts in one corner what each guest is to bring for the honored one. "Teaspoons," "cups and saucers," "plates" and "sofa pillows" are all acceptable. These contributions go toward furnishing the bride's new home with memories of her girlhood days and friends. The "rose shower" should be left for the last affair before the wedding, and as the bride departs an immense vase filled with rose petals is burst over her head, and each maid throws a handful of the fragrant blossoms, signifying the hope that her future may be rose-strewn. The bag is made of linen paper and the girls will all have been saving their rose petals for weeks for this occasion.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Gold and Silver Purses.

Of sterling gold are the links of the wee purse. The gold mount is particularly handsome. These little purses are also seen in sterling silver and in steel. The steel are handsomer than the silver, but, of course, the golden purse is far and away the most gorgeous of them all.

The Cause for Crystal.

The sparkle of crystal for the moment rivals the shimmer of silver on my lady's toilet table. Its trays, boxes, bottles, everything to which it can be adopted, appears the cut and engraved crystal, with, of course, more or less silver ornamentation.

NERO AND HIS TOMB.

Although Reputed to Be the Burial Place of the Incendiary Tyrant, It Is in Reality the Grave of Publius Vibius Marianus.

Fifty miles from "Turia del Popolo," on the celebrated "Via Cassia" leading into Rome, is a singular monument, the so-called tomb of Nero. It is the tomb of Publius Vibius Marianus, as seen by the inscription; and truly to those seeing it for the first time it stands out as an imposing monument, with its classic outlines, high upon its basement, along the historical ancient road.

The colossal proportions of the sarcophagus, its funereal shape, the solitude of the place, give a mysterious fantastic appearance to this grand old relic; so that the popular imagination attributed it to Nero, who has remained in tradition as the type of wickedness. Instead of which, however, the first persecutor of the Christians, the incendiary of Rome—and it may have been for a good purpose — was buried at the foot of the Collis hortulorum, that hill which remained for a long time desolate and awe inspiring near the ruins of the Pincio; the delightful garden and public promenade of Rome.

Perhaps in times of neglect, when the earth sloped down from the top of the hill, the tomb remained hidden below and perhaps it is still there, near the Porta Flaminia on the eastern side of the "Piazza del Popolo."

And there was shown a tower, where according to the popular belief, on dark nights appeared the ghost of Nero; and the tower now called the tower of Nero is the ancient topographical map of the city of Rome it is marked in that spot with the inscription below: "Tower where the spirit of Nero dwelt for a long time."

This tower, however, is not to be mistaken for the other old "Tower of Nero" still in existence, which is otherwise called the tower of the Militiae This is an imposing medieval tower slightly bending on one side, which is still to be seen at the bottom of the "Via del Quirinale," where the "Via Nazionale" and "Via Panisperna" join not far from the remains of the walls of Servius Tullus, which appear in the little central garden, and from the Porta Fontinalis, which can still be seen in its integrity at the entrance of the staircase of Palazzo Antonelli close by.

From the tower it is a popular saying that Nero watched Rome burning, revelling in the sight and declaiming, it the dress of a play actor, he, the great artist, wrote some verses upon the destruction of Troy.

Other places, which, with or with out reason, were associated with him retained for a long time his name. The "Prati di Castello," so remarkably changed now, were called in the middle ages the Neronian, the meadows of Nero, in the famous medieva guide, entitled "Mirabilia Urbis Romae," is found recorded the Obelisqum Neronis, the Aerarium Neronis, the Thermae Neronis, and even the Templum Neronis. There was also a Cisterna Neronis, where it is said he took refuge to protect himself against the Roman rebels, who followed him with the intention of killing him.

And, in fact, a few miles distance from Rome, not far perhaps from this so-called tomb of Nero, he took refuge in the country house of his freedman Phaon, and after many hesitations and indecisions, exclaiming: "Qualis artifex pereo!" succeeded in wounding himself mortally in the throat, with the assistance of Epaphroditus, his secretary, at the moment in which the centurion, sent to arrest him by the senate, arrived upon the scene.

When Nero was dead, so Suetonius says, his nurse Eclage, with Alexandra and Acte, the famous concubine, having wrapped his remains in rich white cloth, embroidered with gold, deposited him in the Domitian monument, the monument of his family, which was at the end of the Campus Martius, under the hill of gardens, the Collis hortulorum. The sarcophagus was of porphyry, having in front an altar of Carrara marble, and was surrounded by a balustrade of Grecian marble.

Seven Out of Eight.

BLIGHT FOLLOWS CURSE.

Strange Story of the Misfortunes of a Former Governor of Illinois Who Opposed Mormonism.

A strange story comes from Salt Lake City to the effect that former Gov. Ford, of Illinois, died in the most abject poverty, with the curse of his God literally protruding, and that this deplorable end of one of Illinois' best known statesmen was directly due to curses pronounced upon him by the great Mormon prophet, Joseph Smith.

The fact that Ford was governor of Illinois during the Mormon war and at the time of Smith's assassination gave a certain credence to the rumor. After leaving his office as governor Mr. Ford moved to Peoria, and his body now lies buried at Springdale cemetery. Careful investigation recently practically substantiates the claims of the western Mormons. It is true that Gov. Ford, as the representative of the law which was pounding their sect, incurred the deadly hatred of the Mormons, and their leader and prophet. Old residents of this city also state that they can recall an old rumor of a curse against Gov. Ford, and they talk at length of the conditions surrounding the death and the end of his family.

Gov. Ford was a brilliant man of the highest principles, and was eminently successful as a lawyer. But after the expiration of his term of office, and soon after the alleged curse was pronounced, he ceased to be as prosperous as formerly. He came to Peoria and established a practice here, but misfortune followed him, his property dwindled away, and then, as a final blow, illness intervened and one night the Ford's Peoria home burned to the ground. At the time of Mrs. Ford's death the family had been reduced to poverty, and the two daughters had been adopted by friends who could afford to educate them. Ex-Gov. Ford survived his wife but a few years, and all discomforts of poverty closed thickly about him. He tasted the full bitterness of illness, destitution and dependence, and died under the most deplorable conditions.

The last son, who had been adopted by a resident of this city, Thomas Moore by name, had embarked on a life career which promised to be prosperous, when he was suddenly called west on business. He was crossing the plains on horseback, when he fell into the vigilance committee looking for a horse thief and hungry for its prey. The stolen stock had been found in the vicinity of the spot where they encountered Ford, and they seized him on the charge. In vain he denied the charge, and said he was Tom Moore, of Peoria. Upon further questioning, however, he unluckily mentioned that he was a son of ex-Gov. Ford, of Illinois, whereupon the leader said: "An honest man never travels under two names," and the unfortunate young Ford was swung to the nearest tree.

The daughter of Gen. Ford has drifted entirely out of sight of the world and no one knows the present fate of her. And this great tragedy of life and death in the family of the Fords, the Mormons claim, is the result of the curse of their prophet.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MARYLAND GOOSE HUNTING.

How the Gunners Go About It Along the Shores of Chesapeake Bay.

A blind in the form of a pit is made in the sand on shore near where the geese and swans are known to rest at night. White woolen blankets are spread in and around the blind to make it comfortable, and corn is strewn within 30 yards of it. After nightfall the hunters hide themselves in the pit, wrapping in the white blankets which cannot be detected from the white sand of the beach by the water fowls. Absolute silence is maintained.

From far out in the bay comes the familiar "honk, honk" of the incoming flock, and the hunters get down low in the pit. The geese alight near the end of the beach and soon are in shallow feeding water. The "watch goose" which always stands guard and which never seems to eat or sleep, makes a reconnaissance in advance of the flock and finds the corn. If, after a close inspection of the surroundings, he is satisfied of safety, he calls the flock to the feast by responding. The geese, looming up in the night, look as big as ostriches from the blind. When within range the signal to fire is given in pantomime by the leader of the hunters, and the firing happens when the big No. 6 guns boom.

Some geese are killed outright, others are wounded so they cannot fly, and those unhurt take to instant flight. As they rise another volley is poured into the flock. The dead and wounded birds are retrieved by trained Chesapeake bay dogs, if the hunters have them, otherwise by the hunters themselves, who rush into the icy water, pursuing first the wounded birds, and afterward bringing in the dead ones. This ends the shooting from that blind that night.

At times there is a cold, tiresome, all-night wait with no results. No geese are within range of position. The shells are loaded with six or seven drachms of powder and from two to three ounces of B. B. chilled shot.—Baltimore Sun.

SUBMARINE ARC LIGHT.

The Invention of Two Yale Undergraduates, Francis C. Hall, Jr., and T. E. Burdick.

Francis C. Hall, Jr., and T. E. Burdick, two Yale boys, have invented the first successful submerged is submarine arc light.

Hall and Burdick became interested in the idea of a submarine light at the time the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. Before the war was over they had invented a light that worked successfully at great depths below the surface of the water. Since then they have perfected their invention. The United States government has tested the lamp and found it highly successful. Great Britain, Germany and Russia have within the last month placed large orders for the lights.

Their invention is the most important ever achieved by undergraduates, and it promises to bring them into a big business almost before they are out of college. Both are bright young men. They both come from Dansville, N. Y., where as children they played marbles together and made mechanical toys.

Soon after the explosion of the Maine Messrs. Burdick and Hall, working together, conceived the idea of submerging an arc light to expose and examine the wreck. It will be readily seen that as an aid to divers such a contrivance is invaluable. Heretofore only incandescent lamps of small candle power have been used. The arc lamps, however, give off any degree of candle power. Those tested at the New York navy yard were of about 2,000 candlepower.

Messrs. Burdick and Hall began their experiments in March, 1897, but were interrupted by the war. In which they served as electricians, assisting in the laying of the mines of New Haven harbor.

The first requisite for a lamp of this kind was a watertight inclosing case, containing the carbons and an automatic feeding apparatus, the whole to be sufficiently strong to resist the water pressure at depths varying from ten to two hundred feet. Another difficulty to overcome was the inside gas pressure caused by the combustion of the arc. This is relieved by a special check valve.

Heretofore experimenters have operated on the theory that air is essential to economical submarine arc light combustion and have supplied air to the arc by rubber tubes, but Messrs. Burdick and Hall have rendered this unnecessary.

A NEW GUESSING GAME.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT AT TRINITY CHURCH SOCIABLE.

Under the Auspices of Social Committee of the Christian Endeavor Society—Large Crowd—Three to Charge.

Friday evening at the Trinity Reformed church, under the auspices of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor Society, there was held one of the best sociables in the history of the society. It was attended by nearly 200 persons.

A programme consisting of music and recitations was given. Elmer D. Cutting, accompanied by Miss Winckler on the piano, rendered several tenor solos, and there were a number of recitations by Miss Lucy Pound and Miss Murphy that were well given and received. A piano duet by Miss Nellie Winckler and Miss Eva Wilkins brought to a close this programme.

The other part of the programme was quite as enjoyable and proved to be very interesting. Three tables were arranged in the centre of the room upon which were placed about thirty representations of various flowers and foliage. These pictures were then supposed to interpret them and write the result on a piece of paper. Some of the answers were very amusing and caused no end of fun. The representations were also amusing and kept everyone guessing for a time.

As an example there was a dish of peas covered with sugar representing sweet peas. Another one was a picture of a fool with a corn on a toe, representing "corned fool." "Maiden-hair fern" was represented with a lock of a woman's hair tied with a small ribbon, and "tulips" was represented by a picture of two lips in close proximity. Miss Wyman was the most successful contestant, she guessing thirty out of the thirty-one representations.

After everyone had thoroughly enjoyed this part of the entertainment, refreshments were served by the social committee, assisted by the reception committee, consisting of young men. The social committee to whom the credit for the affair is due is composed of Miss Edith Dubois, chairman; Miss Viola Huff, Miss Nellie Fenner, Mrs. Bertha Richards, Mrs. E. E. Anthony and Miss Bessie Martin. Everyone present agreed that it was one of the best socials held in a long time.

OLD SHIPMATES MEET.

Captain Morrison Entertaining Capt. Dubell at His Home.

Captain Dubell, whose native home is in Alameda county, California, has been the guest of his old friend, Captain George D. Morrison, of Fairfield avenue. About eighteen years ago, which was the last time the two captains met, Capt. Dubell was chief mate under Capt. Morrison, and the two were always fast friends. The former happened to be in New York, and was only too glad to visit his friend in this city. Capt. Dubell will sail in about a week on the "Lahulani," meaning "High Heaven," for San Francisco. This ship was built at Bath, Me., by the Sewalls. She is loaded with general cargo. Capt. Dubell has an interest in the ship, which is a new one, and this will be her first trip of such a long voyage.

A Lively Runaway.

A horse driven by Richard Higgins and attached to one of Drake & Mundy's delivery wagons, became frightened on West Front street, near Madison avenue, Saturday and collided with a farmer's wagon. The shafts were broken and the horse ran up the street. He was captured near Plainfield avenue. The animal took fright at some workmen about a man-hole opposite Madison avenue. The farmer's wagon was not injured.

Death of Mrs. Trewin.

The death of Mrs. Richard H. Trewin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rockafellow, occurred Friday a. m. at the home of the parents, 312 East Front street, after an illness extending over a period of four years. Death was due to consumption. For several days past Mrs. Trewin was in a semi-conscious condition and scarcely recognized anyone. She is survived by a husband, whose whereabouts are not known, and a daughter.

Charles Dupee Contaminated.

WHOLESALE ARREST OF COAL THIEVES.

Raid Made by Detectives and Police Friday Night.

ALL HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

TONS OF BLACK DIAMONDS FOUND IN THEIR POSSESSION.

It is Said the Gang Have Made a Practice of Boarding Coal Trains at Greenbrook Tanks and Throwing Off Coal in Large Quantities, and Then Picking it up in Bags Which They Carried.

A wholesale arrest of coal thieves was made Thursday by Central Railroad Detective William J. Dougherty, Sergeant Kiely, Patrolman McCarthy and two Central Railroad officers.

The men arrested are Eugene Wheeler, John Ward, Patrick Meehan, John Laird, Clarence Wheeler, John Richards and James Wheeler. For many months the Central Railroad Company has been annoyed by a gang of men who make a business of boarding coal trains up near the "tanks" west of Dunellen and when the trains reached a point near this city throw off quantities of coal.

The company suspected that the thieves were making a business of stealing the coal and selling it to various people at a reduced rate. All kinds of coal was stolen and tons of both stove, chestnut and lump coal has been thrown from the coal cars. The lump coal was the most in demand, presumably because it could be the more conveniently handled.

Detective Dougherty and his assistants have for a long time been on the look out for the coal thieves. Recent development led Dougerty to suspect both of the Wheelers and Ward. Wheeler lives at 1781 West Front street in the vicinity of the Naylor Paint Works. The others occupy houses in what is familiarly known as the "Eight Row."

Thursday Detective Dougherty and his assistants secured the services of Sergt. Kiely and Patrolman McCarthy. The officers surprised the inmates by making them a call and evincing a desire to search their homes. The search did not surprise Detective Dougherty and his officers as much as it did the Plainfield police.

In the barns and cellars of the suspected men were found several tons of coal. At the home of Eugene Wheeler was found about a ton and a half of lump coal. At John Ward's home fully two tons of coal were discovered in the cellar. A ton and a half of chestnut and steamboat coal was unearthed at the home of John Richards. In a barn at the home of Clarence Wheeler there was brought to light about 12,000 pounds of lump coal while nearly five tons of chestnut and stove coal was found concealed in the cellar. John Laird's supply of coal was not as great as that at some of his neighbors, only one ton of stove coal being found in his cellar. It is estimated that in all there were fully ten tons of coal found at the homes of these men.

The men were placed under arrest and brought down to the station house and locked up. Friday morning they were arraigned before Justice Nash and held to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of larceny.

James Wheeler, father of Clarence Wheeler, was also arrested charged with being the receiver of stolen goods. James Wheeler's bail was fixed at $200 and that of John Ward at $100. The others were held in $50 bail each.

When arraigned the accused men had nothing to say. It is understood that John Ward had used a horse and wagon to carry away the stolen coal. Clarence, the younger of the Wheeler boys, admits having thrown coal from passing coal trains. Ward claims that the coal found at his home had been picked up along the railroad tracks.

MISS HARTFELDER SURPRISED

A Party of Friends Paid Her an Unexpected Visit Thursday Night.

A surprise party was given to Miss Annie Hartfelder, of Grove street, Thursday. It was arranged by Miss Annie Schlick and Jos. Robinson. Dancing was the feature of the occasion and it was early this morning when the guests departed for their homes. Those present were: The Misses Annie Schlick, Gussie Klinsman, Mable Ayers, Bessie Walls, Eva Doeringer, Jennie DeCamp, Edith Robinson, Ella Wheeler, Maggie Bichert, Florence Bichert, Flora Roseberry, Alice Davis, Lillie Hartfelder, Minnie Burke, Mary McCauley, Eddie Grunnell, W. THE FIREMEN'S DANCE.

CITY OFFICIALS IN PLENTY ATTENDED THE AFFAIR.

Given Under the Auspices of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association—Over 300 Were in Attendance.

The elements did not favor the firemen's ball held in Washington Hall Thursday, but the public did and the public was in the majority. The ball was, in consequence, a decided success, and netted a goodly sum for the treasury of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association.

There was a good turnout and numbers of city officials honored the ball with their presence for a little time. The dancing began at 9:30 o'clock with music by Prof. O'Reilly and continued without interruption until well along into the morning. Of course, the stormy weather did have its effect on the attendance, but there was a good crowd, over 300 being present, and the sale of tickets in advance made it even more successful.

J. E. Bailey looked after the box-office, Fred Breem was in charge of the refreshment department, while Harry Bush and J. Daly were in command on the floor. The committee of arrangements under which the dance was conducted consisted of Wm. F. Towsley, president; W. A. Rose, vice president; Fred Breem, secretary; J. H. Daly, treasurer; H. C. Bush, J. E. Daly, Geo. Felring, L. M. Dunavan and George Mebl, Jr.

HIS DEATH WAS SUDDEN.

Apoplexy Cut Henry Force's Life Short Without Warning—An Exempt Fireman.

The community was startled Friday morning to learn of the sudden death of Henry Force, aged about 60 years of New street. Death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Force has been in his usual good health, although during the past year he had complained of heart trouble. He was not able to work yesterday on this account. When he was taken ill this morning Drs. Adams and Tomlinson were summoned, but Mr. Force was dead when they arrived. His death was a great shock to the family and neighbors. Mr. Force has been a resident of this city for many years. He was a carpenter by trade and always worked at it. He was a member of old Gamble Engine Company, and later joined the Exempt Firemen's Association. He leaves a wife, three daughters, one of whom is married, and four sons.

OLD HORSEMAN DEAD

Henry Hayes Died at His Home Friday Morning at the Age of Eighty-five Years.

Henry Hayes, aged 85 years, who has been a resident of Plainfield for the past sixteen years, died Friday morning at his home, 1106 Dunellen avenue, after a long illness with a complication of diseases. Mr. Hayes was a well-known person in this vicinity, and was a great lover of horses. He owned a trotter; "Andy," and was always a familiar figure on the track at the Gentlemen's Driving Park at the matinee races. His wife died a number of years ago. Mr. Hayes was born in New York City, spending the early part of his life there. Mrs. James Morrison, of this city, and another married daughter survives him. The funeral services were held from the late home Monday afternoon last at 4 o'clock. Interment was private.

AN INFORMAL RECEPTION.

Chief and Mrs. Grant Arranged a Pleasant Affair for Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller.

Chief and Mrs. George W. Grant gave an informal reception Thursday at their home on West Fifth street to their daughter, Mrs. Louis Miller, and her husband, who were recently married. The parlors and dining room were thrown together for the accommodation of the guests who numbered sixty and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Miss Grunnell, of Ocean Grove, a niece of Chief and Mrs. Grant, gave several recitations, and there was also some instrumental music. The little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mc Vey quite captivated the party with the cakewalk they gave. Refreshments were served during the evening and the gathering broke up about midnight.

Entertained Euchre Club.

The Thursday Night Euchre Club was entertained Thursday by Mrs. Bertha Thorn, of Watt place. The social club membership was present and the customary prizes were awarded. Before the guests departed delightful refreshments were served by the hostess.

Advise Opening of Road.

The commission appointed by the Court to consider the application for a new road through from Highland avenue to Grasselend Depot has reported favorably on the opening of the road.

Father Smyth's Euchre Party.

The Rev. Father Smyth gave a euchre party to the choir of St. Mary's church Friday evening at the Catholic Club rooms on Liberty street, that proved a pleasant affair.

HOUSEHOLD INFORMATION.

Some Suggestions Which May Prove of Use to the Busy Housekeeper.

Smoke stains are removed by soaking the ivory in naphtha; yellow stains by rubbing with powdered pumice-stone and soapsuds. If the article is one that can be put under glass, wet it with soapsuds and put it in the sun under a glass globe, wetting it frequently. Another method is to soak it in a dilute sulphuric acid bath, or in a soda bath, using ten ounces of soda to three pints of water.

Belts, shoes, gloves, etc., of white kid may be cleaned in the following manner: Mix together equal quantities of finely powdered alum and pipe clay or fuller's earth. Dip a piece of flannel in the dry powder and rub the soiled kid with it. When thoroughly cleaned brush with a piece of clean flannel, and then rub the kid with bran to remove the earth and alum. Wipe with soft, clean cloth.

Cut a pound of mutton suet into fine shreds and put it in a stone or earthen bowl. Place the bowl in a pan of hot water and change, stirring frequently until there is enough clear melted tallow to fill a half-pint cup. Turn this tallow into a bowl, and as it begins to thicken beat into it half a teaspoonful of carbolic acid. This is excellent for chapped hands, and is also good to rub on the feet when they are tired or when one has chilblains.

For light furs, mix together a pint of flour, a pint of bran and a tablespoonful of fuller's earth. Brush and shake the furs; then lay them on a table and rub with the above mixture, using a coarse piece of flannel, and rubbing the wrong way of the fur. Shake out all the cleaning material and go over the fur again in the same way, using only bran this time. Shake out the bran and wipe the fur with cheesecloth. Dark furs are cleaned in the same way, save that hot bran alone is used. Heat the bran in a double boiler, or it may be heated in the oven.

There are two causes of greasy lamps. The oil expands in a warm room, and, if too much oil has been put into the lamp, naturally a little will leak out. The other and more common cause of oil on the outside of the lamp is that the wick is kept too high when the lamp is not lighted. The wick draws the oil to the surface. When the lamp is burning the oil is consumed, but when it is not burning the oil accumulates at the top of the burner if the wick is not turned low. When filling lamps do not fill to the top, and keep the wicks low.

Feathers may sometimes be deodorized by exposing them to a high temperature. This is accomplished by steaming them, as is done at some cleaning establishments, or by baking them in the oven, or by exposing them to the heat of the sun. At times the latter methods fail. The following method is always sure to be satisfactory: Put the feathers in a large bag of white mosquito netting and soak them for two hours in chloride of lime water, then rinse in several waters and dry in the open air. The feathers must be put loosely in the bag and the bag shaken frequently while they are drying. Allow half a pound of chloride of lime to eight pailfuls of water, and be sure that the lime is dissolved.—Ladies' Home Journal.

SHE WAS THOUGHTFUL.

Saved Her Husband the Trouble of Cashing Railway Tickets.

"You've all read lots of jokes about the woman who gets up in the dead of the night to rifle her husband's pockets," said a man to an Inquirer reporter. "They usually confine themselves to the purloining of what small change happens to be there. But here's a case I know of, of a woman in West Philadelphia, who showed much more enterprise than that, and who, I think, deserves the palm.

"It happened the other night. The woman's husband is a traveling man, and is now home for a couple of weeks. He was out the other night, and as he did not get in until between two and three o'clock in the morning he was pretty sleepy, and his slumber was resultantly heavy. His wife happened to be out of change at the time, and she thought of the old way of getting it. She got up quietly and proceeded to go through the suit which her husband had just taken off. There was not a cent of change to be found, and she was with dismay that the smallest thing was a ten dollar bill. She hadn't nerve enough to take that, and she was rather in despair for a moment. Then she came upon a little bundle of tickets bound with an elastic. Her face brightened up, and she pocketed the package in her jewel box.

"The next morning the clerk at the redemption office of one of the railroads paid out $2.22 for some seven unused return coupons, and the woman and her self-satisfied air to spend her ill-gotten gains. And when she told a friend, and the friend suggested that her husband wouldn't bless her when he wanted the tickets, she answered, in a very injured tone: "Why, just to a very injured tone: "Why, just wait until the trouble I saved him in going way down to that horrid office myself."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Decorating for Horses.

For burns nothing is better than the white of an egg beaten to a foam and mixed with a teaspoonful of lard. Five drops of carbolic acid make it better. A dressing that will prevent scarring and gives immediate relief is one drachm of linament, substitute to an ounce of vaseline, with five drops of carbolic acid. Before applying this wash the surface with a solution of one drachm of common soda to a pint of common soda. Squeeze this from a cloth upon the burn, then apply the dressing.—Detroit Free Press.

Spring Walking Costumes

How and of What They Will Be Made—In Point of Beauty They Will Surpass Those of Previous Seasons.

CORRECT materials for spring walking costumes will be of the medium weight goods, and there is a vast assortment of designs and colors, and a great variety of figured designs, also many handsome smooth and lustrous fabrics in the broad and satin faced cloths. The Venetian cloth, with its lustrous beauty, and the graceful air it has, will be a favorite material. The pastel shades will be worn more than ever, and the shades of gray which have been so popular will give way to a reign of taste in all the different tones from the rich ones of castor to the delicate ones of biscuit. In spite of stitching of white silk around the bolero and down each seam. The sleeves are plain and tight fitting with a deep V over the hand.

Another is of gray and black homespun. Of this the skirt is made with a rounded front tunic, being much longer in the back, with a double box plaited back. The skirt and tunic have five rows of white silk stitching around. The jacket is a nobby plain black tailor made, with a fancy gray mohair braid on each seam and around the scallops that finish the bottom. A turn-over black velvet collar and perfectly plain tight fitting sleeves.

TWO SPRING WALKING COSTUMES.

this new fancy for tans the grays will not be missed entirely as the beauty of the color is soft, prettily draped and always tasteful.

Among other fashionable tints are pastel blue and green and opalescent pink.

Other materials to be used will be the Venetian cloths, homespun, with zebeline, or velvet, and embellished with lace applique, or braided and pipings of satin.

The bolero, or Eton, jackets will easily hold their own with the newer basque effect jacket. These newer jackets which promise to dispute popularity with the Etons are tailor made, either single or double breasted and extend to just below the waist line, being finished in deep scallops or vandykes, and have much of the appearance of the once called basque.

One that I saw was a stunning affair of Venetian cloth in a rich castor shade. The skirt is made with a tunic in very deep points, each point being edged with a band of satin. This satin is in a much deeper tone and is stitched with white silk. The underpetticoat has two straight bands of the satin around. The skirt fits snugly with a triple box plait in the back. A tight fitting bolero just to the waist line, with large pointed revers and a high pointed collar covered with lovely guipure lace. A third is of opalescent pink Venetian cloth. Of this the skirt is made perfectly plain with a pointed tunic both front and back. This tunic is trimmed with a band of black velvet and a very elaborate Grecian design of the black velvet on the deep point in front and back. A double breasted bolero jacket that has short, rounded tab ends in the front. This front is trimmed with black velvet in a Grecian design, and also the top and lower part of the sleeves. A high rolling collar with a narrow border of chinchilla.

A costume of mauve cloth that is attractive was made with a vest formed of flowers and leaves cut out of the cloth. They are embroidered around the edges and mounted on a white silk net. The high collar and pointed revers are of the same net, and are very thickly run through with narrow ribbon of mauve velvet. The lower part of the skirt is of net, and the tunic is of the cloth. This is straight at the bottom and opens at the left side and is strapped across with loops of velvet ribbon caught down by little silver buttons.

A costume of light gray Venetian cloth has a skirt made with a box plait all the way around, being caught down to within a foot of the bottom of the skirt. This hangs in graceful folds and is handsomely braided with a black silk braid in a large scroll design. A tight fitting jacket that has the basque effect and is in deep vandykes just below the waist line. This is handsomely braided with a black silk braid to the vandykes, and in a deep point at the back, having one turn back over covered with the braid, and a high rolling collar trimmed in the same manner.

The velvets that have been so popular throughout the winter will give place to silks with the coming of spring. In fact silks will be the popular fabric for the spring season. Economy as well as fashion will favor the silks for spring wear for the reason that the silver dress goods now favored by fashion require a silk lining, and the foulard silks that were worn last season will be in great demand this year as they are a more economical purchase than the silver woolen goods on account of their not needing the extra silk lining. But this is not saying that the silks will decrease the popularity of the woolen goods as they have a separate place in the season's fashions.

The silks are softer except the taffetas of soft finish in family corded and lace effects. But the leading silk is the foulard, and the lovely designs offered are innumerable. They are colored and brilliant, and many figures are shown on plain grounds, but the new Parisian and Arabian designs are preferred. The trimmings for the silk gowns are lace, appliques in imitation bolero effects, straps of lace on the sleeves and revers, with tucked chiffon, or mousseline de soie, vests.

A COMPLETE SURPRISE.

Charles Dunlap Received an Unexpected Visit From His Friends.

Charles Dunlap, of East Fifth street, was given a complete surprise Thursday evening, which was arranged in honor of his birthday, by his Bible school teacher, Miss Helen Boyce, of East Sixth street. She was assisted by Miss May VanFleet, at whose home the party met prior to the surprise. About 9 o'clock the happy assemblage entered the home of the celebrant and joined in playing games for a time, after which dancing was the feature. The music was furnished by Mr. Beckley. About midnight a bountiful collation was served. Among those present were the Misses Helen and Lizzie Bogart, Sexton, Bessie Martin, Lyons, May VanFleet, Young, Wilsoff, Holmes, Grace Rowland, Thorn, Emmons, and Messrs. Horace Martin, William Swaim, Edward Smalley, William and Robert Jeffrey, E. O. Clark, W. F. Starke, Clarence Bogaard, Fred Slater, Chas. Wooleton, John Hall, Ray Pool, Will Henry, Geo. Crevelling, Chas. Jennings, Herbert Martin and Mr. Dixon.

The "R. C. T." Social.

Although the afternoon proved to be stormy, the first meeting of the "R. C. T." Social was a thorough success. Fourteen charming young ladies in the vicinity of East Sixth street have recently organized this social, and Thursday the first gathering was held at the home of one of its members. Between 3 and 5:30 o'clock the girls gathered in the library, which had been handsomely decorated in "red" for the occasion, and spent an enjoyable time. Part of the entertainment consisted of music, for each of the fourteen are "artists." A short business talk was followed by refreshments.

Masquerade at Fanwood Clubhouse.

One of the most pleasant events of the season was held Thursday evening at the Fanwood Clubhouse, the occasion being the annual invitation masquerade dance given by the ladies of the Social Sewing Circle, of Netherwood. The evening was past in a very pleasant and social manner.

POPULAR SODA FOUNTAIN.

It Does a Rushing Business in All Weathers and at All Seasons—Variety of Its Drinks.

"One of the interesting developments of the last 25 years has been that of the soda fountain," says a man who has been familiar with the course of the business. "Root beer was the first popular beverage, and the different people made it in very different ways, and some had very good receipts. Then there was sarsaparilla—both sold in the bottle mostly. Then they began to get small fountains, with lemon and the black velvet on the deep point in front and back. A double breasted bolero jacket that has short, rounded tab ends in the front. AIM TO UPLIFT THE NEGRO OF THE SOUTH.

Work of Hampton Institute Explained in This City.

A RECORD OF GOOD WORK.

PLEA FOR MONEY TO HELP CARRY ON THE INSTITUTION.

A Man Born a Slave, but Who is Now a Lawyer, Related His Experience, as Also Did the Son of One of the Negro Chiefs—Stereopticon Showed Various Scenes About School.

The Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute at Hampton, Va., which was founded by Gen. S. C. Armstrong, for the benefit of the Negro, was the subject of an interesting union public meeting Thursday in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

The aims and purposes of the school in its broad work of fitting missionary teachers for the shops, schools and churches of the south and west, was described in an entertaining way by Rev. H. B. Turner, the chaplain of the school. He told how the institute had been established by Gen. Armstrong immediately after the close of the Rebellion, and the successful manner in which it has been conducted, and the many graduated both the Indian as well as the Negro race; for the Indian has also been included in the great educational work of the institution.

Mr. Turner said that of the 10,000,000 of the Negro race about 8,000,000 lived in the south, and fully 1,000,000 of that number occupied log cabins for homes. He explained in a brief manner how the Negro and Indian had benefited by the school, and said it was the belief of Gen. Armstrong that the emancipation of the Negro lay in his education and uplifting. The work of the Hampton Institute had demonstrated that the Negro could be educated to be self-supporting, and it was the purpose of the great school so to educate the Negro and Indian in both the academic and industrial spheres of life as to fit him to go out among his own race and teach others to become better men and women by means of education.

Thomas C. Walker, born a slave and trained at Hampton to be a teacher and farmer, and who afterwards became a lawyer, related his experiences and those of others whom he had been educating.

John Boswell, the son of one of the most progressive Sioux chiefs, also told of the result of his father's foresight in early putting his family into the ways of civilization. The young Indian gave evidence of the careful training and educational advantages to be had at the Hampton institution. His pronunciation of English was good and he evinced much intelligence.

The meeting closed by the exhibition of a number of stereopticon views showing the school in its beginning and in its present quarters, with scenes of the Negro cabins and Indian tepees from which the students came, and the comfortable homes that they have built since their return. The views were highly interesting, as was also Rev. Mr. Turner's descriptive lecture.

At intervals during the meeting the Hampton quartette favored the audience with several plantation melodies, and their splendid voices drew forth liberal applause.

At the close of the views Dr. Richards made a plea for a collection for the support of the students.

The audience was composed of many colored people, who gave close attention to all that was said, and appeared to be vastly interested in the views, especially when they exhibited any of the Negro scenes taken at the south.

A Fine Breakfast Food.

R. C. Scales, representing J. T. Cutting & Co., proprietors of Germea, the ideal breakfast food, is in the city, calling on the grocers. His firm is giving away useful books for the fronts of Germea packages. The firm is up to date and has contracted for a year's advertising in The Press. Germea is California white wheat, the best wheat in the world, and has no sticky taste.

Joint Prayer Service.

Thursday afternoon at the First Baptist church there was a joint prayer service held under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Societies of the First and Park Avenue Baptist churches. The attendance was encouraging and a very helpful meeting was experienced.

No Systematic Numbering.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed over the way Westervelt avenue, in the borough, is numbered. Both old and new numbers are used and they are so mixed that it is very confusing to persons in search of a number. The matter should receive the early attention of the Mayor and Council.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

MANY NEW HOUSES STARTED LAST MONTH.

Building Boom Still Continues Despite Cold Weather.

FOURTEEN PERMITS IN JAN.

SEVERAL NEW RESIDENCES FOR THE WEST END.

New Dwellings are Springing Up All Over the City Despite the Fact That the Price of Lumber is Very High — Big $10,000 Warehouse for the Ballantine — Eight New Residences.

Despite the fact that building never flourishes in winter, the month o January showed a number of new houses springing up all over the city. There were fourteen permits issued by Building Inspector Doane during the month, and eleven were for new structures, while the remainder were for alterations and additions. Of that eleven, two are for barns, one for a warehouse and the others for residences ranging in cost from $6,000 to $1,400. And all this building is going forward despite the fact that the price of lumber is higher than it has been since the close of the Civil War.

The most elaborate of the residences started during the month is one of colonial design on West Seventh street, near Grant avenue. The owner of which is Mrs. Annie W. Abernethy, of Jersey City. E. V. French was the architect, while Seaman Williams and H. E. Gaylor hold the contracts for the mason and carpenter work respectively. This dwelling will cost about $6,000.

In that neighborhood several other smaller dwelling are in progress of erection. William H. Abbott has contracted for a neat little cottage on West Fifth street, near Grant avenue, designed by W. H. Clum. Walter Wyckoff is the mason and Titus & Pope the contractors. It will cost $1,400.

Mrs. Sarah J. Mundy is building two double frame cottages on West Fourth street, near Prescott place, that will cost $2,000 each. F. W. Mundy drew the plans and Mundy Brothers will build them. Patrick Connolly is building a $1,400 cottage at 658 West Fourth street after plans prepared by C Smith. W. Thompson is mason and B Young, carpenter.

Work has been started on a pretty little residence on Union street, near Arlington avenue, for Joseph Fuller. It will cost $2,600. Charles L. Force was the architect. The mason work has been awarded to John Hubbard and the carpenter work to D. N. Force.

In the First ward, E. W. Sherwin is building a $2,200 residence on Washington street, near East Second street. W. H. Clum was the architect, William Tallamy the mason and Titus & Pope the carpenters.

J. F. Pound is erecting a $300 barn on West Fifth street near Grant avenue and J. Sacher is having one put up in the rear of the house, 210 East Fourth street.

The principal event of the month was the issuing of the permit for the big bottling and ware house corner of Central avenue and West Second street for P. Ballantine & Sons. It will be a brick structure and will cost $10,000. Charles H. Smith drew the plans which are now being carried to a reality by Titus & Lamy as masons and Henry E. Gayle as carpenter.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING.

Mrs. Thomas W. Morrison Passes Away at the Home of her Daughter in Philadelphia.

After a long and tedious illness from a complication of diseases which was borne with unusual fortitude and patience, Mrs. Mary J. Morrison, wife of Former Editor Thomas W. Morrison, of 11 Mountain avenue, passed away Saturday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Dillenbeck, East Gravers Lane, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. Only a short time ago Mrs. Morrison returned from abroad, where she had been spending some time with her son, Harry Morrison. It was while there that the dread disease developed in a more serious and aggravated form, and quickly led her to decide upon returning to her native country with all possible haste so that she might reach here and see her husband and daughter before the fatal end.

When she arrived in this country she was taken to her daughter's home in Philadelphia, where she spent her remaining days in all the comfort and convenience possible. In her death the bereaved husband and children have the sympathy of a host of friends.

Mrs. Morrison was 51 years of age. She was a Miss Dixon, daughter of the celebrated maker of cream and loss of New York. She resided in Plainfield between twelve and fourteen years, and was greatly admired and loved by many who knew her. She possessed many fine qualities and was an exemplary Christian woman. She is survived by a husband, a daughter, Mrs. Dillenbeck, and two sons, George and Harry Morrison. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her daughter in Philadelphia. Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, in that city.

BRIDGE MAY COLLAPSE.

Stone Structure Over the Raritan River at New Brunswick in a Dangerous Condition.

An investigation at New Brunswick, by the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders, shows that the arched bridge over the Raritan river at that place is in danger of collapse. Three stone piers are gradually falling away, and as the Board of Freeholder has already expended the money appropriated for bridges there is no way of securing money enough to save the structure unless the Freeholders raise money under a law which provides for cases of emergency.

County Surveyor Dougherty last week notified the Freeholders that the west pier was washing away, and that unless prompt action was taken the road would cave in. This makes the condition of things serious, as the bridge is used constantly by trolley cars and other vehicles.

The Freeholders decided to do nothing until next Wednesday, when they intend to go down to the bridge and make a personal examination.

Foundations Completed.

The workmen employed on the new building for Ballentine & Company on West Second street have completed the foundation, and the building is progressing rapidly.

TRINITY TO FOSTER IT.

MARCONNIER CHAPEL WILL BE ADOPTED BY BIG CHURCH.

The Chapel Made the Bequest and Trinity's Officers Have Decided to Lend a Helping Hand to the Country Society.

Marconnier chapel, near Oak Tree station on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, for many years in charge of Mrs. Sweeck, an earnest Christian woman, will probably soon become a branch of Trinity Reformed church, of Plainfield. On account of the failing health of Mrs. Sweeck, a request recently came from the chapel to Trinity asking for the adoption of the chapel and the supplying of teachers for the Sunday-school and leaders for the evening service.

A committee from the Consistory of the church has paid two visits to the church and were so well pleased with what they saw and heard that the chapel will probably soon become a branch of the church and receive the helping hand it so much deserves. At present there are 95 scholars and teachers on the roll of the Sunday-school. A. E. Meiler, of Plainfield, is acting superintendent of the school and assisting Mrs. Sweeck and a corps of faithful teachers in keeping the school open twice each Sunday, in the afternoon for the Sunday-school and in the evening for a Christian Endeavor meeting, which is always well attended.

The chapel is self-sustaining and very little in debt, the collections gathered at the meetings, together with small amounts realized from little entertainments, etc., being sufficient to pay the interest on a small mortgage as well as reducing the amount of the mortgage each car.

UNION MEN AT FUNERAL.

Carpenters Attended the Obsequies of the Late Henry W. Force Sunday Afternoon in a Body.

The funeral services of the late Henry W. Force were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence on New street. The members of the Exempt Firemen's Association and the Carpenters' Union, of which the deceased was a member, turned out in a body in large numbers, and each society presented beautiful floral tributes in honor of the memory of their late brother.

The services were in charge of Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, and Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church. The former read appropriate Scripture selections and, offered prayer, while Dr. Yerkes spoke a few words of comfort and consolation to the bereaved ones.

After the remarks by Dr. Yerkes an opportunity was given all to take a last look at the form of the deceased. Interment took place in Evergreen Cemetery. Those who served as pallbearers were from the Exempt Fire men's Association and the Carpenters' Union, and societies accompanied the remains to its last resting place.

MUST PAY TAXES FIRST.

New Rules For Borough Employes Which Preclude Them From Shirking Municipal Obligations.

According to a rule established in the borough no person in the employ of that municipality shall receive his salary until he has first paid his taxes and is clear on the books. Not long ago a certain employe of the borough called at the office of Collector Brown for his quarterly check, due at that time. He was informed by the collector that he owed the borough some back tax and that according to instructions he could not pay him his salary until he paid up. Then followed considerable argument, but the official finally decided to pay up, and he allowed the collector to deduct from the check the amount he owed for tax, but he still reserves the right to think as he pleases about such a rule being enforced by the administration.

Middlesex Has a Crazy Prisoner.

The Middlesex county jail authorities at New Brunswick have a demented prisoner, Charles Mackel, committed ten days ago from Madison township as an insane person. Mackel is about forty. He has twice torn off his clothing, and now his covering is a blanket. Dr. Carroll, the County Physician, says the man is temporarily demented by illness, and should not be sent to the asylum. Sheriff Barclay does not see a way to dispose of his noisy prisoner.

WHAT THEY DID TO DOOLEY.

Raised a Row in Dunlavy Hall—Punished in City Court.

Edward Dooley went into Jed. D. Smalley's butcher shop on Watchung avenue Saturday evening. It is said that he was drunk. Trouble followed and it was found necessary to put Dooley out of the shop. He was arrested by Patrolman Vanderveer on complaint of Mr. Smalley and was arraigned Monday morning before City Judge Runyon. The Judge gave him his choice between a fine of $10 or thirty days in jail.

NEW BRUNSWICK TEAM LOST AT BASKET BALL.

Plainfielders Won by a Score of 30 to 12.

GOOD TEAM WORK WAS SEEN

VISITORS PLAYED A PLUCKY GAME, BUT WERE OUTCLASSED.

Local Association Represented by a Team Chosen From the Regular A teachers at the Evening Gymnastic Class—The Most of the Play Was Opened—The First Half Decided the Game.

The best exhibition of basket ball seen in Plainfield this season was the game last Monday between the team from the evening class of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and a team from the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. There was more real team work displayed in the first half than has been witnessed this winter, while the game was entirely free from the rough and unpleasant features that were so noticeable in the Plainfield-Summit game. The result of the match was an easy victory for Plainfield, 30 to 12.

The New Brunswick boys played a return game in the gymnasium of the local association. The local association was represented by a team chosen from the regular attendants at the evening gymnastic class. The five that lined up in the first half for Plainfield played hard and fast basket ball. There was good team work. Marcley, Moraller and Perrin played the zigzag game in fine form. Marcley was, in particular, deserving of commendation for the strong game he played. Cranston developed late an excellent guard and he and Perrin hardly gave the visitors a chance to try for goal in that half. Most of the play was open and consequently pleasing to the audience that braved the storm to see the game.

The visitors played a plucky game but their opponents of the first half clearly outclassed them and their game was entirely on the defensive.

In the second half three changes were made on the Plainfield team to give the substitutes a chance. The new men failed to hold the pace set in the first half and the team play was not so apparent. The Brunswickites took new heart and put up a game fight to recover their lost honors. Moraller and Marcley played the best for Plainfield, the former showing marked improvement in his goal throwing. The visitors were in hard luck and deserved a higher score. Time after time the ball rolled around the edge of the goal only to drop off instead of into the goal.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		NEW BRUNSWICK.
Whyall-Brokaw	right forward	Kuhn
Marcley-Lowrie	left forward	Dunigan
Perrin-E. Moraller	right guard	Barton
Cranston	left guard	Mashel

Goals from field—Plainfield, 10 (Perrin 3, Marcley 3, Moraller 2, Whyall-Brokaw 2); New Brunswick, 5 (Dunigan 2, Kuhn 2, Barton). Goals from foul—Plainfield, 2 (Perrin, Marcley); New Brunswick, 2 (Kuhn). Referee—C. M. E. Herwood. Umpire—L. J. VanLaningham. Scorer—H. Dr. Mosher. Score—M. W. Mosher.

NEARLY 100 YEARS OLD.

Miss Pettit Has Recovered Her Hearing and Eyesight.

Miss Sarah Pettit, of Flemington, will celebrate her 100th birthday March 6th. Her parents were Jesse and Annie Pettit, both of whom nearly reached the three-score and ten mark. She was born about two miles west of Flemington, and has spent the greater portion of her life in this vicinity. Years ago Miss Pettit's hearing failed her and her eyesight also became impaired. A few years ago she recovered her hearing. Her eyesight also came back to her. Both finally left her to a great extent again, but have returned at intervals ever since. During the past week she recovered her hearing, so that she can now hear the slightest noises. Her eyesight has also improved wonderfully.

Large Attendance at Holiday Matinees.

There were many Plainfielders who observed Lincoln's Birthday Monday by attending a holiday matinee at one of the New York theatres. Most of the theatres gave special matinees in honor of the day and Plainfield was represented at almost all of them. There were several theatre parties who went in to New York for the evening performances.

Vitagraph Company Incorporated.

The American Vitagraph Company, with principal offices at Cranford, filed articles of incorporation in the County Clerk's office Saturday. The company will have a capital stock of $6,000, divided into 240 shares of the value of $25 each, 50 of which are subscribed by the following incorporators: Howard Cox, Herman Mayer and Stephen J. Cox, all of Cranford.

Willing Property Owners.

A few more of the property-owners on Somerset street have signed their names to the map and petition asking for the widening of the street. It is yet possible that all of the owners may dedicate the necessary amount of feet and thus the commissioners may not have their work to do as prescribed by law in such cases.

WORLD OF SCIENCE.

Interesting Phenomena Accompanying a Solar Eclipse.

Multiphone Attachment for Telephones—Heat as a Curative Agent—Paper to Be Treated with Chicago Goat Lymph.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

THE Leonids seem, for the time being, to have had their day, and, while all are disappointed at the somewhat meager display, the star-gazing public is already beginning to look forward to the total eclipse of the sun to be visible in the southern states May 28, 1900.

Mary Proctor has given a very entertaining description of the phenomena that may be expected to be visible at that time. The eclipse will be 35 miles wide and will extend from near New Orleans to Raleigh, traveling southeasterly over the Atlantic ocean, across Portugal, Spain and northern Africa.

ECLIPSE OF SUN EXPLAINED.

Its duration will vary from one minute, fifteen seconds in Louisiana to one minute, forty-five seconds in North Carolina.

The eclipse of the sun is total when the moon passes directly between the earth and the sun and wherever its shadow travels darkness exists. The shadow appears like a long, narrow cone stretching away into space. Its tip travels eastward on the earth's surface at the rate of about 1,000 miles per hour, which is the difference in velocity between the earth's rotation (1,000 miles) and the rate at which the shadow glides through space at 2,000 miles per hour in the same direction. An observer seems to see the shadow advancing with lightning-like rapidity, sometimes in wavy bands. The portion of the globe where the sun is total is called the umbra, and is seldom over 200 miles in width. The portions on each side where there is less density are called penumbra. It is said that the shadows cast by the moon are visible just before the sun's light is totally eclipsed.

The swift approach of the peculiar darkness from the west is very impressive. The sun's light is first dimmed and then a dusky tone takes in line. The air is chilly. The petals of flowers close as at night, and the birds seek their nests in the trees.

The returning light is gladly welcomed. Light and heat are the great life sustaining agents. It is now a generally accepted fact that heat is a very important factor in curing the pains of rheumatism, as well as, in many cases, conquering the disease itself. Hence the many inventions recently devised for obtaining the best results from this remedy. In many of the machines which have so far been most successfully used the whole body except the head is inclosed in the apparatus and intense dry heat applied. But these are expensive and there is always the feeling of anxiety lest one should receive too much of a good thing, owing to error in judgment of attendant. There has seemed a need for an invention that could be manipulated by the sufferer himself without a chances of danger from boiling or roasting.

This requirement claims to have been met by Ferdinand Holbery, of Macon, Ga.

One end of the apparatus consists of a flexible bag-like affair which is fasten around the portion of the body to be treated, is kept in the heat. To this is attached a large metal cylinder terminating in a trumpet like mouth. The patient's limb rests outside the cylinder on a flexible support. The open mouth is placed near a hot stove or open grate. The wheels attached to an adjustable framework that it may be lowered or raised at will.

Of great value also is the invention of the multiphone, a device for magnifying the sound from a telephone or phonograph. A small rubber tube connects directly with the vibrating diaphragm of the telephone and opens on the other side into an ordinary speaking trumpet. This greatly increases a person passing through the instrument. Many persons who are slightly deaf are unable to use a telephone. This invention will enable them to do so with ease. M. Dussaud, its French inventor, believes they can be installed in theaters and connected with the stereophone, thus enabling deaf persons to follow the play without difficulty.

The reports of the cure, by treatment with goat lymph, of Mr. Hosick, a prominent citizen of Joliet, Ill., who, although only 30 years old, had been pronounced a confirmed paralytic, have traveled through medical circles all over the world. The inventor of the method, Dr. Roberts, a Chicago physician, some months ago started on a tour through some of the principal European cities at the urgent request of some of the greatest specialists abroad and always found that the fame of the results of his discovery had preceded him.

Drs. Pasteur, Koch, Brown-Sequard, Hammond and others have been experimenting with the same agent for years, but never with any degree of satisfaction.

Goat lymph has long been known as a great revitalizer, but as no means had been discovered for keeping the cells in active condition no great use could be made of it. Dr. Roberts has the credit of having found this defect in the remedy and great hopes are entertained in reference to it. Some of the leading physicians of New York, Boston, Chicago and other American cities are enthusiastic concerning the results obtained when it is taken by means of it. It has been found a great aid in treating cases of epilepsy, apoplexy, locomotor ataxia, atrophy, paralysis, nervous prostration and consumption in its early stages.

It is said the manufacture and has been found very useful in the case of children whose mental growth has been retarded from various causes.

According to the disease to be treated, it is injected in doses of from four to fourteen drops one or more times daily from two to three months. It has only been found dangerous when administered by persons unistructed as to proper manner of applying it or who have been unable to make a correct diagnosis of the malady affecting their patients. Some of the most prominent medical men in the world have welcomed Dr. Roberts most courteously and every facility has been afforded him for demonstrating the efficacy of his remedy. He has introduced it into some of the insane asylums, hospitals and medical schools of world-wide fame of Vienna and other cities.

Senility is one of the diseases due to call degeneracy and in all such the introduction of goat lymph is said to produce remarkable improvement. Requests have come from Rome to the laboratory in Chicago, where the lymph is now being prepared, that several of the preparation be forwarded there, and a gentleman has gone to the Eternal City with some of the precious life-restoring liquid.

And now come rumors that this is to be used by members of the medical staff at the Vatican in experiments which, if found satisfactory, will open the way to administering it to Pope Leo XIII. The reverend gentleman is said to be suffering from senility and great hopes are entertained for a renewal of his youth. Dr. Roberts, while in Rome, has been the guest of Dr. Baldwin, whose advice is said to carry great weight with the physicians of the pope and of the royal family.

Some fine stories Dr. Roberts wrote to his friends regarding Dr. Baldwin's enthusiasm over the great lymph cure, and his desire to have it introduced into Roman medical practice. Hence the enough of a special messenger from Chicago. The physician in charge of the laboratory where it is manufactured in that city expresses much surprise that the matter has reached the public ear, and, while he admits that Dr. Roberts, and Dr. Baldwin of interest, also that the consignments had been made, will make no definite statement as to whether it will be used in treatment of Pope Leo.

If it is true that the latter is suffering from senility, doubtless the use of the lymph would be of inestimable value. But the case would require great circumspection. In many instances of this kind the results have been almost miraculous. The patient soon begins to look, feel and act younger. The ambitions of youth return. There have been so many well authenticated accounts to this effect that the statement may be made without fear of contradiction. The question is, will the world not turn backward, who knows what grand discoveries in methods of preserving life in its full usefulness may lie before us? While one is not at all sure that it is desirable that the summer be made to depend on earth be lengthened, there is no question as to how gladly all would receive the news of a probability of continued vigor until the end. Old age would be robbed of all its terrors.

NEWCORN WILL BE NEXT GREAT SACHEM.

Highest State Honor of Improved Order of Red Men.

NEWCORN TO RECEIVE IT.

WILL BE ELECTED TODAY AT GREAT COUNCIL IN TRENTON.

Plainfielder Entered Order Ten Years Ago and Has Been Very Active There—Has Risen Steadily in Local and State Organization.—Now Reached Highest Office Among Red Men in State.

The highest honor that the Improved Order of Red Men of New Jersey can confer is to be given to William Newcorn, of this city, at the meeting of the Great Council of the order, to be held at Trenton today. Mr. Newcorn will then be elected Great Sachem of the order in which he has been one of the most active and efficient workers in this State.

The annual gathering of the Great Council has been called for this morning at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Trenton. The new great chief will be nominated in the morning and elected in the afternoon. The meeting will be continued Friday.

The present great chiefs of the Red Men are Great Sachem Arthur H. Stiles, of Atlantic City, Great Senior Sagamore William Newcorn, of Plainfield, and Great Junior Sagamore Joseph E. Nowry, of Camden. It has long been the custom among the Red Men to promote the great chiefs in their regular order and so the contest is made for the Great Junior Sagamore, the lowest of the three. This year no exception will be made and Mr. Newcorn will be raised to the post of highest honor that the Red Men can bestow in this State.

Plainfield will be represented at the Great Council by a delegation of some fifteen of the past sachems of the tribe. Another delegation of braves will go to Trenton Thursday night to witness the exemplification of the adoption and degree work.

Mr. Newcorn first became identified with the Improved Order of Red Men when he joined Miantonomoh Tribe of this city in August, 1890, ten months after that tribe was organized. In 1891, he was elected chief of records and held that office for five years which gave him the rank of Past Sachem. In 1896, he was sent to the Great Council as representative from Miantonomoh Tribe and was appointed a deputy great sachem by Great Sachem Russell. Just previous to the meeting of the Great Council in the following year, he was appointed Great Misbinawa to fill an unexpired term and at the Council was appointed Great Sannap. In 1898 he was elected Great Junior Sagamore by a large majority. Last year he was advanced to the office of Great Senior Sagamore which he holds today.

NO NONSENSE ABOUT THIS MATCH.

Farmer Advertised for a Wife and Got an Experienced Helpmate.

A small advertisement in a newspaper announced the fact that Michael Collins wanted a wife. He said he was 54 years old, owned a farm at Monmouth Junction and did not want a young woman or a fool. A score of marriageable women volunteered to make him comfortable and happy.

He selected Mrs. Joanna Hage, of No. 7 Schurman street, New Brunswick, and married her Sunday evening at the parsonage of the First Methodist church. Rev. W. R. Wedderspoon performing the ceremony. After the wedding Mrs. Collins said: "There is no romantic nonsense about this wedding. I have been married three times before and know what I am about. My husband wanted an experienced woman and he has one."

TROLLEY CONSOLIDATION

MIDDLESEX A ND SOMERSET LINES UNDER ONE NAME.

The Rudel Enterprises Will be Operated as One Corporation, of Which Judge Krueger Will be the President.

Steps have been taken by the stockholders of the New Brunswick City Railway Company, the Brunswick Traction Company and the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company toward the consolidation of the three companies into one.

The plan has not as yet been fully carried out, but will be in the course of a few days, when the papers will be filed. The name of the new company is to be the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company.

The officers have not been elected but the president will be Judge Gottfried Krueger, of Newark; the vice-president, Andrew Radel, of Bridgeport, Conn., and the secretary and treasurer, E. H. Radel, of New Brunswick. These men are officers of the Brunswick Traction Company, which now controls all three companies.

The New Brunswick City Railway is the old horse car company, started here some years ago, and which came into the control of the New Brunswick Traction, who later bought out the New York and Philadelphia Company, after the two waged a bitter warfare for several months.

None of the plans of the new company have as yet been disclosed, but they will co-operate, no doubt, with the other companies in building a continuous line through the State.

A LODGE FAIR.

Daughters of Rebekah Are Conducting a Successful Event in Washington Hall.

During this week the members of Friendship Degree Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, are holding a fair in Washington Hall for the benefit of the lodge. It opened Monday evening with a good attendance. The large hall is very tastefully decorated with American flags and buntng, and it presents an attractive picture.

On one side of the hall there is arranged one long table prettily decorated with the American colors. This table is fitted with lots of fancy articles and some useful ones, too. As an extra attraction there are a number of contests, including a Morris chair, a lamp, a sofa cushion, set of dishes, chocolate set, an embroidered piece, three handsome quilts, one of which is an Odd Fellow quilt, the design being the three links. For all these things various ones are hustling and doing all they can to capture the prizes. Another means of gathering in the shekels is through a handsomely dressed doll. To the majority she is nameless, but a few know her name and it costs something to guess it. The person who is lucky enough to guess her name can her. Of course, refreshments are served, and at a place provided one can secure soft drinks and something very palatable to eat.

Every evening there will be dancing, music for which music is furnished by Naylor's orchestra. There will be other features that will prove strong attractions. Mrs. Jacob Kittenring is the efficient chairman of the committee in charge, and she is assisted by Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Welch, Mrs. Sargeant, Joseph Sheppard, Jacob Kittenring, Miss Lizzie Dunlap, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals.

GUESSING SUBJECTS OF PICTURES.

A Novel Entertainment at the Home of Miss Clementine Yates.

One of the most enjoyable social events in the history of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church was that of Monday evening last, when Miss Clementine E. Yates entertained the society at her home. A short business meeting presided over by W. D. Voorhees, president, preceded the social. The feature of the evening was the arrangement of at least one hundred pictures placed about the various rooms. Each person was given a pad and pencil and they endeavored to guess the subjects or names of these pictures. After the guessing was brought to an end there was a complete list of them. It was found that Mrs. I. W. Travell had guessed the largest number correctly.

Another feature was the matching of cards on the part of the guests to find their partners. This afforded no end of amusement. During the evening piano selections were given by Stewart Pope, and this was not the least of the enjoyable features.

CITY HALL PROJECT AWAITS LEGISLATURE.

Next Step Necessary is Passage of City Hall Bill.

WILL NOT COST $100,000.

EXPECTED BOND ISSUE WILL BE FOR ONLY $40,000.

Cost of the Expense, Which Will Amount to About $60,000 in All, Will Be Covered by Collections Under Martin Act—Present Cost of City Offices and Jail Amounts to $1,400.

The project of a City Hall for Plainfield now awaits the pleasure of the New Jersey Legislature. The bill introduced into the Assembly by Assemblyman Foote, of this city, and giving the local Council the right to erect and furnish a City Hall, is being watched with interest. Until the Legislature consents to act, all the advocacy in the world of the City Hall will not be able to accomplish anything. Action is expected soon, however, and then the Common Council will take its turn.

While it is a well-known fact that one of the Councilmen is lined up in opposition to the plan of a City Hall, the statement comes from one high in authority that the Council will pass the measure and without delay. This same authority states that the City Hall will secured this year without doubt.

The last meeting of the special committee on the City Hall showed that the members were far from agreeing on the various details. No further meetings of the committee will be held until there is something definite to report regarding the action of the Legislature. Then it is expected that the question of a proper site will be finally settled and the details of the design will be fixed.

Although the proposed law regarding the City Hall permits the Council to spend $100,000 in the erection of the public building, it is not the intention of the local Councilman to expend that amount. It is expected that the lot and building will cost but $60,000, of which $20,000 will be paid by the collections under the Martin Act. The bond issue for the City Hall is expected therefore to amount to about $40,000.

At present the city is paying out in the neighborhood of $1,400 for the hire of offices and buildings that would not be needed in the event of the erection of a City Hall. Then there are certain public officials who have no office at present and others who are compelled to furnish their own offices. It is expected that the interest on the new bonds will not be over $2,000 at the start and less as the bonds are gradually paid off.

It is now admitted by the strongest advocates of the City Hall scheme that the cost to the city will be slightly increased by the City Hall but it is argued that the city will be a great gainer by the change while the present situation over at the jail and station house imperatively demands that new quarters be provided without delay. New quarters will mean increased expenses and it is argued that the extra amount will be far more effective if turned toward a City Hall.

CLERK POCKETED COURT'S ORDER.

That's the Reason Young Preece is Still in Jail.

Judge VanSyckel Saturday night signed at his home in Trenton an order for the release of Preece, the young man from Union township who is in jail charged by Margaret Brown, of Westfield, with breach of promise. A clerk in the office of Lawyer Dunn, in Elizabeth, went to New York Saturday night, carrying the order in his pocket. As a consequence, Preece had to languish in jail until the forgetful clerk puts in an appearance.

John R. English, who is Preece's lawyer, was much annoyed over the incident, after the exertions he had made to have his client set at liberty. The compromise by which Miss Brown relents and withdraws her complaint was reached late Saturday afternoon.

Pleasant Reference to a Plainfielder.

In the society notes of yesterday's issue of the New York Mail and Express, the following comments were made on the music of Townsend Fellows, son of Mrs. A. Fellows, of Westervelt avenue: "At the last regular Sunday evening concert at the Hotel Majestic Mr. Townsend H. Fellows was the vocalist, and announced that he had been asked to give an evening of old songs. Mr. Fellows' selections were greatly enjoyed, and the programme was lengthened by a number of requests from the audience for old-time favorites."

MUSIC TO AID CHARITY.

ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME RENDERED BY CLEVER ARTISTS.

Held at the Home of Miss Lillian A. Force—Chafy and Coke Help a Side Issue—Out-of-Town Talent Gets Receptions.

A very enjoyable musicale was given Tuesday by the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, at the home of Miss Lillian A. Force, 22 Duer street. The affair was given to raise funds toward the support of the King's Daughters' city nurse, who does such a vast amount of good among the poor of the city, and a generous offering was received during the evening.

Previous to the beginning of the musical programme, a sale of homemade cake and candy was held in the dining room of the house. This room was decorated in red, and presented a most attractive appearance.

The musicians who took part in the evening's entertainment were P. Ludwig Conde, violinist; Miss Blanche Fellows, soprano; William H. Holmes, bass; E. C. Martin, baritone, and Mrs. Charles H. Hall, pianist, all of this city; Miss Emma Purdee, contralto, of East Orange; and Miss Heisenbuttel, pianist, of Brooklyn. They were assisted by Miss Aimee Emmons, reader, also of this city. Miss Lillian A. Force acted as accompanist, playing the difficult accompaniments with ease and skill, and in perfect harmony with the soloists. Mr. Conde's solos were rendered with his usual warmth and brilliancy. They were "Mazurka," by Wieniawski, "Serenade," by Pierne, and "Reverie," by Vieuxtemps, the last a particularly difficult selection, which has never been given in Plainfield before.

Miss Purdee sang "The Rosary," by Nevin, and "A Dream," by Bartlett, also two short encores, in a very pleasing and sympathetic manner. Miss Fellows' songs were "Summer," by Chaminade, and "For All Eternity," by Mascheroni, the latter with violin obligato by Mr. Conde. She also gave "Sweet Kisses," as an encore. She sang brilliantly and sastly, and with much spirit and expression. Mr. Martin's solo was entitled "The Everlasting Day." He sang a ballad, "Afterward," as an encore. His selections were well chosen, and his rendering of them very acceptable. "Who is Sylvia?" by Schubert, was Mr. Holmes' song, and his encore was a bright little piece called 'Only a Ribbon." His well-trained voice and clear pronunciation made this a very pleasing number. The two pianists did excellent work, though in very different style. Mrs. Hall played Rubinstein's "Melody in F," Tschaikowsky's "Skylark," and a short encore, in a musician-like manner and with considerable originality of interpretation; while Miss Heisenbuttel's bright rendering of Schubert's "Hark, the Lark," and Chaminade's "The Flatterer," was easy and enjoyable. "Mary Elizabeth," a clever little story which combines humor and pathos, was Miss Aimee Emmons' reading, and it was given with a grace and naturalness that provoked warm applause. It was followed by a brief encore.

At the close of the programme chocolate and wafers were served by the young women of the circle, and a social hour was enjoyed by all. A very large number of guests were present.

The members of the band will net about $40 as a result of the liberal patronage of their friends. The entire supply of cakes and candies at the sale were disposed of.

FIRE AT DUNELLEN.

Store Owned by John Kuldeesh Destroyed Yesterday.

A barn the property of Theodore Kuldeesh and located in rear of Mrs. Widemere's residence on North avenue, Dunellen, was totally destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock Tuesday. It is not known how the fire started.

In the barn was a quantity of carpenter's tools, together with window sash, doors, etc., that was to be used in the construction of Mr. Kuldeesh's new house now in course of erection on Main street. The loss on the barn and contents is estimated at about $400. There was no insurance on the structure.

Health Improving in the South.

T. R. Green, of East Front street, accompanied by his grandson, Francis M. Whitaker, of the borough, are at the Hotel Bon Air, Augusta, Ga., and in a letter written by Mr. Whitaker a few days to a friend in the borough, he says that both his employer and himself are very much improved in health and are constantly gaining in flesh. He says that the climate is delightful and both are thoroughly enjoying the south.

LOSING NO TIME TO GET NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Board of Education Takes Necessary Preliminary Action.

SITE TO BE 80 BY 150 FEET.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE NAMED TO DO IMPORTANT WORK.

It is Probable That Plans Will be Advertised for, Liberal Prizes Being Awarded for the Best Ones—Selection of Site to be Left to Committee Composed of Messrs. Abbott, Lounsbury and Probasco.

The special meeting of the Board of Education last night was attended by all the members except Mr. Lounsbury who is still too ill to leave his home. In his absence Mr. Abbott acted as secretary.

The business transacted had to do with the proposed new High School building that is to be erected. A communication was received from the Clerk of the Common Council, which stated that the Council had concurred in the School Board's petition for the new building and had given its consent to expending the amount named for the new building. The communication was ordered spread upon the minutes.

Then Mr. Abbott offered a resolution to the effect that as it was desirable to secure as convenient a site for the proposed new High School as possible, a committee of three be appointed to look for proper sites and to receive offers suitable for a building at least 80x150 feet.

A second resolution offered by Mr. Abbott was in effect that a committee of three be named to select a list of architects to submit plans for a High School building.

A third resolution by Mr. Abbott was that a committee of three be named to take the necessary steps to dispose of the Wadsworth property on Central avenue.

All of these resolutions were adopted. Then some discussion followed regarding architects. Mr. Abbott suggested that it might be desirable to offer three prizes for plans. The first prize to be the adoption of the plans; $150 for the second prize, and $100 for the third prize.

Superintendent Maxson said that he thought the Board would have no difficulty in securing competent architects to submit plans. With regard to the sites the committee appointed is to have full power in the matter. President Probasco then named the following committees:

Committee on sites—Messrs. Abbott, Lounsbury and Probasco.

Committee to select an architect—Messrs. Lovell, Richards and Lounsbury.

Committee to dispose of Wadsworth property—Messrs. Lounsbury, Lovell and Abbott.

At the request of Superintendent Maxson the committee on buildings was authorized to place a desk telephone in the superintendent's office at an additional cost of $12 per year. There is a wall telephone in the superintendent's office at present, but the one to be put in is for the convenience of the superintendent's clerk.

Before the Board adjourned Mr. Lovell took occasion to explain to the newspaper reporters that the reason the Board often went into executive session was for the purpose of discussing affairs of a delicate nature regarding teachers or pupils and not with any intention of keeping from the public information regarding the business of the Board. Mr. Lovell said he had been led to make this explanation because of the criticisms made from time to time in the public press about the executive sessions of the Board.

Speaker Followed Business.

Three candidates were initiated at Tuesday's meeting of the Heptascphs and the newly-elected officers were installed by District Deputy Vanderhoof. After the installation a smoker was held, at which brief speeches were made by Deputy Vanderhoof, Samuel Bose, Charles Hepburn, V. W. Nash and others. Before the meeting broke up Messrs. Laing and Bose pitched a game of quoits against Messrs. Nash and Hepburn, defeating them by a score of two to one.

At the Robert Memorial Service.

There was a delegation of Plainfielders at the memorial services in honor of the late Vice-President Garret A. Hobart at Trenton last Tuesday. Among those from this city who will be present by invitation are Assemblymen C. S. Foote and Cooper, Senator Charles A. Reed, Former Assemblymen Roger F. Murray, William Newcorn, John H. Keely and George J. Tobin.

PARK CLUB CAPTURED IT FROM ORANGE CLUB TUESDAY NIGHT.

Regular Four of Park Club Won by a Single Trick 13 to 14—Next Match Will be Played Here With Somerville.

The State whist trophy is back in Plainfield again. The Park Club four went to Orange Tuesday and interrupted the triumphal progress of the Orange Whist Club by just one trick. The Park Club team won by a score of 15 to 14.

The match was played in the club rooms of the Orange Whist Club. Messrs. Foster, Holmes, Lethbridge and DeBoeque, represented the home team. Peter B. Matthews, Arthur A. Freeman, Albert Woltmann and Ralph Willis were the regular Park Club four. The members of the New Jersey Whist Club team watched the contest with interest.

It looked like a victory for the home team in the first round, Orange winning 6 to 2. Then the Parks made a brace and won the second round 8 to 1.

The Orange players tried hard to recover the lost and gathered the third round 6 to 5, but the margin was not large enough to over come the Parks' advantage and the Park Club won the match by a single trick, 15 to 14.

The standing of the principal clubs in the race for the State trophy is as follows: Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club, 9; Park Club, 8; New Jersey Whist Club, 6; Orange Whist Club, 5. The next match will be played Monday with the Somerville Club as the challengers.

ADVERTISING PLAINFIELD.

An Example of the Way the Reckless and False Opinions of the News are Received.

(Elizabeth Journal.)

The following startling statement comes from the Plainfield News:

It may interest the good people of this community to know that there is being worked in this beautiful city one of the most disgraceful gambling games that ever disgraced any community. A number of prosecutions but recently have served to advertise its dark experiences to their friends. If the Plainfield police force had at its head a wide-awake man of energy we might hope for an attempt to break up and do away with the evil carried on in a choice residential district to the disgrace of this city of homes. But what are we to expect as things are today?

The budget game in Plainfield! Think of it. It was a budget game in New York city that brought the notorious Payne Moore into bad prominence and sent her husband to prison for 21 years. That such a thing should exist in Plainfield seems incredible.

CONDUCTOR RAND DEAD.

He Was Well Known to the Commuters Along the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Wm. Rand, for many years a conductor on the Central road, died early this morning at his home in Somerville after an illness of several months. The death of "Billy" Rand, as he was familiarly called, will cause universal regret and sorrow among hundreds of the commuters on the Central. For more than twenty years Mr. Rand ran the Flemington train, due in this city at 7:55, and which is now in charge of Conductor Samuel W. Johnson.

Mr. Rand formerly lived at Flemington, but a few years ago he moved to Somerville. He is survived by a wife, two daughters and one son—all of whom have attained their majority.

To Help Children's Home.

Next Friday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock a reception, musicale and tea will be held at the residence of Mrs. Charles A. Reed, 27 Myrtle avenue, for the benefit of the Children's Home. It having come to the knowledge of the Daughter's of the Cross that this worthy institution is in need of many things, it was decided by the members that much assistance could be rendered through an affair of this kind.

A Profitable Entertainment.

The entertainment given at Bethel chapel last week consisting of scenes from Uncle Tom's Cabin netted a profit of $100, which will be used for the benefit of the chapel work.

Congressman Fowler's Dinner.

Congressman and Mrs. Charles N. Fowler gave a dinner at their home in Washington, D. C., last Tuesday. A number of Senators and Congressmen with their wives were present.

One Less Retiree.

C. C. Snyder has resigned from the firm of Daniel Snyder & Sons, merchant millers, and hereafter the business will be conducted by Daniel and F. D. Snyder.

L. R. Woolston, president of the Board of Trade, and of the firm of Woolston & Buckle, is confined to his home on Fairview avenue by an attack of the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, are stopping for a time in New York.

WESTFIELD LOOKING FOR CHEAPER WATER.

There Is Talk of Organizing a Local Concern.

UNION COMPANY NOT LIKED.

IT IS FELT THAT LATTER EXACTS EXORBITANT RATES.

Feltville Water Company and Summit Company to Submit Propositions That it is Expected Will be Favorably Received — A Comparison Between Plainfield and Westfield.

For over a year past many prominent and influential citizens of Westfield have been engaged on the subject as to how they could procure cheaper water and electric light rates for Westfield.

It is said the Feltville Water Company desires to submit a proposition to furnish water, and President F. H. Bassett, of the Essex and Union Water Company of Summit, also desires to submit a proposition. All the work that has been done up to date has been done with the idea of freezing out the Union Water Company, which the citizens interested in the movement claim charges too much money for the water supply. As yet nothing has been said about electric light.

The citizens' committee is at the present time waiting for a proposition from President Bassett, of the Summit company, to furnish the town water supply. Just what kind of a proposition Mr. Bassett will make is not known. The rate charged by the Essex and Union Water Company at Summit exceed those charged by the Union Water Company at Westfield. The Union Water Company charges $6 for kitchen, $3 for laundry, and $4 for bathroom. The Summit company charges $9 for kitchen, $6 for bathroom and $4 for laundry.

The Union Water Company charges $25 for hydrants. The Summit company charges $45 for less than 100 hydrants and for hydrants up to 125, and $50 for more than 125 hydrants.

Just how Mr. Bassett's company can furnish water for Westfield at lower rates than Summit is not known. In order to get water from Summit to Westfield it will have to be pumped for eight miles.

The Westfield Township Committee has asked the Union Water Company to reduce the price of hydrants to $12, claiming that Plainfield only pays $12 for the hydrants here. The Union Water Company claims it can well afford to furnish hydrants to Plainfield, for in accordance with the company's agreement with the city hydrants are placed every 250 feet making ten hydrants to a mile, or $150 a year for hydrant hire to every mile of water pipe laid in the streets of Plainfield. At Westfield the hydrants are scattered promiscuously about the township, there being less than 100 hydrants in the whole town.

"OUR REGIMENT."

Professional Talent Will Entertain St. Patrick's Day at Music Hall Under Auspices of A. O. H.

A dramatic entertainment will be held at Music Hall St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, under the auspices of Division No. 2, Ancient Order of Hibernians. Special arrangements have been made with William J. Romain, of New York, to have the comedy, "Our Regiment," produced by Romain's Comedy Players. The company will include excellent professional talent recently of Daly's and Frohman's companies. Mr. Romain spent last summer here and has many friends in Plainfield. He will return to Plainfield for this performance after a trip with the Independent Theatre Company in the production of "The Storm."

Union County Bank is Dead.

There does not seem, so far as can be learned, any good foundation for the reports that the Union County Bank is to be reorganized. Business and financial men claim there is now room in Rahway for a National or a State bank. The National Bank is now an assured fact, and will open up within a month.

After Slot Machines at Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, Feb. 21.—The police of this city are about to make a raid on slot machines, of which quite a number of a new gambling pattern have made their appearance within the past two months. The slot machines were banished from the city about a year ago, but they returned later.

Lincoln Was Closer to the People Than Any Other President.

And So American Was Greater, Washington Alone Excepted—The Rail-splitter's Place in History.

[Some Thoughts for February 12.]

AMONG the great figures in American history none stands out more prominently than that of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday—February 12—will, no doubt, before long be observed as a national holiday. Not only in the north, but in the south as well, his heroic life and exemplary devotion to duty are beginning to meet with genuine appreciation, and unlimited and spontaneous are united in bestowing that high doctrine of "charity for all and malice toward none" was not a mere figure of speech, but a solemn conviction and the outcry of a heart devoted to the best interests of the nation and bleeding in sympathy with the "common people."

Lincoln's life reads like a romance. A rail-splitter at 21, an officer in the United States service at 23, a legislator at 25, a lawyer at 33, a congressman at 39, and president at 51; filling every position to the best of his ability and winning the admiration of friend and foe. His legislative duties extended through eight years—1834-1842; so that when he reached Washington as a member of the house of representatives he was qualified thoroughly for his duties. It is exceptional for any congressman to make much of a record in a single term, but the young giant from Illinois succeeded not only in attracting general attention but impressed many of his convictions upon reluctant colleagues.

It has been stated that he took Henry Clay for his political model, as he entertained for him the greatest reverence and attachment. Therefore he entered the campaign of 1844 with enthusiasm, making speeches in various parts of Illinois. When he received tidings of the inglorious defeat of his hero he was ready to enjoin politicians forever, but, fortunately for the country, his exalted idea of public duty forced him again into the arena.

"WITH CHARITY FOR ALL, WITH MALICE TOWARD NONE."

Lincoln was in congress but a single term, and it may not be generally known that he carried his district by a larger majority against the power opposed than was won before or since until one of the landslide elections in the '90s.

Recent revelations have robbed the one episode in Lincoln's life which was used against him by his detractors—his duel with Gen. Shields—of all odium; for it is now clearly established that the affair grew out of a commendable desire to shield a lady from silly gossip. He was unalterably opposed to this mode of settling differences, and frequently expressed himself to this effect.

He was the same age when he entered upon the Black Hawk campaign as Washington when he accompanied Braddock to disastrous defeat. During the civil war he frequently recurred to the fact that he and Jefferson Davis each held commissions as captains in the Black Hawk war—united at that time in a common purpose, as they were arrayed against each other afterwards.

But Lincoln's public career is too well known to need exploitation. It is a part of American history and fills many pages in the history of the world. His personal characteristics, however, served to endear him to the hearts of his boyhood, early struggles and later triumphs are read and listened to with avidity wherever Americans are gathered together in social meeting. Many years ago the writer had the pleasure of hearing a few anecdotes related by Hon. Hezekiah Sanford Bundy, of Wellston, O., who represented the Tenth Ohio district in congress, with great credit to himself. These stories, although illiterate may be known to some, have never obtained wide circulation, and it is therefore not improper to repeat them in this connection.

In 1863 Mr. Bundy had gone to Washington in person in the interest of a sutler recruiting officer who had been charged unjustly with having made false enlistment vouchers, and had been sent to Baltimore and placed in jail at Fort McHenry. Before him in the line of those waiting to see President Lincoln was the wife of a colonel of an Illinois volunteer regiment who had been captured and was confined in a southern prison. She was desirous of securing a special executive order of exchange for her husband.

"I can't do it, madam," said Mr. Lincoln, politely and sympathetically. "There have been altogether too many special exchanges already. Besides, Jeff Davis won't do anything I want him to. He has 20,000 privates in his kingdom whom I would prefer to exchange rather than your husband."

"But my husband is a brave man, and a loyal one. I cannot understand what you mean," replied the lady.

"Madam," responded Lincoln, as he pulled his spilit pen from behind his ear, "with this old pen I can make a colonel in five seconds, but I cannot give him a regiment." Then he added, with characteristic kindness: "Get Kat only at the north, but in the south as well, his heroic life and exemplary devotion to duty are beginning to meet with genuine appreciation, and unlimited and spontaneous are united in bestowing that high doctrine of "charity for all and malice toward none" was not a mere figure of speech, but a solemn conviction and the outcry of a heart devoted to the best interests of the nation and bleeding in sympathy with the "common people."

His personal characteristics, however, served to endear him to the hearts of his boyhood, early struggles and later triumphs are read and listened to with avidity wherever Americans are gathered together in social meeting. Many years ago the writer had the pleasure of hearing a few anecdotes related by Hon. Before him in the line of those waiting to see President Lincoln was the wife of a colonel of an Illinois volunteer regiment who had been captured and was his head, "don't ask me to help you in it."

At last came Mr. Bundy's turn. He told Mr. Lincoln, by way of introduction, that he had been a Lincoln elector, and that what he wanted to ask him was simply an act of justice to a wrongfully imprisoned officer. The president heard the story and then said: "My friend, when are you going to start for home?" It was Saturday evening, and Mr. Bundy told the president that, as he did not travel on Sunday, he should not start until Monday morning. Mr. Lincoln paused a moment and then said, with a smile: "Well, sir, unless you start for Ohio at once your friend will beat you home."

No other great American combined so much humor and good nature with manly fortitude. "Take him all in all," as Shakespeare said of one of his noblest men, "we shall not look upon his like again." Although fond of telling a story and listening to a tale, Lincoln at no time lost sight of the dignity of his great office and never permitted familiarity. Equally at home in the society of the backwoodsman and the trained statesman, he met the lowly on a level and treated the mighty with condescension. He was equally modest and nothing gave him more acute pain than the knowledge that as the chief executive of a nation in the throes of civil war he had to sanction decisions which conscience condemned, and to be coerced out to maintain military discipline or vindicate the majesty of the government in the eyes of those whose loyalty needed constant watching.

To-day the north and south are united; and the latter is contributing as much to the bringing about of this happy condition than the noble rail-splitter from Illinois; whose blood, spilled by a crazy fanatic, has proved to be the cement which binds all sections of our beloved country together into a perfect and complete whole, one and indivisible for all time to come.

BARBED WIRE IN THE WEST.

What the Introduction of Wire Fences Has Meant to Man and Beast.

A few years a villager down in Illinois bent a bit of iron about a strand of fence wire, and noticed that his cattle avoided it. Out of this idea grew a system of fencing which has preserved our pine forests a few decades longer, but which brought to an end many decades earlier the glorious free days of the open and unfenced west. The great cattle ranges, over which roamed one of the most independent populations ever seen on earth, could never have been fenced by rails, or stone walls, or boards of pine. It was difficult enough for the spider-like genius of advancing civilization to keep them fenced with the ever-renewing web of the fatal wire against which the wild men of the early days rebelled so strenuously. Yet mile by mile, thousands of miles after thousands of miles, the thin and easily-spun web crawled out across the west and held it hard and firm. You can never uncoil the deadly web, neither can you replace the victim which it strangled.

Little more than a dozen years ago the writer was with a party hunting for buffalo calves in the upper part of the Panhandle of Texas, where we knew of a little herd still remaining of those great animals, which then soon stood virtually extinct. It was a weary and desolate land, where between water-holes and water-holes lay 60 or 70 miles of absolute desert. Not a tree broke the endless monotony of the plains. The soil was like flint. The sky had for months been guiltless of a drop of rain. It was a region so utterly unsuited for the habitation of mankind that these last few representatives of a passing race of great Americans animals had chosen it as their final places of refuge, thinking that perhaps they would never again hear the sound of rifle shot or see again the face of man. Yet one morning as we faced the sun of another waterless day we came upon a line of strong wire fence, coming from where no man could tell, and running in one unbroken line to the uttermost limits of our vision! It was no delusion, no miracle, no wonder of the wild mirage. It was an accomplished fact. It had no right there, on that free land, where even the wind had swept for ages unfettered by so much as a leaf or stem of straggling tree. As we marveled and muttered at this thing we saw, in the red light of the west, a little moving band of great forms which we knew to be those of the buffalo. They saw us also, and with the instinct of a generation of persecution sweep away at once in flight. Across their line of this fourfold abomination, this corded barrier, this new thing, this infamy never before dreamed of on these free plains. Close bunched, the buffalo struck it with the force of a heavy locomotive and crushed through and over it as though they passed so many straws. Ah, there was a thing dramatic, admirable, out there on that faraway desert! It was the old west, trending to one of the riflerius, casting aside the strands set for its undoing and standing on unhindered, free! Seeing the beauty of this spectacle, our best roper, a cowpuncher born on the old range, rose in his stirrups and tossed his hat high in cheer the buffalo as they lumbered on. For 20 panels the fence lay flat, and we rode across it. Along its inner side was a path worn inches deep by the feet of countless antelopes, cut off by this fence from their ancient way to the water-hole. No man of our party felt glad at this evidence of approaching civilization, this fence thrusting out into the wild land. Every man was partisan for the wild land, and the fence, as executed at this prostration of their enemy, though knowing with sorrow how brief must be their little victory.—E. Hough, in Century.

COST OF FUR RUGS.

Some That Are Very Expensive and Extremely Difficult to Obtain.

Fur rugs are expensive luxuries. The orders for perfect lion skins are sometimes very numerous, and the very highest of prices are paid for these rugs with the beautiful heads attached. An order for a Rhodesian Hartebeest, or African deer head, may take a year to fill. Special prices are charged on such an order, as the remainder of the animal is rendered useless even for museum collections, and $250 to $700 is not an unusual price.

Rug skins without the heads do not bring one-quarter of the price of those with the heads attached. The most perfect lion skin, having a rich color, handsome mane, all the claws, mounted, with the full white-haired head attached, brings as high as $1,000, and no fine ones are to be had for less than $1,000. Nearly all of them have some imperfections, because the superstitious natives usually cut off the heads, or the whiskers, teeth, and sometimes the claws, before they sell them to traders, having a superstition that if these go out of the country in which they live the entire species will become extinct.

The favorite bear rugs next to the lions are the tigers, the white and cinnamon bears, Russian grizzly, leopard, jaguar, wildcat, lynx, fox, ocelot and panther, costing from $150 upward. Buffalo skins have become scarce at $250 apiece, while the beautiful heads alone now bring as high as $1,000.—N. Y. World.

TRADING WITHOUT MONEY.

London Reformers Who Propose by Business Methods to Abolish Artificial Poverty.

Some cooperative reformers of London have started an odd experiment. The scheme in question is the work of the Cooperative Brotherhood trust, limited, and they have hit upon a very ingenious plan for trading without money. Before explaining what this is, however, it would be well to state their reasons for adopting it, which are something more than merely sentimental objections to current coin.

One result of our present system of currency is that money has a value far beyond any of the commodities it represents. The demand for it has increased more of late years than has the supply, and the result is that a man who has no money at all stands to-day but a poor chance of getting any, and a fairly good one of "going under," whereas he may sit at the same be able to do useful work that his fellows need. To-day there are some thousands of men all able to produce something of benefit to the community and yet all of them idle, merely because they lack money.

Take the case of one of these. For the time being all the vacant jobs are full and he is unable to get employment. Now, unless he has money those great animals, and then could stored virtually extinct. It was a weary and desolate land, where between water-hole and water-hole lay 60 or 70 miles of absolute desert. Not a tree broke the endless monotony of the plains. The soil was like flint. The sky had for months been guiltless of a drop of rain. THOUGHT THERE WAS WAR.

The Gunboat Wilmington's Salute to the Amazon Deposited a Village.

In describing the course of the United States steamship Wilmington up the Amazon river E. H. Conger relates the following amusing incidents:

Six days after her departure from Manaos the Wilmington reached a point where the Solimoes ends and the Rio Marmora and Rio Javari, which form it, begin. The Rio Javari is the delineation of serving as the boundary line between Brazil and Peru for some 1500 miles, and close to its junction with the Marañon is a small town, Tabatinga, at which is maintained a force of Brazilian soldiers, who have the monotonous task of guarding the frontier.

The Wilmington fired a national salute as she slowly approached the station and sent a boat ashore to exchange the courtesies of the port. On gaining the little wharf extending out from the bluff banks in front of the town the officer in charge of the gunboat's cutter noticed with some surprise that the crowd of spectators previously observed on the bluff had largely disappeared.

There were several Brazilian soldiers at the landing, and one of these ventured to approach the naval officer. The Brazilian seemed greatly disturbed, and from the actions of his companions the naval officer they felt unaccountably alarmed.

"Senhor," exclaimed the former, hastily, "we are without news, and we beg that you will enlighten us at once."

"The news of what?" the American's puzzled reply. "I am sure I—"

"Then there is no war?" broke in the soldier.

"Not in this part of the world."

"But you fired?"

Lieut. Pillsington's representative stifled his desire to laugh and gravely explained the gunboat's presence and her well-meant courtesy in expending so much powder.

"I am delighted," finally confessed the Brazilian, "very, very delighted, you chief depopulated the village. All the natives have fled to the jungle, and I doubt if we can induce them to return until you are gone. Senhor, those guns, they echo yet!"

A mile or two above Tabatinga several huts were noticed near the river's bank, but the most careful scrutiny with glasses could not discover signs of life. It was plainly apparent the alarm of the Wilmington had badly frightened every Indian within hearing.—Ainslee's.

A VENERABLE TOWN.

An Old-World Town That Was Founded 600 Years Before Christ.

It is not an American city, whose inhabitants put on airs because it was founded 250 years ago! but a really old world town ten times as aged. The city of Marseilles is about to celebrate the two thousand five hundredth anniversary of its foundation by colonists from Phocaea. The exact date of the foundation of Marseilles can hardly be determined; but the Marseillaise cleverly make out a case in favor of the time about 600 years before Christ.

The celebration of the twenty-fifth centenary Marseilles wished to entertain hospitably the mayor of the city of Phocaea, its mother city. That intention raised the question: What had become of Phocaea? In this day the Ionian city of Phocaea, in Asia Minor, was a place of at least 150,000 inhabitants. It was one of the most enterprising maritime cities of antiquity, and its ships led the way to the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian and Iberian seas. It planted the town of Massalia, which the Romans called Massilia, the Provencals Marsillo, and the French call it Marseille.

The geographers agree that ancient Phocaea is represented to-day by the village of Karadja-Fokia, or Nova Foggi, not far from Smyrna. The ancient city, like ancient Massalia, has handed down its name to the present day.

An invitation was sent to the principal local functionary at Karadja-Fokia to attend the celebration at Marseilles. But he was compelled to respond that Phocaea had so far fallen from its ancient wealth and splendor that it would not raise enough money to send its chief magistrate to France.

The mayor of Athens and the syndic of Rome were also invited, and they have been able to accept. They will be the first governing population of the third city of France. But they still retain traces of the Ionian Hellenic blood which the founders of the city took in their veins from Phocaea.—Youth's Companion.

An Octopus Picnic.

A correspondent writes as follows from the village de Los Angeles, a small watering place on the coast of the Cheribonga promontory: "For the last two or three months this coast has been visited by a perfect octopus plague. They have ruined the fisheries, and many men have laid up their boats in despair. They devour everything, even the crabs and lobsters and oysters and all shell fish. The other day a man employed at the large oyster beds near here told me that he counted no less than 1,000 on an 18-oysters that tide. The shore is strewn with octopi, and the other morning a long high-water mark I counted 60 in a distance of 200 yards. A friend here has measured one that was 8 feet 7 inches across the tentacles, but there are far larger ones than that. Some of the suckers are as large as a two-shilling piece. They are most loathesome beasts. Unless the cold winter destroys them there will be no bathing next summer along the coast."—Pall Mall Gazette.

AN ECHO OF 1890

A Little Romance of the Census Office

Director Merriam Has Already Found Other Things Besides Statistics in the Decadal Enumeration

SHORTLY after ex-Gov. William R. Merriam, of Minnesota, was appointed United States census director at Washington, D. C., he received a letter signed "Stevens Johnson."

The writer respectfully asked for an audience, but as Mr. Merriam was very busy and imagined that Stevens Johnson was simply one of the many applicants for census positions, who were making his life a burden, he told his secretary to answer the letter and state that, owing to the great pressure of work, it was impossible to grant the requested audience unless for some very important matter.

A few days later another letter was received. It was the same strange appeal to the director for a brief audience. It read:

"I am not an applicant for a position in the census department. I am not a crank with a new scheme. The object of the audience I pray for is to express my appreciation to me, and you cannot appreciate the magnitude of the service you may render to me until you have granted the audience for which I most respectfully and earnestly beg.

"There was only a few moments of your valuable time.

"Your most obedient servant,

"STEVENS JOHNSON."

After reading this letter Director Merriam told his secretary to write and tell Mr. Johnson to come on the morrow at three o'clock.

At the appointed time an old man, bowed by years, with hair white as snow, entered the waiting-room and sent his card to the director.

"Mr. Johnson, what can I do for you?" kindly asked the director, after ordering a chair to the old gentleman.

"First permit me to tell you my story. After that you will know what you can do for me. Twelve years ago I was a happy and prosperous man, but I was cursed by a terrible temper. One day, after an unfortunate dispute, I ordered my only son out of my home. The trouble arose over a trifle, and afterwards I found that I was wrong. It was too late, my boy had left home. This proved to be the beginning of my misfortunes. A few months later my wife died, after a short illness—died asking with her last breath for our only son.

"When she was buried, I realized that there could be not rest on earth for me unless I could find my son. After selling out everything I started in search of my boy, decided to wander like a lost soul from place to place, strong of hope that God would take pity on me and hear my prayer, for I had repented.

"Months and years have passed and my body is weary, but hope still burns in my soul, and I will not rest until I have found my precious boy whom I have wronged. I came to ask his forgiveness, that I may die in peace. He is somewhere in the United States, I know, and the favor I wish to beg of you is that you will kindly instruct the head of the population department to make lists for me of all the "John A. Johnsons" and their addresses in the United States, and I will send a letter of inquiry to each and every one. In this way I feel sure of reaching my son. Will you do me the favor, Mr. Director?"

The request was readily granted, and in the pleading tone of the old man's voice that Director Merriam felt greatly impressed, and while very doubtful as to the practicability of the request said no to the results, he said: "I will order Mr. Hart to furnish you with the desired addresses from the list made during the census of 1890; but do you realize, Mr. Johnson, that yours is a very common name, and that many hundred "John A. Johnsons" are likely to be found? To write to each one means a big undertaking and a large expenditure, my dear sir. I am afraid you have not properly considered the matter."

"Yes, I have. I know the magnitude of the task, but I am not poor, and the money I have I cannot spend to better purpose than in finding my son," answered the old man.

"All right, you may call at the census department tomorrow at four o'clock, and every day after, until you have received the desired addresses," said the director to the old man, who, as he rose to go, exclaimed fervently: "Thank you, Mr. Merriam, and God bless you for your kindness."

The next day at four o'clock, a stately old gentleman was seen going into Mr. Hart's office, where he was given a list of John A. Johnsons, with about 200 different addresses. Every day after, until it was complete, the same old man was after his list, pursuing the clerks, who formed all sorts of conjectures as to the reason for his strange action.

The stereotyped letter sent to each address, read as follows:

"This letter is intended to reach John A. Johnson, who left Stevens Johnson, who formerly lived in Greytown, Minn. During nearly ten years, Stevens Johnson has been searched for by me, and if this letter reaches the right John A. Johnson, he must answer at once either by letter or telegraph, addressing

"STEVENS JOHNSON,
"No. 17 Grant Place,
"Washington, D. C."

Hundreds of letters were received from John A. Johnsons who wanted to know more details, or who asked relief, stating their family circumstances. Some of the answers were pathetic, others were ridiculous. Some wrote that they had forgotten where they lived 12 years before, but believed they were wanted, but Stevens Johnson, they knew not, and, knew that not one was from his son.

Despair was reentering his soul. His health was rapidly failing under the stress of anxiety, and the great amount of indoor work necessitated by his enterprise. There came a day when he could not go to the census department, but he sent a young woman who was faithfully acting as his secretary.

SPRINGING TOWARD THE OLD MAN.

From this day he could hardly move from his couch. She read to him the answers received daily; she attended to all the details of his work, and by cheerful words of encouragement succeeded in keeping the spark of hope in the heart of the broken old man. But the light of a waning candle, so was the life of Stevens Johnson liable to flicker out at any moment. His attending physician had little hope of many more days for old Johnson.

At about this time this telegram was received:

"Am on my way to see you. Will arrive to-morrow at eight p. m.

"JOHN A. STEVENS JOHNSON."

When the telegram was read to the old man a smile of sublime happiness shone upon his face; new life seemed to enter his wasted old body.

"It's from him! Thank God!" he exclaimed to the young nurse at his bedside, who felt tears of sympathy in her eyes.

The next evening, shortly after eight o'clock, a handsome young man knelt by the bedside of the old man, holding in his own the wasted hands of Stevens Johnson.

"Father! Father!"

"My son! My poor son!"

Strange to say, Stevens Johnson got well.

"There is something in census-taking besides statistics," said the bluff and rushing Merriam, brushing away a tear as he saw the reunited father and son standing before him, beaming with love for one another.

"Yes, there is," replied the elder Johnson. "Do you know me?"

"By George!" exclaimed the director, springing toward the old man and grasping him by the hand. "Are you Steve Merriam, who ran away from New York 40 years ago, when I was a little boy, and never returned or wrote home?"

"Yes, I am," and the long separated cousins were soon clasped in an affectionate embrace.

"Verily, there is something besides statistics in the census," observed Assistant Director Wines, who had dropped in to consult with Gov. Merriam, "and everybody should be glad to see the enumerators coming and to answer all their inquiries fully and accurately."

THE HAIR.

Best Means of Keeping It In Good Condition.

Comparatively few women realize how much the hair is benefited by being allowed to hang loose so that the air may pass through it freely. It should be left floating upon the shoulders a little while every day, and if it is fair sunshine will additionally improve it, but dark hair sometimes is faded by sunlight. It is a very bad plan to wet the hair when dressing it daily. It should be thoroughly washed occasionally and dried quickly by warm air, but should never be sopped with water so that it is dank and clammy and so allowed to remain until the warmth of the head dries it. The comb should be used as little as possible, as it drags and breaks the hair, and a fine comb is always to be avoided. A stiff brush with long bristles will clear the hair as well as a comb without doing it injury, and the friction stimulates the scalp and removes dust. The hair should be left free at night or at most loosely braided, and any covering worn on the head which induces perspiration tends to cause the hair to fall.

The cut shows a reception costume of white crepe de chine. Around the foot are three scant circular ruffles. The bodice, which is fitted at the back, is draped in front and closed at the side. The yoke of shirred white mousseline de soie is encircled by a bertha of white mousseline de soie. The sleeves of elbow length are of wrinkled mousseline de soie and are finished with a frill. Bows composed of loops of white satin baby ribbon are placed at the shoulders, waist and elbows. The belt is of white satin.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Elaborate Styles For Very Little People.

Fashion is as dictatorial in the realm of the children's wardrobe as in that of women. She decrees that little girls be to a great extent miniature copies of their mammas in attire, and not only mature styles but such materials are employed. Bias and circular skirts, long, straight sacks with little directoire capes and collars, fur, cloth, silk and velvet are as much for little as for big girls. Not that such a system of dressing children is in the best taste, for the extreme type of fashion never is in the best taste. The most refined mothers usually clothe their little people very simply instead of overpowering them with finery.

Greenaway hats, which are much like those of the directoire style, are used for little girls. They have a rippled brim bordered with fur. Gainsborough and Hervey-Aids hats, with lifted brims trimmed with plumes, are another variety much liked, but too mature and theatrical to be really suitable for children.

The picture shows a party dress for a little girl 8 years old. It is of pale pink crepe de chine, and the skirt is trimmed with a narrow band of passementerie simulating a tunic. The bodice, full in front, has a large peleine collar of crepe de chine trimmed with two bands of insertion and bordered with fringe. There is no high collar. The sleeves, of elbow length, are terminated by bands and bows of pink silk, and the waist belt, which is fringed and tied at the side, is of pink silk.

FASHION HINTS.

The Latest Ideas In Accessories of the Costume.

Toques composed entirely of flowers are among the new models. These are not particularly useful, in fact are of no use else, the body being made of one kind of flower, with an aigret arrangement of another kind. For instance, a toque of violets set close together without leaves is trimmed with a tall cluster of tea roses, with foliage.

Belt buckles are now objects of art and are often very expensive ones when composed of imitation stones and ordinary metal. No wide belts are worn, but otherwise the variety of clasps and buckles is great arrangements almost covering the front half of the belt to a simple open buckle of gun metal with absolutely no ornamentation. A sort of greenish gold metal is much used this season in combinations with dull silver metal and is a novelty which is very attractive.

In spite of the excessive use of jewelry and the revival of antique ornaments earrings are very little seen, which is a significant symptom of a general advance in matters of taste.

A picture is given of a gown of hortensia broche silk in two tones. The skirt is laid in four plaits at each side of the tablier, and in the middle of the back is a double box plait. The front plaits are fastened down by buttons. The close bodice, buttoning at the side, is ornamented by a draped fichu of hortensia crepe de chine with fringed edges. A brooch of brilliants fastens the fichu at the side. The yoke and collar are of guipure de venise over hortensia silk. The outer part of the elbow sleeves is of guipure, the under part of plaited broche silk. A scarf of crepe de chine with fringed ends forms the belt.

JUVENILE STYLES.

Pretty Attire For the Use of Young People.

Mother Hubbard gowns still prevail for very little girls. Of cashmere, henrietta cloth or fine, silky serge nothing can be prettier for ordinary or nice wear. The most fitting decoration at present is a large, flat collar of the same material as the gown falling below the shoulders and bordered with guipure or a bertha of some sort.

Little, loose sacks of gray, blue, mastic or beige cloth with big pearl buttons are much used for little girls. They have not, however, vanquished the long cloak, which is not only a great protection from cold, but serves to cover the gown beneath as the skirt does in the case of the house and street wear. These cloaks are finished in the tailor fashion with stitched or doubly stitched seams. Cloth is not the only goods employed, heavy cheviot or serge cloaking or diagonal being often chosen as more serviceable. A cape-like lined with plaid silk is a frequent addition when double faced golf cloaking, which requires no lining, is not used. This capeclon is usually made separate and fastened on by hooks under the collar so that it may be taken off when it is not desired.

The young girl's gown illustrated has a plaited skirt of white voile and a long over a front of guipure over white silk. The fitted bodice of white silk has a yoke of guipure over white silk and a horizontally plaited plastron of voile. White silk ruffles with pinked edges are arranged in bretelles, a tiny roche of white silk forming a beading. The elbow length sleeves are of guipure over white and are finished with a pinked ruffle. EVENING WRAPS.

Cloaks of Various Kinds For Evening Wear.

For evening wraps silk, which are frequently of great elaboration, plush, brocade, satin, velvet, peaue and cloth are all employed in light, medium and dark shades and even in black. If a woman goes out a great deal in the evening, she must have more than one wrap, as what is suitable to accompany dress that will not harmonize with elaborate full dress. A long, loose redingote attractively trimmed will answer for the less important occasions, but for large balls or the opera a wrap or cape of more pretentious description is required. Dark fur on light colored material is much liked as decorative effect at present on both simple and elaborate wraps.

The richest wraps are lined and trimmed with mousseline de soie. When used as a lining, this material is shirred, gathered and plaited until it is a mass of fluffiness and is really very warm. At present it is preferred to a plain fur lining and is sometimes more costly.

The illustration given today shows some models of sleeves for evening gowns. The first, of velvet or panne, is of half length and is trimmed with embroidered galloon, which forms Louis Quinze bows, one of which retains a full pearl at the elbow. The edge is finished with a frill of gauze. The second, of guipure de venise, is open on the outside and laced by narrow ribbon forming loops at the elbow and shoulder. The third is composed of a bow of spangled tulle held by a cluster of flowers, a drapery falling from the bow across the top of the arm.

THE WARDROBE.

Long Evening Wraps—Their Style and Decoration.

The favorite form for evening wraps of the season is the elaborate cape in that of the full length cape curved in at the back and held to the figure by ribbons tied around the waist. There are no sleeves, of course, and the lower curve out of the front are largely rounded off so as not to interfere with walking. A capechon which may be put on or detached at pleasure is the usual adjunct, and almost invariably there is a high, flaring collar which protects the neck and much of the head. On dark side of this front, between the lining and the goods, a sort of pocket is often inserted to serve as a muff.

It is better to avoid heavy trimming for these wraps, as it renders them burdensome. If it is not desired to trim them all around, the decoration may be placed at the edges of the two fronts. The inside of the collar must also be fully trimmed. Lace mingled with fur is always elegant. Light linings are preferred, and even when the material of the cape is cloth white satin or white mousseline de soie is usually chosen as a lining.

The cut shows a visiting costume of otter velvet. It is a princess gown, closed at the left side and slightly draped at the waist. Large clasps of elaborate metal embroidery fasten the gown. The tight sleeves are plaited at the top and have metal applications at the waist, and the collar is also enriched with metal applications. The hat of pearl gray velvet is trimmed with otter velvet and has a metal motif in front which retains a fan aigret of pearl gray silk.

Shoes For the Monkey.

A Washington police court, says The Green Bag, had occasion to pass upon the momentous question whether the proprietor of a monkey can be compelled to furnish it with shoes. On the complaint of some benevolent Miss Pietro Pizzella, the monkey's master, a boy named Pizzella, was brought into the temple of justice to answer a charge of cruelty to animals, in that he was utilizing a barefooted monkey in the collection of his peregrine hoofers. After a careful research into the law of domestic relations the court reached the conclusion that Signor Pizzella was under no legal obligation to furnish his friend with footgear, and the case was accordingly dismissed.

PLAITED COSTUMES.

Increasing Vogue of This Style of Ornamentation.

The question of plaits is becoming extremely important. Beginning with skirts, they have gradually invaded every part of the costume, bodices, basques, sleeves, collars, even cuffs. The plaits are of the bouffant order, but are flat and so arranged that the gown clings as closely to the figure as if it did not exist. The plaited costume is always made upon a plain, perfectly fitted lining. In some cases the material may be plaited and attached to the lining piece and cut afterward like plain goods. In other cases, however, the plaits require to be laid over a dress form in order that they may be adjusted to the lines of the figure. The fitted lining is first placed upon the form; then the plaits are laid and pinned or basted in place, and after they are properly arranged they are stitched to the lining.

The quality of the goods also influences the plaiting. The thinner and lighter it is the more numerous the plaits may be, and vice versa.

A picture is given of a new coat model. It is of cloth and is tight, with a very long basque and rounded fronts. It has immense revers and opens over a double breasted effect of white cloth which also has large revers and is fastened with two rows of gold buttons. The tight sleeves have flaring cuffs of white cloth. The collar is of velvet, the cravat of lace. All the edges of the coat are finished with stitching.

FANCY DRESS.

Coiffures For Dinners Where Guests Come in Character.

This winter sees a revival in Paris of the fancy dress dinners and balls of which that lively city never grows tired. Now is the accepted time for them, and until Lent there will be a constant succession of gayeties. A favorite style of amusement is a dinner at which the fancy dress effect extends no further than the head, the rest of the costume being of the ordinary evening type. As only the upper part of the toilet is much in evidence at dinner, this simplifies matters very much. Some historical person is chosen, or an allegorical character, or, in fact, anything suitable for any fancy ball, and the head is dressed in accordance as far as possible. Wigs, hats, turbans, all accessories which could be conveniently worn, are admissible. This is a far easier method of indulging in fancy costumes than an entertainment where the entire toilet is to be characteristic.

A picture is given of a complete costume of the period of 1825. The scant skirt of myrtle green silk has a deep flounce set in plaits and headed by a large ruche. The flounce falls over a facing of plaid silk. The bodice, plaited in front, has a pointed basque and is filled in with a plaited vest, which is bordered by a deep berthe of lace. The half length sleeves are full, and the gloves have openwork tops. There is a belt fastened by an oval buckle, and around the neck is a ruche of plaited mousseline de soie. The enormous hat is covered with stretched myrtle green satin with a ruche and bow of green ribbon and a cluster of flowers under the brim. A bag of plaid silk is carried.

FASHIONABLE GOWNS.

Originality of Effect the Most Desirable Characteristic.

The aim of the most elegantly dressed women is not so much to follow the exact line of fashion as to adapt it to their own individuality and style, combining the general characteristics to devise unique details which shall make their apparel different from that of others. For example, one woman will have the dandelion of her evening gown outlined by a piping of scarlet velvet which contrasts dazzlingly with the skin. Another will cut the edge into fantastic forms which rest upon the shoulders in points or scallops with an odd effect. An unusual arrangement of flowers, a daring combination of colors—these are the resources for obtaining original results.

The costume illustrated is of moss green velvet. It has a plain skirt under a tunic, the tunic being ornamented with stitched bands of turquoise panne. The velvet bodice is fitted at the back and made rather full at the waist in front, the collar being continuous with the revers. The short, scalloped basque is of turquoise panne, as is the vest, which closes with gold buttons. The little plastron is of embroidered white satin, and the collar is of white satin with a gold edging. The sleeves are of green velvet, with turquoise bands at the wrists, and the belt of green velvet with gold beads. The draped toque of green velvet is trimmed with cogues and chest of turquoise panne.

THE ART OF DRESS.

Why Frenchwomen Excel In That Particular.

Frenchwomen above all others understand the art of dressing. Some they understand how to subordinate fashion to their own individuality. Paris is the fountain head of fashion, but those fashions which are unsuited to the figure are not the most elegant. The Parisienne, instead of following fashion, makes it, and for herself alone. She selects nothing simply because others wear it, but out of the multiplicity of styles offered by the modiste, the stage, the manufacturers, she chooses that which suits her, color and decoration which best set off her own particular attraction. She is learned in her own charms, and whether the chief of them be fine skin, hair, figure or complexion, she dresses up to it and displays it to the greatest advantage. It is in this one instinct of selection that American and particularly English women are often lacking. They wear a color or a style because it is the prevailing mode, and not because it becomes them. Indeed it is sometimes most hopelessly unsuitable and conceals or distracts from the beauties they really possess.

The cut shows a costume of periwinkle blue peau de soie. The skirt is ornamented around the foot by applications of periwinkle blue velvet, outlined with silver. The tunic, which is bordered by five bands of blue velvet, forms a deep point in front and points upward to the hips at the sides. The bodice, which opens in the middle of the back. The bodice has a yoke and guimpe of gauze over white satin, the edges of the yoke being outlined with three bands of blue velvet and two rows of silver buttons in front. The top and wrists of the sleeves are similarly trimmed. The collar is of white satin; the belt of blue velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE REIGNING MODE.

What Is Decreed For Cold Weather Wear.

No gaiety now appears at the waist either in the basque or gown skirt, all fullness being reserved for the edge. The same idea is carried out in capes and wraps, which become the fullest slowly, flaring only at the border. A new vasie of fur of this class covers the arms and falls in front in two short points. The edge is cut in tabs to form a sort of flounce, and from beneath these tabs an ample flounce of velvet very deep at the back, continuing and growing a little narrower across the arms and finally commingling the ends of the fronts. The high fur collar is lined with shirred velvet. This is a comfortable and luxurious wrap, suitable for an elderly woman. An old fur cape of the shorter, full variety is susceptible of being thus altered. It may, on the other hand, be changed into a bolero, such as young women prefer, with large revers of white satin or of moire incrusted with yellow lace.

Sleeveless boleros of velvet are to be worn, with a long scarf of lace of mousseline de soie in front. These may be worn beneath the large mantles now adapted for all over visiting gowns.

The evening gown illustrated is of sky blue voile. The skirt is run plaited and has an application of Richelieu lace near the foot. Over this is a princess tunic of the voile having a ruffle of the mousseline de soie around the edge. It is draped at the waist by a cluster of Malmaison roses, and the bodice opens over a plaited plastron of the voile. The bodice and revers and the sleeves are of Richelieu lace, the sleeves having bands of black velvet at the wrists and ruffles of white mousseline de soie.

DINNER GOWNS.

Full and Net Garnitures With Transparent Sleeves.

As invitations to dinner do not always specify just how large and how formal the dinner is to be, it is sometimes a little difficult to decide just the costume to be worn upon the occasion. To appear in full evening dress when all the other guests are in high dress is not in the least the thing, and to wear ordinary costume when the rest are in their best bib and tucker. The excessive favor shown to tulle and net this season affords a happy compromise and permits a sort of costume which will not be out of place at any dinner.

FASHION NOTES.

New Buttons and Fresh Ideas For Hair Ornaments.

Some of the novelties in spring and summer wash goods are exceedingly pleasing. Among these are sheer lawns or batistes with dots or designs in embroidery of black or black and white in combinations. As examples may be cited a white batiste with groups of black polka dots and figure, another with scattered, a pink batiste with groups of similar figures in black dots and white both separated by bright pink lines, batistes embroidered with white Louis Quinze bow-knots. Any of these would make a charming gown.

Pretty flowers are worn in the hair with evening costumes, while ornaments enjoy increased favor. Among the newest of these is a sort of flower crescent of tulle, white or colored, very finely jewelled with crystals. In the middle and aigret of fine white tulle studded with crystals. Very pretty are the buckles worn of gold or silver or batteries of lace or tulle. Brooches are also much worn in the hair, and the effect is often excellent if the brooch is properly placed. A leaf of green enamel, for example, placed at the side of a fluffy arrangement of chestnut hair is exceedingly pretty. The brooch must not be too small and must be attractive in itself, as a bit of coloring or as artistic design.

The illustration given today shows the latest development of the bolero for use of dress. It is of black velvet and has a short basque, longer in front than at the back and cut in scallops at the edge. The yoke and collar is lined with chinchilla, and these have large chinchilla revers. The tight sleeves have bands of chinchilla at the wrists, and there is a bow of black satin at the top of each. A belt of gray felt stitched with black is trimmed with a bow of black velvet, with a rhinestone buckle and a large cluster of black curled plumes.

NEXT SEASON'S STYLES.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before—A Novel Hat.

The newest models of shirt waists have a front let in, like the bosom of a shirt, and this in some of a different material. For example, a shirt waist of pink zephyr will have a front of white piqua with a printed design in pink. Soft cravats of the same material as the waist are a frequent accompaniment.

The old fashion of drawing the ends of a long neck scarf through a ring is again revived.

There is every indication that white will be as much worn next summer as it was last. Lace and embroidery are shown in profusion as the decoration of advance models of warm weather gowns, these being a mass of delicate insertions which form all sorts of fantastic motives.

FEATHER HAT.

The circular sleeve continues to be a feature of these costumes, but requires to be very carefully treated in sheer fabrics, as there is always danger that it will stretch out of shape. Besides pure white, there are many combinations of several shades or colors with white, which are extremely pleasing.

A picture is given which illustrates a charming model for a hat. It is composed of brim and crown, of overlapping red quills. The left side is lifted by a large chou of red moire velvet, which rests upon the brim. Another chou of the same velvet is placed upon the crown and is pierced by one large red quill. The same chou is repeated in front of the brim and in pendant bits.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

The Central's Honest Stand.

A delegation of representative business men of this city went to New York yesterday and interviewed First Vice-President Warren, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in the hope that the company could be interested in the project of opening the proposed new thoroughfare from North avenue to Front street to the extent of constructing a street tunnel under their tracks at the North Avenue Station. The consummation of such a idea has to make a continuation of Sycamore street from its present termination at Fourth street.

Mr. Warren's attitude when this proposition was submitted to him was the personification of honesty, frankness and straight-dealing. In polite but emphatic language he said that the company would not consider for one moment the idea of undertaking such a improvement.

There was verbal sparring, no "beating around the bush," no saying that they would "excuse that bridge when they came to it," but a brief and convincing response which allowed of no false hopes being raised in the minds of those seeking to enlist the aid of the company. The candor of Mr. Warren was refreshing and gratifying. Too often men acting under the same circumstances would have said something that would encourage the promoters of the scheme without committing the railroad company either one way or the other. Then when the time for decisive action arrived, the company would say that it meant one thing and the committee would insist on a contrary version. The result, of course, would be the stirring up of bad blood, and a disastrous ending of the pleasant relations that now exist.

As long as the railroad company has made up its mind to go so far in the improvements at the North Avenue station, and no farther, we are glad that the position was stated so firmly and explicitly by Mr. Warren. It is a stand that Plainfielders will appreciate.

The disappointment the committee of citizens experienced because of the attitude of the railroad company towards the street tunnel scheme, was largely dissipated by the statement that the company had plans underway by which it was intended to commence this spring the construction of another depot on the south side of the tracks, to accord to date east of Second traffic. It has been intimated heretofore that this action was to be taken, but now that the news comes direct and authoritatively from such a high official as Vice-President Warren it cannot be doubted. The appreciation that Plainfielders will show for this improvement is forecasted by the constant and earnest demand that has existed in relation to it for several years past.

In a political editorial that commenced with a sentence that occupied nearly seven inches of a standard newspaper column, we find this paragraph in the last issue of Silas Dowey Drake's Real Estate News and Union Star:

> When we know where you "were at" in Woods Hall—that is, when we contemplate what your nervous system experienced after being shocked with Bryan's electric oratorical battery, and it was an agreeable sensation for you, but if it was for every other body, injurious if it permeates your system, its enraging effect may not be experienced for many months, but you will understand us when you remember what we now tell you.

Silas could safely offer a lot at Dowey Park as a prize for a proper interpretation of this language, and rest assured he would not find a winner. We confess that it is beyond our comprehension.

After a long and bitter fight for the plum, the Metuchen postmastership has been secured by Edward Burroughs on the recommendation of Congressman Howell. Notwithstanding the inexorable rule of politics that prevails in postoffice appointments that Congressmen shall have the selection of those who are to administer the offices in their respective districts, a desperate attempt was made by Robert Carson, the G. O. P. boss of Middlesex county, to prevent the President's approval of Mr. Howell's recommendation. Burroughs, the successful candidate, is a "commuter," while Morton, his contestant, is a "town man."

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink, called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through the system. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the finest grades of coffee but costs about ¼ as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

LONG SKIRTS.

A Street Railroad Conductor Tells How Much Trouble They Cause.

The weather was very cold, and only the conductor and usual fresh-air fiend had dual possession of the back platform. As the car neared a crossing a well-dressed lady pressed the button to stop, and the "car" obediently pulled the bell. The lady gathered up a small bundle or two, and, as is the manner of the sex, hurried out to the platform before the motorman had any idea of throwing off the current. The result was that she stood in the open doorway just long enough to reduce the car to freezing, while the car was coming to a halt. Before it had quite slackened up she strode forward and stepped off, as is the invariable custom of womankind, with her back to the front of the car, with the result of an unexpected visit to Mother Earth, accompanied by a fleeting vision of up-to-date hosiery and a shattered bundle.

The usual course of events varied not a spot from the usual order of things—the conductor getting a rating, the railroad company being denounced as malice-aforethought murderers, and invariable damage suit forcibly brought out of retirement.

After the excitement had subsided the conductor spoke as follows:

"They're all alike. Show me a hen, a cat and a mule, and I'll show you the photograph of a woman. You can't tell a woman to step off a car right, no more than you can get her to wear pockets in her dress or pass a mirror without looking in. I've got a theory which I think is about right. It's all on account of the skirts and no pockets. Yes, it is a queer combination. But look at it this way: A woman with a long skirt will nine times out of ten hold it up with her left hand. On account of the absence of pockets she carries her pocketbook in her right hand. This would be all right if she would wait till the car stops, but no woman will do that under any circumstances. People get off the car on the right-hand side, and it is naturally reversing the left hand to hold onto the handrail, but the woman will pick up her skirt, as she is in the habit of doing, with her left hand, and dance right off, facing in the direction she wants to go. You see just how that will result in. They blame it on the conductors, but it's all the fault of the long skirts. If she didn't have to carry her pocketbook in her right hand she would reach around for her skirt with that. But she don't, and there you are."

And the fresh-air fiend nodded sententingly, and dropped off, grasping the rail with his left hand.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CARE OF CARVING KNIVES.

When to Use at Table—They Should Be Whetted on the Steel After Every Cut.

Carving knives should, to begin with, be of the best steel, and then should always be kept in the highest condition. A good knife takes time and trouble, while the portions and joints look as much better for a little treatment with a blunt cutting edge has been used. It is well for an ironmonger when offering these goods for sale to thoroughly understand not only the construction of the article he sells, but the best manner of using it. A few hints given by a Sheffield manufacturer when discussing this subject may be useful. He says: "I have handled carving knives both in business and at my table for many years, and I know that the best knives will not cut properly when used on hot roast beef unless the steel is used after every few cuts. The best way is to use the steel after every cut. I never can be rough, as some people imagine—in fact, a well-worn steel is better than the one with a rough surface, and a few passes over it with the knife produce a good edge. The points of the knife and manipulates a carving knife for five minutes on a steel before he begins to carve and thinks that now he has it all right and may send the steel away makes a great mistake. He should keep the steel handy and pass the knife over it lightly a few times after every cut or two. And even then he will accomplish nothing unless he knows how to use the two instruments. A carver must be held at an angle of from 20 to 25 degrees on the steel. One must be careful to have the angle the same on both sides, otherwise the knife will be dull instead of sharp. The knife should be drawn on the steel from heel to point against the edge, and the pressure should be very light."—Ironmongers' Chronicle.

National Luncheons.

National luncheons are the latest thing in the feminine world. The scheme of the lunch party is to take a certain country as the dominant note and represent it in table decorations, room trimmings, costumes of the maids and the dishes. At a Swedish luncheon the other day the maid wore the national peasant costume, the table had crossed ribbons of the tricolor, and among the dishes were spaghetti, stuffed olives, Italian salad, Italian bread, fish, desserts and entrees, all of it taken from an Italian table. Russia, China, Norway, England and other European countries afford lots of opportunities for these national affairs. The flags are easily obtainable, and with a good cook, a good cook book and an eye open for the delicacies of the shops and stores, a bright hostess may make a luncheon of this character very attractive.—N. Y. Herald.

A Cup of Water.

A cup of hot or cold water taken on rising in the morning is of much value with some people, for the mucous coat of the stomach is washed away, and its fulnes are more quickly brought into contact with the food.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

TOOK $6 IN BILLS.

Alleged Needle Peddler Suspected of Robbing Office of A. V. D. Honeyman.

The local police are looking for two men who were seen here Friday and Saturday on the ostensible business of selling needles. One of them is suspected of robbing the office of A. V. D. Honeyman, on North avenue, of $6 in bills.

When Claude Hand and William McCann, the office boys, returned to the office after lunch Saturday, they met a man descending the stairs and carrying a little leather case. They found that the office door had been pried open and the papers strewn over the floor.

Mr. Honeyman had left $6 in bills on top of his desk. The money was gone and so were several small articles from the desk. The safe was locked and no attempt was made to force it.

The man wore a dark coat and a light hat, and seemed to answer the description of one of the two needle merchants. The matter was reported to the police, but the strangers have disappeared.

CHARGED WITH TRESPASS.

Plainfield Sportsman Called Upon to Pay $5 by an Offended Farmer.

Three sportsmen of Plainfield are being broken of their rest by an unpleasant communication, received recently from Lawyer Bedle, of Somerville, in the form of a bill for $5 accompanied by a request to settle and thereby ward off a suit for trespass, which the latter says is about to be started by a well-known citizen of North Branch. It appears that about the time of the game season the three sportsmen were in the vicinity of North Branch armed with guns and a desire to bag game. They secured permission to cross the property of the well-known citizen upon the promise that they would refrain from shooting any game that might cross their path.

But the sight of a rabbit was too tempting and all hands blazed away. Before they had left the property in question the trio had bagged a number of rabbits. Hence the suit.

THE SPANISH HERO.

The Cid Forms an Interesting Topic for the Lecture Given By Professor Ford.

A lecture on "The Cid" was given by J. D. M. Ford, professor at Harvard University, before the Monday Afternoon Club, at All Souls' church yesterday afternoon. The Cid of history and the Cid of romance were considered, the name Cid being given to the Spanish hero, Rodrigo Diaz or Ruy Diaz de Bivar and meaning lord.

The historical Cid was described as much less courtly and worthy of admiration than the Cid of romance, though even as a historical character he was pronounced by an enemy "a Miracle of the Lord." Mr. Ford read largely from a translation of the Spanish poem, "The Cid."

Brewing Company's New Officers.

The Rising Sun Brewing Company has elected Phillip Schaible as president, to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Charles Seeber, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island. Mr. Seeber's son, who comes into possession of his father's stock in the company, was elected vice-president in place of Former Freeholder Owen Sullivan, who was made secretary. Philip Schaible was re-elected treasurer. The company's assets, it was announced, were nearly one million dollars, the growth of the business during the past two years having been very large.

Council Meets Once Before Election.

There will be another meeting of the Borough Council Friday, March 6, before the borough election when two Councilmen will be elected to take the places now held by Messrs. Coddington and Burtis. There is very little interest being manifested in the election, and very few seem to care who gets the positions.

Three Homes Made Bright.

Three homes on East Third street were made bright and happy Monday. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mundy a baby boy arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Towsley were gladdened by the arrival of a daughter, while Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buell were likewise blessed with a baby daughter.

Death of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman's Son.

ARGUED QUESTION OF CLOSING DRAWBRIDGES.

Railroad Lawyers Ask That Passengers Have Right of Way.

THERE IS OPPOSITION TO IT.

RIVER TOWNS FEAR THAT IT WILL HURT FREIGHT FACILITIES.

Contended that the Commuters on the Railroads are of Much More Importance Than the Cheap Class of Freight Carried by Water Craft—32,000,000 People Were Carried Across Last Year.

A meeting of business men was held in the rooms of the Newark Board of Trade Monday to give their views to the Board of United States Engineers in opposition to the closing of the drawbridges over the Newark bay by the railroad companies. The companies were represented by lawyers. The law allows the railroads to close their bridges from one to twenty days in February for repairs, and this seriously interferes with traffic on the river. The Secretary of War was petitioned to have the matter investigated, with a view to a better regulation of the closing of the bridges, and a board was appointed, consisting of Colonel J. W. Barlow, Major W. L. Marshall and Lieutenant Colonel W. H. H. Benyaurd. The last named officer subsequently died.

At the hearing Monday the railroad lawyers set forth the necessity for a sufficient time for repairs. What they asked was that the railroads be allowed to close the draws morning and evening for two hours during the heaviest railroad travel. It was contended that the commuters on the roads were of more importance than the cheap class of freight carried on the river. It was shown by Wm. H. Corbin, counsel of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, that last year the railroads had carried about 32,000,000 passengers across the Passaic river. To every sixty-five tons of freight carried on the river the Lehigh Valley Railroad had transported two hundred and ninety tons across the river.

President Jenkinson, of the Board of Trade, said that a river association, composed of business men and shippers, had been working quietly for a year to find out the exact standing of the railroads in the matter under the law, and the association was sure of its ground.

Mr. Corbin said in respect to the railroad request for closing the bridges, that he was willing that freight trains should be detained, but that passenger trains ought to have the right of way. He presented petitions numerously signed by commuters for closing the bridges. Several persons present said that the petition had been circulated by railroad trainmen.

NEW TROLLEY LINE.

Elizabeth Will Probably Be Connected With Perth Amboy.

The committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders has reached a decision which has encouraged the manufacturers and others on the shore front of Staten Island sound in no small degree. The committee went to Linden and looked over the route of the proposed new road that will connect Elizabeth with Carteret and Perth Amboy by wagon road and decided to co-operate with the Linden Township Committee in the construction of the road, which, when completed, will permit the carrying of supplies to the various large factories on the sound front and will open up communication with many shore towns and villages.

To Build New Bridges.

The Hunterdon County Board of Freeholders met at the large wooden bridges which span the south branch of the Raritan River below Rockafellow's mills Friday to investigate the damage done by the recent heavy freshets. It is believed that a new bridge will be erected, in which event the two wooden bridges will be replaced by a handsome single-span bridge. At the meeting of the Board in the Courthouse Wednesday, Isaac Cleveling, of Clinton borough, was arrested by Judge Reed to fill the unexpected term of Samuel Smith, deceased.

Seventh Official to Ill Health.

A. F. Dohrman, who enjoys in a distinction of being one of two men selected for public office in the history of Somerset county opposition, has been obliged by ill-health to leave for upper New York State, where he will probably remain about two months. The office to which Mr. Dohrman was elected was Councilman from the First ward in the campaign of last spring, when he was nominated on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

INDIVIDUAL WORK IN DAILY PRESS LEAGUE.

Mulford Leads For Best Average Score.

HAS INCREASED HIS LEAD.

C. D. SMITH HAS TOP PLACE IN AVERAGE SPARES.

For Changes in the Standing for Individual Prize in Daily Press Bowling League for Highest Average Score—Mulford, of Roselle, Leads With Townley, of Westfield, in Second Place.

The marvelous rolling of Mulford in the three games rolled in The Daily Press Bowling League last Friday night week left no doubt as to the winner of the high average prize in the league this season. With an average score of 189.4, Mulford now stands well above any of the other competitors for the individual prize offered for the highest average score. It is only a comparatively short time ago that he was a novice on the Roselle Casino alleys. Then he was placed upon the team representing that club with some doubt as to his ability to hold a place. Now he stands at the head of The Daily Press league as by far the best bowler in any of the included clubs.

The standing in the individual average score contest, revised to include the scores of last Thursday evening, shows but few changes. Mulford, of Roselle, still is first and has increased his lead from 182.7 to 189.4. He has so far rolled fifteen games, in six of which he made 200 or better. His low score was 161, and his best 237, rolled last week.

W. M. Townley, of Westfield, is second and he is likely to remain so, unless Captain Charles A. Smith, of the Roselle team, makes a remarkable showing in his remaining three games to be rolled on the Park Club alleys. Sharp, the Cranford veteran, was third, but a change was looked for there as Captain Smith was only a few points behind and was expected to do well on his own alleys last week. Smith advanced himself to Sharp's old mark but the latter also climbed up a few points and still remains in third place.

Patterson, of Roselle, dropped down from seventh to eighth place advancing Hibbard, of the Park Club, to seventh. Johnson, of the Parks, fell behind as both Shangle and Dupont rose above him.

The averages of those still eligible for the prize, having rolled the required proportion of games are as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average.
Mulford, Roselle	15	189.4
W. M. Townley, Westfield	15	176.5
Sharp, Cranford	15	171.7
C. A. Smith, Roselle	15	171.3
Sass, Cranford	15	164.4
C. D. Smith, Westfield	15	162.8
Hibbard, Park Club	15	162.1
Patterson, Roselle	15	161.8
Tilton, Park Club	15	160.8
Bowne, Westfield	15	160.6
Smith, Westfield	15	159.2
F. O. Ball, Park Club	12	158.9
W. Smith, Cranford	15	156.2
Dupont, Cranford	15	152.9
Shangle, Roselle	15	152.0
Johnson, Park Club	15	151.1
Berry, Cranford	15	147.8
Hathorn, Park Club	9	147.1

Captain Chauncey D. Smith, of the Westfield Club, leads in the contest for the highest average number of spares per game. He is well in front. The other Captain Smith, of Roselle, remains second in line, and his average has been slightly improved. Patterson, of his team, made a decided jump from eighth to fourth place, while Mulford, another of the Roselle ties, fell down from fourth to fifth place. The Park Club team remains bunched at the wrong end of the list. Those who have rolled the requisite number of games to qualify for the prize are as follows:

	Games Rolled.	Average Spares.
C. D. Smith, Westfield	15	8.06
C. A. Smith, Roselle	15	6.00
Bowne, Westfield	15	4.80
Patterson, Roselle	15	4.53
W. M. Townley, Westfield	15	4.40
Smith, Westfield	14	4.35
Mulford, Roselle	15	4.33
Berry, Cranford	15	4.26
Sharp, Cranford	15	4.20
W. Smith, Cranford	15	4.11
F. M. Townley, Westfield	12	4.08
Shangle, Roselle	15	4.06
Hibbard, Park Club	15	4.00
Tilton, Park Club	15	3.93
F. O. Ball, Park Club	15	3.86

Money to Furnish a Room.

At the meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps last week it was reported that the necessary amount, $50, had been raised to maintain a room at the Vineland Home for Soldiers and Their Wives, and the amount will be forwarded soon. The corps was assisted in their efforts of raising the money by Winfield Scott Post, No. 72, G. A. R., who contributed about $15.

Little Tots Entertained.

Last Saturday afternoon the inmates of the Children's Home were taken to Music Hall where they enjoyed immensely the entertainment given there by the Triple Alliance.

GRAIN-O! GRAIN-O!

Remember that name when you want a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O has a rich seal brown, it aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder and the children as well as the adults can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

CHASED WITH SHOTGUN.

"OLD NELSE" HAS A GREAT DISLIKE FOR RAILROAD MEN.

The Hermit's Particular Desire Seems to be to Reduce the Working Force of the B. and O. by Anathletizing Them.

"Old Nelse," an eccentric character living near Cranford Junction, has gone upon the warpath. Having evinced a sudden dislike to all railroad men and being reinforced by a shotgun, he now is a fugitive, liable to reappear at any time and shoot a train crew full of holes.

"Old Nelse's" desire to reduce the number of railroad men on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Lehigh Valley Road showed itself a week ago. After a few shots he disappeared when a party started for him. Wednesday he entered the yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and began his reckless fusillade. Although almost a hundred persons endeavored to catch him he vanished completely.

What would be a palatial residence for a homeless dog has sheltered "Old Nelse" for the greater part of his sixty years. It is a hut in an almost impenetrable thicket, and the trail leading to it is know to a few only.

"We went there after him Thursday night," said one of his pursuers, "but he must have a tunnel that he lets down from a tree and hauls it up when he gets in, or else a hole in the ground which he pulls in after him."

At the time of his first raid "Old Nelse" is said to have stated his reason for the shooting as being due to the engineers. He said they disturbed his rest by blowing whistles. He complained that they would go out of their way to disturb him. He was bitter against the firemen, saying they rang the bells hard enough to wake him in the middle of the night, and he proposed to stop it.

The assault of the old man on the railroad men has caused a posse to be organized composed of railroad men and detectives to hunt him down. The belief is that, having been left undisturbed for years, the old man has decided he owns the territory about his hut, and the railroad is a trespasser. The affair has passed the stage where it was humorous, and the firemen, engineers, conductors and brakemen get under cover when running near his domain.

The reward for the capture of Nelse is to be the custody of him, as the thrifty Jerseymen say that any bright man can make no less than three or four dollars daily by exhibiting the strange old man. In the many years that "Old Nelse" has lived about here, he has visited the town only once or twice. He has lived on what game he could shoot in the woods.

YOUNG CHRISTIAN PLAN.

Executive Committee of Local Union of Christian Endeavor Societies Held Last Night.

The executive meeting of the Plainfield local union of the Christian Endeavor Society at the home of E. O. Anthony, Monday evening, proved a pleasant and interesting affair. The work of the missionary, prayer meeting and social committee was fully discussed and many valuable suggestions were given along those lines. The subject of Bible study was also discussed at some length.

At the annual meeting of the Union, to be held the latter part of March, a loving tribute to the memory of Dr. J. Clement French, so long president of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, will be paid by his estimable friend and co-worker, Mr. Sproull of the Essex County Union.

Following the transaction of business, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. A. A. Lake, of Dunellen, interested the visitors by clever recitations. Representatives were present from the Epworth League of Plainfield, and an informal and interesting talk was had upon "How to have a good Epworth League meeting and what Epworth League has done for the church." At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Anthony for her generous hospitality and the visitors united in singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.

THE LAW DESIGNED TO AID CITY HALL IDEA

Drawn by Craig A. Marsh and Approved by Council.

POWER TO BOND THE CITY

FOR $100,000 TO BE SPREAD OVER PERIOD OF 40 YEARS.

City Required to Raise by Tax in Each Year the Sum of Money as May be Necessary to Pay the Interest, and so Much of the Principal as Will Mature During the Ensuing Year—Other Points.

Now that the Common Council has approved the bill, drawn by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, providing the necessary legislation that will allow Plainfield to build a City Hall, the bill will be introduced in the lower house of the State Legislature by Assemblyman Charles S. Foote.

Much interest has been shown in the provisions of the bill which is now to be seen at the City Clerk's office.

The first section authorizes the purchase of land and the erection and furnishing of City Hall, and issue of bonds for such purposes to an amount not exceeding $100,000.

The second section authorizes the Council to borrow money if necessary, and to secure payment by the issue of notes and other temporary obligations to be renewed from time to time until the work is done and then, or sooner, after total expense is ascertained, bonds are to be issued for the purpose of discharging the temporary obligations, and paying the balance of cost.

The third section provides that the bonds shall be made payable in successive years, not more than forty years from their date, so equal amount in value to mature each year after the year of the earliest issue. The section gives other details as to the character of the bonds, sale of same, etc.

The fourth section requires the city to raise by tax in each year such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest, and so much of the principal of the permanent bonds as will mature during the ensuing year.

The fifth section provides that the act shall take effect immediately.

TELEPHONE MEN'S SOCIETY.

Interesting Features of a New Benefit Organization.

There is being formed among the male employes of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this and other cities a telephone employes' mutual benefit society of New York and New Jersey.

One of the clauses in the application for membership requires the applicants to relinquish all claims upon the society if they leave the company's employ. Some say that a man might pay for several years into the society's treasury, and yet lose all his interest in it if he should be discharged upon a pretext by some foreman or superintendent. This is leaving aside any question as to what would happen if there should be a strike which would involve a considerable number of the employes.

It is further explained to the employes that in case of sickness a member will receive $10 a week for ten weeks. In case of death the family will receive $100, and that a $1,000 accident insurance goes with each membership. It is on these grounds that the employes have been invited to join the new organization.

Mr. Moody's Authorized Biography.

In accord with the expressed desire of Mr. Moody, his biography is now being prepared by his son, William R. Moody, and will be published by subscription from the press of Fleming H. Revell Company. Naturally this will be the only work having the approval of the family or being in any sense authorized or authentic. Announcements having appeared of several "Lives" some even claiming to be "official" of "the only work approved by the family and friends," it has become a painful necessity to discredit all such works and to state that any other than the authorized biography referred to will be issued not only without the approval but regardless of the urgent protest of the family and friends.

All statements that Mr. Moody's schools or family are interested in, or are to be aided by any book other than the official work are most misleading and evidently intended only as catchpenny devices.

Mr. Moody was particularly anxious that the errors and misrepresentations of former unauthorized works and misleading newspaper reports should be corrected in an authentic work prepared by his son, thus obviating the multiplication of partial and inharmonious biographical sketches. It was universally known that Mr. Moody entertained a strong aversion to the circulation of protrait of himself during his life. "It is time enough for these as well as for a biograph when I am gone," he often said. The family portraits and many other illustrations have therefore been most carefully guarded and these will only appear in this authorized work. The work is to be sold by subscription.

DRAMA DEAR TO ACTORS

COLORED PEOPLE PRESENTED UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

Given in a Clever and Realistic Manner in Bethel Chapel, Which Was Crowded to Its Utmost—Those Who Took Part.

The most successful entertainment ever given at Bethel chapel was that of Thursday when scenes from Mrs. Stowe's celebrated "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were presented under the auspices of women from the Crescent Avenue church and Bethel chapel. Every part of the entertainment was well given, and the attendance was the largest in the history of the chapel. The capacity of the church was taxed at 8:15 o'clock and the doors were then locked and no one else was allowed to enter. It was a quarter of an hour later when the entertainment commenced and from that time until after 10 o'clock the audience was entertained by the various scenes presented in this historical production. All of the principal scenes from the play were given in a realistic manner in so far as the small platform would permit.

To those who took too much praise cannot be given as each character was finely portrayed. The characters and those who essayed them from Bethel chapel were as follows:

Uncle Tom	Thornton Langford
Aunt Chloe	Hulda Jones
Dinah	Hester Barrett
Miss	Willie Cox
Vete	Georgia Gordon
Polly	Ellen Elliott's baby
Maudy	Carrie Somerset
Topsy	Lucy Bartlett
Eva	Grace Hill
Sam	Edward Johnson
Andy	Wm. Smith
Eliza	Cornetta Jenkins
George Harris	Wm. Johnson
Jake	Geo. Sadler

The following were from the Crescent Avenue church:

Rachel	Miss Carrie Elliott
Ruth	Miss Carrie Dewey
Simeon	Mellick Tweedy
Eva	Florence Manning
Miss Ophelia	Mrs. Bulling
George Sh-lby	Hartley Mellick
Geo. Shelby, 8 years later	Mr. Budlong
Mrs. Shelby	Mrs. Budlong

In addition to the above who took part in the entertainment the following assisted also: Lizzie Bowser, Alpheus Miller, Edith Johnson, Seymour Van-Blake and Albert Bowser.

PRIZE FOR PATRIOTIC ESSAY.

Miss Mary Locke's "Battle of Princeton" Awarded the Honor in the High School.

The birthdays of Lincoln and Washington were jointly observed Friday morning at the Plainfield High School with special exercises. The most important event of the exercises was the the announcement and award of the prize of $5 in gold by the Plainfield Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the best essay on the "Battle of Princeton." The competition was open only to students in the High School.

Mrs. Wilson W. Smith, regent of Plainfield Chapter, made the presentation speech and the prize was awarded to Miss Mary Locke, honorable mention being given to Miss Ruth P. Maxson and Miss Iola Moore. The judges in the contest were Mrs. Howland Cox, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. J. K. Myers, and Mrs. Wilson W. Smith. They had great difficulty in deciding as the three best essays were of almost equal merit.

The exercises also included declamations by Walter Squires and E. A. Janes, a recitation by Miss Madeline Evans and singing by the school. An address was made by Rev. A. C. Nickson, who spoke on the lessons to be learned from the lives of America's two great national heroes and presidents.

Most of the members of the Plainfield Chapter, D. of A. R., were present at the exercises besides a number of other visitors.

DEATH OF HARRY MATTOX.

Died Soon Ill Only Since Friday—Funeral Wednesday Afternoon.

The many friends of Harry B. Mattox, aged 26 years, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mottox, of Webster place, will be grieved to learn of his death which occurred Monday morning at 2:20 o'clock after an illness lasting since Friday. Mr. Mattox was a sufferer from rheumatism and it is believed that this affected his heart and caused his death. He was well known among a large circle of friends. He was a member of Howel Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, and Lecetta Council, No. 28, Daughters of Liberty. The above organizations were invited to attend the funeral services on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Warren chapel. Winfield Scott Post, No. 72, G. A. R., and the Woman's Relief Corps, were also invited.

WOULD ABOLISH LIQUOR LICENSES.

Dr. Lewis Discusses The Traffic In An Aggressive Way.

SAYS IT HAS GREAT POWER.

CALLS IT STRONGEST COMMERCIAL POWER IN THE LAND.

License System Protected the Trade and Generated It Into a Huge Monopoly That Has Become a Great Political Power—To Break It Down the Rising Generation Must be Educated to Abhor It.

According to the point of view of Rev. Dr. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, the liquor traffic is here to stay for the present and the only way to successfully work towards its extermination is to look toward the future. Dr. Lewis presented his views at a meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church, held in the lecture room of the church last Monday. Dr. Lewis has always been a favorite with that congregation and so was invited to speak last evening. The meeting was led by Fred E. Smith. Miss Eva Raybert, soloist in the New Brunswick Reformed church, sang Kipling's "Recessional" in a

"The Sin of Liquor Traffic and How to Stop It," was his subject.

"Plainfield is dominated by it," declared the speaker, referring to the liquor traffic. "Public opinion as far as Plainfield is concerned is in the hands of the liquor traffic. Saloons are here and here they will remain until there is a radical change in public opinion. Such is the condition of most all of the suburban cities, but others are worse than Plainfield."

Dr. Lewis went on to say that the traffic was the strongest commercial power of the country, even greater than the oil trust, and that this commercial power must be broken. To do it, it was necessary to break down the present license system. The license system, he explained, protected the trade and converted it into a huge monopoly that had become a great political power.

He expressed a belief that it would be for the best interests of Plainfield if the license system was abolished and liquor became as free as any other commodity. While it would work evil for the time being it would cause a quicker realization of the evil of the traffic.

"Public opinion," he exclaimed, "has made this system and the action of the Common Council in licensing the saloons is only in keeping with the confessed purpose of the men who control this city. They have not gotten beyond the opinion that to destroy an evil is to protect it."

His next suggestion for the ending of the traffic was that every public servant should be held to total abstinence.

"The Plainfield trolley system," he affirmed, "owes it to the Plainfield public that none shall work for it who are not total abstainers."

The only effectual way in which to break down the power of the saloon, he said, was to break up its patronage, and to that it was necessary to begin with childhood. As long as men wants rum, he declared, he would find it, and while the traffic may be reduced, the only way to end it is to stop the demand for it by bringing up the new generation to a realizing sense of its evils. He linked the tobacco habit as a kindred habit, and declared where one was the other would be also.

"I hope," he said, "that the Council will not grant a license to a grocery, for the sake of the grocery trade, and for the good name of the city."

Then he pointed out with shame that within pistol-shot of three churches and within stones-throw of Reform Hall a great wholesale liquor establishment was going up. It might be that such evils must grow, like that "hole" close to the church, referring to the old Elkwood, so that public opinion would finally rise up and drive them all out.

France is Satisfied, and Miss Brown Now Doesn't Care for Him.

Harry Frazee, the young man of Lyons Farm who fell in love with Margaret Brown, of Westfield, and last Friday found himself in jail charged by Miss Brown with breach of promise, has been released through the efforts of his counsel, John English. He succeeded in effecting a settlement with Miss Brown.

Frazee says it was his first effort at lovemaking and he thinks it will be his last. He claims he would have married Miss Brown long ago, but they could not agree on the minister, as he wanted a Protestant clergyman and she insisted upon a priest.

The girl says she has waited so long for Frazee that she does not care for him anyway. He says he is of the same opinion.

NEW PASSENGER DEPOT TO BE BUILT AT ONCE.

Will be Located Opposite the Present Station.

WITH TUNNEL CONNECTION.

CONFERENCE WITH RAILROAD OFFICIALS AND CITIZENS.

Members of the Board of Trade and Advancement Association Meet First Vice-President Warren, Who Assured Them That a Handsome Passenger Depot Would be Constructed This Spring.

Plainfield is to have another passenger station, and it is to be built this spring. This has been decided by the board of directors of the Central Railroad. The fact was made public by Charles H. Warren, first vice-president of the road and chairman of the board of directors. The information was conveyed to some of the citizens of the city at a joint conference of a committee from the Board of Trade and the Plainfield Advancement Association and the officials of the Central Railroad held at the company's offices in New York Thursday afternoon.

The committee consisted of Mayor Brockfield, of Plainfield; Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, and president of the Advancement Association; L. B. Woolston, president of the Board of Trade; Assessor Chas. H. Hand; Frank H. Smith, president of the Common Council, and James Buckle, chairman of the police committee of the Common Council. There was also present George J. Tobin, Albert L. Smalley and a Daily Press reporter. It was expected that Former Mayor Fisk would accompany the committee, but illness in his family prevented.

The conference was held at 3 o'clock in the directors' room in the Central building at Liberty and West streets. The Plainfield contingent went to New York on the 2:13 train. They were taken by H. W. Doughty, who has charge of the Central's real estate, at once to Vice-President Warren, who received them courteously. After being presented to that official the committee was ushered into the directors' room, where Mr. Warren asked them their pleasure.

Mr. Woolston broke the ice by stating that the citizens had been given to understand that the Central Railroad Company had for sometime contemplated making important improvements at Plainfield, notably the construction of another passenger station at the south side of the tracks and opposite the present one at North avenue. If so, the committee had some suggestions to offer in regard to the same.

At this point Mr. Warren pointed to the rough draft of a map in front of him and interrupted Mr. Woolston to state that the officials of the Central were already making arrangements to construct another depot at North avenue and had the matter under advisement with a view of building the new station this spring. Mr. Woolston said the committee was pleased to learn of the good intentions of the company regarding the new station. In this connection he wished to ask if the company had considered the purchase of the Rushmore property and converting the property to the south of their tracks into a park and otherwise beautifying that portion of the city. Mr. Woolston said that he had understood that the company had made Dr. Rushmore an offer for the property.

Mr. Warren laughed at this statement and said there was nothing whatever in such a rumor and he did not know where it originated—certainly not from any official of the Central company. He said that Dr. Rushmore had been to see the company about the sale of the property, but that he had not been given any encouragement. Mr. Warren said that the Central people did not wish to acquire any more land in front of the North Avenue station.

The company had decided to build another passenger station this spring, and had notified Rushmore & Co., to take up the spur track now being used by them, and to vacate the property now leased for the switch.

At this point in the conference Mr. Woolston unfolded a map and also the committee's pet project—the building of a new street from Sycamore street through to Front street. Briefly the Central officials were enlightened on the subject. When Mr. Warren comprehended what was contemplated he shook his head vigorously and said:

"What, you purpose making a street under our tracks! No, no, gentlemen, that will never do. I can say to you in all candor that we cannot think of such a thing as building a 30 foot tunnel for vehicles beneath our tracks. The cost would be too great to contemplate, and I cannot see the benefits that would result from such an undertaking. The proposition cannot be entertained for one moment."

Mayor Smalley then explained in detail how an effort was being made to improve the city by constructing the proposed extension to Sycamore street. But all arguments did not serve to relieve Mr. Warren's interest in the project. He gave the committee to understand very plainly that the Central Railroad Company was not in favor of the enterprise.

Continuing, Mr. Warren said in relation to the new passenger station that it was the idea of the company to have a single tunnel constructed beneath the tracks that could be entered from either station. As to buying additional land to beautify the railroad property and make a park he did not think it would be done, at least not at present. He said he considered the Rushmore property altogether too valuable for the railroad company to acquire simply for the purpose of making a handsome park.

The question of closing Church street at the railroad crossing came up for discussion. Mr. Warren said the company was anxious to have it done, and he expressed the wish that the Common Council would eventually give them the relief desired, as now the crossing was a menace to the public safety. The committee, however, opposed this, both Mayor Brockfellow and Mr. Hand stating that they considered the keeping open of this street a public necessity from the fact that many teamsters were compelled to use Church street owing to the rail road bridge at Washington street being too low.

Much discussion followed with reference to Church street and the improvements proposed. Regarding the latter Mr. Hand told Mr. Warren that he thought it was for the interest of the railroad company to purchase the property and beautify the surroundings. Mr. Warren said that the Central Company did not feel that it was incumbent upon them to do more for the public than was consistent with good service to the patrons of the road and he considered that the citizens of Plainfield were now getting first class service.

Regarding the proposed new passenger station, Mr. Warren said that no definite plans had yet been made, but he gave the committee to understand that the company was about to let the contract and that work upon the structure would be begun early in the spring—possibly by the first of April.

As to what style of station was to be built, Mr. Warren said that that had not been decided upon, but of the models of the road had suggested a building of unique design with an exterior of large sized pebble stones. Whatever style was adopted he assured the committee of a handsome structure with all modern conveniences and one with which the citizens will be satisfied. The tunnel connecting the two stations will be heated and lighted.

Before the conference was brought to a close Mr. Warren said he wished to impress upon the committee the importance of letting the Central officials know whether the city of Plainfield intended to push by way of condemnation proceedings the matter of the vehicle tunnel beneath the company's tracks. If so, it would make considerable difference with their plans for the proposed new station. Mr. Warren intimated that the idea of building the new depot could probably be abandoned, for this year at least, if such was the case. He said a tunnel for vehicles would entail an additional cost upon the company that it could not afford.

The conference was a pleasant one, and the committee left satisfied that Mr. Warren was acting in good faith, and that the citizens of Plainfield will see a new passenger station erected this spring and ready for occupancy not later than August.

IN HONOR OF VISITORS.

Mrs. James R. Joy Introduced Her Guests to Many Plainfield Society Women.

The informal reception given Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock by Mrs. James R. Joy, at her handsome residence, 80 Myrtle avenue, in honor of her sisters, Mrs. E. G. Ashmore, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Herbert Welch, of Middletown, Conn., was one of the pleasant society gatherings of the mid-winter season.

There were about 175 guests in attendance. Mrs. Joy and her sisters were assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. G. Foster, Mrs. D. M. Greenleaf, Mrs. M. Van Vorst, Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. Charles Horne and Mrs. Walter McGee.

In the dining room, which was prettily decorated in pink and contained a profusion of palms, the Misses Alice Rose, of Brooklyn, Elsie Horne and Persis Snodgrass assisted in pouring tea. The function proved a delightful affair and those who were Mrs. Joy's guests found her a most charming and agreeable hostess.

To Arrange to Receive a Minister.

A special meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth has been called for Saturday afternoon, March 31, at 3:15 o'clock, to be held in the lecture room of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, to make arrangements for receiving Rev. Henry Elliott Mott, from the Presbytery of Buffalo, and to arrange for installing him as pastor of the Westminster church.

THE MANILA POLICE.

Many Filipinos Now Serve as Guardians of the Peace.

Perform Their Duties to the Satisfaction of Their Chief and Have Displayed Great Courage in Trying Circumstances.

Native police were an experiment once at Manila. Now they are a fixture. They carry their revolvers and swing their clubs in an independent manner, hold their heads high and wear yellow shoes with all the dignity of one to the manner born. Col. Wilkinson, the provost marshal, hesitated a long time before he would permit the natives to carry arms. But at last Maj. Tiernan, who belongs to the First artillery by rights, and who is chief of police by virtue of his appointment and ability, persuaded the colonel to select a small number of the natives to patrol the streets that were not as prominent as the Escolta or as public as the Luneta.

Exhibit in a different shade from that worn by the soldier, was chosen as the uniform. At first there was a question as to how they should be armed. Of course it was necessary that they should carry something to enforce the laws of the highway and the city. So they were given clubs. Now, a club is effective so long as it is within reach of the evil-doer, but as there was more or less robbery going on among the natives. It became a necessity to arm the police with something that would shoot. This is how it came about that the native police were armed with revolvers as large as those carried by the American soldiers.

Each policeman weighs a cop, says the Chicago Record, and that gives him a military air. His uniform is tailor-made and fits him perfectly. The trousers are long enough to reach below the tops of yellow shoes and sometimes are stuffed inside the leggings. On the breast is a silver badge showing a number and precinct. The officers are designated much as they are in the army, either by stripes on the sleeve or straps on the shoulders. They travel out of their stations in twos, one walking along each side of the street. Some were assigned to the markets and others to public buildings which are patronized by the natives.

The markets were great places for gambling, and may be yet, but that business is carried on under cover. Time was when the dice rattled and the cards were dealt in broad daylight. Occasionally a native is arrested, however, and a Chinaman does not dare to show his face if he has ever been guilty of throwing the dice. The police seem to pay no attention to pitching pennies—in fact, they indulge in that pastime themselves. But the way the game is played in Manila it becomes one of skill rather than of chance.

One thing these uniformed men do is to keep the streets clean of all dirt and refuse. A garbage wagon daily comes along every street, the native driver rings a bell, and the householder is supposed to send a servant out with the refuse he has collected in the kitchen and the stable. It is one of the duties of the police to see that the carabao cart is not kept waiting too long before a door. These men sometimes become overzealous. Once, while driving along Calle Nuevo, I saw a policeman knock with his club at the window of a residence. The woman came to see what was wanted, and was then ordered to take from the front fence some clothing she was airing.

The men compelling the force are brave. They have been compelled to rush into houses where robbers were at work. More than one has been carried away to the hospital badly wounded in the fights which have followed. Besides this, they have the confidence of the natives and have been able to inform the officials of conspiracies in the presence of insurgent agents.

All this has resulted in the appointment of more native policemen and the establishment of more stations. Col. Wilkinson is satisfied that the experiment has been a success, and among other things it shows that the work of reconstruction will be made easy, for there is growing confidence in the ability of the native to administer his own affairs.

Catrina's Cossack Shawl.

The catrina has a shawl which she values more than all else. It was sent to her by the ladies of Orenburg, a town in southeastern Russia. It reached her in a wooden box, with silver hooks and hinges, the outside being embellished with designs of dragons, chains, whips, etc., on a ground of blue enamel, that being the color of the Cossack uniform. The shawl is about ten yards square, and exquisitely fine.

$20,100 NEEDED FOR THE LOCAL CANADA.

Estimates for the Borough Budget are Announced.

$1,000 MORE FOR STREETS.

BUT CUT IN POLICE MONEY WILL MAKE IT UP.

Mayor Smalley Decides Not to Read His Message Till After the Borough Election—Annual Reports are Presented and Borough Bonds Found to be in Excellent Condition by Experts.

The annual meeting of the Mayor and Borough Council was held Friday evening and it was principally taken up with the presentation of reports and the discussion of disbursements and expenditures of money. The Mayor decided that he would wait until after the borough election before he presented his annual message, and he could then make such recommendations as he thought wise for the coming year's work.

A petition was received from Chas. Hyde and others asking for a crosswalk on Brook avenue. Patrick Eagan asked the Council to look after the sidewalks between Grandview and Mountain avenues on Westervelt avenue, which he claimed are in bad condition.

Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee, presented his report which showed the receipts during the year to be $367.17, outside of the appropriation, of $5,000, which disbursements were $3,324.61. There is a balance on hand of $240.82. Mr. Rogers, chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported that the sum of $1,287.32 had been expended in the fire department, $1,304.75 in the water department, and $4,981.44 for street lighting. He also submitted a communication from E. L. Suffern, the expert, who had examined all books and accounts of the borough and found them correct, with one exception, and that was that Collector Brown had charged himself with $1 more than necessary. He also paid a compliment to Harvey G. Thorn, who had assisted him in the work. As Mr. Suffern had given his services gratuitously, a hearty vote of thanks was extended to him through a resolution.

Mrs. Burtis, chairman of the committee on marshals, reported that the force consists of four regulars and fifteen specials. During the year seventy-eight arrests were made and $1,045.45 was received from fines. The sum of $598.56 was expended for commitment papers, meals and incidentals, and special mention was made of Special Marshals Block and Reagan as being the only specials to make arrests. Everything was reported to be in the best of condition.

The annual report of George F. Brown, as collector and treasurer, was the presented. It is as follows: Cash balance, February 9d, 1899, $634 50; balance unpaid, $472.81; borough fund, $167.69; received from taxes, $65,336.74; interest and cost, $2,483.57; licenses, fines, etc., $2,820 52; Watchung avenue, $18 816 48; bills payable, by note, $18,700. Total receipts, $92,367.81; total cash, $86,291.81; disbursements, borough general fund, being amounts paid over on warrants for various funds described in Clerk Rowley's report, $46,376 73, total amount; Watchung avenue bonds, $19,000; interest on Watchung avenue bonds, $1,345 80; water department bonds, $630; interest on loans, $363.33; bills payable, by note, $17,700; Board of Education fund, $18,566 78; Board of Health, $479.53; total, $86,451 93; balance February 2, 1900, borough account, $928.19; Watchung avenue, $267 69; total, $839.88; total cash, $92,972 81; cash on hand, $539 89; unpaid taxes, $10,867.99; due Board of Health, trust and Board of Education, $6,160, making a total of $92 364 that the Board of Health and Board of Education have not received. This amount has not yet been collected.

Overseer of the Poor David B. Weaver reported a balance of $118 43 on hand out of an appropriation of $1,800. At this time Mayor Smalley stated that he did not think it wise to confirm the appointments of the committeemen in the widening of Somerset street as there is a rumor that a majority of the property-owners may sign to dedicate the necessary amount of land, and this matter was therefore laid over for the present.

The question of how much will be needed for the several departments for the next year was then taken up and discussed at some length. In some instances the appropriations were reduced. Mayor Smalley stated that during the year Watchung avenue from Grandview to Mountain avenues, Duer street from Linden avenue to Greenbrook road, and Westervelt avenue from Summit to Mountain avenues, should be macadamized and he thought the street appropriation should be increased. The whole amount thought necessary was decided upon as $20,100, divided as follows: Police, $3,000, reduced from $4,000; fire, $1,500, same as last year; roads, $4,000, increase of $1,000; lamps, $6,000, same as last year; water, $1,800, same as last year; poor, $1,800, reduction of $200; incidentals, $2,000, reduction of $1,000.

Mr. Rogers stated that he thought it would be necessary to purchase some new hose for the fire department, hence he thought the appropriation should remain the same for fire purposes. It was also stated by Mr. Clark that the sum of $400 had been saved last year in borough engineer work, under the plan adopted by the street committee, which was commended. It was decided by the Council to have 1,200 copies of the borough report published and distributed throughout the borough. This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned. The borough report will be out next week.

RUSHING THE SEASON.

LAWN FESTIVAL OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

Held in Basement of First M. E. Church and Attended by Young Folks in Picturesque Summer Costumes.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church defied the elements last Friday and held a summer lawn festival. The guests came in summer costumes of white while special arrangements were made with the thermometer which remained in the vicinity of eighty degrees all the evening. Fans were brought into requisition and few of the young women, braver than the rest, even appeared with parasols intended, it is supposed, to protect them from the glare of the arc lights.

It was altogether a most unusual and unseasonable kind of a social but it was new and made a decided success. The affair was held in the basement of the church. Numerous evergreen trees were on every hand, two grass plots, one at either side of the room, were defended from rude treatment by warning signs, "Keep off the grass." These signs were afterwards appropriated by the young women for fans and taken home as souvinors. Flags and Japanese lanterns gave a bright appearance to the place.

The young people of the church entered into the spirit of the affair with much heartiness. The young women came in white and light gowns while the young men donned their white duck trousers and straw hats. The temperature of the room was kept well up and those who came in winter toggery realized the fact.

By way of entertainment there was a peanut hunt arranged on novel lines. Jeanie A. Stafford was the lucky successful and received a "peanut man" for his pains. Mrs. L. M. French won a bag of peanuts for having the poorest luck.

Everybody participated in a clothes pin race, which was wildly exciting, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to conversation, bean bags and refreshments. The latter consisted of sandwiches, pickles, coffee and chocolate eclaires.

The affair was arranged by the social committee of the Epworth League.

FAVOR STREET WIDENING.

The Improvement Proposed for the Borough is to be Approved by Property Owners.

The executors of the Peter Wooden estate on Somerset street and Richard Boyce are two of the large signers to the petition for the widening of Somerset street. Several others have promised to sign at an early date. In connection with the widening of the street a false report has been circulated to the effect that those who have dedicated the necessary amount of land in front of their property will have to pay a large assessment. This is not true. There are now only two or three objectors who own much property and it is hoped that they may join the majority soon and agree to sign the petition and thus save considerable expense.

CLOSER UNION OF CHRISTIANS.

Rev. Walter Laidlaw to Speak Under Auspices of Ministers' Association.

Under the auspices of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, Thursday evening, March 1st, Rev. Walter Laidlaw, Ph. D., executive secretary of the Federation of Churches and Christian Workers, of New York, will speak at an inter-denominational meeting to be held in the Crescent Avenue chapel, all who believe in the need, possibility and importance of a closer, stronger, more practical union of Plainfield Christian workers and churches, for the purpose of more and better services, are asked to help secure a large attendance. Pastors are requested to give notices of the meeting. The New York Federation has the indorsement of such men as Hon. W. E. Dodge, Seth Low, Rev. Dr. Storrs, Rev. Dr. Chas. Cuthbert Hall, Rev. Leighton Williams and many others.

Borough Commissioner Candidate.

It is predicted by the knowing ones that Harrison Coddington will be a candidate for re-election at the coming borough election for Councilmanic honors, and that J. E. McClintock, of Fairview avenue, will be a candidate for the position in the Council now held by Murray Buttle. These nominations will be made by the Republicans.

NEW REVOLVING CLOCK.

Unique Timepiece Invented by a Philadelphian Is Based on Sensitive Principles.

In the unique clock here shown, the invention of a Philadelphian, the usual order of affairs is reversed, and the dial, which is here represented by three globes, is made to revolve while the hands are stationary. The three globes of the equators of which are marked the divisions of time, are used; the lower one representing the hours, the next one above, the middle one, the minutes, and the top one the seconds. The globes are suitably mounted so as to offer the least possible friction to their revolution. Mr. Jaeger, the inventor, mounts the clock mechanism in the lower globe on a web extending across its greatest diameter, the globe being made in two sections. The hands are carried on a support rigidly attached to the base and carried up behind the globes. The spindle that transmits the motion to the globes, through suitable gearing, runs through holes cut in the framework that supports these bands. Aside from its unique feature, it is evident that such a clock would be very convenient, indeed, for reading at a time, and, when suitably illuminated, it should prove to be the clock par excellence for use at night or in the sick room.

TRIUMPH OF SCIENCE.

Pest of Locusts in South Africa Rendered Harmless by a New System of Inoculation.

Inoculating locusts with diseases is the latest triumph of science. Some years ago it was noticed by the Cape department of agriculture in South Africa, in those territories in South Africa, in those territories in South Africa, that locusts were particularly plentiful and destructive, that many of the insects were killed by a queer fungus which covered their bodies, grew rapidly and caused their deaths within a few days. Some of the government's practical and clever scientist belonging to the department conceived the excellent idea of studying the disease, not for the usual purpose of curing it, but to propagate it. Recently these efforts were successful. Many of the fungus spores are sold to farmers in South Africa by the Bacteriological institute in Graham's Town for sixpence a tube.

A few weeks ago about a hundred locusts were taken from a field which infested the neighborhood and had been destroying every green thing in sight. The fungus disease was injected into the bodies of the captured insects, and they were liberated again. On the next day hundreds of locusts were found dead or dying everywhere, and the following day the disease had spread so wonderfully that the sand dunes were covered with the bodies of the insects.

Another way of communicating the disease to the young locusts is said to immerse them in lukewarm water containing a solution of the fungus. They fly away after the treatment, and pass their troubles on so well that their friends and relatives die in swarms.

Wonders of the Ocean.

Sir John Murray recently summed up the latest information concerning the ocean. The deep sea, he says, is a region of darkness, as well as of low temperature, because the rays of the sun are wholly absorbed by the superficial layers. Still it is believed that even at this depth animal life is abundant in those night-haunted depths. The majority of the deep sea animals live by eating mud, and by catching the minute particles of organic matter which descend from above. Many of the mud-eating animals are of gigantic size compared with their allies in shallow waters, but they are the prey of rapacious enemies armed with peculiar prehensile organs. Some deep sea fishes are blind while others have very large eyes.

Time of Birth and Height.

According to statistics collected in the months of September, October, November, December, January and February are not so tall as those born in other months. Those born in November are the shortest. Girls, according to the same authority, born in October, January, February, March, April and May show a less length of body than those born in the remaining months. Those born from June to November are taller, on the whole, than born in August. To some extent these facts are attributed to economic conditions, for a child born in summer has generally better food and air.

Tons of Flowers Used.

Vast quantities of flowers are gathered for perfumery purposes. It is estimated that every year 30,000 tons of orange flowers are used, besides 250 tons of roses, 150 tons each of violets and jasmine, 75 tons of tuberose, 20 tons of cassia and 15 tons of jonquils.

Ammonia Gas Motor.

There is a new railroad car that by its own motion compresses ammonia gas to liquid, which, as it goes through the pipes, expands and produces the necessary coldness in the air.

LAST FORMAL DANCE BEFORE LENT BEGINS

Third Assembly Held Friday Evening at the Casino.

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

AN EXTRA ASSEMBLY WILL BE HELD EASTER MONDAY.

The Last of the Series of Society's Formal Dances Was Held Friday Evening—Many Present—Complete Success of the Assembly—Great Credit Due to C. E. Brooks—The Decorations.

The last of the assemblies, the most important social event before the beginning of the Lenten season, was as successful as the others in the series of society's formal dances. It was held Friday evening at the Casino and the usual throng of young people crowded the ball-room and the clubhouse adjoining. The regular subscribers were present besides a number of special guests, principally from out of town, and the evening passed off without aught to mar its pleasure.

When the announcement was first made in the fall that the assemblies would be resumed this season after an absence of two years, a doubt was expressed by some as to their success. That doubt was speedily dispelled and the assemblies have proved a complete success. Most of it is largely due, however, to the efforts of Charles E. Brooks, who has superintended the arrangements and made them so complete.

Last evening's dance came after a week of comparative quietness in local society circles. Last week the dance in the barn of Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk and the meeting of the Cotillion Club at the home of J. W. Belshart were held. Everybody was ready for the assembly, however, and a brilliant gathering of those foremost in society was the result. The guests numbered more than a hundred and fifty and crowded all the Casino to accommodate them. As usual the rooms in the clubhouse adjoining were thrown open for the convenience of the guests, and in them the local was served.

Despite the fact that it was the last of the dances, Mr. Brooks was inflexible regarding the time of closing. The music began at 9:30 o'clock and closed at 1 o'clock.

While this ends the series of assemblies the great popularity of the series has induced the patronesses to arrange for another on Easter Monday night which will be independent of the present series and will yet be on the same lines and under the charge of Mr. Brooks. The subscribers for the dances now ended will probably all participate in the Easter dance together with the many young people who are now away at college and boarding school.

The patronesses for these series of dances are as follows: Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. William T. Kaufman, Mrs. Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Henry M. Stockton and Mrs. H. P. Talmadge.

Exhibition of Photographs an Interesting Feature of a Congregational Church Bachelor.

Maurice A. Audsley's exhibition of photograps was one of the interesting features at the Congregational church last Friday on the occasion of an enjoyable gathering by the ladies of the Christian Endeavor Society and which was under the direction of Mrs. Alex. Miller, Mrs. J. F. Emmons and Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux. There were other "photos" shown too that were the work of both the young women and men who attend this church. Besides the display of the amateur artists there was also an entertaining diversion of book-guessing by way of the illustrations. During the evening Mr. Audsley rendered several selections in a very acceptable manner. Musical selections were also given by others that were pleasant features of the affair. Light refreshments were served before the close of the entertainment which proved to be one of the most delightful of those occasionally provided by the young people of this denomination.

Bought 100 Lots at Garwood.

The Acolian Organ Company recently purchased 100 lots of the Garwood Land and Improvement Company. The property is situated on the south side of the Central Railroad tracks, and, it is said, houses will be erected for the men to be employed at the works. Mr. Votey and Mr. Perkins looked over the property and were identified in the transfer of the land. The lots are scattered on all streets on the south side.

No Longer "On the Road."

Harry G. Adams, who for nearly thirty two years has been a commercial traveler, has decided to give up life "on the road" and has opened a merchandise brokerage office at 205 West Front street, where he will be pleased to see his friends.

REASONS FOR THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Statement Prepared by Superintendent Maxson.

PRESENT FACILITIES TAXED.

NEW BUILDING WOULD BETTER RESULTS TO BE ATTAINED.

With Better Quarters for the High School, Superintendent Maxson Suggests That Manual Training be Added to the Course of Study—Declares That Increase in Expenses Would be Small.

Accompanying the proposition of the Board of Education to the Common Council February 13th with the request for approval of a plan to raise $100,000, by bonding the city, in order to erect a new High School, was a statement from Superintendent Maxson, of the public schools. It formed the basis for the Board's request, and is therefore of great interest. It is as follows:

To the Honorable Board of Education of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—In response to your request for a statement of the present condition of the High School, and the size and appointments necessary in a new building to meet our needs, I would submit the following suggestions.

After making a careful estimate, based on present attendance and on the records for last year, I judge that there will be in the Stillman building next fall, 215 pupils in the High School and soon to on the preparatory class, making a total of about 300 in the building. In the fall of 1901 there will be an addition of 20 or 40 more. That means that, in the first year of occupation, we shall have from 350 to 400 pupils in the building. In my judgment, the building should be built to accommodate 500 pupils, so as to permit growth in the school for several years.

As to appointments, the principal ones are as follows: For study rooms, in which the pupils shall sit, not less than ten rooms, about 24x34 feet; for recitation purposes, two or three rooms about 24x30 feet; for drawing, a room about 25x40 feet; an assembly room to seat 500 persons; two rooms for library and reading room; and a room for the principal's office. The science department, which is one of the most important and practical, would require a room for a chemical laboratory, another for a physical laboratory, and a third for zoology, botany and geology, with a lecture room for demonstration purposes. (With this equipment we could make the science work very much more practical and valuable than is possible with our present building.)

I have expressed to the Board many times my belief that manual training should be included in our course of study; that our children should have the opportunity that so many smaller towns are giving their children, to learn the use of the common tools, to train the hands to work out accurately and skillfully that which the mind conceives, to develop the constructive side of the mind. I think the Board is unanimous in agreement with me as to the desirability of providing for this in a new building; I, therefore, add for manual training two rooms the size of an ordinary class room, (27x34.)

As the High School is the centre of the school system, the new building should include offices for the Board of Education, which is equivalent to two more class rooms, about 27x34. In addition to these there would be the usual smaller rooms for toilets, cloak-rooms, store-rooms, etc.

As to cost I would say that I took occasion recently to examine the High School buildings in two small cities in Massachusetts. These buildings were very compactly planned to accommodate about 400 pupils, without rooms for the Board of Education. There was little or nothing about them that is not considered a necessity for a good High School. While some of the features could be supplied in cheaper material so as to lessen the cost of a building a little, I doubt if it could be lowered very materially and include all the appointments. They were each built three or four years ago and cost $100,000. Today the architects say it would cost about 20 per cent. more to build the same building, making the price about $120,000. Several years ago Montclair erected a building for about 500 pupils at a cost of a little less than $100,000, paying $24,000 for the land. As about the same time East Orange built one of about the same size for $107,000. Judging from these facts and from my study of buildings, it is my judgment that to erect a building for 500 pupils, with modern equipment and agreeable architecture, suitable for High School work, will require $100,000 for the building, exclusive of land.

As to the increase in running expenses which a new High School will cause, I would say that there will be very little. Next fall, for instance, we shall have ten teachers in the High School building. In 1901, if there is an increase of 35 pupils, we shall have eleven teachers. A similar increase another year would add another teacher. In each case, the increased cost would be the salary of the teacher, about $600, but this increase will be a place whether we have a new High School building or not. Unless you pass a rule, refusing to let pupils enter the High School, the school will grow, whether there is a new building or not. It simply means that if a new building is not provided, then we must hire rooms somewhere for the overflow, as the school increases. This means additional expense for rent, additional expense for janitors for these scattered rooms, and additional expense for fuel. Such rooms will be hard to find; they will be poorly lighted, poorly ventilated, and generally unsightly for school use, and very inadequate and unsatisfactory. When we get a new building, all of the pupils and teachers in the present High School will go into it, leaving the Stillman Building vacant. The pupils now in the Whittier School, which is a rented building, will then go into the Stillman. The janitor now in the Whittier, will thus be left free, and will be transferred to the new High School. If we introduced manual training, that would require two new teachers, at a salary, say, of $1,400, half of which the State would pay. It would probably take 50 to 75 tons more coal each year, to heat the High School, than it does the Whittier School.

This would make the increase caused by the new building itself: Coal, $300; manual training teacher, $700; total, $1,000. (The other additional teachers mentioned above should not be included to this estimate of increase, since they will be needed whether there is a new building or not.) So, as I said at the beginning, the new building, in itself, would add but little to the running expenses, except as we undertake the manual training work. It is not, as it would be, if, when the new building was erected, we were to collect pupils that are not now in any school, and hire new teachers that are not now in service. When we enter the building we shall take into it pupils already in school and teachers who are already being paid a salary. If the school is not built, these pupils must be taught and the teachers paid just the same salaries that they would be paid if they went into a new school; that is, the new building does not increase the salaries, nor add to the number of teachers, unless it should stimulate the attendance, and make larger additions to the school, and so require additional teachers; but that, I should suppose, would be a blessing that every one would be glad to have.

As to the effect on the tax rate, there will be no increase in the levy this year, only a small increase, if any, in the year 1901, and probably only three cents on a valuation in 1900, when the first full levy for interest on the new indebtedness will be made. The assessed valuation of the city has increased nearly two millions in the last eight years; our indebtedness is now decreasing $5,000 each year. Both these facts tend to lower the tax rate for bonds and interest.

Respectfully submitted,

Signed, Henry M. Maxson,

Superintendent of Schools.

"SWEET CHARITY'S SAKE."

Pleasing Musicale and Tea Given by the Dorcas Circle of King's Daughters.

A pleasing musicale and tea was given Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. B. O. Bowers, 400 Franklin place, under the auspices of the Dorcas Circle, King's Daughters, which is one of the oldest circles in the city. The object of the affair was to raise money to assist in the support of the city nurse.

One of the very pleasant features was the musical programme. There were piano solos by Miss May Whitney and Miss Lillian Richardson, and Miss Bertha Whitney, elocutionist, gave several charming recitations. Miss Bertha V. Willis, accompanied on the piano by Miss Sadie Mae Howell, gave several pleasing soprano solos. Miss Mears, of this city, also sang several well-known selections.

The decorations used throughout the rooms consisted of pink and green. In the dining room Miss Arleen Crane poured chocolate and Miss Moss poured tea. They were assisted by Miss Lillian Oakley, Miss Anna Cisak and Miss Jessie Littell. Miss Anna Wyckoff, Mrs. Fred Stack and Mrs. Ellis, in charge of the cake booth, while Mrs. Edward S. F. Randolph and Mrs. Frank Howland took charge of the candy table.

The Dorcas Circle is about eleven years old and during its existence has accomplished much good. The officers are: President, Miss Edith B. Littell; vice-president, Miss Anna Wyckoff; secretary, Miss Lillian Oakley; treasurer, Miss Arleen Crane.

New Organ for Grace P. E. Church.

The officials of Grace P. E church have purchased a handsome new church organ to replace the one that has been in use for 20 many years. It is hoped by the members that the new organ will be in position by Easter.

FLOWER ARRANGEMENT.

A Knowledge of the Conditions Under Which They Grow is Indispensable in Japan.

In Japan the art of flower arrangement is as highly regarded as music, poetry or painting, and in order that one may become expert therein, it is deemed necessary to devote quite as much attention, time and study to this as to any other form of art. We look upon flower arrangement in general as merely the result of individual taste, but a Japanese regards it from a very different point of view. It is governed in this accomplishment by numerous and well-defined rules, which can only be acquired by long and patient study. It would be impossible, without this knowledge, to compose an arrangement of flowers which would meet with the approval of competent critics. It would, in fact, be quite as hopeless as for a musician to compose great masterpieces of music without previous training and careful study. The art of flower arrangement is not only practiced by women and girls, but by men as well, for it is an accomplishment indispensable to all who would make any pretense to learning and culture. In spite of the fact that flowers are so inseparately associated with everything Japanese, it would be a mistake to assume that Japan is a land of flowers, for wild, as well as garden flowers, are far more profuse in many sections of this country. Japan is, however, rich in cultivated flowers, that are grown in great profusion in gardens and nursery in the suburbs of all the cities. Flower sellers, carrying their fragrant burdens in huge baskets, are to be met with everywhere, and are patronized by the poor as well as by the rich, for the prices are now enough to bring them within the reach of all. Although there are many varieties of flowers, few, comparatively, are used in flower arrangement, for the Japanese limit their choice to those with which they are most familiar and such as are most closely associated with the different months or seasons, seldom or never using rare or unknown flowers. The reason given for this is that a thorough knowledge of the character of the flowers and the conditions under which they grow is indispensable, in order that a proper and effective use of them may be made. The following may be mentioned as the popular flowers of Japan, and most closely associated by the Japanese with the different seasons of the year. The first to appear is the plum blossom, which in February is hailed with delight as the harbinger of spring, and enjoys, therefore, the greatest popularity. The plum is closely followed by the cherry blossom, which almost rivals the former as a favorite. The next, and one of the early spring flowers, is the wisteria. Summer's flowers include the peony, iris and the lotus; while autumn claims one of the chief favorites, the chrysanthemum, and also the morning glory.

Certain flowers are considered lucky and others unlucky—the latter including all such as are supposed to possess poisonous qualities. I found, for instance, that one of the wild flowers, known as the mi-kan-soh, when the shibuta-no-hanna, which I greatly admired, was regarded with disfavor and was never used for decoration or flower arrangement, for the reason that it was a flower of ill-omen. On the other hand, a favorite arrangement, formed of a combination of pine, bamboo and plum blossoms, is symbolic of good luck and everlasting happiness. It is frequently used on festive occasions and figures conspicuously in the New Year decorations that are arranged over gate and doorway.

Great quantities of cut flowers were used for embellishing the boxes of the wealthy, and a blossom of some kind was nearly always presented to a guest at a banquet, just as at the present day we are given our "buttonhole" at a house party—a pretty custom and an ancient one. In his tomb Nekht is depicted receiving Thoth, seven ibis, with a huge bouquet, five feet high, and composed of papyrus, lotus flowers, cornflowers and poppies, interspersed here and there with fragrant fruits of the mimusops, a tree not now found in the gardens of Egypt but well known at the present day in India. Some of these garlands have been found in the ancient cemeteries of Egypt, buried with the dead.—Theodore Wood, in Scribner's.

Horse Racing on the Stage.

In racing scenes the horses do run at full speed; they run, however, also on the fixed stage, but on what may be called treadmills, which keep the horses in front of the house for longer or shorter periods, according as they are moved quickly or slowly. A groom, at the rear of the audience and of the course, not only makes the scene more realistic; it also hides the mechanism of the treadmills. This fence has contributed in another way to add to the effect by being moved in opposition to the direction of the horses, and so lending to their apparent speed. As to the sounds made by the footfalls of horses to be heard as though passing outside an interior scene, they are reproduced by the use of small cocoanut shells, or wooden imitations mounted on handles and hammering against surfaces of stone, gravel, and, or whatever the occasion may demand. They are also more elaborately manufactured for revolving upon a shaft with pins protruding from the surface. These pins are arranged, like the spurs on a hand organ roller, to imitate trotting, galloping or walking when struck against other substances. If the sound of a carriage is to be added to the trampling of horses, wheels are run on sand.—Cassell's Magazine.

REPUBLICANS SMOKED, TALKED AND ATE.

The County Committee's Smoker Was a Big Success.

FOUR HUNCRED MEN THERE

CITY JUDGE WM. N. RUNYON WAS IN GREAT DEMAND.

An Informal Programme Was Given and Was Followed by a Collation—The Most Important of the Invited Guests Were Not Present, But Most of the County Leaders Were on Hand.

For nearly three hours Feb. 14th four hundred Republicans from all parts of Union county chatted, smoked and enjoyed themselves generally at the smoker of the county executive committee, held in the Casino, this city. While the committee was disappointed in not having all the dignitaries present who were expected, the attendance was large and there was not the slightest doubt as to the complete success of the affair. There was some political talk, but the general conversation drifted from that topic.

This was the second of a series of three smokers given by the county committee. The first was held in Elizabeth a month or more ago, but the gathering last evening was declared even a greater success than the first. The third will be held in Rahway next month.

Although the smoker was announced to begin at 8 o'clock, it was nearly 9 o'clock before the crowd was on hand. A big delegation came up from Elizabeth. It numbered over a hundred and included all the Elizabeth leaders, except the Governor, Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler, who were detained by other engagements. Rahway sent several well known Republicans and Roselle, Cranford and Westfield had a good representation. Summit and several of the small townships were not represented.

Assemblyman Wakelee, of Bergen county, Republican leader in the lower house of the State Legislature, was one of the guests of honor. Union county's three Assemblymen and most of the county officials were also present.

The two local members of the committee of arrangements, City Judge William N. Runyon and Former Justice William Newcorn, had their hands full in looking after the guests. Judge Runyon acted as master of ceremonies and shortly after 9 o'clock called the gathering to order and announced the first number on the programme. It was a comedy sketch by two Elizabethan amateurs, C. J. Busby and O. R. Graham, Jr. They were gotten up in colored make and had some very funny things to say. Besides the funny stories and jokes they told, there were some local hits.

Assemblyman Wakelee was next introduced and said a few words. He was followed by a rag time composition, sung by its author, L. J. Tonnele, Jr., of Metuchen. Senator Charles A. Reed talked a little politics interspersed with apt stories. The recent visit of Col. Bryan was referred to, and his reference to William McKinley as the next President brought out ringing applause. A dialect sketch was given by G. W. Beeches, Rahway.

Former Assemblyman Geo. Squier made a little speech to Chairman Charles N. Codding, of the county committee, and presented him with a handsome set of silverware in a large oak chest, the gift of his Republican friends in the county. The gift is valued at $400. Mr. Godding thanked his friends in a neat speech.

A song by Charles Kraemer, baritone, of Rahway, illustrated by stereopticon views, ended the regular entertainment, after which there was provision made for the inner man. Salad, sandwiches and coffee were served. Throughout the evening, however, cigars and a variety of liquid refreshments were circulated. Nearly everybody smoked and a great cloud of smoke soon filled the room.

Loud calls were made for Judge Runyon, who finally was dragged out of the ante-room, where he was busy seeing that everybody was properly served. He sang the famous ditty of the sayings of one remarkable parrot, of the "Irish Jubilee," and of a series of blows that "almost killed father." The audience was delighted.

Later in the evening John D. Barr, of Elizabethport, sang a favorite melody, while the crowd joined in the chorus.

Among the familiar faces noticed at the Casino during the evening were State Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield; Assemblyman Wakelee, of Bergen county; Assemblyman Charles R. Ross, of Plainfield; Assemblyman Ellis B. Meeker, of Elizabeth; Assemblyman Chester M Smith, of Westfield; Sheriff Robert G. Houston, Surrogate George Parrott, Warden Charles Dodd, Former Assemblyman George Squier, City Treasurer James Morrison, Assembly Journal Clerk Noah Morrison, Factory Inspector J. E. Tucker, Former Freeholder Fred Miller, Former President of the Council John D. Barr, C. H. K. Halsey, County Committeeman James White, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector George Van Voorhis, County Committeeman Robert Waterbury, County Committeeman John Seibert, District Court Clerk James C. Calvert, County Committeeman Jacob Spencer, County Committeeman John Arnold, and David McBride of Elizabeth; Tax Collector Charles E. Bred, Clerk of the Board of Freeholders S. Rosling Ryno, of Rahway; Freeholder James Hope, Alderman Henry Krouse; Aldermen W. W. Birdsall, Gustave Price, of Roselle; Chief Clerk of Sub-Treasury E. W. Hale, B. C. Plume, County Committeeman James H. Warner, David Everett, Edward Bookhout, of Cranford; Former Assemblyman Charles N. Codding, Overseer of the Poor Fred Decker, Charles H. Dunman, George W. Peck, George W. Peck, Jr.; Isaac Seeley, C. Wilcox, John Durrell, J. E. Westbrook, George Marsh, of Westfield; Former Sheriff George Kyte and County Physician Westcott, of Fanwood; Freeholder Robison and Township Clerk E. L. Bond, of Scotch Plains; Mayor George W. Rockefellow, Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, Ernest R. Ackerman, Former Assemblyman W. H. Codington, City Clerk J. T. MacMurray, Postmaster E. H. Bird, Former Postmaster Wallace Vail, Surrogate H. E. Morrison Spencer, Former Judge Nelson Runyon, Former Judge William M. Stillman, Deputy County Clerk B. Frank Coriell, Chief T. O. Doane, Chief George W. Grant, Sergeant Patrick Kiely, Former Assemblyman J. B. Coward, Freeholder W. A. Westphal, Former School Trustee O. L. Jenkins, Former Councilman L. B. Woolston, Councilman Robert L. Lee, Councilman J. F. Buckle, Councilman R. I. Tolles, J. W. Murray, Sr., J. Fred MacDonald, Justice T. W. Nash, George J. Tobin, Councilman William Glosk, Director of Board of Freeholders J. Frank Hubbard, Dr. E. W. Hedges and Dr. T. S. Davis, all of Plainfield.

Among the newspaper men present were Editor Charles McBride, City Editor Jos. D. Lowden and L. E. Hendrickson, of the Elizabeth Journal; H. A. Pearson, newspaper correspondent at Elizabeth; R. M. Stickle, of the Union County Standard; A. G. Anderson and Will Hall, of the Union Star, Westfield Leader; Editor Frank W. Runyon and F. E. Whiteside, of the Plainfield News; Walter C. Dobbins, Henry J. Talford and Charles B. Morse, of the Plainfield Press; Editor J. E. Warner, of the Cranford Chronicle; Editor S. D. Drake, of The Real Estate News and Union Star.

The committee of arrangements consisted of City Judge W. N. Runyon, of Plainfield, chairman; Chas. H. Denman, of Westfield; Assemblyman Ellis B. Meeker, of Elizabeth; William Newcorn, of Plainfield; S. Rosling Ryno, of Rahway.

EXTENSION OF RAILROAD

NEW ORANGE LINE TO BE CONTINUED THROUGH TO MILLBURN.

It Will Furnish Passenger Facilities for a New Territory, and Run Close to the Baltusrol Golf Club Grounds.

The branch of the Jersey Central Railroad, known has the New York and New Orange Railroad, that now extends to New Orange, in Union county, connecting with the main line at Aldene, is to be extended. It is said about six miles, running through a portion of Westfield and touching both the north and west ends of Springfield township. To reach the latter point, it will pass through a vast amount of new undeveloped territory, and will touch within a few hundred yards of the Baltusrol Golf Club grounds. One of the chief disadvantages from which the golf club has suffered has been its inaccessible location, several miles from any railroad facilities.

The branch will furnish passenger facilities for all of this territory, and residents of the various locations, particularly Springfield and Millburn, expect that the competition thus resulting with the Morris and Essex will lead to a reduction in freight rates. The plans for the extension now provide for a single-track road, and the route has been outlined and plans prepared by the company's engineers.

November Marriage Just Announced.

Many Plainfielders will be surprised to learn that Miss Essie R. Schaefer, daughter of Mrs. William Schaefer, formerly of this city, and Harry F. Ryan, of Newburg-on-the Hudson, also formerly of this city, were married at Newburg on November 29th of last year, by Rev. A. Jamelson, of Grace M. E. church, of that city. They are now keeping house at Newburgh where Mrs. Ryan's mother is living with them. The letter arrived at the home of her daughter Thursday last when she learned for the first that she was married.

To Plan for Temperance Work.

In a short time a conference of the various superintendents of sailor and soldier work in the W. C. T. U. in this county will be held in this city to plan for work in the future.

OPPOSED TO LYNCHING.

New Governor of Mississippi is a Bitter Enemy of Mob Law and Its Many Evils.

Gov. A. H. Longino, Mississippi's new anti-lynch law executive, is a comparatively young man, a native of Mississippi, a former legislator and a man whose reputation as an lover of the negro makes his words on the question of lynching of peculiar interest. He expressed a genuine abhorrence of those outrages that are classified under the term lynchings, and called attention to the increase in their number in his own state.

The new governor is not yet 44 years old. He is eminently a self-made man.

HON. A. H. LONGINO.
(The New Governor of the State of Mississippi.)

His parents were poor citizens of Lawrence county, and were unable to give to their son an education such as his ambitions desired. This, however, did not deter him or discourage him. He labored day and night to pay for the schooling he received in Mississippi college at Clinton. He had hardly finished his education when he was offered the chancery clerkship of his county. This was his first public office, and he improved it. opportunity by becoming an active worker in local and county politics. While still a very young man he was elected state senator, and displayed remarkable ability in the numerous and spirited debates in which he participated during those days when the state was trying to establish the supremacy of the white race in government.

Gov. Longino when he left the senate was appointed district attorney for the southern district of Mississippi. In 1896, when Gov. McLaurin was inaugurated, he appointed Mr. Longino chancellor of the Seventh chancery district. This office he resigned last May in order to launch himself in the race for the governorship, which he won over Governor. Longino's wife is certainly capable of making a brilliant success of her opportunities as a hostess. The Longinos have three sons and one daughter.

ORIGINAL RESIDENCE.

Singular Architecture of an Oklahoma Man's House Now in Course of Construction.

Charles Babcock, of Guthrie, horseshoer, alderman and an admirer of pugilism, is building the most remarkable house in Oklahoma. Babcock's house is three stories high and as round as a silver dollar just from the mint. The upper stories are each smaller in diameter than the one below. On top of the third story is a staff, crowned with a glittering ball. The lower floor is divided into three rooms, each resembling in shape a slice of pie. Along the wall of one room is a narrow stairway to the second story.

One of Babcock's troubles is to get his furniture in it. If the beds and tables and chairs and sofas were round he could arrange matters with less difficulty. Somebody has remarked that a stranger would walk himself to death trying to get into the house, as he walked right, going continually in a circle, in an attempt to find the door.

Babcock will complete his home by building a circular porch entirely around it. His home is in West Guthrie and commands a pretty view of the Cottonwood valley. Babcock drew his own plans and is proud of his architectural production. He said that he built the house just to have one different from any other.

DUER STREET TO BE OPENED TO THE CITY.

Mayor Smalley Has Taken Up the Project.

NEED ONLY TO RAISE $500.

IT IS THOUGHT THAT THIS WILL BE SUBSCRIBED.

The Sentiment of City and Borough is in Favor of the Improvement—It is Thought That Union and Somerset Freeholders Will be Glad to Erect Necessary Bridge Over Brook.

Once more the project of extending Duer street into this city has been taken up and there is every reason to believe that this time it will be a success, for the borough's enterprising and progressive Mayor is back of it. Through the efforts of Mayor Smalley a petition was started last Friday for the purpose of securing subscriptions to the amount of $500. If this amount is pledged for the project the balance of the expense, whatever it may be, will be provided for and thus the success of project will be assured.

The benefits to be derived from this improvement cannot be estimated, and there is a general sentiment in favor of it from both borough and city people. The persons who own the property on the city side have always stood willing to assist in the opening and extension of this street, and they will no doubt stand true to that purpose now.

The expense attached to the work of extending the street is comparatively small when the benefits are considered, and Mayor Smalley is being commended heartily for having taken up the scheme with the idea of pushing it through. There seems to be no reasonable doubt but what the necessary $500 will be raised in a short time, and then the work can be started and completed during the early summer. The opening of the street will give borough people a short cut to the postoffice and the principal stores on Front street with the saving of fully a considerable distance around the block.

If the street is opened there is no doubt but what the Board of Freeholders of both Union and Somerset counties will gladly consent to erect a suitable bridge over the brook and put something there that will be a credit to both borough and city. So far assurances have been given that the money can be raised. Those who contribute will do so with the understanding that the money will be returned if the project is not successfully carried out within a prescribed length of time. This proviso will excite enthusiasm and assist greatly in the enterprise.

ROMANTIC AND HAPPY.

Young Couple Find Their Path Bright After Being Married in a Secret Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Asher Blaine Miller, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., were guests Friday of Mr. Miller's aunt, Miss M. V. Stickle, of this city, and in connection with their trip there is a bit of a romance. The couple, who are quite young, are enjoying their honeymoon. Mr. Miller was a student at the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, and his bride, Miss Bessie Kepler, also attended school in the same city. They recently concluded their studies and decided to get married without the knowledge of any of their relatives.

They were married a few days ago at Poughkeepsie, and left the city very unceremoniously. They came to New York and from there went to Baltimore, from which place they sent word to their folks concerning the marriage. Mrs. Miller's mother came to it soon and met the couple at Baltimore. She was delighted with the marriage, although she would have preferred that her daughter wait until she was older. However, she offered no objection, and she gladly gave her blessing.

The other relatives upon hearing of the marriage also gave their blessing and the young couple are gratified to learn that their act did not bring down the displeasure of their relatives. The groom is quite well-to-do, and is very popular. His wife is a charming young woman and is also very popular among a large circle of acquaintances who will be surprised to learn of their marriage. The couple left last evening for Newark, where they will visit relatives for a few days, and from there they will return home.

Unusual Wax Surprise.

An enjoyable surprise was tendered last Friday to Miss Mary Long, of Martinsville, by her brother, F. A. Long, of Summit avenue. Miss Long was invited to Plainfield for the purpose of attending a party, and the invited were to meet at Mr. Long's home. At the proper time there was a crowd of people who called and it was some minutes before Miss Long realized that the affair was in honor of the anniversary of her birthday. Then the evening was passed in playing games and listening to phonographic selections given by Willard Rose. Before the affair came to an end a collation was served.

GROUND HOG KNEW HIS BUSINESS ALL RIGHT

Big Snow Storm Came at Fag End of Winter.

TROLLEY LINES TIED UP.

TEN INCHES OF "THE BEAUTIFUL" WAS ON THE GROUND.

City Street Cars Were Able to Keep Running, But Suburban Service was Temporarily Stalled—Central was Not Bothered Much—Street Commissioner Gavett was Prepared for the Storm.

The ground hog was right, after all. Sunday would have found him struggling through a foot of snow with all the wintry accompaniments of a low mercury and formidable north wind, had he not turned back at the glimpse of his shadow Candlemas Day.

Although sadly belated, the first real snow storm of the season put in its appearance Saturday, and is now in full possession. For such a stranger it is remarkably healthy, and has every appearance of being here to stay for some time. It wasn't any illnatured blizzard to interrupt traffic and general inconvenience the land, but a real old-fashioned snow storm, accompanied by some biting cold weather.

With February half gone and remarkably mild weather, there were some who believed that Dame Nature had really forgotten to provide any real winter. But when the Plainfielders woke up Saturday morning, they found the little flakes falling steadily and the ground already white. All Saturday the snow continued until close to the hour of midnight when the storm ended and most of Jersey was hidden under a white coat, variously estimated at from eight to twelve inches in thickness.

As the storm decreased in energy, the north wind swept down and threatened to heap up the snow in great drifts to the general inconvenience of all. But the snow was too heavy to drift much, while the wind remained at a fairly moderate pace and comparatively little trouble resulted in this part of the State in consequence.

TROLLEY LINES TIED UP.

Snow Storm Handicapped Suburban Service More Than it Did the City Lines

The local trolley system continued its service with an effort, while the suburban trolley lines of the Elizabeth and Westfield and the Brunswick Traction Companies were temporarily tied up. Plainfield itself felt no serious effects. Most of the sidewalks in the central part of the city were cleaned early Sunday morning and the Sunday crowd of church-goers, somewhat smaller than usual, however, had little difficulty in reaching the various houses of worship. The weekly holiday, coming directly after the storm, gave plenty of opportunity for clearing up before the usual business activity was resumed this morning.

The wind was brisk during the closing hours of the storm but it died away with the snow to be resumed with increasing force at the first signs of morning. In the fields and open spaces where the wind had full sweep, there were drifts but the deepest of them did not reach over three feet. In the city, however, the drifts were of little importance. The snow was by no means ideal for sleighing but it packed in time and the sleighs began to put in an appearance as early as Saturday afternoon. Sunday they were out by the score and the merry jingle of the bells was to be heard on every side. Monday, many of the tradesmen utilized runners while numerous plans were being laid for pleasure parties Monday evening.

The trolley cars of the Plainfield Street Railway Company ran on any old time Saturday afternoon. With the assistance of the scrapers on the cars they managed to keep running, however. The horse scrapers were called out at nightfall and were kept busy until after midnight. Although there were delays, all the lines, including the one to Cranford, were kept open until midnight and then the cars were lodged safely in the car house.

Early in the morning a force of the horse scrapers were active in the early morning hours and soon the cars ran on nearly schedule time. The Scotch Plains line was only opened as far as Leland avenue in the morning. Beyond that point a three foot drift interfered with the traffic. Superintendent Adelman turned his attention there after getting the city lines in full operation and opened the line through to Westfield during the afternoon. This morning, traffic with Cranford was resumed.

Early in the season, arrangements were made along the line for the clearing of the tracks in case of a snow storm. One four horse scraper went to work Saturday night at the E. and O. crossing east of Cranford. Other gangs started at Cranford, Westfield and Scotch Plains. Little could be done that night on account of the high wind which carried the snow over the tracks as soon as it was cleared away. Sunday work was resumed at all points and now the line is working again.

The Brunswick Traction Company suffered badly. Only a week ago a fire in the carshed destroyed all their plows, and Superintendent Radel thought it too late in the season to necessitate the purchase of more. As a result all the lines of the Brunswick Company were tied up Saturday night. Those in the city of New Brunswick were cleared yesterday with horse-scrapers. The suburban lines were effectively blocked, however. The line to Bound Brook was first opened, and it is expected that cars will be running from Bound Brook to Dunellen and to Somerville tonight or tomorrow morning.

CLEARING THE STREETS.

Street Commissioner Gavett Had Everything Arranged for Just Such a Storm as Came.

When it is considered that a large amount of snow fell in this city and the storm was a severe one, Plainfield residents have great reason to feel thankful that they suffered so little trouble and inconvenience. According to a prearranged system, adopted by Street Commissioner Gavett, each one of the city's employes knew exactly what to do. The streets were divided among the men and in this way travel was kept open and crosswalks were kept clear. Of course, during the storm it was useless to do anything, but as early as 4 o'clock Sunday morning the men were out cleaning off crosswalks. The gang was divided, some going to the east end of the city, some to the west end and another gang in the the Netherwood district. In the Netherwood section a snow-plough was used, and with a gang of men the crosswalks were cleaned and in many instances sidewalks also. The work was done in such a systematic way that residents suffered no inconvenience in getting about yesterday.

Throughout the main part of the city crosswalks were cleaned early, and Commissioner Gavett was surprised to see how quickly and generously the people responded and cleaned off their own walks. This was a great help to the street cleaning department and was appreciated very much. Before noon Sunday all of the principal crossings were cleaned off and one could scarcely find a sidewalk that had not been cleaned.

Commissioner Gavett's men were unable to do much Sunday in the way of cleaning gutters in the business part of the city, but this was attended to this morning, and the odds and ends of the work are being looked after by the city's employes under the commissioner's direction. The latter is agreeably surprised to learn that the storm did so little damage here, and that the people of the city experienced so little trouble. His new system certainly worked well, and the people have cause to feel grateful for the excellent work done by the street cleaning department.

CENTRAL NOT BOTHERED.

Trains Were Able to Run on Schedule Time, But Further West Delayed Somewhat.

Judging by the great amount of snow that was falling and the high velocity of the wind throughout the night it was supposed that the Jersey Central Railroad would be severely bothered and handicapped in the movement of trains, especially as regards the through fast trains from the west. Much to the delight of the company this was not true and at no time during the storm or afterward was any train delayed over five or fifteen minutes. It was expected that there would be trouble in the yards at Jersey City, but very little difficulty was experienced there and the trains were able to start on time. There was some trouble on the ferry and the boats were delayed a considerable length of time during the early part of Saturday evening.

It was not even necessary for the company to bring out the snow ploughs, as the trains were able to clear the tracks themselves. At no point along the road was there any great drifts of snow that blocked trains. The Philadelphia trains and those of the Royal Blue Line, all of which encountered heavy snow south of here, had no trouble in running through on time, all of which was a great surprise. The officials of the road congratulated themselves that so little trouble was on hand. Passengers to and from the city were also more than on time and reach their destination on time. There was not even any disarrangement in the running of freight and coal trains, and these trains were ran on their regular scheduled time throughout the storm.

Snowfall was Ten Inches.

Weather Observer Meegle reports that the snow-fall amounts to ten inches and that the wind Saturday night and Sunday morning reached the velocity of forty miles an hour. This morning the mercury fell to fourteen degrees above zero. During the storm, it remained at twenty-four.

TRAVELING LIBRARIES.

They Are Proving Popular and an Appropriation to Purchase More Books is Asked.

State Librarian Buchanan has submitted to Governor Voorhees a supplemental report for the information of the Legislature on the traveling libraries. It shows that twenty-eight of the libraries, containing fifty volumes each, were secured with the appropriation of $1,500 made last winter. The report gives the volumes purchased and those donated, making altogether 1,428 volumes. A list is given of the places that have already secured the traveling libraries. The counties of Atlantic, Hudson, Middlesex, Ocean and Union are not represented in the list of towns having them.

Mrs. E. B. Horton, of Cranford, secured from twenty-seven of the women's clubs in New Jersey lists of titles of books recommended for purchase, and Miss Mary McKeen, of Camden, purchased and forwarded to the State Library the fifty-two volumes of the kindergarten work. Mrs. Horace Kimball, president of the Reserve Club of Plainfield, has notified the librarian that the members of her club have agreed to contribute fifty volumes for the library, and that the books will be forwarded early in February.

The Library Commission will recommend to the Legislature a further appropriation of $1,500 for the traveling libraries.

ILLUMINATING GAS.

Some of Its Dangers in the House and How They Are to Be Avoided.

Numerous accidents occur annually in the use of gas for lighting, cooking or heating, through either carelessness or ignorance. The largest number of accidents, probably, occur from ignorant persons either blowing out the gas or turning it off, and subsequently turning the cock on sufficiently for the gas to escape unnoticed.

Many other accidents are the result of the bad practice of turning down a gas flame, particularly in a bedroom. This is always ill-advised, for such a turned-down flame may be either blown out by a draught of air from an open window, or else it may be extinguished by a sudden variation or reduction in the pressure. When this happens in a small bedroom without ventilation there is great danger of asphyxiation, particularly so if water gas is used. Much can be done to avert this danger by a proper arrangement of the gas piping in houses.

Another dangerous custom is to shut off the gas at the main service or at the gas meter during the night, and numerous accidents, some of them fatal, have resulted from it. It is almost equally bad to shut off the gas at the meter during the day.

Notwithstanding the universal introduction of gas lighting, there are still many persons who would be benefited by receiving plain instructions on the use of gas in the household. Gas companies would benefit themselves and the public by paying more attention to this matter. Among available statistics may be found numerous incidents of death or accidents due to faulty management of gas. Among the more remote causes the writer finds the following mentioned: In one of two adjoining rooms, supplied with gas from one so-called prepayment gas meter, a man retired for the night when the gas supply from the meter was exhausted, but forgot to close his gas burner. The occupant of the adjoining room came home late at night, dropped a coin in the slot of the gas meter, and got a fresh supply of gas, which meanwhile also escaped in the adjoining room, killing the occupant.

Escape of gas and explosions have also happened in the use of gas cookstoves, the burning water, running over the vessel, extinguished the flames. It has already been mentioned that the so-called independent gas connections with two keys may lead to accidents by the wrong one being turned by mistake. Where the gas in the cellar freezes in winter time it is dangerous to attempt to thaw out the gas meter or service with a flame. A gas meter should never be examined with a burning light, nor should any tools be used near a gas meter known to be leaky, on account of the danger of flying sparks.—Cassier's Magazine.

NATURE'S TONIC.

Good, Ripe Fruit is a Speedy Cure for Many Ills of the Flesh.

If people only ate more fruit they would take much less medicine and have better health. There is an old saying that fruit is gold in the morning and lead at night. As a matter of fact it may be gold at both times, but then it should be eaten on an empty stomach and not as a dessert, when the appetite is satisfied and digestion is already sufficiently taxed. Fruit taken in the morning before the food of the night has been broken is very refreshing, and it serves as a stimulus to the digestive organs. A ripe apple or an orange may be taken with good effect. Fruit, to be really valuable as an article of diet, should be ripe and sound in every way of good quality, and if possible it should be eaten raw. Instead of eating a plate of ham and eggs for breakfast, most people would do better if they took some grapes, pears or apples—fresh, ripe, sound fruit if to be had, and after that they can fall back on stewed prunes, figs, etc. If only fruit of some sort formed an important item in their breakfasts, women would generally be brighter and stronger and would have far better complexions than is the rule at present.—Philadelphia Press.

Inheritance of Health.

There is, it is true, as great an inequality in the inheritance of health as in the heirship of wealth or brains. Some are born with a fortune of vigor to spend, as long as it lasts, to a life-time of eager squandering will leave them poor, and others enter the world paupers of need so dire that no charity from medicine can ever raise them to the possession of much. Even that mediocre legacy of vitality which renders us undistinguishable units in the mass. It lies in the hands of each to improve or waste that property, as he chooses, for there are self-made men physically as truly as mentally, those who, because of ancestral wastefulness, have only a sixpence of health and turn it into a fortune, and there are spendthrifts of health who come to an sorrowful a case as spendthrifts of gold. And as long as it is to be wise, a wise and frugal ruler brings happiness as surely as a foolish one increases distress, and wisdom here, as elsewhere, lies in learning and obeying natural laws.—North American Review.

Mutton or Lamb Broth.

Cut three or four pounds of neck meat into chunks, removing all the fat possible. Use a quart of water to each pound of meat. Cook for not less than five hours, and remove the grease when cold. If the invalid gets tired of the taste, the next time the broth is served put in a couple of stalks of celery at the time it is heated, removing them before serving. This will give a different flavor.—Delineator.

BICYCLES and MOTORS

BIG BICYCLE STABLE.

Located Under the Roof of a Shed in the North Court of the National Treasury Building.

One of the greatest bicycle stables in the country is located inside of the walls of the treasury department in Washington. It is under the roof of a large shed built in the north court of the treasury building and has a floor area of about 10,000 square feet.

In ordering the construction of the shed the only purpose the secretary of the treasury had was to provide added protection for the extensive vaults under the court where a hundred million dollars or more silver coin and bullion is stored. Moisture was finding its way into these vaults, and pending authorization by congress for the reconcreting of the vast subterranean area a wooden roof over the space was decided upon, says the New York Telegraph.

To the captain of the watch occurred the happy thought that if the roof were raised a few feet higher than the architect's plan contemplated the hundreds of bicycles which then incumbered and blockaded the corridors might be conveniently and safely stored there. He suggested the change and it was made.

Now the 1,500 employes of the department, or such of them as may be addicted to the bicycle habit, have stalls for their wheels, each being assigned to a special number. Nearly 500 wheels are stabled there from nine to three every day. The sight is one worth seeing and is one of the curiosities of Washington about which few outside of the department have ever heard.

PUMP IN CYCLE HEAD.

An Invention Which Certainly Is Unique, Even Though It May Not Prove to Be a Success.

The hollow tubular frames of bicycles have attracted the attention of the army of inventors, and it has been proposed at different times to use them for the storage of oil for lighting purposes, for benzine for power purposes, and for sundry other similar services. Now, Sir Herbert H. Pattee, of Philadelphia, presents the idea of constructing a pump in the front head for use in inflating the tires.

This hollow stem is finished on the inside to adapt it for use as the pump barrel. Means are provided at its lower end for connecting it with the valves on the tires, a flexible detachable tube being suitable for this purpose. The handle bars carry the air pump piston, and when they are elevated and depressed, after loosening the nut that usually locks them fast to the steering head, they serve the purpose of the usual pump handle. It is evident that such an arrangement is practically as convenient and effective as a foot pump, yet it does not encumber the machine in any way. A flexible rubber tube could, of course, be run through the rear forks for convenient inflation of the rear tire.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Temperance in Wheeling.

It is probable that if cycling were practiced with the same degree of moderation as walking, and in a correct, upright position, it would be no more hurtful, even to the victims of heart trouble. Four miles, say at the rate of five miles an hour, could be done by a delicate person with less fatigue than one mile could be covered afoot, and the superior exhilaration of the wheel would tone up the system better. Wheeling is pleasure; walking is drudgery—that is the difference. Walking is harmless, but footracing would not answer at all for an invalid. The same distinction may be made between slow pedaling and scorching. It is the latter, and not the use, of the bicycle that produces injury.—Golden Days.

The First French Automobile.

Automobiles are not as novel as is commonly supposed. The first automobile successfull constructed was the work of Cugnot, in Frazier, in 1769. And this vehicle, made over than a century and a quarter ago, comprised every essential of the most perfect automobile of to-day. It was in reality a steam carriage, but as the mechanism of all else was there, the principle of the inventor were far inferior to his idea. It was rudimentary and defective. Nevertheless it ran, and ran so well that it broke down the inclosure of the ground on which it was tried. As M. Cugnot's invention was not followed up automobiles were not seen again in France until 1865.

Latest Telephone Receiver.

A new combination of the receiver and transmitter of a telephone is arranged in the following manner: The transmitter is set in a small box, while the receiver is fixed to the inside of the door, or lid, of the box, so that when the door is open the receiver is placed in a position without being touched by the hand, and conversation can be carried on.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AN OLD SCHOOL TEACHER.

M. F. Marcley Passed Away Quickly Sunday Afternoon.

LIVED HERE FOR 47 YEARS.

PRINCIPAL IN PLAINFIELD'S FIRST PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Had Lived a Retired Life for Many Years, but was Active in Temperance Circles—Born in New York State and was Always Engaged in Teaching — Death Shocked Reform Hall Meeting.

The community was deeply shocked Sunday to learn of the sudden death of M. F. Marcley, of New street, who for nearly fifty years has resided here and held the high esteem and respect of everyone who knew him. He was one of the very early teachers in Plainfield's first public school which was located at the corner of Arlington avenue and West Fourth street, where the Franklin school now stands. He was the principal there for many years, and it was this position that brought him to this city. There are many men in the city today who sat under his teachings.

Mr. Marcley had always enjoyed good health and was very active. He was especially prominent in church and temperance work. It was while putting on his overcoat Sunday forenoon to attend service at the First Baptist church, where he was a member, that he was taken with a distress about the chest. He remarked to his daughter-in-law, with whom he lived, that he believed that he would sit down for a few minutes and possibly the pain would subside. It did not, however, and he decided not to go to church. The distress grew worse and finally Dr. Clawson was called. He diagnosed the case as a collection of gas about the heart and prescribed accordingly, telling Mr. Marcley to keep perfectly quiet the rest of the day. The physician had not been absent very long, when the members of the family, who were in another room, heard a noise. They hastened to the sitting room and found Mr. Marcley lying on the floor, dead. Death was due to heart trouble, which had developed into a severe form during the absence of a physician.

Mr. Marcley was 82 years of age, and was born in New York State, coming here about forty-seven years ago. Early in life he was given a first-class education and later he devoted his time to teaching school, having held several such positions in various parts of New York State. He was for some years a professor at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. He also taught school at Morristana, N. Y. When he came to Plainfield he accepted the position as principal of the first public school. During the latter years of his life he lived in retirement. He was married twice, his second wife dying about eleven months ago, after being an invalid for many years.

Mr. Marcley was very active at Reform Hall. He was vice-president of the club. Those who assembled yesterday afternoon at the hall for the regular meeting were waiting for the arrival of Mr. Marcley to begin the meeting, when they were informed that he was dead. Mr. Marcley was very generous and gave freely of his means to his church and all charitable enterprises.

He is survived by two sisters, who live in New York State; two brothers, one in Eagle, Wis., and the other in New York State; one son, Dr. Marcley, of Buffalo, and three grandsons.

AGAINST THE LICENSES.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck Enters a Protest Against the Legalized Liquor Traffic.

Before his sermon Sunday morning, Dr. Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, referred to the granting of licenses by the Common Council on the 20th inst. He entered his protest against the granting of all saloon licenses, and emphatically protested against the licensing of Michael Watson on Grant avenue. A man with the record that Watson has for breaking the law in reference to liquor selling should never be licensed by the Council, he said.

Dr. Schenck also entered his protest to the granting of a license to a grocer. It would be a calamity, he said, and he hoped that all the grocers of the city would peacefully protest against the granting of such a license, and if they did so he believed the Council would listen to their protest and refuse to grant the license.

Subscription Euchre Party.

An informal subscription euchre party is being arranged for Friday evening by some of the young society folk. The idea was discussed at the assembly and an informal canvass made of those who were present. The favorable responses were so numerous that it was decided to hold the euchre party at the Casino Friday evening.

OUT IN SNOW STORM WITH SCANT CLOTHES.

Strange Condition That James Anderson Was In.

HE WAS NEARLY FROZEN.

FOUGHT THOSE WHO WERE TRYING TO HELP HIM.

Suggested In'e West End Fire House, Where He Became So Violent That it Was Necessary to Call a Policeman—When Arraigned in Court He Was Unable to Explain His Conduct.

As the firemen on duty at the West End Engine house on West Fourth street were closing up for the night Saturday at midnight a man staggered in out of the storm. He wore only an undershirt, trousers and shoes and was covered with blood. One eye was closed. He had apparently been exposed to the cold and storm for so long that he was half-dazed.

The firemen placed him against the radiator and he gradually recovered. As he recovered from the cold he began to talk incoherently and to struggle. Finding that he was getting dangerous Patrolman Higgins was summoned.

Higgins recognized the man as James Anderson, of West Third street, who is employed as a coremaker at the Pond Tool Works. He has borne an excellent reputation. Higgins tried to take him home, but Anderson became so violent that the officer had to use force. Anderson seemed temporarily insane, and it took the united efforts of the policeman and the firemen to hold him until a hack could be summoned. Then Higgins took him to the station house.

Anderson was released Sunday noon by the Mayor, and appeared before City Judge Runyon last Monday. He pleaded guilty to the charge of drunk and disorderly, and the Judge suspended sentence on account of his previous good character.

Anderson could in no way account for his injuries or for the loss of his clothing. He remembers going to the home of a friend to attend a party and that was all. The police say that the party ended in a fight.

WANT BRIDGES CLOSED.

Commissioners Signing Petitions Which are Being Circulated by Trainmen.

Petitions are being circulated by the trainmen of the Central road for signatures to close the draw over Newark bay two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. Many of the commuters have signed the petition. Several hundred names have already been secured. The petition is to be presented to the United States Signal Corps at a future meeting of that board.

The board of Trade of Somerville has resolved to petition the U. S. Army Board to keep the draw bridge closed from 7 to 9:30 a. m. and from 4:30 to 7 p. m. The committee on Transportation, Messrs. Stewart Kenney, C. H. Bateman and Samuel Ayres, were delegated to meet with the Newark Board of Trade today to take action with that body in the matter.

Celebrated Little Girl's Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert S. Martin, of 26 Somerset place, gave their daughter, Maude Agnes, a party from 3 to 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was in honor of the seventh anniversary of her birthday, to which her cousins and a few of the young friends were invited. The afternoon was passed in playing games and having a good time in general, after which refreshments were served. The young celebrant received a number of very nice presents in honor of the occasion.

For Benefit of Children's Home.

The Daughters of the Cross, of North Plainfield, will hold a tea and cake sale for the benefit of the Children's Home at the residence of Mrs. Charles A. Reed, 27 Myrtle avenue, Friday afternoon, February 23d, from 4 until 6 o'clock. Twenty-five cents will be received at the door. No cards of invitation will be issued, but it is hoped that the interest felt in the home will be manifested by a large attendance at the tea.

Was That Intended?

What looked like an attempt to steal some of the valuable old coins contained in the collection at the Plainfield Public Library was made a week ago. The front of one of the cases was broken open and the coins disarranged. It was supposed that the thieves had taken some plunder but a careful investigation proved that all the coins were there still. It is now supposed that the thief was interrupted in his labors or that the breaking of the case was the work of some malicious person.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXIII. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH, 1, 1900. NO. 9.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

THE LENTEN SEASON HAS COMMENCED.

Services Will Be Held in Roman Catholic and Episcopal Churches.

ANNUAL FAST OF 40 DAYS

SOCISTY WILL BE INACTIVE DURING LENTEN SEASON.

Fast is Carefully Observed in Roman Catholic and Episcopal Churches and Recognized By Other Denominations.

Yesterday was Ash Wednesday and Lent begins. Society enters on a period of inactivity that does not end until after Easter, which this year falls on April 15th. Meanwhile, the Lenten season is carefully observed by the Roman Catholic, the Protestant Episcopal and the Lutheran churches, while almost all of the other denominations recognize it to a greater or less extent.

Lent is an annual forty days' fast that was inaugurated by the early Christians. It begins with Ash Wednesday and ends with Good Friday and Easter Sunday. The day on which it begins is fixed by the phases of the moon.

In Plainfield, as in the other cities of this country, it is particularly observed by the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches. During the period it is customary to give up all social galties. In the Catholic church the fast is also observed. Meat is only to be eaten at one meal a day except on Wednesday's and Friday's when it is given up entirely. The second and last Saturday's of Lent are also observed as special fast days.

It has been the habit of many attendants of the Episcopal and other churches to observe the fast by giving up some favorite delicacy during that period or make some other sacrifice to the personal convenience or enjoyment.

Services will be held here every day during Lent at the St. Mary's R. C. church. On week days there will be a Lenten service every morning at 8 o'clock, with vespers every Wednesday and Friday evenings at 8 o'clock. The usual services will be held Sundays.

At the Grace P. E church, five services were held yesterday. Holy Communion was at 7:30 and 10 o'clock in the morning, and morning prayer and sermon by the rector, Rev. E. M. Rodman at 10 o'clock. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 8 o'clock last evening short services were held.

During Lent services will be held in that church daily. On Sundays there will be the regular services. Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays services will be held at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Wednesdays and Fridays the service will be at 11 o'clock in the morning and Thursdays at 8 o'clock in the evening.

PATROLMAN FINED $5.

Police Board Punish Officer McCarthy for Intoxication—Laugh at Elmer Rampon.

The police board of this city was in session last Tuesday. Patrolman McCarty was brought before the board on the charge of intoxication and fined $5, which is the limit of the power of the board. A more severe punishment would necessitate a trial before the Council. He was warned that a second offense would be treated severely.

The board discussed various other subjects and laughed at the ideas of Elmer Rampon that Plainfield was never so "wide open" as it is today. Circumstances, they said, did not bear out the statement.

Chaplain Johnson Unable to Come.

It was expected that Chaplain Johnson, of the New York fire department, would deliver an address this evening at Grace P. E. church to the Plainfield firemen, but Dr. Rodman received a telegram Tuesday from the chaplain in which he states that his wife is quite ill, and the physician has advised a trip abroad. As he and his wife will have to leave within a few days Chaplain Johnson will be unable to come to this city. Dr. Rodman announces, however, that Rev. Archdeacon Weeks, of Long Island, will take his place and the firemen will be welcome just the same.

Death of Mrs. Roberson.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, of Liberty street, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, received a telegram last evening from Frank Roberson, of Hartford, Conn., asking him to come to the latter place today and attend the funeral of his wife, Mrs. Eliza Roberson, who died a few days ago. She was formerly a member of Mr. Jackson's church.

NOT OPPOSED TO CITY HALL.

Councilmen Mellick and VanHerwerden Do Not Want Front Street Site Selected.

The statement was made in The Daily Press a week ago, and was through a misunderstanding allowed to go uncorrected until now, to the effect that there were four of the members of the Common Council who were opposed to the building of a City Hall at present. The four Councilmen were not opposed to a City Hall but only to the site then referred to, the Gardner property. It is understood that one of the four Councilmen is opposed to a City Hall on any site for the present. Councilmen vanHerwerden and Mellick state that they favor a City Hall but not on a Front street property. They think that the site on Park avenue and Fifth street is better fitted to the demands than the others.

SITE OR NEW HOSPITAL

COMMUNITY SICK ROOM TO HAVE A NEW LOCATION.

Board of Governors Have to Hold-o- Option Secured on Available Property.

In addition to Plainfield having a new High School and a City Hall she will also have a new hospital before long. This is practically an assured fact, despite rumors that little is being done from time to time. The board of governors of the hospital are now unanimously agreed that the hospital shall be established somewhere besides its present location. This will be welcome news to many Plainfielders who are interested in the matter.

As regards the new site, an option has been secured on it after a great deal of trouble. It is one of the finest locations to be found in Plainfield and when it becomes generally known where it is, it is believed that the people of the city will be much pleased. It is not near the centre of the town, but is comparatively easy of access and can be reached within a short time from most any point. The great advantage in this site is that it is in a quiet place and the noise of cars will not interfere with the comfort of patients. The surroundings are delightful and when the necessary buildings are erected an attractive site will be presented.

When the land is purchased and becomes the property of the board of governors then the location will be made known, and it is expected that the purchase will be made within a short time.

CRANFORD CHURCH FIGHT.

Lien on Building Splits the Congregation—$2,000 for a New Society.

The Methodist churchgoing people of Cranford, are in a ferment over the split in the church caused, it is said, because the owner, Robert E. Ham, who is a devout member and holds a lien on the structure, refuses to sell the church to the congregation unless they pay $2,000 cash. He refuses, it is said, to take a mortgage.

Sunday the congregation held a religious and business session, and it was announced by the pastor that there were forty more recruits offered to the membership of the church and $2,000 subscribed if the members would agree to build a church in the south side of the town. The announcement was received with much enthusiasm and it was decided to move and build the church.

Fourteen of the members decided to stick to Ham and will worship with him at the old church. Rev. Mr. Thompson will continue to preach in the old church until his year is up, by which time the new place of worship will have been erected.

TO EXAMINE WAR RELICS.

Fund That Some of Them May Be Fitted With Death Dealing Loads.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held a regular meeting last Tuesday, when a committee was appointed to examine the number of shells that are in the post room as relics. The veterans realize that in case a fire should break out in the building and the shells are loaded there would be serious results, hence this action for the purpose of ascertaining whether the shells are loaded. These shells came from various battlefields, and heretofore no one has ever raised the question as to their being loaded.

To Institute New Tribe of Red Men.

Great Sachem William Newcorn, of this city, will institute his first new tribe this evening at Waldwick, beyond Ramsdell. The new tribe will have a charter list of seventy members and promises to be a flourishing organization.

Miss Willis, of Washington Park, has about recovered from a recent illness.

BURLESQUE ON "SAPHO"

GIVEN AT ANNIVERSARY AFFAIR OF CHOSEN FRIENDS.

Presented by Two Elizabeth Young Men Who Entertained in a Clever Manner.

The members of Plainfield Council, No. 44, Chosen Friends, celebrated their fifth anniversary last Tuesday in their rooms in the Babcock building. There was a large number of members and friends present. W. D. Williams presided and in his jovial manner kept everyone in the best of humor. Miss Ida Tallamy rendered a piano solo, which was followed with phonographic selections. Then Supreme Representative Westervelt, of Dover, was introduced and he gave a short talk concerning the objects and purpose of the order.

The hit of the evening was made by Messrs. Chartrand and Morgan, of Elizabeth, who, under the direction of Joseph McManus, Jr., of the same place, gave a burlesque on "Sapho." Mr. Chartrand took the part of "Sapho," and Mr. Morgan played the part of "Jean." The sketch from the play included that part where the two make love to each other and when "Jean" carries "Sapho" up stairs. Owing to the limited amount of room the latter scene was omitted. The young men introduced a number of new songs and jokes which kept the audience roaring with laughter. They also gave some clever impersonations.

After a few more selections on the phonograph all were invited to adjourn to the banquet room, where refreshments were served under the direction of the committee in charge.

The above is one of the most prosperous in the city. It was organized five years ago with a small membership, and today it has fifty members. The total membership in this country is about 22,000, and the local council is receiving new members constantly.

SUBURBAN CLUB BURNED.

Old Historic Landmark in Union County Passes Away After Event-ful History.

The Suburban Clubhouse, near Elizabeth, one of the oldest landmarks in Union county, was destroyed by an incendiary at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. The building was erected in 1716, and was used for many years by the maternal great-grandfather of Chief Justice William J. Magie, of New Jersey's Supreme Court. It afterward passed into the hands of the Linn family, who seven years ago sold it to a manufacturing company in Elizabeth.

There was no one in the clubhouse when the fire started, the Negro steward, John Jones, and his wife being away at a party. The flames spread with great rapidity, there being no fire apparatus to fight them. The steward says no fires were burning in the house when he left it.

CHANGED FAITHS AND PULPITS.

Curious Coincidence in Cases of Clergymen of Pottstown and Rahway.

Rev. C. L. Cooder, of Pottstown, Pa., has accepted the call to the parish of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Rahway, and will fill the pulpit early in March. Rev. R. P. Cobb, whom he will succeed, will go to the Episcopal church of Troy, N. Y. A singular coincidence of the lives of the two dominies is that Rev. Mr. Cooder before he assumed the pastorate of the Pottstown church was a Presbyterian minister, while Mr. Cobb was a Presbyterian before he went to Rahway to take charge of St. Paul's church. Why the two clergymen changed their faith is not known.

To Discuss South Africa Events.

A course of Lenten talks will be given by Miss Dorothy Wilberforce Lyon, Ph. D., (B. M.,) in All Souls' Unitarian church on six successive Monday mornings beginning March 5th, from 11 to 12 o'clock. The first talk will be a discussion of the entire course of events in South Africa from the earliest Dutch settlement antecedating and leading up to the present war. Further information regarding the lecture can be obtained from Miss Mary H. Miller, 309 LaGrande avenue.

Entertained at Euchre.

The members of the Tuesday Night Euchre Club were entertained last Tuesday at the home of Dennis Gavin, Maple avenue. A very pleasant evening was spent. At euchre, Miss May McArthur and A. A. Cannon won the first prizes. A collation and dancing followed.

A Birthday Party.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church has arranged to give a birthday party in Vincent chapel next Tuesday evening, March 6th. A programme is being arranged that promises to be enjoyable, and refreshments will be served to all.

CITY HALL MEASURE PASSED BY ASSEMBLY

No Opposition to the Enabling Act in the Lower House of Legislature.

5 PER CENT. BILL OPPOSED.

ASSEMBLYMAN COOPER'S MEASURE DOOMED TO DEFEAT.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Argues for the Passage of New School Bill—An Ocean Steamyard Proposed.

Trenton, February 28.—The only bill of especial interest to Plainfield with which the Legislature has to deal at this session was favorably acted upon yesterday afternoon by the House of Assembly. It is the measure enabling Plainfield's Common Council to bond the city to the extent of $100,000 for the establishment of a City Hall building. It was passed without a dissenting vote. It will now go to the Senate and undoubtedly be passed there, and then to Gov. Voorhees for approval.

The House Judiciary Committee gave a hearing yesterday on the five per cent. interest bill, introduced by Assemblyman Cooper, of Somerset. No one appeared to argue in favor of its passage, but there was much opposition to it.

D. D. Denise, president of the New Jersey Agricultural Society, denied that the farmers wanted the bill. Money could not be loaned profitably, they say, if the legal rate of interest is reduced, considering that the tax upon money amounts to 2 per cent.

Ex-Secretary of State Kelsey, General J. W. Plume and J. B. Dill were among the speakers against the bill. Several representatives of small banks said the passage of the bill would close them up.

Other speakers said that New Jersey would lose money to New York and Pennsylvania, if the rate became 5 per cent. because in those States it was 6. The committee will report the bill in a day or two. It is not thought that it will pass.

The Senate Committee on Education gave a hearing yesterday afternoon on the general school introduced by Senator Stokes. After hearing arguments for and against the bill announcement was made that a further hearing would be given next Tuesday.

Mrs. Williamson, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, said that on behalf of eight thousand women of New Jersey she had come to indorse the bill, which the Federation believed was the best measure ever considered by the Legislature. Many features of the bill, she said, were worthy of unqualified indorsement, and especially the kindergarten provisions, transportation of children to schools in sparsely settled districts, the doing away with the ward system and the choosing of school boards by elections at large.

Mrs. David P. Hall, of Plainfield, a representative of the Federation, also spoke for the bill.

Senator Francis introduced a bill authorizing the construction of a boulevard along the ocean front between Sea Bright and Sea Girt, under the State Park law. The bill will be opposed by Ocean Grove authorities, as it provides for going through that place, which is maintained as a private corporation and keeps its gates closed Sunday.

The Senate confirmed the nominations of Stephen J. Meeker and Robert S. Green, who were reappointed as members of the State Board of Assessors.

Evenings With Thackeray.

"Five Evenings with Thackeray," will be a pleasing diversion during Lent at All Souls' Unitarian church. The meetings will begin at 8:15 o'clock. The programme is as follows: March 12th, "Vanity Fair," A. H. Atterbury; March 26th, "Pendennis," E. B. Smith; March 19th, "The Newcomes," Rev. A. G. Nickerson; April 2d, "The Four Georges," J. R. Joy; April 16th, "The Virginians," Alexander Gilbert. Each book will be introduced by a paper, after which a general discussion will follow.

Lovers of the Stage.

The Audubon Society of the State of New Jersey will hold their annual public meeting at the Crescent Avenue church chapel Thursday afternoon, March 8th, at 4 o'clock. A business meeting for members will be held at 3:30 o'clock, and at 4 o'clock Wm. Dutcher will give a talk on birds, illustrated by views with the stereopticon.

Miss Edna Bowers, of Basking Ridge, is visiting borough relatives.

SIX STAND TOGETHER.

MAJORITY OF COUNCIL FAVOR MACDONALD PROPERTY FOR CITY HALL.

Four West Building Located at Park Avenue and Fifth Street—One is Non-Committal.

Since the present administration has been considering the question of a City Hall for this city there have been many perplexing problems to confront the members of the Council. There are six members who stand together practically pledged to purchase a certain site for the City Hall, and four other members are dead against the scheme, while the eleventh man is an unknown quantity in the fight. For this reason City Hall matters have not progressed as rapidly as one might hope.

The piece of property that the "Big 6" stand pledged to buy is located on East Front street and is known as the Thomas MacDonald property. It is here that they want the City Hall, and if they so decide the other five members of the Council cannot prevent the purchase of the land. It is in the hope that some of the other members may join the majority and thus make it more unanimous that the matter has been "hanging fire" for some time. It is understood that the "Little 6" want the municipal building on Park avenue, corner of Fifth street, as they think that is the most central location, and they are persistent about it. They do not feel disposed to give up their ideas, even though the majority do rule.

Just as soon as the law giving the Council the authority to go ahead is passed it is believed that the property on East Front street will be purchased.

STORK VISITS HOSPITAL.

Little Baby Girl Makes Her Debut in the World in Community Sick Room.

Those in charge at Muhlenberg Hospital were given quite a surprise early this morning when a bright little girl made her appearance to change the dull and monotonous routine of events. Mrs. Susie Fegan is the mother of the little one. She formerly resided in Brooklyn, where her husband died about two months ago. Since that time Mrs. Fegan has been living at Raritan, where she was employed. Yesterday morning she left Raritan for Brooklyn, where she expects to reside. When the train reached this city Mrs. Fegan's condition was such that she had to be taken from the train to the hospital. It was about 7 o'clock when she arrived there and an hour later the little one was born. Both mother and daughter are doing very well. In the course of a short time they will go to Brooklyn to take up their residence there.

PROGRESSIVE HEARTS.

Pleasant Card Party Given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rushmore to Seventy-five Friends.

One of the delightful social functions of the season in Plainfield society was the "Progressive Hearts" party given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rushmore, at their handsome home on West Eighth street. There were about seventy-five people present.

The decorations in the parlors were very handsome and quite elaborate, consisting principally of palms and smilax. Prof. P. Ludwig Conde supplied the music. The first ladies' prize was won by Mrs. Fred Yates, while Mrs. W. A. Pinto was a close second. E. H. Ladd captured the first prize for the gentlemen and F. O Herring the second. The affair proved to be one of the many pleasant social gatherings, and Mrs. Rushmore sustained her excellent reputation as the ideal hostess.

Supper at Oak Tree.

The residence of Martin Giles at Oak Tree contained a merry gathering of young people Tuesday. The affair was a supper given under the auspices of the Marconite chapel, of that place. Plainfield sent a delegation of thirteen from Trinity Reformed church, who had the pleasure of a delightful ride in one of Hand's stages. The supper served was one of the old-fashioned kind and was thoroughly enjoyed. The evening at the farmhouse was one that will not soon be forgotten.

Aged Woman Dead.

Somerville, Feb. 28.—Catherine Doolittle, aged 92, widow of Rev. Horace Doolittle, died at the residence of her son, Rev. F. M. Doolittle, at North Branch, yesterday, from paralysis. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m., Thursday, from the parsonage, and the remains will be taken to Bells Mead for interment. Rev. Mr. Doolittle, pastor of the North Branch Reformed church, is her only surviving child.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Miss Lizzie G. Maltby Becomes the Wife of Harry L. McIntosh.

Tuesday at noon a quiet, but pretty, wedding took place at the home of Erastus C. Maltby, Grant avenue, near Sherman avenue, when his daughter, Miss Lizzie Maltby, was united in marriage to Harry L. McIntosh, of 421 West Seventh street. Both are well-known in this city and their many friends will join in congratulating them. Mr. McIntosh is engaged in business in New York and commutes. His wife is a most estimable woman, and both have a host of friends.

The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate relatives and was performed by Rev. Dr. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh will reside in this city.

UNITED CHRISTIAN WORK

THAT IS THE AIM OF THE FEDERATION OF CHURCHES.

The Plans to be Explained Under Auspices of the Ministers' Association Tomorrow Evening.

The object of the federation of churches is the uniting of Christian workers in efforts to improve the material, social, economic, civic and spiritual interests of the family life, and through inter-denominational conference and co-operation to meet existing religious and moral needs. The founding or the strengthening of churches; the opening of public baths, libraries, and the park; the location of a successful industrial settlement; the bringing of hundreds of families before unknown into churches of their choice; the gathering of information most helpful to pastors—these are some of the results of federated church work in New York city.

Thursday evening Rev. Walter Laidlaw, Ph. D., the executive secretary of that movement, is to speak in the Crescent Avenue chapel, under the auspices of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, and a large attendance of Christian workers of all denominations is hoped for.

A New York pastor says that the systematic methods of federated church work have given him a knowledge of the religious condition of his neighborhood such as for twenty-five years he had not been able to acquire.

If the entire city of Plainfield was divided into inter-denominational parishes; every home visited at least once a year by some Christian worker; and the information gained turned over to the proper pastor, church, or benevolent organization, who does not believe that great good would come from it?

A MISSIONARY TEA.

Given by First Methodist Church Workers at the Home of Miss Anna Smalley.

A missionary tea was given Tuesday under the the auspices of the members of the Sunday-school classes at the First M. E. church that are taught by Miss Anna Smalley and Miss Susie Jackson. The affair was held at the home of Miss Smalley, on Manning avenue, and was given for the purpose of raising money for foreign and home missionary work which is carried on by the Sunday-school of this church.

During the evening a pleasing programme was presented including a vocal duet by Miss Mabel Tompkin and Miss Eva Jenkins, and another one by Miss Tompkin and Miss Wooton. W. J. Roman gave a piano solo and also recited "At the Opera." The programme closed with a very interesting dialogue, "Getting Ready," in which Miss Mabel Jenkins, Miss Cora Harris, Miss Mabel Vail, Miss Eva Jenkins and Mr. Laing took the various parts.

BIG FIRE LOSS IN BANGOR.

Flour Mill and Shirt Factory the Buildings Burned.

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 28.—Because sparks flew from an overheated belt, the large flour mill belonging to Hilborn Flarrop and the shirt factory belonging to Balent Horwitz & Co., of New York, were burned in Bangor yesterday.

Flarrey's loss is estimated at $16,000, while Horwitz & Co.'s loss is $12,000, partly covered by insurance.

Her Seventy-sixth Year.

Mrs. Susan Adams, of Dunt street, was surprised Tuesday by a number of her friends. It was the old lady's 76th birthday and her friends from this city and Westfield, to the number of about 30, were present to extend hearty congratulations. Mrs. Adams received a number of useful gifts, including a solid silver spoon. The evening was made pleasant by light refreshments and household games.

WRETCHED SERVICE OF LOCAL TROLLEYS.

Frequent Trouble at the Fourth Street Switch Upsets the Regular Schedule.

IT HAPPENS ALMOST DAILY.

PASSENGERS LEAVE THE WAITING CARS AND WALK HOME.

General Dissatisfaction Over Service of the Plainfield Street Railway—Tuesday's Experiences No Unusual Thing.

There was the usual interruption of traffic on the lines of the Plainfield Street Railway Company yesterday noon, caused by the derailing of a car at the switch at Washburg avenue and Fourth streets. Just at the hour when business men wanted rapid transportation to their homes for lunch, the schedule was completely disarranged and it was some time before the cars were running again in proper order.

As the motormen and conductors labored hard to get the car back on the track a little crowd of passengers and passersby gathered on the sidewalk and passed various comments regarding the interruption of travel.

"It's a wonder to me," exclaimed one well known business man, "that the people of Plainfield allow this wretched condition of affairs on the trolley line to continue without a strong objection. There isn't a day passes but that this same thing is repeated, some times several times during the day. I have gotten so that I make no attempt to catch a car. I can make better time afoot."

Another speaker called attention to the fact that now winter had come and the cars might really be a convenience to the people, the schedule was cut down and they were run on longer intervals and at a slower rate.

There is evidently something the trouble with that switch at the corner of Watchung avenue and Fourth street. Repairs have recently been made but the trouble does not seem to be overcome. Hardly a day passes but a car is derailed at that point and a general mix-up invariably results. Sometimes these little incidents happen more than once a day. They all tend to reduce the effectiveness of the service.

It would seem that so many accidents of that kind would see the street railroad company prepared with some effective apparatus for getting the cars on the track again rapidly. Yesterday it was nearly three quarters of an hour before the trouble was remedied and two other cars were caught on the track from Netherwood. After fifteen minutes delay, the Fourth street line resumed its runs. It was just at the hour when the men were hurrying to and from their homes for lunch while the school children were also bound homeward on the same errand. Some of the passengers in the cars waited for a time and then started to walk to their various destinations.

SIR KNIGHTS DANCED.

Pleasant Social Affair Arranged by Nat. Form Rose, Knights of Pythias.

A social dance of more than passing interest was that of Tuesday in the Plainfield Camera Club rooms, given under the auspices of Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P. The members, their families and friends gathered to the number of about seventy-five and thoroughly enjoyed an evening of dancing. Music for the occasion was furnished by Rogers. The floor and reception committee consisted of all the Knights present, while Sir Night Wm. Clifton was the floor manager. He was assisted by Sir Knights Jacob Bilmm, Jr., and S. J. Higham.

The affair continued until 3 o'clock this morning and everyone agreed it was one of the most pleasant affairs of the season. During the evening a collation was served which all enjoyed.

Remains of Consumer as a Fair.

The fair held last week by Friendship Degree Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, and which closed Saturday evening, was very successful. Several contests have been decided by the committee in charge. Mrs. Jacob Kettering secured the chair, and Mrs. Peter A. VanFleet the lamp. The set of dishes went to Mrs. Fred Welch. Mrs. McKane won the handsome Odd Fellow quilt and Miss Lizzie Dunlap secured the sofa pillow. The other contests will be determined later.

—The Sewaren Fish Company car will not be here this week, but goods will be sold at their store at our prices.

...Americans Who Have Had to ... Patiently and Long Before Arriving at the Goal of Their Ambition.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THE boys and girls, young men and women, of this country are taught to respect old age, but that is not enough. They should be taught to seek the society of the old men and women in every community and listen to the stories of their experiences in the years that have passed.

There is a dear old man or a lovely old lady in every little town or village who could be helpful to the individuals of the rising generation, and who would be glad to be so. Every young man or woman who would seek their's society would not only bring pleasure into their fast fading lives, but would derive benefit by drinking from the fountains of wisdom which flow like well springs from the minds of those good people.

These reflections come forth as the result of an evening with an elderly gentleman who was once a commanding figure in the national councils, but who is now living a quiet life in his declining years. He said to the writer: "You are perfectly welcome to tell what has been said, but I do not like to see my name in print, and so you must not make mention of me. There was a time when I sought newspaper notoriety, for the newspapers make and unmake politicians. But when a man leaves all that behind him he does not want to be mentioned in any manner, except in the obituary notices."

The venerable statesman and philosopher narrated incidents which surely ought to be laid before the reading people of the country, for they afford food for thought and encouragement to those who may be discouraged. He said that there are times in the life of every man when the world seems very dark, but that the skies, clear up for others to those who keep on doing their duty to the best of their ability. One of his illustrations was this:
